COPS BOOTLEGGERS!—CHIEF

DEMOCRATS IN SENATE PONDER TREATY CHANGE

May Temporarily Ally with Borah.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—An unexpected uprising of Democratic senators, allying themselves temporarily with Senator Borah, Republican "irreconcilable," developed today against the German, Austrian, and Hungarian peace treaties, notwithstanding a letter from President Harding demanding all possible haste in ratification.

Fifteen or eighteen Democratic senators are reported to be on the war path against the treaty, although previous indications, based on the assurances of several of their leaders, were that only two or three would oppose the pact.

While they do not sympathize with the Idaho senator's opposition to the treaty for the same reasons, they may join him in trying to defeat the measure now submitted.

May Revive Wilson Doctrine.

A party caucus or a conference of Democratic members of the foreign relations committee and the steering committee probably will be held early next week to decide upon a course of action.

Democratic opponents of the treaty are framing a program of reservations which they will ask their pro-treaty colleagues to support. One of these reservations, it is understood, will undertake to define more specifically the rights and advantages which the United States is to secure under the terms of the treaty. Another is calculated to revive the doctrine of Woodrow Wilson, and will seek to bind the United States to the enforcement of the terms of the Versailles treaty, under which the United States claims rights and advantages.

Between Two Fires.

Senator King of Utah, who is taking a leading part in the Democratic attack on the treaties, summed up his attitude in this language:

"Senator Borah contends that the new treaty of peace with Germany involves us too deeply in participation in European affairs. We contend that it does not go far enough."

In addition to the fifteen or eighteen Democrats reported against the treaties, it is understood that three or four Republicans are prepared to vote against it. Prominent among the Democrats opposing the pact are Senators King of Utah, Glass of Virginia, Reed of Missouri, Watson of Georgia, McKeller of Tennessee, and Harrison of Mississippi. Their motives are mixed. Reed and Watson are "irreconcilables," and most of the others are disciples of ex-President Wilson and advocates of his creed of closer participation in European affairs.

President Harding's Letter.

President Harding's letter asking speedy action on the treaties was submitted to the senate today at the opening of debate on the German pact. It was addressed to Senator Lodge on Sept. 21. It says:

"These covenants are the outcome of the executive's endeavor to carry out the expressed wish of congress. I feel quite sure that the senate will be glad to give early expression of approval and ratification.

"Formal peace has been so long delayed that there is no need now to emphasize the desirability of early action on the part of the senate. It will be most gratifying if you and your colleagues will find it consistent to act promptly so that we may put aside the last remnant of war relationship and hasten our return to the forunate relations of peace."

Lodge Discusses Pact.

After reading the President's letter, Senator Lodge said:

"It required, I think, no little skill to make a treaty conforming to the Knox resolution. I think the secretary of state is to be congratulated on the work he has done in securing the treaty now before us.

"I do not think this treaty binds us to have troops on the Rhine," continued Mr. Lodge, "unless it is thought there is a moral obligation on our part towards the other allied and associated powers. I do not think myself there is any moral obligation. I am sure there is no legal obligation. It is perfectly obvious to the allied and associated powers that there is no moral obligation, because neither Italy nor Japan has any troops upon the Rhine.

"I think I am at liberty to say that while the exact time for complete withdrawal, withdrawal of the flag from Coblenz and regions now entrusted to United States troops, has not been determined, the troops will begin to return at once."

LARGE FAMILIES OF GOOD STOCKS, PLAN OF DARWIN

Would Tax Childless and Unmarried.

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Practical measures advocated by some students of methods of improving races, such as the sterilization of criminals by the X-ray, the promotion of larger families among good stocks, and their limitation among others, were discussed at today's session of the International Congress of Eugenics at the American Museum of Natural History.

Maj. Leonard Darwin, a son of the great Charles Darwin, author of "The Descent of Man," urged the experimental use of the X-ray, with the consent of the subject to prevent descendants from criminals. He suggested that this treatment might be extended to the wastrel, the habitual drunkard and "the work shy," to prevent the transmission of their traits to future generations.

Matter of Patriotism.

On the other hand, Maj. Darwin urged that the sound and fit and superior people should, by a campaign of patriotism, be induced to raise larger families. Racial deterioration seems evident, amongst all highly civilized peoples, he asserted, because of the thinning out of the descendants of highly endowed stocks and the multiplication of those of inferior endowment.

"What is necessary is to make it deeply and widely felt that it is both immoral and unpatriotic for couples sound in mind and body to unduly limit the size of their families," said Maj. Darwin. He read this sentence slowly, and at the request of two or three in the audience, read it over again.

Would Tax the Unmarried.

The speaker advocated special taxes on the unmarried and the childless. He said that the feeble minded in the United States numbered between 300,000 and 400,000. He said that all who had studied the problem agreed that they should be seggregated, especially when their natural protectors could not care for them, and prevented from becoming parents.

Maj. Darwin urged seggregation by long terms for habitual criminals to prevent their family life. He said that statistics showed that the child of a criminal was ten times as likely to become a criminal as the child of a normal member of society.

Mating Tall Men and Women.

Maj. Darwin calculated that if the 25,000 tallest men and women in America were mated and induced to raise two children more than the normal family rate, and that if this selection of the tall were continued for centuries the average height of an American would be increased but one inch every 1,500 years. The attempt to raise the average level of intellect and character by "breeding experiments," he said, would be equally futile.

His point was that this specilized breeding would, as it always has, prove a failure, but that the result of encouraging large families generally among intelligent, clean-living people would be vastly beneficial within the immediately succeeding generations.

New York Daylight Saving Ended at 2 A. M. Today

New York, Sept. 24.—New York was having its last daylight saving of the season today. Clocks throughout the city will be set back an hour to eastern standard time at 2 o'clock Sunday morning.

MILWAUKEE CHANGES SUNDAY.

On account of the daylight saving period terminating in Milwaukee, Wis., next Sunday, the Chicago and North Western railway will adjust the schedules of suburban trains in the Milwaukee suburban district to conform to the new working hours.

1. A Poor Inventor, harassed by a Cruel Landlord who covets his Beauteous Wife—

2. Succeeds, after years of Patient Effort, in secretly establishing communication with Mars.

3. To his surprise the Martians, being intellectually millions of years in advance of the Earth Folk and having solved all the Scientific Problems with which we will be groping for the next million years—

4. Quickly learn our Language, thereby facilitating intermundane communication.

5. "We've been trying to establish communication for nearly 2,000,000 years," flashes Mars, "but you haven't been advanced enough to comprehend our signals."

6. The Inventor asks if Mars has solved the problem of utilizing atomic energy.

7. "Sure," comes the answer. "We solved that 600,000 years ago. Haven't you solved it yet?"

8. "No. Tip me off the formula. I am very poor, my rent is overdue, and if I can get the patent rights I'll be able to pay up 200 cents on the dollar."

9. Within seven minutes an answer comes back. "Sincere sympathies. We not only will send you the formulæ and processes for harnessing atomic energy, which you can patent with all Earth rights, dramatic and riparian—

10. "But we will also tell you how you may get power from the Earth's revolutions, extract fuel, food, and light from the atmosphere, divert the flow of the Gulf Stream to allocate the Earth's heat equitably—

11. "Communicate thought waves over vast distances, read minds like a book, give you a recipe for making the homeliest girl a raving beauty, tell you the secret of attaining Eternal Youth, and other Desirable Tidbits of Knowledge."

12. "Thanks," flashed back the Poor Inventor; "I will then be able to Foil the Cruel Landlord."

[End of Reel I.]

13. The Inventor then receives and carefully records the various Formulæ and proceeds to try some of them out. He transforms a Homely Washerwoman into a Star Eyed Beauty, he overturns the Law of Gravity, he sprouts luxuriant Hair on a Bald Head habitually Bereft of Hair, he reads a Lady's Mind and gets slapped for doing so, he runs the City Waterworks with a Bottle of Harnessed Atoms.

14. In short, he soon becomes the Talk of the Town.

15. When a new Problem is presented he flashes a Query to his Martian correspondent, and the answer comes at a speed of 186,000 miles a second.

16. He looks through walls, reads minds a thousand miles away, predicts stock quotations to an eighth of a point, makes 460 yard golf holes in one, draws Four of a Kind at will, invents a Perpetual Motion Machine, and does other useful and impossible things.

17. "Do you have wars in Mars?" he queries.

18. The answer comes:

19. "Although our name is Mars, we haven't had a war since a date corresponding in your calendar to 1033879 B.C."

20. "How do you prevent them?"

21. "We passed a law making men worth a million dollars do the actual fighting at the front. Since then we haven't had a war."

22. "How's the crime situation? Much crime up there?"

23. "Nary a crime. Mind reading makes detection quick and certain, and so nobody takes a chance."

24. "Have you squared the circle?"

25. "Our children learn that in kindergarten."

[End of Reel II.]

26. By this time the Inventor has secured patents on all his new processes and is worth a Great Sum of Money.

27. He reads the mind of the Cruel Landlord and discovers that he has been violating the eighteenth amendment.

28. So he exposes him, has him indicted and sent to Prison for a Long Term of Years.

29. "Saved!" cries his Beautiful Wife.

30. Clinch! Slow fade away!

YOUNG EVANSTON FLIES FROM ODOR BOMB AT DANCE

The orchestra leader in the ballroom at the North Shore hotel, Evanston, poised his baton last night for the signal that would start the jazzy strains for the monthly young people's dance, at which Miss M. D. Pierce plays hostess. But——

The cornetist sneezed and spluttered in his horn. The violinist stopped his bow midway of the strings, and the pianist whirled on his stool in time to see the couples making for the exits. The drummer dropped his sticks and reached for his handkerchief. Some of the musicians had played in movie theaters while the odor bomb crusade was at its height and they knew what was wrong.

By 9 o'clock the room had been aired and the dancers sauntered back. Union musicians recently were replaced by nonunion men, against the protest of Ralph J. O'Hara, business agent of the union.

SAFEBLOWERS IN LOOP SHOOT AND BEAT WATCHMAN

Jesse Stewart, night watchman at S. D. Childs & Co., stationers, 136 South Clark street, was shot in the abdomen and probably fatally wounded late last night by three safeblowers.

The trio called him to the door about 11 o'clock and put guns upon him. When he showed fight they shot him and beat him over the head, fracturing his skull. They then threw him in a corner and knocked the combination off the safe. They were interrupted before they finished the job, and fled. It is believed they got nothing.

Ten Thousand Witness Double Hanging in Florida

Crestview, Fla., Sept. 24.—A double execution took place here yesterday when Putnam Ponsell and Jake Martin paid the death penalty for the murder of John Tuggle. A crowd estimated at 10,000 witnessed the hanging, which was public.

STAND STRAIGHT, DANCERS URGED

Deerfield School Finds Rules Laid Down.

The "latest" dances are all right among the youthful set in Highland Park, but the iniquitous, insidious chewing gum is strictly barred from the floor.

Patrons of the season's first community dance, held last night in the auditorium of the Deerfield-Shields high school, found four pledges of conduct printed on the reverse side of their tickets. Each purchaser subscribed to the following promises:

"I will maintain an upright position in dancing.

"I will not chew gum.

"I will not smoke.

"I will not wear hat, wraps, or sweater on the floor."

A word or two of explanation was furnished by a feminine member of the committee.

"The upright position," she said, "is for the girl to have a hand on the shoulder of the man—not around his neck or down his back. There should be a proper space between the dancers, without any bending or leaning back.

"Toddling is all right and so is the shimmy, if decently done. As for the gum, no lady would chew it anyway."

The chaperons at last night's dance were instructed to watch particularly for what they termed the Zulu style of coiffure. This consists of bobbed hair which has been combed the wrong way, making it stick out like a headhunter's. Wherein lies the wrong in Zulu hair the committee failed to mention.

Japan Objects to U. S. Radio Station in China

KUBELIK PUTS LIFE PRESERVER ON FIDDLE; 11 DIE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 24.—"A man can save himself, but a violin cannot," said Jan Kubelik today, in explaining his action in putting a life preserver around his $125,000 Stradivarius violin when the channel steamer Jan Breydel, bound from Ostend to Dover, ran down and sank the Norwegian freighter Salina this afternoon with a loss of eleven lives.

"I saw from my deck cabin that a collision was inevitable. At once I thought, 'How can I save my violin.' I hastened after a life belt, which I fastened around the instrument. Then I came on deck and saw that there was no danger to our vessel."

All those who lost their lives were aboard the Norwegian vessel.

MOBS OF SCOTS PERIL BRITISH COLONY CHIEF

Churchill Meeting in Dundee Stormed.

BY OTIS SWIFT.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DUNDEE, Scotland, Sept. 24.—Mounted police charged mobs of thousands of persons including unemployed and Communists, who attempted to storm the new city hall here today when Wintson Churchill, the minister of the colonies, spoke on the Irish situation and unemployment before his constituency.

A big cordon of police surrounded the hall, holding back the crowds which attempted to rush into the building. During the excitement a mounted policeman's horse shied at a red flag arried by someone in the crowd, throwing the rider.

A big mob, hooting and jeering, waited for Mr. Churchill to come out of the building but the police spirited him out through a back door. Mounted police protected his automobile as it passed through the crowds.

Accuses Bolshevik; Called Liar.

Mr. Churchill's appearance on the platform was greeted by cheers mingled with boos. The large audience packing the hall was restless and frequently interrupted his talk.

Someone shouted "You are a liar" when he said that bolshevik agitation had helped to create the lack of confidence regarding the government's efforts to aid the unemployed. His oratory, however, won over the main body of the meeting.

Mr. Churchill discussed Great Britain's industrial situation, which he said was due to the collapse of international exchange and the socialist propaganda throughout the country. He declared that the Washington disarmament conference might result in an international meeting to bring about a normal exchange. He was jeered when he said that the type of bolsheviks who had ruined Russia were attempting to bring about similar conditions in England and, that this type of bolshevism would kill the nation outright.

Doubtful of Irish Stand.

Concerning Ireland he said:

"I have read every scrap of correspondence which has followed the negotiations and I am still uncertain where the Irish leaders stand. It is certain where we stand. We have reached the end of our tether. The setting up of an independent Irish republic would not lead to peace, but to civil war. Ireland would be divided into two hostile camps. A hideous and idiotic prospect would be before our eyes for by conceding Ireland sovereign and independent rights we would be ripping up the British empire and be preparing for war in the not distant future.

"A conference is the only thing that stands between us and failure, and Eamon de Valera has made it doubtful where there is any prospect of a successful conference. No more pedantry, hairsplitting or metaphysical perplexities will be allowed to stand in the way of a practical step for peace."

Sees No Basis for Optimism.

After stating that he did not see any real foundation for the optimism which now prevails, he continued:

"I have been profoundly disappointed by Mr. de Valera's rejection of the dominion form of government. We were called upon in prudence and justice to make a fair offer to Ireland so as to place ourselves in such a position that if the offer were rejected we would save our side and win the support of the entire civilized world. It was a natural, sincere, and generous offer and can, without doubt, be immediately carried into effect by those who made it.

"It was rejected and we have nothing else to give. I do not mean that there are not questions of detail and variation of mode left for discussion. But we must insist upon allegiance to the king. In this we are resolved not to yield an inch."

I'm Too Poor to Go Home: Crown Prince

BY HEINRICH PEMEROEYER.

[Copyright: 1921: By Press Pub. Co., New York World.]

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—In these fateful days for Germany, when the question is raised persistently whether the nation will remain a republic or revert to monarchy, I paid a visit to the crown prince, exiled for nearly three years now on that Dutch St. Helena, Wieringen. I wanted to know what reaction on him, what hopes, what thoughts, even what information, might be coming to him from Germany.

The pastor's house where the crown prince dwells is more comfortable and gayer than on my last visit, as he has succeeded in getting some of his belongings from the imperial palace in Berlin. The crown prince's mind is filled with his eventual return to Germany, but I had to read his mind by indirection, as he naturally does not care just now to express his thoughts too clearly.

Says He's a Free Agent.

I opened the interview by expressing surprise that he had had the patience to stick out three years on Wieringen, but I said I could understand how a man trained to rule in the future had been able to submit obediently to circumstances. The crown prince replied:

"You confuse two ideas—being influenced and being ruled. I do not allow myself to be ruled by anybody. It is said silence is consent, but this is not always true.

"I have held my peace, although I sometimes thought I would explode. I am not silent from fear, but there is no use of talking. Every time I have said something spontaneously my enemies have jumped on me like tigers and have used my words against me.

He's Broke, So He Stays.

"I will say this much now, however. You can say for me that I am staying here for pecuniary reasons. Naturally, I would prefer to live on the continent, but you know what the German mark is worth abroad.

"For the same pecuniary reasons my wife and boys visit me only once a year, although we correspond regularly. My wife manages her house and devotes herself to our children, who are learning to earn their own livelihood when they are grown.

"My eldest son has written me that I ought to come home and manage the house myself, but I intend to stay in Holland until I am sure my return will not disturb anybody in Germany. So far I have met no one who could tell me when I should return to my country as a private citizen."

Calls Berlin "Seventh Heaven."

The crown prince told me that at the same time it was reported his father had left Holland in an airplane an American correspondent in Berlin wired him to confirm the rumor. The crown prince said he was ready to reply, but was dissuaded. The message he wrote, but never sent, was: "Father has not yet left for the seventh heaven."

The moment being opportune, I asked the crown prince when there would be a kaiser again in Germany. The crown prince replied:

"To have a kaiser in Germany—it might happen tomorrow. Why should we not be permitted to live in our country? But do not you really mean to ask when will Germany be ruled again by a kaiser? We might talk about that all night without getting anywhere.

"It is not for me to decide, anyway. Furthermore, our unfortunate country has before it much more difficult problems than the question of who is to rule it."

WOMAN DIGS FOR $6,000,000,000 ON CLEW FROM MONK

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MILAN, Sept. 24.—Signora Giustina Pascugli, an Italian woman who has just returned from Jerusalem, may be the world's richest woman. It all depends on whether she succeeds in finding a huge fortune which she says, is buried at Bisceglie, near the city of Bari, on the Adriatic coast of Italy.

Signora Pascugli says while she was in Palestine she met a monk who gave her secret documents giving the location of an enormous amount of gold which was hidden in Bisceglie long ago. According to the documents the treasure amounts to 30,000,000,000 lire (normally about $6,000,000,000).

Under the direction of Signora Pascugli six peasants started to work hunting for the hidden treasure. After digging for two days they discovered markings indicated in the documents as guides to the gold. The searchers are working at a feverish pace, hardly taking time to eat or sleep.

HALF OF FORCE IN RUM TRADE —FITZMORRIS

Asks U. S. to Aid in Cleanup.

"Reports and rumors reaching me indicate that 50 per cent of the men on the Chicago police force are involved seriously in the illegal sale or transportation of liquor."

The foregoing startling statement was made yesterday afternoon by Chief of Police Fitzmorris in the course of a disquisition on the "failure of prohibition to prohibit" in this city and an appeal to the federal authorities to cooperate in divorcing the police from the illicit traffic in liquor.

The chief threatened wholesale dismissals from the force.

At the same time the chief gave the police force a violent shake in the form of a transfer order which, when the mimeograph machines in his office cease to revolve late this afternoon, will have surpassed in size the one he issued last March, when he shifted 172 men.

Nearly 800 Transfers.

The order transfers nearly 800 men, promotes four lieutenants to captains, and transfers seven commanding officers—Capts. Patrick Gallery, Madden, Westbrook, Danner, Atkinson, Russell, and Nootbaar, the latter now on sick leave. The promoted are Thomas J. Pilkington, Martin O'Malley, Patrick McCauley, and Ben Enright.

A third development which shook police circles was an order revamping the boundary lines of nearly every police precinct, closing the North Halsted street station and opening three new stations, the Woodlawn, Hudson avenue and West North avenue stations, closed by former Chief Herman Schuettler.

Alcock Directs Cleanup.

The chief assigned First Deputy John H. Alcock, known as the chief's "eyes and ears," to the job of sopping up the departmental liquor stains and requested District Attorney Charles F. Clyne to give him access to evidence connecting policemen with violators or violations of the prohibition laws.

The chief declared himself "ready and willing to go the limit" in coöperating with the federal government in suppressing liquor violations. He did not order the police department to conduct a drive against illicit liquor, however, adhering to his old position that the federal government must "establish the policy."

No such policy has yet been established, the chief's letter to Assistant Chief Alcock declares by inference. Liquor is still flooding Chicago under federal permit, the chief said, in commenting on his letter, and it is up to the government to take the lead in handling the flood.

Increase in Liquor Evils.

Salient paragraphs of the chief's letter to his chief subordinate are:

"From reports that I have received, I am convinced that a large percentage of the membership of the police department is involved seriously in the illegal sale or transportation of liquor.

"I have made every effort to correct this condition, which I regard as the greatest factor impairing the efficiency of the department.

"Prohibition is not a fact but a fallacy, and this applies not only to Chicago but to every city of which I have knowledge. In Chicago there is more drunkenness than there ever was—more deaths from liquor than before prohibition — more of every evil attributable to the use of liquor than in the days before the so called prohibition laws became 'effective.'

Hinders Department Efficiency.

"All this militates against the efficiency of the police department.

"This department alone cannot enforce the government laws controlling the sale and distribution of liquor any more than it can enforce the laws governing counterfeiting, but we can take a very large step in that direction by separating the police department from all connection with the illicit sale and distribution of liquor."

Then follows the formal order to Assistant Chief Alcock to "get busy." A copy of the letter also was forwarded to District Attorney Clyne, and a separate letter requested the latter to turn over "ammunition for the drive."

The chief indicated that Sergeants Smale, Carlisle, and Mitchell, involved in the latest federal booze investigation, will be suspended as soon as the federal inquiry is completed.

"From now on I am going to throw overboard the old policy of waiting for men involved in liquor scandals to be tried before ousting them from the police department," the chief said.

In revamping his department for what is expected to be the worst crime winter in the city's history the chief worked far into the night.

The boundaries of the three new precincts are as follows:

Hudson avenue, 1501 Hudson avenue, heretofore detention home No. 1—Division street to Fullerton avenue and North branch of the river to the lake.

West North avenue, 2256 West North avenue, heretofore detention home No. 2—West Kinzie street to Bloomingdale road and North Robey street to North Kedzie avenue.

Woodlawn, 6342 Harper avenue—South State street to Lake Michigan, East 71st street to 60th street, with the midway the northern boundary from Cottage Grove avenue to the lake.

Worked On for Weeks.

A committee, consisting of Maj. James Miles of the council finance committee staff and Capts. Collins, Naughton, Zimmer, Gleason, Allman, and Lavin, has been working on the precinct lines for several weeks.

The new precinct boundaries are established to bring precinct stations nearer to the centers of their districts, thus putting the policemen in closer touch with their commanding officers and diminishing the length of patrol wagon and ambulance runs.

CLINNIN PLEDGES AID

District Attorney Clyne could not be reached either at his office, club, or home last night. Col. John V. Clinnin, first assistant district attorney, however, took issue with Chief Fitzmorris as to the statement that 50 per cent of the police force were implicated in the liquor traffic.

"I don't believe the percentage is that high," Col. Clinnin said. "If the element of politics—ward interference—was taken out of the whisky traffic, I believe that 85 per cent of the members of the department would strictly enforce the prohibition laws.

"The trouble has been that a large number of policemen have been inveigled into guarding whisky trucks, warehouses, and shipments of booze en route from one point to another and the whole affair has grown to the point where the individual policeman considers it perfectly legal to accept employment of that sort.

Violations Not Deliberate.

"I don't believe half the violations occur through deliberate intent. The police are not highly paid—and there is no question but that the whisky peddlers pay high money for guards for their shipments.

"Once the police officials decide to suppress the traffic—it will be suppressed. All it will take is coöperation. And if Chief Fitzmorris wants to rid his department of men who have had their fingers in Chicagos' whisky pie I don't think he'll find it very hard to get the evidence."

JOHN M'WEENY, EX-POLICE CHIEF, NOW WATCHMAN

John McWeeny, who resigned as Chicago's chief of police during the gambling scandal of 1913, was discovered yesterday guarding building materials at the New Chicago theater, now under construction in the loop. Back in '85 McWeeny entered the police force as a patrolman. In 1905 he was appointed captain, and six years later Mayor Harrison made him chief.

A promise to clean up open gambling inaugurated McWeeny's régime. Two years later, when the civil service commission disclosed a list of protection prices by payment of which gamblers were insured immunity from police interference, he resigned. Now, at 64 years of age, McWeeny is a day watchman.

UNCLE SAM WILL HAVE TO SAVE 'TO GET BY' NOW

Deficit Threatens in Next Fiscal Year.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—A margin of only $52,000,000 above rock bottom estimates of expenditures for the fiscal year 1922 will be available under the tax bill as revised by the senate finance committee, according to the majority committee report submitted to the senate today by Chairman Penrose.

That amount, Senator Penrose states, is "a margin of safety none too large for the fiscal year 1922, in view of the existing business depression and the uncertainty attaching to the yield of the income and profits taxes."

Deficit Likely in 1923.

An actual deficit is in sight for the fiscal year 1923, according to the latest treasury estimates, incorporated in the committee report. Senator Penrose states that the amount which will be raised under the senate committee bill during the fiscal year 1923 will fall $65,000,000 short of the estimated expenditures.

The bill, as revised by the senate committee, the new estimates show, will yield $3,324,000,000 during the fiscal year 1922, as against $3,240,000,000 which would be raised by the bill as passed by the house and $3,460,000,000 which would be available under the present law.

The expenditures for the fiscal year 1922 will aggregate $4,034,000,000, of which $3,272,000,000 must be raised by internal taxes. The senate committee bill by an estimated yield of $3,324,000,000 will thus furnish a $52,000,000 margin. Customs and miscellaneous receipts will yield, it is estimated, $762,000,000.

"Save to Avert Deficit."

The senate committee bill, it is stated, will yield only $2,735,700,000 in the fiscal year 1923, or $65,000,000 less than a total of $2,800,000,000, which should be supplied by internal taxes.

Senator Penrose states in the report that the committee believes the $65,000,000 deficit can be avoided by further retrenchment. The estimates of expenditures for the fiscal year 1923 contemplate a reduction of about $500,000,000 in expenditures from the total for 1922.

Relative to revenues and expenditures for the fiscal year 1923 Senator Penrose says:

"It is not possible to make an accurate forecast of the expenditures for the fiscal year 1923, but your committee has acted on the assumption that—with the exception of the special railroad expenditures (transportation act and federal control) which will be nearly if not wholly completed in the fiscal year 1922—the aggregate expenditure for the fiscal year 1923 will be substantially as large as in the fiscal year 1922.

Railroads' Share Large.

"The special railroad expenditures included in the 1922 budget amount, in round figures, to $500,000,000; and the receipts from customs and miscellaneous sources for the fiscal year 1923 are estimated at $730,000,000. Deducting both amounts ($1,230,000,000) from the total estimated expenditures for 1922 ($4,034,000,000) leaves in round figures $2,800,000,000 to be supplied by internal taxes for the fiscal year 1923.

"The revenue bill as recommended by your committee will raise during 1923, it is estimated, $2,735,700,000.

"The difference or deficit of $65,000,000—about equal to the corresponding surplus for the fiscal year 1922—can and should be avoided by savings and economies.

"Your committee deliberately recommends a tax program which, while providing revenue substantially sufficient to meet ordinary expenditures on the present scale, assumes that a reasonable measure of retrenchment and reduction will be accomplished.

"Five Billion in 1921."

"The total ordinary expenditures for the fiscal year 1921 amounted to $5,115,927,689. For the fiscal year 1922 the expenditures are estimated at $4,034,000,000. The above program assumes for the fiscal year 1923 they will amount to approximately $3,500,000,000 an entirely reasonable assumption in the light of our present knowledge.

"From the standpoint of revenue the most important changes recommended by your committee are:

"The repeal of the excess profits tax, which would reduce the revenue about $400,000,000 annually.

"The repeal of the surtaxes in excess of 32 per cent, involving an immediate loss of $80,000,000 to $90,000,000 a year.

"The repeal of the capital stock tax, involving an annual loss of about $75,000,000.

"The reduction of the transportation taxes by one-half on Jan. 1, 1922, and their final repeal as of Dec. 31, 1922, involving a reduction of $131,000,000 during the calendar year 1922, and an eventual loss of $262,000,000 per year.

"The adoption, in lieu of the excess profits and capital stock taxes, of an additional income tax upon corporation of 5 per cent, which would increase the revenue about $260,000,000 annually."

CONGRESS AND YOUR INCOME TAX; WHAT HOUSE DID; PLANS IN SENATE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—The income tax you would pay under the house bill revising federal taxes and under the bill as amended by the senate finance committee, compared with what you pay under the present law, is shown in the following table prepared by the senate committee (tax computed on the basis of the net income of a married man without dependents):

Amount to be paid when net income is not in excess of $5,000. Under the new tax bill as passed by the house and as reported to the senate the increase in exemption for individuals with incomes of less than $5,000 would be retroactive and apply on incomes in calendar year 1921, payable in 1922. The new surtax rates would become effective Jan. 1, 1922, on incomes in the calendar year of 1922, payable in 1923.

SCHOOLS KNOCK "HIGH" OUT OF LUNCHES' COST

Soup or beans, choice of two sandwiches, or meat and potatoes, a cup of milk or chocolate, and a dessert—5 cents. That is the price, starting next Monday, that a pupil in Chicago's schools will have to pay for a meal, Dr. Frank G. Bruner, director of special schools of the board of education, announced yesterday.

"We are able to announce that starting Sept. 26 the penny lunch rooms will again be in full swing," said Dr. Bruner, to eighty-five principals who met with him to discuss the proper method of handling lunch rooms.

"Everything for sale will cost 1 cent, in comparison to the 2 and 3 cent articles we had for sale last year. The ideal menu of soup, meat, and potatoes, milk and dessert, will cost a nickel."

Dr. Bruner also announced that the Municipal Tuberculosis sanatarium will furnish 16,000 quarts of milk a day to the anaemic children in various schools of Chicago free of charge to the pupil.

CHICAGO PASTOR OPPOSES SUNDAY 'BLUE LAW' PLAN

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—In an address today on "The Christian Sabbath," before the eleventh council of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches of the World, the Rev. Dr. William Chalmers Covert, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Chicago, declared that radical changes must be made in the way of securing Sunday observance. Dr. Covert disclaimed the intention of the Christian church to put over any obnoxious "blue alws."

The Rev. Dr. Ezekiel Tfaz of Liverpool, a representative of the Reformed Presbyterian church of Ireland, said it was not very long ago when his church decreed that a man could not run on Sunday unless a wind happened to take off his hat. In that event he could run after it, but he must run reverently.

ANTI-BEER BILL IS PIGEONHOLED FOR TIME BEING

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The anti-beer bill, which has been blocking the entire legislative program for the last week, was shoved into the parliamentary pigeonhole today by the combined pressure for ratification of peace treaties and the passage of the tax bill.

After obstinately holding the anti-beer bill before the senate to the exclusion of all other business for three days, Senator Sterling of South Dakota, leader of the radical "drys," gave up today, temporarily at least, and agreed to offer no further interference with the treaties and the tax bill.

This gives the filibustering "wets" a breathing spell. They will be ready to resume their filibuster whenerer the "drys" attempt to bring the anti-beer bill up again. Senator Sterling, in a statement issued today, promised to bring the measure up again at the earliest parliamentary opportunity after the tax bill and the treaties are out of the way.

"Those interested in the adoption of the conference report on the anti-beer bill may be assured of final favorable action of the senate thereon," said Senator Sterling.

'FATTY' AND FANS STARE AT DEAD GIRL'S TORN GARB

Bits Flutter in Court as Hearing Continues.

BY EDWARD J. DOHERTY.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The mutilated garments that once clothed Miss Virginia Rappe, a beautiful Chicago movie actress, fluttered today in the courtroom of Judge Sylvain Lazarus, before the eyes of Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, accused of her murder.

Dainty things of white silk and green crêpe, garters with long black lace, a saucy panama hat with the brim turned up and a bright green ribbon around it—the gay trappings of a dead butterfly—Arbuckle gazed at them phlegmatically.

Assistant District Attorney Isadore Golden put them in evidence after Al Semnacher, who was Miss Rappe's manager, had identified them.

Threw Them in Wastebasket.

Semnacher, who was on the stand all during the hearing, had taken these things from Arbuckle's suite to the room where Miss Rappe had been carried after her injury. He had found them strewn on the floor, he said, and on the chairs, and the white silk pieces had been thrust into a wastebasket with a green jade bracelet and a pair of cuff links.

Semnacher had kept these torn silken garments to clean his automobile, and twit Miss Rappe with them, to tease her about getting intoxicated and tearing them.

A hundred women looked at them with varying expressions of emotion, with curiosity, with sadness, with a bit of envy, in some cases, with a little disgust in others.

May Become a Hangman's Noose.

One could see this thought pictured in a pretty face:

"Here are the poor, torn symbols of a beautiful woman's pride, bought in a happy hour, worn in pleasure, dishonored, carelessly handled by perhaps a score of men, kept by one of them for a joke and a bundle of cleaning rags, exhibited here for the purpose of convicting a man and hanging him if possible."

Golden handled them carelessly. Semnacher handled them carelessly, carelessly identified the rents, the rips and tears, and they were tossed carelessly to the counsel for defense.

Golden holds up the panama hat, still gay, still jaunty.

Q.—This is Miss Rappe's hat? A.—Yes.

Did Fatty Don Her Hat?

Q.—Ever see this panama on the head of Mr. Arbuckle? A.—No.

Q.—These are the garters worn by Miss Rappe? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You will note that the long black lace is intact on one of them and on the other the lace has all been torn off. Do you remember seeing them in this condition when you picked them up from the floor in room 1219 of the St. Francis hotel on Labor day and took them to room 1227, where Miss Rappe lay dying? A.—I don't know. It seems to me this garter [indicating the one stripped of its lace] had some lace on it.

Semnacher was on the stand for an hour and a quarter. The hearing, set for 10:30 o'clock, did not begin until 11, owing to many other "women's cases" being on the calendar.

Decision Expected Wednesday.

When it was adjourned to 10:30 o'clock Monday morning it was promised that continued cases would be got out of the way and the judge would give all his time to the hearing until it is finished. It is believed that the judge will give his decision Wednesday or Thursday, either holding Arbuckle to the Superior court on a charge of murder or manslaughter or some other charge, or dismissing him.

The most serious point against Arbuckle today was Semnacher's relation of what Arbuckle had said to him the morning after the party. It was in Arbuckle's room at the St. Francis, and a number of men were present.

"What did Mr. Arbuckle say in reference to anything he had done to Miss Rappe?" was the question.

"We were talking about her intoxicated condition, talking and laughing, and——"

Answer Is Unprintable.

"Answer the question."

"Arbuckle made the remark that—"

The witness paused here, embarrassed. He said he did not wish to repeat the remark aloud. He was told to repeat it to the judge and the court reporter. Then he was made to write out the remark for the benefit of counsel.

He did not tell what it was, but Golden did. He repeated it many times, in a loud voice. It was a remark too vulgar to be printed. The women appeared shocked. It was something more than they had bargained for.

Arbuckle's ruddy countenance took on a deeper red, his fat fingers opened and shut, opened and shut. He took out his handkerchief with his left hand—and one noticed the yellow cigaret stains on his fingers—and wiped his face and his chins.

They Enjoy Fat Clown's Remark.

Q.—What did you say when Arbuckle made that remark? A.—Every one laughed.

Q.—You laughed too? A.—I don't remember; but there was laughter.

Q.—Didn't you express any horror or remonstrance? A.—I don't remember.

Ensued a wrangle over the counsel table, Attorney Frank Dominguez trying to keep the state from eliciting where Fatty was when he did that thing mentioned in his remark, and what time it had happened. The state wanted to show that Fatty had been in room 1219 with Miss Rappe on the night of the party, and that in this remark he was being jocular about what he had done in that room and at that time. Dominguez won his point.

Judge Tired of Wrangle.

"The court is intelligent enough, gentlemen," Judge Lazarus said, "to get the drift of things without all this work on your part."

"Pardon me, your honor," Golden said. "I was trying to gauge the court's intelligence by that of Mr. Dominguez."

The courtroom was well filled long before the clerk called "No. 7 on the continued list; People versus Roscoe Arbuckle, murder," and "Fatty" and his wife and his mother-in-law and his counsel came into the place.

Mrs. Arbuckle had on a new brown duvetyn suit, brown furs to match her dark hair and eyes, and a new brown velvet turban with eight inches of gold fringe falling from the band across its middle.

Semnacher was full of smiles as he took the chair, but the smiles soon vanished, not to come again.

Q.—On the trip from Los Angeles to San Francisco, when you took Miss Rappe and Mrs. Delmont, what was the condition of Miss Rappe's health? A.—Very good.

Never Saw Her Hair Down.

Q.—Ever see her letting her hair down? A.—No.

Q.—Ever see her in Arbuckle's suite at the St. Francis, standing in a doorway with her hair down, calling Arbuckle to observe her, calling, "Look here, Rossie," or "Look at me, Roscoe"? A.—No.

The prosecutor then questioned the witness about his second coming to San Francisco. Miss Rappe had died, and he and others came to attend the inquest.

Semnacher said that that night, Sept. 10, he had gone to Graumann's theater in Los Angeles to see a Mildred Harris (not Charlie Chaplin's former wife), a dancer in a prologue to one of Arbuckle's pictures.

He met Fred Fishback, he said, and from him learned that Miss Rappe was dead. Fishback had been one of the party in the St. Francis. He and Fishback went to Graumann's office and there met Graumann, Arbuckle, Lowell Sherman, another of the St. Francis party guests, and some newspaper men.

Call Death "Unfortunate."

Q—What was said in reference to Miss Rappe's death? A—That it was very unfortunate, that nobody seemed to know what caused it, things like that. Arbuckle phoned the chief of police in San Francisco, asking if he should go there.

Q—Did Arbuckle ever tell you he had been in room 1219 with Miss Rappe for some time alone? A—No; never.

This is contradictory to the statement which District Attorney Woolwine alleges Semnacher made before the Los Angeles grand jury a few days ago.

District Attorney Brady of San Francisco says Woolwine told him Semnacher had testified that Arbuckle confided he was worried about Miss Rappe, and believed he had injured her.

Q—When it was said that Miss Rappe's death was an unfortunate affair, did either you or Sherman or Fishback or any one say what took place when you were in room 1220? A—No.

Q—Or mention the fact, if it be a fact, that Arbuckle was alone in room 1219 with Miss Rappe for some time? A—It was not even mentioned.

Q—Can you explain why Arbuckle took on himself the burden of the affair, calling up and asking if he was wanted? A—I suppose the newspaper men were responsible for that. They wanted a statement from Arbuckle.

Q—Did he make a statement? A—Not in my hearing.

Q—Was anything else said? A—We expressed regret, that's all.

Defense Takes a Hand.

When Golden finished with Semnacher, Dominguez asked him a few questions.

Q.—Did you notice any improper conduct on Mr. Arbuckle's part, anything ungentlemanly in his speech or bearing toward any of the ladies? A.—No, sir.

Q.—See him drink at all? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—But he was not under the influence of liquor, and he was a gentleman all the time? A.—He was not under the influence of liquor, and he acted like a gentleman.

Golden then wanted to know what, in Semnacher's opinion, constituted gentlemanly behavior. He repeated the remark imputed by the witness to Arbuckle, and asked him if he thought that gentlemanly. Dominguez was on his feet, objecting strenuously. Judge Lazarus was talking. Golden was talking.

"All right," said Golden. "I think we're entitled to know this man's mental attitude as to proper conduct. But I think your honor can infer it."

Then the judge adjourned court.

CASHIER'S MYSTERIOUS MURDER

Police of Glen View and neighboring villages still are in a quandary concerning the identity of the robber or robbers who shot and killed Cashier Christensen of the Glen View State bank. The photo-diagram shows the police theory of the murder. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

AIRPLANE BOMB TEARS BOW OF OLD BATTLESHIP

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—A Martin bomber riddled the forward decks of the old battleship Alabama today with two 300 pound demolition projectiles.

Though only 173 pounds of TNT was used in each bomb, the direct hit on the bow of the ship tore through its first deck, spreading the sides of the jagged hole upward so that the guns in the forward turret would have been unable to sight above the wreckage.

The crew's quarters below this deck were demolished. A second bomb, dropped with the first, followed through the hole made by the first, causing more destruction.

Other bombs were dropped by eight swift SE-5 planes, tearing away the ship's communication systems and damaging the fighting masts, while some bombs wrenched the Alabama loose from its anchor chains and set it adrift.

THOUSANDS SEE ILLINOISAN WIN PLOWING TITLE

Threatening weather and deep mud failed to discourage thousands of farmers and city folk who splashed their way out to the farm of H. S. Long, at Big Rock, fifty miles west of Chicago, to watch the twentieth annual plowing match yesterday. The events were open to plowmen of the world.

Harry Schmitz, Sugar Grove, Ill., with 91 points, was awarded the sweepstakes prize in the motor plowing division. Hanley Thomas, Big Rock, was second; Peter Nichol, third; Leslie Minard, fourth. In the horse drawn contests for boys under 19 Ray Lewis of Big Rock was first; Burton Miller, second. The grownup prize went to Richard Williams. W. P. Forster, Geneva, was second. Each contestant worked a half acre.

GLEN VIEW BANK CASHIER IS SHOT DEAD BY BANDITS

Finds Them at Work; His Pistol Misses Fire.

Fred J. Christensen, cashier of the Glen View State bank, a new institution in the village of Glen View, five miles west of Wilmette, was shot dead yesterday morning in a battle with burglars whom he surprised at work in the bank.

The slayers escaped without obtaining any loot. A reward of $1,000 was offered by the bank last night for their capture.

Christensen, who for six years was employed at the Drexel State bank in Chicago, is survived by a widow and a 3 year old daughter. The little girl walked to the bank with him yesterday, but had romped home before the shooting.

That the cashier gamely had attempted to defend the bank funds was evidenced by the fact that his .22 caliber revolver lay a few inches from his hand. It was fully loaded and the trigger had been pulled, the hammer indenting the cap of a cartridge, but failing to explode it.

Finger Prints Only Clews.

Nine perfect finger prints were photographed from this door by David Lindstrom, an attaché of Capt. Williams A. Evans' bureau of identification. These, the only clews left by the slayers, were characterized by Capt. Evans as "the best clews in the world."

No one could be found who had seen the slayers either enter or leave the building. They gained entrance by forcing a basement window and jimmying a door leading from the basement to the banking floor.

A Ford touring car, seen standing in front of the bank about the time the murder was committed, between 8 and 8:30 o'clock in the morning, is believed to have ben used by the slayers to make their getaway.

According to his custom, Christensen, who was 24 years old, had gone to the bank at about 8:15 o'clock. The bank was founded last May, and he was the only employé. Shortly after 8:30 John Dilg, proprietor of the Glen View house, the village hotel, went to the bank to make a deposit. He saw Christensen's body lying sprawled on the floor in the cashier's cage. The main door of the vault, operated by a time lock, stood open, but the inner doors to the cash compartment were locked.

Victim Shot Only Once.

Dilg notified Chief of Police Ernest Schultz, who hurried to the bank with a physician. It was found that the cashier had been shot but once, a .38 caliber bullet having entered the left side just under the arm, but passing above the heart.

Chief Schultz then recalled that he had seen a Ford machine standing in front of the bank at about 8:30.

"I didn't take particular notice of the machine because they are laying a new sewer along the street and cars are usually standing along there," he said.

WASHINGTON NEWS —IN BRIEF—

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 24.

Approximately fifteen Democratic senators have allied themselves with Senator Borah, Republican "irreconcilable," to fight the new treaties of peace with Germany, Austria, and Hungary.

The anti-beer bill was pigeonholed again today as a result of combined pressure for action on the peace treaties and the tax revision bill.

A margin of only $52,000,000 above rock bottom estimates of expenditures for the fiscal year 1922 will be available under the tax bill as revised by the senate finance committee, according to the majority committee report submitted to the senate today by Chairman Penrose.

A decided improvement in the production of soft coal took place during the week ended Sept. 17, according to the weekly report of the geological survey.

Secretary Denby says shortage of submarines is peril to defense of America.

BOMB WRECKS SALOON FRONT; OWNER INJURED

FRANK COSTELLO.

The entire front of the Costello & Meyer saloon, 5342 Archer avenue, was demolished early yesterday by a bomb. The explosion threw Frank Costello, one of the owners, from his bed in the rear of the saloon. He was cut by flying glass. The building stands alone in the prairie district, almost a block from the nearest house.

Costello asserted he knew no reason for the attack. The damage is estimated at $4,000.

DECISION SOON ON FEDERAL QUIZ OF KU KLUX KLAN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Attorney General Daugherty today directed Chief Burns of the bureau of investigations to continue his inquiry into the activities of the Ku Klux Klan. It is probable a decision will be made next week concerning the advisability of a hearing in Washington before department of justice officials.

Denial was made by the attorney general that a communication had been received by him from Col. William Simmons, the so-called Imperial Wizard of the organization, welcoming an investigation and offering to come to Washington if his presence was desired.

Alice Robertson Gets Letters Threatening Life

Muskogee, Okla., Sept. 24.—Letters threatening the safety of Miss Alice Robertson, congresswoman, were today turned over to postal authorities for investigation, it was revealed by friends of Miss Robertson. They said they believed the letters were the work of fanatics.

O'CONNOR FOUND GUILTY; DOOMED TO DIE BY ROPE

Jury Reaches Verdict on Third Ballot.

The luck of "Lucky Tommy" O'Connor deserted him yesterday. A jury in the court of Chief Justice Scanlan found him guilty of the murder of Sergt. Patrick O'Neill and sentenced him to be hanged.

The jury was out two hours. Three ballots were taken. On the first the twelve men voted O'Connor guilty. The second, to fix punishment, was nine to three for the death penalty. The third found the twelve of one mind—that O'Connor should die on the gallows.

The verdict of death for O'Connor was heartily approved by Chief of Police Fitzmorris.

The jury's findings show that the time when a gunman could murder a Chicago policeman and escape unpunished has ended.

O'Connor Waits Verdict.

At 2:12 o'clock, two hours after they retired, the jurymen announced that they had reached a verdict. Led by Henry Westphal, foreman, they filed into their seats.

O'Connor's smile grew tense as John W. Lynch, clerk of the court, was instructed to take the verdict.

Before the jury finding was read Judge Scanlan rapped for order.

"There must be no demonstration when this verdict is announced," he warned. "I will hold in contempt and send to jail any one who makes any noise."

"We the jury find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree and fix his penalty at death," said the verdict.

The jury's finding stunned O'Connor's family. Their smiles gave place to looks of amazement. His father rose to his feet as if to protest, then, apparently remembering the court's warning, sat down.

Father Denounces Verdict.

The courtroom was as quiet as an empty room as O'Connor, his face still crimson, was led away to a cell. As he disappeared through one door his family passed out another into the corridor and away from hearing of Judge Scanlan. There the father broke loose.

"It's the wrongest verdict in the world," he cried. "We couldn't get justice. We couldn't get justice."

Counsel for O'Connor made their formal plea for a new trial, and it was announced that the death sentence will be imposed some time next week.

"It was the only verdict the jury could have rendered," said Assistant State's Attorney Lloyd Heth, who prosecuted the case and who also prosecuted and convicted Carl Wanderer.

O'Connor was convicted of shooting Sergt. O'Neill to death on March 20 of this year.

O'Neill and four other detectives surrounded a house at 6415 Washtenaw avenue, to capture the gunman. O'Connor made a dash for liberty, firing as he ran. O'Neill fell, mortally wounded.

O'Connor dashed back into the house. For twenty-five minutes O'Neill lay in the line of the gunman's fire and not one of the detective sergeants with him made an effort to rescue him.

Finally, after weeks of searching, O'Connor was arrested.

All of the detectives who failed to go to the aid of Sergt. O'Neill as he lay dying were dismissed from the force.

TENANTS SCORE OVER LANDLORDS IN COURTROOM

Two landlords were squelched and an indignant woman was placed in his honor's chambers for an hour and a half for cooling purposes during eviction squabbles in Judge Bernard P. Barasa's court yesterday.

Before the bar of justice appeared George E. Fry, owner since Sept. 1 of a building at 2852 Warren avenue. Morris Katz, the previous landlord, had been accustomed to call for the rent the first day of each month. This last time no one came to Dr. A. P. Milliken, the tenant, for money. Then, on Sept. 5, an eviction notice arrived.

Judge Sides with Tenant.

"The lease still holds," the judge ruled sternly. "I'm not going to throw him out. It seems that the business of a certain class is to harass every one of a certain other class just as much as they can."

The case of Mrs. Nora McCarthy, 7934 Parnell avenue, then came up for reconsideration. Wednesday his honor had ordered nolle prossed an eviction suit brought against her by Charles S. Thornton.

Yesterday when Thornton's secretary appeared with the copy of a federal indictment charging Mrs. McCarthy with violating the prohibition act the case took on a different aspect.

Sent to Judge's Chambers.

"It's none of your business, judge, what the federal folks do with me," averred Mrs. McCarthy. Even when the jurist threatened her with contempt of court her angry tongue kept waging. She was finally ordered into his chambers for an hour and a half in the custody of a bailiff.

Another eviction suit — that of Charles Irving against Frank E. Cox of 2017 Ogden avenue, was continued when the latter brought his wife and four children into court. Recently Mrs. Cox had been discharged from the county hospital following the birth of a baby. Her husband was out of work.

CENSOR DELETES HARDING VIEWS ON HUNGARIANS

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—Aurel Rasko, a portrait painter, has emulated the former kaiser's American dentist by writing memoirs of his talks with President Harding while doing a portrait under the auspices of the Hungarian Republican club of New York. According to Rasko, Mr. Harding sharply criticizes Hungary, Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia and other nations of Europe, but the Budapest censor penciled all the criticism of Hungary in the memoirs.

According to Rasko, Mr. Harding said:

"I know the situation in Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia very well. These nations did not introduce themselves in the most advantageous manner, and I am inclined to believe these nations are only in a temporary form, the boundaries being only provisional, and not for permanent duration."

Rasko declares Mr. Harding sought information concerning Hungary's political situation, saying:

"The foreign nations are worried by the internal situation in Hungary. Mr. Harding's explanations as to why America and other nations are worried over Hungary, taking up fifty lines, was censored.

Concerning Germany, Rasko quotes the American President as saying:

"The energy with which Germany is going back to work to reconstruct that country is remarkable and touching. The highest recognition must be given to the German people when it is seen with what energy and power the whole German people have entered into their task."

Honest Opinion

This advertisement is made from memoranda given to the manager by one of the guests.

Memorandum No. 2—The Apartments

"I asked my wife to give me her honest opinion about the apartments at the Monterey Hotel—what to her mind were the greatest advantages and the faults. After a few moments' thought she replied: 'Well, it's easier to tell you of the virtues, because there appears to be no faults. Here everything seems to be just right. This living room is, in reality, a room in which to LIVE. It is large, the arrangement is exceptionally convenient and comfortable, the closet space is more than ample and the furnishings are of a quality and character that we have rarely found in our hotel life.'

"My vote makes this opinion unanimous."

In points of location, service, appointments, furnishings, quietness and clientele there is none better. In the matter of price there is none fairer.

Several apartments in varying sizes complete in every detail are available for immediate occupancy or for October reservation.

1921 IS REWARDING FIGHTERS

VIEW VANISHING OF FRESHMAN AS TEAPOT TEMPEST

N. U. Student Willing Captive, Officials Agree.

Anxiety over the disappearance of Leighton Mount, Northwestern freshman who dropped out of sight during the class rush Wednesday night, seemed somewhat dissipated last night by rumors that he merely had allowed himself to be spirited away as a hoax. It was reported he would return home today or tomorrow. That likewise was the report Friday night.

Chief of Police Charles W. Leggett of Evanston called off the search for the youth, following a conference in his office with Walter Dill Scott, president of the university, and Mayor Harry P. Pearsons. Chief Leggett said all three were in accord in the opinion that young Mount's disappearance was in no way connected with student activities, his alleged despondency, or a clandestine love affair. He said university authorities had received information tending to substantiate a report that the boy is being held, a willing prisoner, in Chicago.

Father Not Worrying.

Even the actions of J. L. Mount of 1145 Judson avenue, father of the boy, were indicative that no great concern is being felt for the youth's safety, although Mrs. Mount was said to be prostrated with grief. Mr. Mount announced he was going to see Chief of Police Fitzmorris and demand a city-wide search by the Chicago police. He did not see the chief.

He spoke of engaging private detectives to prosecute a search and of offering a reward. He did neither. Apparently incensed at the apathy of the university authorities, the father decided to protest to the board of trustees of the institution. All arrangements were made for a visit to Oliver T. Wilson of Lake Forest, chairman of the board, last night, but at the last moment Mr. Mount announced he would have to call the trip off, as he did not wish to leave his wife alone.

"No Great Hurry," He Says.

"There is no great hurry," he said. "If Leighton is dead we would be too late anyway, and if he is being held prisoner he probably is being well taken care of and he will be found."

One university official is said to have stated the boy was kidnaped for publicity purposes. Mr. Mount said he had asked Detective Sergeant Bourke to investigate this rumor and that the policeman had reported it was without foundation.

"I never heard the report and I haven't made an investigation of any kind," said Bourke. "I told Mr. Mount we could do nothing until formally requested by the Evanston police unless he could furnish us with information that the boy is in Chicago."

It was recalled that Frank Vaughn, then president of the sophomore class, was kidnaped and held for three days in a shack west of Evanston in 1914.

Alleged Auto Thieves Are Held to U. S. Grand Jury

Michael Genna and Paul Steppellio were held to the federal grand jury yesterday in bonds of $5,000 each as leaders of a band of automobile thieves who have been driving stolen cars from one state into another—a violation of federal statutes.

A third member, Emil Wantanka, was arrested some time ago. Automobiles worth over $100,000 have been recovered by the federal agents.

BORLAND HELD BLAMELESS FOR HANAN TRAGEDY

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Miss Mildred E. Hanan, daughter of the late Alfred P. Hanan, the shoe manufacturer, today in the Island College hospital exonerated John P. Borland, exporter, of blame for the shooting early Friday morning in which Mrs. Grace E. Lawes, a divorcee, killed herself in Brooklyn after she had dangerously wounded Miss Hanan.

She admitted to Capt. John J. Sullivan, head of the detectives investigating the tragedy, that within four days of the shooting Mrs. Lawes confronted her on Park avenue at 73d street and threatened her with violence

Capt. Sullivan, for official purposes, got Miss Hanan to state that Mrs. Lawes shot her, and when he attempted to ply her with other questions which might supply a motive, physicians in attendance cut the interview short, stating that the patient's condition was so weakened by her wounds that further interrogation would be dangerous.

Physicians later announced that Miss Hanan's condition had improved to such an extent that they felt hopeful of her recovery.

Assistant District Attorney Wilson, who questioned Borland a few hours after the shooting, today revealed additional incidents in connection with the exporter's original statement, which confirmed the theory that Mrs. Lawes was jealous of Miss Hanan.

"Borland also was quoted as saying that at the time of the quarrel Mrs. Lawes was at the end of her financial resources, and that she immediately began to drink heavily. He also said that he had been informed that Mrs. Lawes had borrowed a considerable sum of money from Miss Hanan during the years of their intimacy.

THREE CHILDREN KILLED, 4 HURT, BY AUTOMOBILES

Three children were killed and four others were seriously injured in automobile accidents yesterday.

The dead are: John Talbot, 7, 4817 West Madison street; Minnie Rosenthal, 3, 2816 Federal street, and Edwin Podolski, 6, 542 West 20th place.

Minnie Rosenthal was crushed to death when her sister, Anna, touched the starting lever of an automobile parked in front of their home about which they had been playing.

John Wenlowski, 26, 2317 North Hamilton avenue, was killed when he fell beneath a motor truck driven by Philip Brucinski, 2733 North Ridgeway avenue, and Miss Josie Reynolds, 466 West 26th street, was possibly fatally injured by a skidding machine.

The children hurt in motor accidents yesterday were: Anna Vana, 9, 1244 Winona street; Margaret Kopola, 11, 821 North May street; Harriet Sikorska, 8, 1114 North Winchester avenue, and Stanley Krasowski, 10, 852 North Ashland avenue.

WOMAN WANTED AUTO; FORGED TO GET ONE; JAILED

Mrs. Rose Stanczik forged a check for $6,700, it is charged, gave it to the Packard company for a $4,500 automobile, and drove away with a company check for the difference, $2,200.

Arrested yesterday with her husband, Clarence Stancznik, 6 West 137th place, Riverdale, she confessed.

"I read about how Church got a car," she said. "I wanted one, so I went to the home of my uncle, Otto Haehnel, in Hammond, Ind., took one of his checks, filled it out and gave it to the Packard people. I lost the check they gave me for the difference."

THREE WEDDINGS ON NORTH SHORE AT SAME HOUR

Miss Withers Is Bride of Clive Runnells.

Wedding bells were heard all along the north shore yesterday afternoon, for three fashionable weddings took place at 4:30 o'clock, one in Lake Forest, one in Winnetka, and one in Kenilworth.

Miss Mary Pierce Withers, daughter of Mrs. Henry M. Withers, was married to Clive Runnells, son of John S. Runnells of 1525 State parkway, at the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest, Bishop Kinsolving of Texas officiating. The little church was crowded with ultra smart society persons, for both the bride and bridegroom are among the most popular members of Lake Forest society.

The bride's gown of white chiffon velvet was made simply with a court train of the velvet and a narrow girdle of pearls. Her tulle veil was held in place with a coronet of pearls and she carried a shower bouquet of white orchids.

Mrs. Laurance Hearne Armour, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. She wore a white velvet gown trimmed with sables and a white felt hat ornamented with yellow flowers. Whitney Bourne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bourne of New York, the flower girl, wore white and carried yellow flowers. After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Armour in Lake Forest.

The bride, who spent two years in France in Red Cross work, was given in marriage by her brother, Pierce Withers. Another brother, Pickett Withers, who was married to Miss Margaret Pirie of Lake Forest in June, was an usher.

Mr. Runnells, who was graduated from Harvard in 1900, will take his bride to California for a two weeks' honeymoon, after which they will be in Lake Forest until Dec. 1.

Miss Brentano a Bride.

When Miss Dorothy Brentano, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Theodore Brentano of 1441 Dearborn parkway, became the bride of Husted McCullough Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs Charles H. Meyer of the Shore Crest, she also wore a gown of white chiffon velvet. A velvet train fell from the shoulders and was lined with shirred chiffon. Her tulle veil was caught to her head with a narrow pearl band and a cluster of orange blossoms. She carried swansonia and valley lilies.

The wedding took place at the residence of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Bersbach, in Winnetka, the Rev. James Austin Richards reading the service. Mrs. John Canfield, matron of honor, and Miss Virginia Wagner of New York, cousin of the bride and maid of honor, wore frocks of tan georgette and brown lace and brown velvet hats.

The flower girls—Georgia Anderson and Joan, Helen, and Barbara Bersbach, nieces of the bride—wore white smocked dresses and wreaths of flowers in their hair.

Miss Dorothy Flood Wed.

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Flood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Flood of Kenilworth, and Robert H. Gardner, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Gardner of New York, took place in the Kenilworth Episcopal church. The Rev. Norman Hutton officiated. The bride's gown was of white satin with a train of rose point lace which had belonged to the bride's great-grandmother. A coronet of the lace held the tulle veil in place.

Mrs. John Magie, matron of honor, wore a larkspur blue chiffon gown with a purple velvet girdle and hat. Two of the bridesmaids, the Misses Dorothy Magie and Eleanore Palmedo of New York, wore frocks of orchid chiffon with purple velvet girdles and hats.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner will live at 2325 Commonwealth avenue.

A Morning Ceremony.

The marriage of Miss Emma Flanagan, daughter of Mrs. Albert Flanagan of 2648 Lake View avenue, to William Henry Kenney Jr. of Milwaukee took place yesterday morning at St. Clement's church. A solemn high mass was celebrated by Mgr. Rempe, assisted by the Rev. William O'Connor, who was regimental chaplain in Mr. Kenney's division during the war. A wedding breakfast for the bridal party and close friends followed at the residence of the bride's mother.

Miss Edith Heal, 216 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park, and Josephine Bedford, 619 Fair Oaks avenue, seniors at Oak Park High school, have been appointed joint editors of Tabula, the school paper, issued at Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter and Commencement day. This is the first time two girls have served in this capacity. The Tabula sets forth the virtues and shortcomings of students and records the affairs of the high school in general. The Commencement number serves as the high school year book.

BRIAND PLAN TO VISIT U. S. STIRS CABINET CRISIS

Foes Accused of Aiding Lloyd George Plot.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Sept. 24.—The French government has practically admitted that Premier Briand will not participate in the disarmament conference at Washington. The premier intends to visit the American capital, unless French domestic affairs prevent, but he will remain only a week or ten days.

The opposition press warns M. Briand not to emulate the late President Wilson's mistake by defying parliament, but the government papers accuse the opposition of acting in the interests of Great Britain, alleging Prime Minister Lloyd George wishes to keep M. Briand away, thus wrecking the conference.

Fear Government's Fall.

M. Briand's lieutenants believe that if the premier continues insisting upon going to Washington when the chamber convenes on Oct. 15, the deputies will not hesitate to overthrow the government which promised the United States that France would participate in the conference.

M. Loucheur, minister of the liberated regions and France's richest man, who is slated to be a member of the French delegation, is reported to have presented M. Briand with a list of 146 deputies opposed to the premier making the voyage.

STUDIES U. S. DEMANDS

TOKIO, Sept. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—Japan will consult with other members of the league of nations relative to the desire of the United States to receive equal treatment in mandate islands of the Pacific as a feature of the settlement of the Yap question, it is said by newspapers here. Japan will also study the American claim to land ownership in Yap, as foreigners do not have the right to land ownership in Japanese territory.

It is estimated that this country's expenses at the Washington conference on limitation of armaments and far eastern questions will be about $2,000,000.

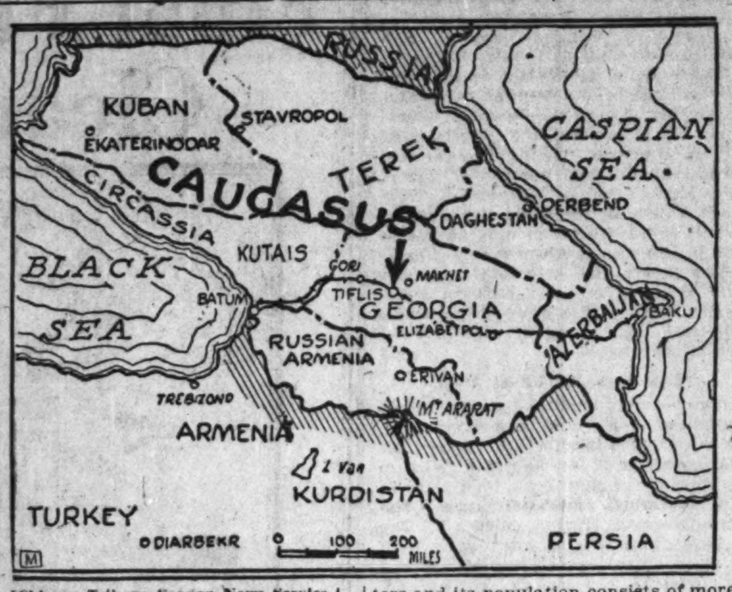
War Chiefs Fix Policies.

Another meeting of Japanese field marshals and the supreme councillors has been held and the Yom Uri Shimbun declares the attitude on the limitation of armaments is as follows:

Japan will maintain her already settled principle of national defense, and no change or alteration will be made until the time arrives when international disputes and trouble can be settled without relying upon, or resorting to, armed force.

This would indicate a change from the previously announced decision of Japan, which supported, in principle, the maintenance of twenty-one army divisions. It would seem she would be disposed to follow other nations in actual reductions.

UNITED STATES OF CAUCASUS



[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ROME, Sept. 24.—A new United States or republican confederation will soon take its place among the nations of the earth. It will be called the "United States of Caucasus," and it will include Armenia, Georgia, Azebeidjan, and the Caucasus of the north.

Geographically the new republic is bounded by Russia on the north, by Turkish Asia Minor on the south, by the Caspian sea on the east, and by the Black sea on the west. It covers a territory of about 400,000 square kilometers and its population consists of more than 18,000,000 inhabitants, about one-half of them Christians and the other half Mohammedans.

M. Cheiah-Ul-Islam Zadé, who represented the republic of Azebidjan at the Paris peace conference and who is now the chairman of a Caucasian delegation representing the four republics, has made it known that the project for the unification of the Caucasus has already been presented to the chief European powers and has been approved by them.

CHITA ENVOY HALTED.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PEKIN, Sept. 24.—Vice Foreign Minister Skvirsky of the Chita government, who was detailed by his government as its representative to the Washington disarmament conference, is being detained at Chita owing to a note from Secretary of State Hughes denying official recognition to his government. However, he intends to proceed to the United States shortly, but a new conference of ministers is necessary first.

HUNGARY, FACING FIGHT, DELAYS JOINING LEAGUE

GENEVA, Sept. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—Hungary has asked the assembly of the league of nations to suspend action on her application for admission to the league until next year.

Count Albert Apponyi, the Hungarian delegate, today wrote to President Van Karnebeek of the assembly that on account of the trouble in Burgenland, awarded to Austria by the Trianon treaty, Hungary prefers to wait.

[The council of ambassadors in Paris notified Hungary Friday that she must completely withdraw from Burgenland, or West Hungary, in the near future or be forcibly expelled by the allies.] prepare a far reaching plan to increase work and to relieve the unemployment distress, spent the day in consultation with experts. Their plans will be submitted to a meeting of the cabinet committee on unemployment on Tuesday.

It is understood that it is proposed to increase the national trade through financial assistance by the treasury to banks and financiers. Conferences with traders, manufacturers, and bankers will be held to hit on a plan for absorbing more workers into industry.

Mayors of Big Cities to Meet.

Furthermore it is stated that the local authorities—the boards of guardians—will be granted increased powers to raise loans for immediate relief work. However, in many districts officers state their people are not able to bear any further fiscal burdens. In these districts the government must shoulder the financial burden.

The lord mayor of Birmingham today invited the lord mayors of Manchester, Sheffield, Leeds, Bristol, Hull, Bradford, and Newcastle to meet him in London next Thursday to discuss unemployment.

The mayor, councillors, and aldermen of Poplar, who were arrested because they refused to assess any further taxes on their constituents, at a meeting in Brixton prison voted to refuse to enter into any negotiations until they are freed from jail.

There are now 1,498,000 unemployed in Great Britain—over 700,000 less than last June. Dr. T. J. Macnamara, the minister of labor, states that $156,000,000 has been paid out since last November under the insurance act for the benefit of the unemployed. Unemployed workers are allowed weekly doles for twenty-two weeks. Thousands have exhausted their dole allowance, and this is increasing the suffering.

Two Million Face Lockout.

Approximately 2,000,000 British workers face a possible lockout on Oct. 12 as a result of no decision being reached in the conference regarding the withdrawal of wartime bonuses. The workers affected include 1,000,000 in the engineering trades and 1,000,000 in the government dockyards and shipyards.

The employers have given notice that the 12½ per cent bonus for time work and 7½ per cent for piece work will cease on Oct. 12. This means an $800,000,000 annual wage reduction.

FRACTURES SKULL LEAVING CHURCH.

As he was leaving St. Patrick's church at Adams and Des Plaines streets, John Walsh, 32 years old, 32 South Des Plaines street, fell and fractured his skull.

ARTICLE 27 NOT RETROACTIVE, IS MEXICO'S VERDICT

Mexico City, Sept. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—The non-retroactivity of Article 27 of the constitution is definitely established and the reasons for its non-retroactivity are specifically laid down in the Supreme court's decision in the Texas company amparo case, the final text of which was approved today, according to Justice Benito Flores of the Supreme court.

Justice Flores said the document would be signed formally Monday and given out for publication immediately. He said the decision was lengthy and "completely comprehensive and exhaustive."

It is understood that President Obregon has given his approval to the decision.

MACHINE GUNS ROUT SNIPERS IN EAST BELFAST

Armored Car Kills Man; Trams Halted.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BELFAST, Sept. 24.—In the battle between rioters and soldiers tonight one man was shot dead.

Another man was killed when an armored car, rushing to the aid of the soldiers, ran over him.

The soldiers routed the rioters. Snipers then took up various positions and began "pot shooting." Machine guns were turned upon their hiding places, and they fled.

Attack Catholic Area.

The rioting started in East Belfast last night, following the attack on workers repairing the street car tracks. All night long Protestant and Catholic factions battled each other with rifles and revolvers, and those without firearms picked up rocks, with which they stoned passersby.

The street fighting recommenced at dawn today. The Catholic area in the Ballymacarratt district was attacked from five different points tonight, the street lights being extinguished by the raiders, who fought in the darkness. The street car service throughout the fighting district has been suspended.

Again tonight the same district was attacked.

Explains Sinn Fein Stand.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—British recognition of Irish claims of independence as a preliminary condition to a conference was never asked by the Sinn Fein, declared Arthur Griffiths, a member of the delegation chosen at Dublin to confer with Prime Minister Lloyd George, in an interview with the Daily Mail's correspondent in Dublin yesterday.

"Our entrance to a conditionless conference," he went on, "would not give Ireland any fresh international status.

"The Sinn Fein has offered to enter the conference for the purpose of finding a solution which would terminate the quarrel between Ireland and England. The only thing that mattered would be the final agreement."

Lithuanian Minister Gets Warm Welcome to Chicago

Valdemaras Carneckas, Lithuanian minister to the United States, was given a hearty welcome by a huge delegation of his countrymen when he reached Chicago last night from Washington for a four day visit. Bands and an impromptu procession escorted the visitor to the Congress hotel.

Many prominent Chicagoans will speak tonight at a banquet given in Dr. Carneckas' honor tonight at the Hotel La Salle.

"NIGHTIE NIGHT"

DOROTHY MORTIMER.
[Hartwell Photo.]

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Miss Dorothy Mortimer, the bride in the comedy "Just Married," and Robert Peter Davis, stage manager for the same attraction, were married this afternoon at the Church of the Transfiguration by the Rev. George C. Houghton.

Mrs. Mabel Harris Haywood of Lafayette, Ind., a girlhood friend of the bride, attended her. Mrs. Haywood was formerly Miss Mabel Harris, prima donna of "The Prince of Pilsen."

The bride was born in Philadelphia and is the daughter of William A. Mortimer. Previously she played the leading feminine rôle in "Nightie Night," which ran at the La Salle in Chicago last year. She was also leading woman for Leo Ditrichstein in "The King."

Mr. Davis comes from Newberry, S. C. During the war he served as a lieutenant and was decorated five times.

SCANLAN TELLS WHY HE CAN'T SIT ON VOTE FRAUDS

Chief Justice Kickham Scanlan yesterday issued the formal order transferring the petitions of the Chicago Bar association and the Civil Service Reform association for a special grand jury to investigate alleged election frauds to Judge Michael McKinley, and gave his reasons for not hearing the petition himself.

Briefly the reasons were that he had been a candidate at the election in question. In his speeches, he said he had stated that the city hall organization was engaged in a conspiracy to elect the Republican ticket by fraud. He also had criticized States Attorney Robert E. Crowe.

Finally he said that, inasmuch as all Circuit Court judges were candidates, it seemed proper the investigation should be assigned to a Superior court judge.

Judge McKinley has set the hearing on the petition for Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

PERU DEMANDS RETURN OF STATE CEDED TO CHILE

Also Spurns Plebiscite on Tacna-Arica.

BY J. W. WHITE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 24.—Peru does not intend to submit the Tacna-Arica question to a plebiscite. This became evident here today from the foreign ministry's publication of an official book outlining Peru's side of the so-called Pacific problem and demanding the return to Peru not only of the province of Tacna and Arica but also Tarapaca, which Peru ceded definitely to Chile instead of paying war indemnity.

The publication of this book is the first real evidence of the fact that Peru and Chile are not able to get together on the plebiscite and that Chile's efforts in this direction will probably produce a crisis threatening the peace of South America.

Backed by Peru Congress.

The publication of the book followed the secret session in the chamber of deputies at which Foreign Minister Salomon explained the country's international relations, especially with reference to Chile, and referred to the propaganda which he is conducting in other countries in favor of Peru's cause. The chamber of deputies voted confidence in the foreign ministry, who then released the book. The document, in part, says:

"For the reasons here outlined it is seen clearly that the treaty of peace signed by Peru and Chile on Oct. 20, 1883, must be revised and the province of Tarapaca unconditionally returned to Peru and that the provinces of Tacna and Arica must be returned to Peru without a plebiscite and without any form of indemnity or payment on Peru's part."

Chile Wants Plebiscite.

The book has been reported to have been in the course of preparation ever since it became evident that Prsident Alessandri of Chile was preparing to force a settleemnt of the problem through a plebiscite during his administration.

The province of Tarapaca extends southward to the river Loa and includes the Chilean ports of Pisagua, Mejillones and Iquique.

Legion Assumes Duties of Undertaker at Burial

No undertaker will be present today when the body of Lieut. William C. Pope, who was killed at Chateau Thierry, is buried in Milburn cemetery. Sunday funerals have been discontinued by the undertakers of Lake county, and consequently the Waukegan American Legion has taken complete charge. Services will be held at the home of Lieut. Pope's parents, in Wadsworth.

FOOD PRICE CUTS SAVED $4,453 A DAY TO PUBLIC

A list of seventy-seven restaurants and hotels and more than 100 drug stores and soda fountains which have cut their prices from 10 to 33 1-3 per cent during the six month drive of the council committee on living costs to reduce prices was made public yesterday by Russell J. Poole, secretary of the committee.

The total saving on the reduction of restaurant prices alone to the public amounts to $4,453 a day, the report to Chairman Govier says. The savings run from $400 a day at the Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. tearoom, which serves 1,200 meals a day, to a few dollars in smaller outlying restaurants.

The reduction in prices of milk, bread, pie, and ice cream sodas during the last year meant a saving of $74,700 a day to the consuming public.

In the cases of most of the restaurants and all the drug stores and soda fountains the reduced prices have not meant a reduction of the gross incomes of these places of business, for the price cuts have increased business, Mr. Poole declares.

Profiteering by some of the retail grocers in Chicago was condemned last night at a banquet in the Hotel Sherman of the Wholesale Grocers' corporation, representing 200 sales managers of wholesale food products concerns. A campaign for fair prices will be conducted by the corporation, according to Joseph F. Kelley, sales manager.

Evanston Master Plumbers Declare Against the Union

A ban was placed on union plumbers of Evanston yesterday in a statement issued by all but one of the nineteen master plumbers there. The action was the result of a strike declared by the plumbers' union when Judge Landis' recent decision allowing them 95 cents an hour was announced.

"Never in the future can union plumbers work for Evanston master plumbers," reads the statement to the public. "Please do not destroy the effect of the Landis decision by supporting master plumbers who have surrendered to the union."

BURNS OIL IN ANY STOVE.
Cheaper than Coal or Wood; Gives Twice the Heat in Half the Time.

A wonderful new burner which works in any coal or wood stove is the proud achievement of the International Heating Company, 4552 North Broadway, Dept. 103, St. Louis, Mo. This remarkably simple and inexpensive invention heats stove and oven in half the time and does away with all the dirt, ashes, and drudgery of using coal or wood. It gives one of the hottest and quickest fires known, controlled by a simple valve. It is absolutely safe and can be put into any stove in a few minutes. The recent big cut in the price of oil makes it a great money saver. The manufacturers offer to send this remarkable invention on 30 days' trial to any reader of this paper. They are making a special low price offer to one user in each locality to whom they can refer new customers. They also want agents. Write them today.—Adv.

U. S. TRYING TO PROVIDE SHELTER FOR 'IDEAL' DUPES

Judge George A. Carpenter in the federal court yesterday appointed a receiver for the Ideal Home Construction company, of which John Minnec is president. On behalf of a large number of creditors, Attorney Gilbert F. Wagner filed a petition in bankruptcy against the concern recently, listing liabilities amounting to more than $200,000 with assets of about $50,000.

Minnec was arrested recently on a charge of embezzlement in connection with his scheme to build houses for poor people. It was charged that he accepted payments, but never started construction and for several months this summer his customers lived in tents waiting for their houses to be built.

"What we are going to try to do now," said Attorney Gilbert, "is to finance the erection of the houses promised by Minnec."

Another City Hall Clerk Ousted in Shortage Quiz

Further investigation of the $12,000 shortage in accounts in the city collector's office led yesterday to the suspension of Alvin Schneider, a clerk in charge of warrants for collection. He was a close friend of Henry Wulff, the assistant cashier who is under $25,000 bonds on a charge of embezzling $12,128. According to Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen, Schneider admitted he knew moneys were not credited until long after they were received.

A MESSAGE
To the Music-Loving Public of Chicago

I believe that as quickly as possible this country should see a general lowering of prices of all commodities, so that the inflated conditions of the past few years may be returned speedily and quickly to a normal level.

I believe the best way to foster and promote the general return of the right kind of prosperity is for this country now—today—to start buying what it wants at prices it can afford to pay.

The right way to start that buying is for the merchant to place the merchandise he offers at prices within the reach of all. I believe in practicing what I preach, and therefore, let me announce that beginning September 26th we will inaugurate at reductions in prices that will amaze the music-loving people of Chicago.

A Clean-Sweep Sale of Pianos and Players

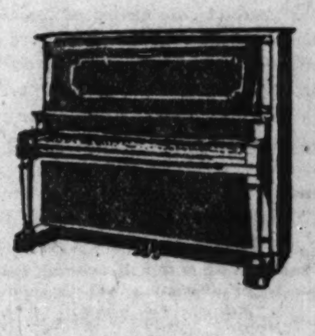
Purposely included in this sale is every new and used piano and player piano on our floors. New Story & Clark player pianos and reproducing pianos not included. This is not a sale of one or two kinds of pianos, but a great big merchandising event that will attract every music lover in the city of Chicago.

Look at the prices and come quickly. Let's get down to bedrock and quit calling dull times. Times are good just now—very good—in which to buy a fine piano or player, because these prices—these terms will make it possible.

President, Story & Clark Piano Co.



There will be no half way measures used to sweep this sale through to a splendid success and to thus realize and fulfill the ideas and desires of the president of this institution, for the sweep and scope of this clean-sweep sale will be greater and more comprehensive than any other selling event we have ever inaugurated in Chicago. New pianos, shopworn pianos, discontinued styles, cases slightly damaged, used pianos, trade-ins, all these without exception, without reservation. In other words, our entire stock is offered.

Consider Carefully This is not a sale of one or two makes of pianos. Not a clearance of any part of the stock, but a TREMENDOUS MOVEMENT OF EVERY NEW AND USED INSTRUMENT on our floors at prices that will move them quickly. New Story & Clark player pianos and reproducing pianos not included. Read the prices, the terms, the makes listed below. Then judge, decide and act quickly.

Some Clean-Sweep Values on Sale Monday and Tuesday

Every instrument in this store, whether new or used, positively protected by written guarantee for from 1 to 10 years, according to condition.

THE TRIBUNE PROGRAM FOR MIDDLE WEST DEVELOPMENT

I. Open the Great Lakes to the Atlantic.
II. Finish the Lakes to the Gulf Waterway Without Delay.
III. Develop a Practical Highway System.
IV. Regrow Our Vanished Forests.

THE NEGLECTED MIDWEST.

The negligibility of the midwest in congressional legislation may be explained on the assumption of the east, west, and south that the midwest has not yet been admitted to statehood. That assumption would explain a condition even if it did not state a fact.

Sectional interests in the other parts of the country have solidarity, strong representation, and effective expression, with remarkable results. The sectional interests of the midwest have no attention given them.

The business done by congress and the business pending before it indicate the elimination of any special interests which this section of the country might have. New England and New York have strong voices. So has Pennsylvania. The south is heard and the Pacific coast commands when it asks. Sectionalism and the playing of sectional interests may be bad, but they are controlling factors in congressional procedure and the badness of them is not reduced by the elimination of one section.

The only way to equalize the situation and thus to obtain equity is by emphasizing the rights of the neglected section. That will deflate other influences and in itself be good.

The tax revision schemes do not consider the midwest when they cut the surtax maximum from 65 per cent to 32. The wealth of the midwest is not consolidated in the production of enormous individual incomes, if Henry Ford is excepted. The revenue reports show that only four taxpayers in Illinois have over $1,000,000 a year income. The great fortunes are elsewhere. They are not in the Mississippi valley and the lakes region.

The midwest is the center of the country's railroad activities, Chicago being the core of them, but the midwest never receives congressional consideration of that fact. In the expenditures of money for waterway improvement it never receives consideration of the fact that it is the core of the waterways.

Waterway needs of this section receive antagonistic treatment or indifference and the transportation problems get a black eye in the Panama canal toll bills in which it is proposed to discriminate against the midwest shippers in favor of the Atlantic and Pacific coast shipper. This section is not only ignored when benefits are considered but it is legislated against. The exemption of American shipping is a subsidy to eastern and western shippers, paid for by the midwesterner.

Congress hands money for public improvements to the other sections with a scoop and to the midwest with a teaspoon. Consequently the midwest constantly produces without aid and competes with the government nourished production east, west, and south. It is time for the midwest to assert itself and maintain its equality of position and privilege in the United States.

THE QUESTION OF INSANITY.

If a man commits a murder and if his guilt is clearly established and his case before the jury hopeless the defense will be that he is insane. The murderer may have lived in the community anywhere from seventeen to fifty years or more. He may have been accorded all the privileges of a mentally competent person, have voted, have had entrance to all public places, have been employed, or have employed others, have married, have had children, and have been in no way restricted in liberty, occupations, or pastimes.

He commits murder, and the community, which is supposed to be protected by the punishment of murderers, is asked to reverse its attitude towards the murderer, and having granted him all the privileges and protections of law granted to a mentally competent person, to grant him immunity from the punishment due him for an offense against the law as a mentally incompetent person.

A defect in mentality may exist, but it has not deprived the person of ability to decide between courses of conduct, has not deprived him of the knowledge of right and wrong, may have sharpened his shrewdness in certain directions, and may not have interfered a great deal, if any, with his ability to support himself, but it is urged as reason why murder should go unpunished as murder.

The man has not been known as an imbecile or maniac and has not conducted himself as such. Society would have itself to blame if it permitted a maniac to have the liberty of action which would make murder possible. In the case of the man who has lived under the presumption of sanity and who commits murder society is not concerned with the condition of his mentality. It is concerned with the nature and punishment of his crime.

Insanity is an escape from the law which sentiment permits to be used to the detriment of law and to the detriment of innocent people who look to it for protection.

ILLINI MEMORIAL STADIUM.

The campaign to raise the fund for an athletic stadium at the state university produced splendid results last spring, when pledges for approximately $700,000 were obtained from the students. The autumn opens with what is called a plus-campaign to raise student pledges to the million dollar level. The alumni mark is $1,500,000. There are nearly 50,000 graduates and former students of the university—and, with the pace set thus far, it would seem the loyalty of the Illini may be relied upon to meet the call handsomely. The final alumni drive will close Nov. 5, the day of the football game with De Pauw, when a great celebration of the completion of the stadium fund will be held. Meanwhile Messrs. Holabird and Roach have been chosen architects and this is assurance that the fine ambition of the athletic association to have a stadium not only great in size but beautiful in design as well will be realized.

The whole project deserves not only the support of students and alumni but of the people of the state. Athletics, or, more accurately speaking, physical training, at the university is broadly conceived to produce benefits for all the students. While the university is proud and has a right to be proud of the victories of its famous football elevens, this does not overshadow the democratic interests of general training and the diversified athletic interests of the student body.

The stadium, therefore, is not an indulgence of pride. It is not a luxury. It is a necessity if there is to be real education at Illinois. It is the university's college of physical well being, which is the basis of mental and moral health. It is Illinois' temple to the sane mind in the sane body.

"CANADIAN WEEK."

In furtherance of the decision of the international convention of Kiwanis clubs in Cleveland, O., last June to arrange "Canadian week" celebrations throughout the United States and "United States week" celebrations throughout Canada, the Kiwanis clubs of Chicago have named a committee on organization which is preparing to make the local celebration the most important and effective in this country.

It is a task worthy of general commendation and support. The Webster-Ashburton treaty of 1842, settling the Canada-United States boundary line, furnishes the text and inspiration for the celebrations. That treaty settled an international dispute through friendly negotiations, and has been so respected for nearly eighty years that an armed patrol has never appeared on the boundary line and a shot has never been fired across it.

No arguments or misunderstandings have ever threatened it. We have learned that Canadians are good neighbors, and they have learned the same about us. But differences of opinion on tariff issues, social standards, and political policies have arisen. They may continue to arise, but a better understanding of national aspirations and characteristics on both sides of the boundary will reduce even these differences to our common advantage. It is this better understanding which is the objective of "Canadian week." It is to be accomplished through public meetings wherein leading Canadians, as our guests, may tell us their views and the views of their people. This direct contact with the best and most influential Canadian public opinion, it is hoped, will make us more appreciative of their problems with relation to us. Our manner of entertaining them and bringing them into contact with American thought on our mutual relationships will impress our basic friendliness upon them and send that impression back to their people.

Much good can be accomplished by such improvement in mutual understanding of what really ought to be common interests. It is entirely outside the ordinary field of diplomacy or international contact. It is designed to be the personal contact of two peoples, from which each may learn that the other is kindly, capable, and progressive.

The organizers are to be commended for their vision. They are in the best sense living up to the motto of their society, "We Build." There can be no better form of building than the building up of closer friendship between two great countries.

FOR SELECTIVE IMMIGRATION.

A Washington dispatch announces that American consuls abroad have been instructed not to visé passports from a country when that country's admission quota under the temporary immigration law has been exhausted. That is not only a wise decision but nothing more than justice to the thronging immigrants who seek admission to the United States.

As immigration regulations have been applied up to the present, particularly before the enactment of the temporary law, it is a seven days' wonder that we have gotten any one into this country except bolshevists and anarchists. Their handling at Ellis island in the rush of 1920 was such as to make anarchists of the most peaceful by the time they were set free on Manhattan, even if they left their own countries with nothing but good will toward the United States and its institutions.

Crowded in filth like cattle, pushed from pillar to post in the processes of examination, with the father or mother of a family perhaps turned back on a technicality to be repatriated at the expense of the steamship company, while the others were put ashore without their breadwinner and without the price of the fare to return with him, while the steamship line was not compelled to take them home, their treatment was such as to drive many to desperation. On the other side it has been as bad. Shipping agents and emigration agents have lured many to sell their homes, perhaps to buy fraudulent passports, and to start out on the long journey improperly equipped either with money or intelligence to earn their way in the new world.

The new regulations, perhaps, may change this. At least they should prevent unnecessary and painful overcrowding at Ellis island, with perhaps reshipment home, only to arrive broken in purse and in spirit to take up their old lives even more unhappily than when they left them. These regulations should, if possible, be even further extended. If the consuls were empowered to use their judgment to some extent in the selection of desirable immigrants the assimilable value of the newcomers to this country might be considerably increased. If we are to take even a part of Europe's poverty ridden surplus we have the right, in justice both to ourselves and to them, to choose the best applying for admission, and that choice can better be made abroad, near the homes of the applicants, than in the fetid, crowded, hurried atmosphere of Ellis island.

Editorial of the Day

AN OLD STORY.

[East St. Louis Journal.]

They have discovered that bolshevism isn't a new complaint at all. In China, which has the oldest civilization of any nation with a continuity of history back of it, they tried out that foolishness in the third century, and again in the eleventh century.

It didn't work, and the best thought of Chinese statesmen is that China's mass of Mongols learned the lesson well, and that as far as China is concerned there is no danger of the menace breaking out again—not for some centuries to come, at any rate.

SAME OLD STUFF.

"Did you get away from worry while you were on your vacation?"

"No. The first thing I did was to pick up a novel written by one of the critics who convinces you that we're going to smash because the social structure is all wrong."—Washington Star.

OBVIOUSLY YES.

"Is there such a thing as luck?"

"What do you pick out cantaloupes with?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ELEGY PATH.

Do you recall that afternoon
We walked from Poges down to Slough,
Through pastures, meadows, fields of wheat?
As then, I see that pathway now,
The little church, the mossy graves,
The ancient yew we saw that day;
Long, long we mused amid those scenes
That so had charmed their poet, Gray.

And there we saw the grazing kine,
Behind his team, the hardy swain;
The housewife busy by her door,
Where roses clambered, wet with rain.
And there we ate a snowy meal
Of bread and milk—and went our way,
A pleasant path, the selfsame path
In which had walked the thoughtful Gray.

Red poppies blazed among the wheat,
The grain by gentle winds was fanned;
A distant bell made sweet the air;
A magic spell possessed the land
And round our hearts its tendrils curled,
And on our souls its blossom lay,
As down from Poges unto Slough
We walked the path of Thomas Gray.

LAURA BLACKBURN.

THE Society for the Suppression of Cruelty to Overworked Words is herewith challenged to cite one political story which does not contain: Ex-Soldier, Disgruntled Democrat, Life-Long-Republican, Back to Normalcy, Campaign Promises, Storm Center or Etc. And we had almost forgotten what a dull sickening thud sounded like until The Trib's Washington bureau tossed one at us in the home brew yarn.

THE EDITORIAL WE.

The editorial we is the bunk. It is a heritage of Main Street. We have outgrown it.

Perhaps it was invented by the nervous, frightened editor who believed its use fortified his position mentally and morally. It suggests committee agreement, a suave and sure solving of the problem under discussion by many master minds; it breathes a bit of conservatism. It has the advantage of producing better thinking because of the boldness that lies in anonymity. It is the newspaper's voice and authority—that is, presumably.

The reading public was long ago disillusioned of the ponderosities that are connected with the editorial we. Dr. G. Frank Lydston of Chicago has said that the we refers to the editor and his ever-present colon bacilli! Its use belongs to the days when doctors wore long whiskers, a ten-quart silk hat and a long Prince Albert coat, and when there were free lunches, universal forks, roller towels, and drunken traveling salesmen. Its present use is one of those things that mark preference of the aged for outworn symbols and when modern youth protests and scorns bunk the old fellows, who bull the market on lying histories of ancestors who are believed to have been hypocritical old scoundrels, wonder what the devil the youth of the land is coming to.

Any person intelligent enough to read the editorial page with understanding knows that the editorial we is the bunk. Editorials should be signed.
URSUS.

Ye ed has a hunch the foregoing will cause comment. Sometimes we, or should we say I? think Ursus was born a thousand years too soon. In the distinguished company comprising The Line family he is the closest approximation to Ambrose Bierce.

The Changing World.

Sir: The gynecologists must revise their course of study. Popular novelists have led me to believe that all women loved a big brute of a he-man. Every inter-flapper conversation that has tickled my risibilities lately has carried the refrain that the boy-chum nearest the flapper's heart is "real cute." Theory and fact, therefore, don't seem to coincide.
LITTLE C*E.

JINGLES.

Sir: F. W., roused to reminiscence by your call for "counting out" formulas in use in the days of real sport, sends this:

Ringzum! One's eye, two's eye, tick-im-inne gander;
Bob-tailed flinger, bob-tailed flander;
Harum-scarum, light and airum;
Hom-pom-tusk.

Place, N. W. Pennsylvania; time, early '70s:

Youngsters in Pittsburgh—note the h—Pa., used this:

Ocka-bocka, stona-crocka,
Ocka-bocka, toosh.

We also used a variant of O. A. O.'s "Eenie, meenie," as follows:

Eenie, meenie, miney, mo;
Cracka, feenie, finey fo.
Oppa-nootcha, poppa-toocha,
Rick, stick, ban-jo.

I recall the first two lines of another:

Intry, mintry, cutery, corn;
Apple-seed and briar-thorn.

Who can supply the concluding lines? ARIES.

THE jingle has been published. Perhaps the paper containing it had not reached Aries when he wrote the foregoing.

It Will Be Spring and Fall Before Then.

Sir: Olga tells me that a leopard has 365 spots, a spot for every day in the year. But what do you do for leap year?
EMMA.

PLACE: A north side sanitarium. Nurse seeking to convey patient to county hospital, puzzled, consults passing policeman. He suggests the patrol.

Sanitarium superintendent, just arriving: "What? A police patrol drive up to this place? Never."

Policeman: "Sir, I'll have you to understand that our wagon drives up to the doors of the best families in Chicago and it's no disgrace."

But they called a taxi.
PURN.

ONE faction of the free verse school contends vers libre is more difficult to write than conventional poetry. We know a number of persons who are candidly cynical. To satisfy our personal curiosity we have asked two of The Line's choir leaders, Thomas Curtis Clark and Laura Blackburn, to supply us with proof of their ability to compose in free verse. Mr. Clark's proof, and, incidentally, challenge, is appended. There prevails a suspicion that the average free verser is incapable of writing poetry. If any wishes to accept the challenge consider the colyum open for an ode, a sonnet, or what have you. Otherwise, the decision will be awarded to the conventional poets.

CHICAGO WORK SONG.

Out of the firepot of the East flames the get-busy signal.
A milion men leap to their wash-basins,
Gulp down a cup of coffee and two doughnuts
And run for the car.
The city begins to sing,
From the staves of its streets, alleys and railways,
The new-old song:
A song of sweat—and glory;
Of pain—and delight;
Of death—and immortality.
And the world hears Chicago singing,
And the world wonders, and rejoices:
No breakfast for Peoria and Pea Ridge
If Chicago ceases her singing!
And the song continues,
And the men sweat and swear and pray,
And the world listens, and wonders, and rejoices.
Sudden the whistle blows, "Home!"
And a million men rush for the faucets,
Tuck in an extra large quid of tobacco,
And run for a strap on the Madison car.
The men call it a day, and the world calls it a day;
And the firepot dies down,
And the smoke of evening becomes pitch,
And sparks flicker their way through the pitch,
So the men can see their way home.
And the work song of Chicago softens
Into the crooning of a baby's sleep song.

JUSTICE FOR TEACHERS.

W. S. ATWOOD, principal of the DeWitt Clinton High school, New York City, protests that it is unfair to give a teacher a poor rating when a large proportion of her pupils fail to make a grade, since so large a proportion of the failures are due to physical defects.

In one school four years ago a teacher got a good rating because all of her class passed in biology and another teacher a poor rating because 74 per cent of her class failed in that subject.

Investigation showed that the pupils in the first class had very few physical defects, whereas in the second they had many. In the first class only 31 per cent had imperfect teeth and 50 per cent imperfect eyes. In the second, with the 74 per cent failures, 84 per cent had imperfect teeth and 76 per cent had imperfect eyes.

In the writer's classes the intelligence is measured by the Otis test. He indorses the accuracy of these tests, saying the final results in examination in several years never varied more than 5 per cent from the predictions based on the results of the Otis mental tests.

This very striking statement is followed by another just as striking. There is a close parallel between physical defects and the Otis intelligence rating, taking the class as a unit. The better the Otis rating the better the physical conditions. The boys making good Otis ratings had an average of one physical defect. Those having very poor Otis ratings had an average of four.

A questionnaire was sent out for each pupil. The questions asked were these:

"1. Eye defects, as determined by teacher with Snellen's test cards.
2. Teeth defects.
3. Hours of sleep.
4. Hours of study.
5. Number of people talking in room while boy is studying.
6. Number hours of outside employment.
7. Hours spent in other outside schools.
8. Time spent in practice of music.
9. Language heard at home.
10. Race and birthplace of parents.
11. Educational training of parents.
12. Neighborhood, good or bad.
13. Boy's explanation of poor scholarship, such as deafness, recent operations, sickness.

Where the Otis rating, the physical examination, and the scholarship are not in harmony the explanation generally is found in the answer to some one of these questions. There were such illustrations of Mr. Atwood's main theme as these:

A boy who failed in four subjects was found to have poor vision to see at twenty feet what he should see at 100. Another boy was nearly deaf, due to ear abscesses caused by high diving.

NOT MEDICAL TOY.

Reader writes: "1. What is thyroid and for what is it given?

"2. A friend says she takes it to give her pep.

"3. Can it reduce and give pep at the same time?

"4. Also please tell me if radium treatment in liquid form tends to strengthen the nerves."

REPLY.

1. It is a gland in the neck. Dried thyroid and thyroid extracts are given to people who need thyroid.

2. A woman who takes thyroid to give her pep should have a guardian unless tests have shown that she is a cretin or suffers from thyroid insufficiency and she is taking a carefully worked out dose to supply this deficiency.

3. Yes, that is why it reduces. It causes so much nervousness and on-edgeness that the subject loses flesh. It should not be carelessly taken.

4. No.

SYMPTOMS OF PELLAGRA.

News Reader writes: "Kindly tell me symptoms of pellagra."

REPLY.

Among the symptoms are sore tongue, red tongue, foul breath, burning which runs from mouth towards or to the stomach. Peculiar unexplained sunburn. Constipation in some cases. Diarrhoea in others. Mental disturbance in some cases. Great weakness.

ADD EXERCISE TO BATHING.

E. E. C. writes: "For years I have been accustomed to take a cold sponge bath every morning. This summer I have been troubled somewhat by lumbago and rheumatism in the back. Is it all right for me to continue the cold sponge baths, which I find so invigorating?"

REPLY.

I think so. After your bath give your back muscles about ten times as much rubbing as you have been doing. Also spend some time on bending exercises.

ABOUT TUBERCULOSIS.

R. B. L. writes: "1. Is consumption curable?

"2. Is it true that a person having it has a hearty appetite and looks healthy and strong?

"3. Can he work very hard?

"4. Do insurance companies accept him as an applicant or must he undergo a thorough examination?"

REPLY.

1. Yes, not meaning that every case can be or will be cured.

2. The rule is the other way. It is a wasting disease.

3. No. The most important part of the treatment is determining just how hard the patient shall work, if at all.

4. They will accept anybody as an applicant, subject to examination. Except in group insurance, nobody is accepted any other way.

EAT MORE VEGETABLES.

A Subscriber writes: "I have a baby 4½ months old. He is breast fed. From now on it will be necessary for me to give him at least two bottle feedings a day.

"1. Will malted milk be all right?

"2. Can he have orange juice?

"3. If so, how much daily? His bowels do not move without the aid of laxatives or enemas.

"4. How can I remedy this?"

REPLY.

1. Yes.

2. Yes, or tomato juice. In fact, he should have it.

3. Start with one teaspoonful. Increase the allowance daily.

4. You should eat plenty of vegetables and fruit. If the change in your diet and that of the baby does not accomplish the desired result, use a soapstick.

WANTS TO SEE THE SIDEWALK JUST ONCE.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—[Friend of the People.]—The sidewalk on the southwest and southeast corners of 119th street and Normal avenue is submerged in sand and dirt and on rainy days one has to wade through the water and mud to get to the car.

These corners are vacant and I do not know who the owner of the property is. Cannot something be done about this? It seems that this condition has always existed, and if the people of that neighborhood saw the sidewalk once they would not know what to do.
P. C.

Vacant property adjoining these walks is much higher than the walks, which causes the condition complained of. We have had the walks cleaned and they are now in good condition.

A HARD JOB MADE EASY.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I worked for a large chemical company and the superintendent always sent me up to the third story to break in people on the hard work up there. The job was the hardest in the shop and a worker would not keep it more than two weeks. I got tired taking people up there and breaking them in and at length I told the superintendent that I would take that job myself. Of course, I thought he would pay me the high price that he paid others to do that special work.

He said he did not think that I had the strength to do that work. I took the job and forthwith told the boss what to do to take the hardness out of that job. He said it was a good idea and he would do it. He had always paid $22 to $25 for that work. He did what I had requested and I thought I would be raised up to the amount. He said he would see about it, but it went on for some time and he said that I had taken the hardness out of the job and he asked why should he raise me?

I worked on for a year, when he persuaded me to give the job up and come down, as the work downstairs was lighter. I went down, but I did not like it down there any more and I quit. Could I make anything to sue the company? Please let me know. He gave me only $17 weekly and I did that job a year in the upper story, for which he had always paid $22 to $25.

DENYING SUFFRAGE TO FOREIGN BORN.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—"To Americanize Our Aliens" was very good. The real facts are that we have not been making real Americans out of our foreign born inhabitants. This was fully proven during the late war. My observation has been that the foreign born citizen never becomes an American. Many of the first generation and practically all of the succeeding generations become Americans. The great trouble breeder in this country today is this foreign element with their foreign ideas.

No foreign born person has the same ideas as the American. Then why should this man have the right of suffrage? Why should this man with un-American ideas have anything to say about making laws for Americans? Why should this alien be allowed to even try to change the laws or policies of this country? If we are going to preserve our traditions, our Americanism, I say no foreign born person should have the right to vote or hold office in this country.

MAKING TAXATION SIMPLE.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Although the congressional tax meddle and muddle—especially the reduction of the surtax on big incomes—has been justly criticized by THE TRIBUNE and other competent authorities, I have seen no definite plan proposed for a more just and feasible tax system, and so I would propose the following, which I believe will meet requirements:

All incomes over $3,000 a year to be surtaxed one-half of 1 per cent for each additional thousand, as follows:

$3,000-$4,000	½	per cent
$4,000-$5,000	1	per cent
$5,000-$6,000	1½	per cent
$6,000-$7,000	2	per cent

And so forth until the tax has reached 100 per cent.

The total tax on an income of $4,000 would accordingly be $5, on $5,000 $15, on $6,000 $30, on $7,000 $50.

According to the schedule the surtax per cent will reach 100 on the 203d-204th thousand dollars income, the tax on an income of $204,000 would be $100,500, leaving $103,500 net for the taxpayer, and as the surtax has now reached 100 per cent no income above the last named amount could be pocketed by any one person.

If such a tax would bring much more money than the government knew how to use (!) part of it could be refunded to the respective states and municipalities, so that only this one tax might be necessary. Or the surtax per cent could be made smaller, as, for instance, one-fourth of 1 per cent, if only the main principle, the progressive increase up to 100 per cent, is maintained.

"THE AGE OLD STRUGGLE."

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 20.—Your splendid editorial of Sept. 17 on "Organized Sabbatarianism" may well engage the thoughtful attention of every good citizen regardless of creed or racial prejudice. One would suppose from the "cloud of witnesses" given in your article who stand for a safe and sane Sabbath that the millennium is at hand. However, the experience of the world runs contrariwise. It is the age old struggle of intolerance versus liberty.

The Pharisees were Sabbatarians and considered themselves 100 per cent something, and yet Christ scathingly rebuked them for their hardness of heart. Back to the golden rule—that is to say, toleration. Any other way madness lies.
C. W. F.

PARTLY DISGUSTED.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Until such time as congress and the Washington officials can issue rules and regulations in connection with prohibition enforcement that the people can understand they had best keep quiet. The latest news from the capital states home brew is forbidden. I did not know home brew was ever permitted—certainly not under the Volstead law. The treasury department states 200 gallons of fruit juices are permitted each family per year. When was congress or the treasury department given authority to limit the amount of fruit juice we shall drink? When congress gets back on the job it had better take up important matters and quit wrangling over the sick person's glass of beer or the well person's fruit juice unless it wants to completely disgust the American people.
F. P. FORRESTER.

THE WORKER'S DAY OF RECREATION.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Under the title "Organized Sabbatarianism" your paper calls attention to the movement inaugurated by certain religious sects and fanatic organizations to have laws passed which prohibit all pleasure and recreation on Sundays. Theaters, movies, sports, automobiling, concerts, boating, smoking, reading, picnics, entertainments, and a thousand other things which the ordinary citizen is unable to enjoy except on Sundays will be opposed by them. These organizations consist mostly of members who are able to enjoy the pleasures of life six days out of seven. But they will not allow the plain people to enjoy the one. They want to drive the masses back into slavery; exercise an authority worse and more restrictive than that of the feudal barons of the middle ages.

"TAX OUR ARISTOCRACY OF WEALTH."

Oakland, Ill., Sept. 17.—Truly, your editorials of recent date merit the highest commendation. Outstanding among them, in my humble estimation, is the one entitled "Tax Our Aristocracy of Wealth."

Certainly, here is a field virtually proportionately untouched by tax legislation when received by inheritance. Properly cultivated, every evidence substantiates the fact that it would produce returns sufficient to make possible an alleviation of the tax burden of the hard working man with the much prized and desired large family and the removal of the business man's present handicap. It might also place a check on the present prevalent type of luxurious living that terminates in the most injurious and demoralizing licentiousness.

No man can point to the time when the American people were given as a divine task the buttering of the bread of European princes and dukes through our endowed daughters of magnates.
ANDREW M. LOWRY.

THE TOLERANCE OF A PROHIBITIONIST.

Brookfield, Ill., Sept. 21.—In answer to your editorial in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Sept. 21 under the caption of "Prohibition and Private Conscience" wish to state that to my mind it is the shrewdest piece of timely wet propaganda I have ever read, and in perfect harmony with the seemingly everlasting policy of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE (world's wettest newspaper).

The editorial writer knew that the United States congress convenes Sept. 21. He also knew that the question of medicinal beer would be debated first unless the "wets" are determined to continue their filibuster.

Your editorial is hypocritical. You say you are glad to believe the liquor traffic is forever banished unless a reaction of public sentiment is forced upon the moderate majority by excessive and oppressive application of the amendment, and then you immediately use your columns to cloud the issue by misrepresentation.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

UPHILL.

By Christina Georgina Rossetti.

Does the road wind uphill all the way?
Yes, to the very end.
Will the day's journey take the whole long day?
From morn to night, my friend.

But is there for the night a resting place?
A roof for when the slow, dark hours begin.
May not the darkness hide it from my face?
You cannot miss that inn.

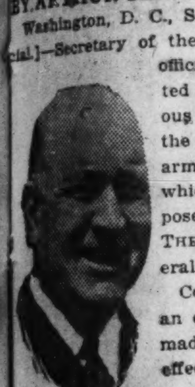
Shall I meet other wayfarers at night?
Those who have gone before.
Then must I knock or call when just in sight?
They will not keep you standing at the door.

Shall I find comfort, travel-sore and weak?
Of labor you shall find the sum.
Will there be beds for me and all who seek?
Yea, beds for all who come.

U. S. WEAKNESS IN SUBMARINES A PERIL—DENBY

Secretary Deplores Lack of Modern Types.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.



SECRETARY DENBY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Navy Denby officially admitted today the serious deficiency of the submarine arm of the navy, which was exposed in detail by THE TRIBUNE several months ago.

Convinced that an effort must be made to provide effective submarines of the latest types, Mr. Denby issued a formal tatement, the conclusion of which folows:

"Our navy today is seriously lacking n recently developed types of subma-ines. We have no mine laying subarines, no fleet submarines, except he three V boats now under construcion; no submarines with large caliber uns, such as the British M class, and, hat is most important, no long radius ruiser submarines.

"It is considered highly important o the national defense of this country o construct at least three each of these ypes for experimental and developent purposes, so that in event of a ational emergency we will be in a osition to continue the construction the types most necessary."

Few Fit for Service.

Confirming THE TRIBUNE'S disclo- e that of the 142 submarines built authorized, only about fifty are fit r effective service, Secretary Denby ys:

"The present submarine force of e navy consists of 142 submarines all types and ages, including those thorized but still under construction. f these there are at present 101 bmarines in commission and forty- e under construction.

"These various classes of subma- es are designated alphabetically, mencing with the B-1, which is e oldest submarine in the service, aving been built during 1900-1903. n nearly all cases each successive ss was an improvement on the preding one, as regards size, habitabil- y, and radius of action. The subarines of the B, D, E, and F classes nd the four Lake type, N class, are onsidered obsolete and will shortly e withdrawn from the service. The , K, L, M, and N classes, while not aving great radius of action, are condered suitable types for coast defense.

Holland Engine Not Satisfactory.

"Those of the O, R, and S classes present in each case an improve- ent with regard to size, habitability, d radius of action, their maximum uising radius varying from 6,000 to ,000 miles. The S class is divided o three types, the Holland type, e Lake type, and the government pe. The last named is the first at- mpt of the government at subma- e design and construction. Only e submarine of each of these types as originally authorized in order to termine a standard type for this e of submarine, but due to the en- ance of the United States into the orld war, additional submarines of e Holland type were authorized be- re they could be tried out in service.

"The engines of the Holland type bmarines have proven unreliable d unsatisfactory as at present de- gned, with the result that the com- tion of thirty-one of our S boats is ing delayed pending changes to their ain engines necessary to fulfill serv- e requirements.

"T" Type Not Successful.

"The three submarines of the T ss are fleet submarines with a de- ned surface speed of twenty knots. ese vessels were built as an experi- nt, being the largest ever under- ken by this government. They are t considered a success for their de- ned purpose of accompanying the ttle fleet, because of the unreliabili- of their engines, and their small rpedo armament.

"The three submarines of the V ss now under construction are the st word in Diesel engine driven t submarines. These submarines re designed by the government and e being built at the navy yard at rtsmouth, N. H."

"Sub" a Necessary Weapon.

Mr. Denby after careful considera- n has reached the conclusion that e submarine is a weapon deserving serious consideration and development.

As submarines are not self-sustaining, it is necessary to provide tending facilities for them, such as a place for the personnel to live, eat, and sleep when not at sea cruising, a place to replenish supplies and to effect repairs.

"All nations, at the present time," Mr. Denby says, "have assigned large mother ships to do this work, or have provided bases on shore, to the piers of which submarines can secure and obtain rest from the fatigue of a long cruise at sea. The United States navy has at the present time eight submarine tenders in commission, three of which are of little value as such, due to their small size.

"Submarine bases are at New London, Conn., Hampton Roads, Va., Coco Solo, C. Z., San Pedro, Cal., and Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Other bases contemplated would be situated at Cape May, Va., Key West, Fla., Astoria, Ore., Guam and Cavite. At present the later submarines are operating with a fair degree of efficiency.

ELOPER

MRS. JOHN HOMER LEMOND.
[Koehne Photo.]

MRS. LOUIS EDMUND GOSSELIN of 527 Roscoe street was preparing to announce the engagement of her daughter, Gladys Mary. She hadn't decided just what kind of a party she would have at which to tell Gladys' friends the news. Thursday evening she was at the home of a friend when she was called to the telephone. "Toledo calling," the operator told her.

It was the voice of Gladys Mary saying she had that day been married to John Homer Lemond, her fiancé. Gladys feigned the luncheon engagement that took her out early was really a plan for elopement.

Mr. and Mrs. Lemond registered at the Blackstone yesterday. The bridegroom is the son of J. H. Lemond, president of the Bank of Commerce at Trenton, Tenn. The young couple will live in Shreveport, La.

MILITARY BURIAL IS GIVEN HERO OF ARGONNE BATTLE

CORPORAL GEORGE F. JONES.

Corp. George F. Jones, who was killed with his captain and five others on Oct. 4, 1918, while attempting to capture a masked German machine gun nest during the Argonne offensive, was buried with military honors yesterday in Mount Hope cemetery. Funeral services were held in Cunningham's chapel, 6237 Normal boulevard.

Corp. Jones served in Company L, 58th regiment, 4th division. He was the son of Frederick De Witt Jones, 1320 Waveland avenue, and a brother of Margaret Jones Carqueville of Attica, Ind.; Hettie Jones Copenhaver, John De Witt Jones, Hope, Ark., and Fred C. Jones.

HELD UP IN DAYLIGHT.

Daniel Shapiro, 3941 West Van Buren street, was held up by two youths yesterday morning at South Springfield avenue and West Polk streets and robbed of $40 and a diamond pin.

EDITORS TELL WHAT TO PRINT, WHEN TO DO IT

Draw Lines of News and Scandal.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Editors of the leading papers of Kansas City today began appearing in court as "expert witnesses" to testify what news is and when it should be printed, even if the affairs which are described are scandalous.

The first two editors testifying agreed in their views. They drew a sharp line between those papers which print the news of an affair which is of itself scandalous, but which is handled in a clean, wholesome manner, and a certain minority of papers which publish scandals which have not come in contact with the law and are printed only to gain circulation by pandering to lewdness and lasciviousness.

The trial revolves about a local weekly "scandal sheet." The two witnesses—R. E. Stout, managing editor of the Star, and Ralph Ellis, managing editor of the Journal—said that the "scandal sheet's" stories which led to a recent raid were upfit and that they would not print articles of such character.

Judge Latshaw, before whom the testimony was given, questioned Mr. Stout in regard to the Arbuckle case. Mr. Stout said that such articles, always decently handled, were merely a part of the general run of the news, and that no attempt was made by decent newspapers to give undue prominence to this aspect of the news.

He held, however, that the moving picture industry had carried its glamour and the private life of its stars into every household in America and that no true perspective could be obtained of this industry with the elimination of all unpleasant details when one of the stars was accused of murder.

"When a scandal—and the Arbuckle case certainly is a scandal—reaches the public through the courts in a trial for murder," Mr. Stout said, "the newspaper is justified in giving its readers the news, carefully and decently written. When a scandal does not come into contact with the law and the publication would only injure the persons involved and furnish lascivious reading, the average newspaper does not feel it its duty to expose it."

Mr. Ellis had barely begun his testimony when adjournment was taken to Monday, when he and the other Kansas City editors will testify.

23 EMPLOYES AND 4 PRISONERS IN LUDLOW ST. JAIL

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The large expense which the city of New York bears for the maintenance of the Ludlow street jail for civil prisoners is pointed out by John S. Kennedy, president of the state commission of prisons, in a report. It costs about $40,000 annually and when inspected by the commissioner there were only four prisoners. To care for these prisoners a staff of twenty-three is maintained, comprising a warden, deputy warden, eleven keepers, three cleaners, two engineers, two cooks, a physician, matron and laundress. From Jan. 1 to June 30 there had been 113 prisoners in the jail, of whom two were women. The largest number on any date was twelve.

Talented Girl Musician Dies After Long Illness

Margaret Samonski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Samonski, 8246 Morgan street, died at her home yesterday from heart failure, which ended a long illness. The funeral will be held from the family home next Tuesday morning, followed by burial at Mount Olivet. Miss Samonski, though only 16 years old, had won recognition as a pianist of great ability.

Around his grave I linger,
Where the sun is setting low,
Thinking of the home that's lonely
Without my darling we treasure so.
Too pure for this world,
Too beautiful to stay;
So the angels came and bore our precious boy away.

LOVING FATHER, MOTHER, AND BROTHERS, ARTHUR AND MAURICE.

GOLDSTEIN—Henrietta Goldstein. In memory of our beloved mother and wife, who died two years ago today.

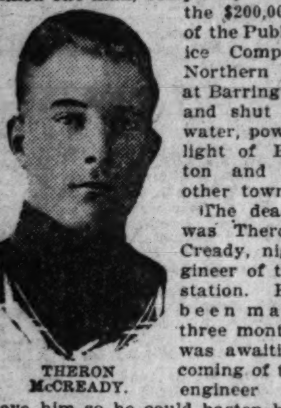
LIGHTNING BLOWS UP POWER HOUSE; KILLS ENGINEER

Light Cut from 9 Towns by Barrington Blast.



THERON McCREADY.

A bolt of lightning early yesterday killed one man, completely demolished the $200,000 plant of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois at Barrington, Ill., and shut off the water, power, and light of Barrington and eight other towns.

The dead man was Theron McCready, night engineer of the substation. He had been married three months and was awaiting the coming of the day engineer to relieve him so he could hasten home to his bride.

Explosion Follows Bolt.

McCready apparently was standing near the door of the plant, watching the thunder storm, when the lightning struck. The bolt ran through the plant. A terrific explosion followed, supposedly of gas, and the walls of the building crumbled and fell.

Fire started in the débris. Scores of citizens, their homes shaken by the explosion, ran to the scene. After the fire department had extinguished the flames, McCready's body, burned by the lightning and bruised by falling débris, was found near the plant entrance. The heavy door beside which he had been standing was blown sixty feet away by the force of the explosion.

Nine Towns' Light Cut Off.

Barrington, Wauconda, Lake Zurich, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Algonquin, East and West Dundee and Carpenterville all are furnished with light and power by the plant, and use its power to pump city water. In consequence they were without water and light yesterday and last night.

Coroner J. L. Taylor of Lake county summoned a jury, but it failed to fix any cause for the explosion. Reports were current that a large gas main pump in the basement had been leaking and that the escaping gas was ignited by the lightning, but there was no evidence to that effect presented to the jury.

In the afternoon the corporation put seventy-five men to work building a temporary station, which will be supplying power to the nine towns tomorrow, it was said.

ABREST SPOILS THEIR TRIP.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—L. P. Walbridge, said to have many aliases and to be wanted in Fort Wayne, Ind., for burglary, and a young woman giving the name of Helen Winthrop, were arrested here today. It is said jewelry and furs valued at several thousand dollars were found in Walbridge's trunk.

$200 IS PAID FOR BOX AT LEGION'S BASEBALL GAME

"Say It With Jobs."

BY CAPT. T. J. BONNIWELL.

William Wrigley Jr. paid $200 for the first box sold for the baseball game between the actors and the disabled soldiers to be played Monday, Oct. 3, at the Cubs' park. The total receipts will be handed over to the American Legion to open up the old Grand Pacific hotel as a place where the jobless veterans may live until they get back on their feet.

The big ticket drive will be made this week through the various organizations, churches, societies, and actresses now appearing in the loop theaters. Fred Stone and Paul Dickey, managers for the actors' team, which has been recruited from all the companies in town, expect to have a big open air show at noon to help boost the sale of tickets.

Gertrude Vanderbilt, Florence Reed, Nan Halperin, Frances Underwood, and other stars will work arm in arm with the beauties of the chorus in the drive. "If I can square myself with Chief Fitzmorris, I will take the most beautiful chorus in the fewest possible clothes right out into Randolph street to sell tickets," said Eddie Cantor.

F. Couthoui & Co. will sell tickets without any commission for this game. All Legion posts have been supplied with tickets also.

That this Veterans' hotel is urgently needed is brought home by the number of men the government slips up on regarding compensation.

Yesterday J. F. presented his hospital discharges showing how the government has shifted him from hospital to hospital and finally discharged him, stating that his condition was unimproved. This ex-soldier receives but $8 monthly compensation. He walked into THE TRIBUNE office to inquire where he could get lodging for the night. He was penniless, friendless, and homeless.

SHOWS CITY HAS POWER TO LOWER CAR FARES NOW

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

The street car fare can be reduced now. It can be lowered any day by the city by commuting its profits on the system's operation of last year.

Walter L. Fisher, who drew the ordinances, says so.

Harry Weber, who interprets the ordinances for the companies, says so.

Chester E. Cleveland Sr., who interprets the ordinances for the city administration, has not denied that it can be done. In fact, he is now asking the Illinois commerce commission to do the thing which the city has, and has had for fourteen years, the power to do.

If it is advisable to reduce fares by that method, why delay? Why not do it this week? Why wasn't it done last January by the Small utilities commission—if not by the city—if it should be done now?

Matter of Policy.

On the question of whether the fare should be reduced by commuting the city's profit no opinion is here expressed. That is a matter of policy. If the city's profits are used to reduce the fare, those profits cannot be accumulated from year to year to build subways. If the profits are spent for one purpose they cannot be spent for another. However, the city appears to have adopted a policy, either through the affirmative action or slumbering inaction of its officials, because Mr. Cleveland in the name of the city has petitioned the Illinois commerce commission, saying: "Petitioners allege . . . that said company ought to be compelled to apply said sum (city's profit) to the reduction of the rates of fare charged and collected by it or pay said sum to the city for use and occupation of the streets."

The "said sum" totals $3,583,185.62, according to the city's petitions. The companies have tendered this to the city as its 55 per cent of the net profits, which the city has refused to accept for legal reasons. Mr. Cleveland claims that the 55 per cent will aggregate $3,300,000 this year, which will make a total of $6,800,000.

Ordinances Give Authority.

"That $6,000,000, or whatever the sum is, can be commuted at the next meeting of the city council, if the mayor and the city council are in favor of a reduction of the rate of fare," said Walter L. Fisher. "And it could have been done at any time during all of these years that Mr. Cleveland has been associated with this matter or the present administration has been in power."

The ordinances confirm this view. Section 107 of the city railway ordinace and section 137 of the railways ordinance are duplicates. They provide for the commutation of fares.

It is Mr. Cleveland's contention that the $3,583,185.62 can be used to reduce the fare. That sum, however, happens to be the city's share of the profits for more than one year. But assume that the total is used to reduce fares. That would mean a reduction of upwards of ½ cent a ride.

Why the Delay?

The Surface Lines' income this year has been estimated at $58,000,000 and the fare is 8 cents. Therefore each cent means a gross income to the company of about $7,250,000. The $3,583,185 is more than 49 per cent of $7,250,000.

But Mr. Cleveland in his oral argument has indicated that he desires that the commission shall add $3,300,000, the anticipated city profits for this year, to the $3,583,185 of the two preceding years and reduce the fare by an aggregate of $6,800,000. That would permit a reduction of more than .9 of a cent per ride for one year.

But if that policy is to be followed, why not take action tomorrow, as Attorney Walter L. Fisher says is legally permissible, by the city council and the mayor? Why procrastinate? The longer the 8 cent fare continues the longer the burden continues on the car rider.

Who Ate All This Ice Cream?

This Last Year Chicago Eagerly Bought and Ate This Record Amount of Goldenrod Ice Cream

THINK OF IT! 1,500,000 GALLONS—6,000,000 QUARTS—96,000,000 SODAS, SUNDAES, FRAPPES, CONES, ETC., were served to Chicago's Three Million.

Why do you suppose people bought all that GOLDENROD ICE CREAM? Perhaps the biggest reason is because it is so extraordinarily good—because that's why most folks LIKE and BUY ice cream. But there are other big reasons: the superlative purity of it; the rich wholesomeness; the velvetlike smoothness of every spoonful.

Now the question is: Did YOU get your portion of this food goodness? Or did some one else eat and enjoy your share?

TRY SOME TODAY! There are nine wonderful flavors of GOLDENROD FROZEN PUDDINGS: Chocolate Pudding; Fruit Pudding; Chicago Pudding; Nesselrode Pudding; Caramel Vanilla Pudding; French Cherry Pudding; Neapolitan Pudding; Strawberry Pudding and Vanilla Pudding.

LAWYERS' TILTS ENLIVEN PLEAS IN $10,000,000 SUIT

City Obtains Delay in Tribune Demurrer.

BY PARKE BROWN.

At the request of Chester E. Cleveland, special assistant corporation counsel, argument upon the demurrer of THE TRIBUNE in the $10,000,000 libel suit filed against it in the name of the city of Chicago was stopped at noon yesterday and further hearing was delayed until tomorrow morning.

It had been agreed that Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher would sit all day in an effort to dispose of the demurrer as speedily as possible, but Mr. Cleveland told the court he had "some things to attend to," and upon this statement court adjourned promptly at 12 o'clock.

Mr. Cleveland occupied the morning session by citing at great length from cases bearing on the technical differences involved in various forms of suits concerning corporations, both public and private. His chief point was that the city "in its proprietary capacity" can sue for libel, an argument never made before in an American court.

Lawyers in Tilt.

Only once or twice when Attorney Weymouth Kirkland interposed a remark did the argument get away from technical territory. One of these incidents was interesting to the spectators.

"I don't think the newspapers have any right to publish lies about public officials," Mr. Cleveland said.

"Neither do I," put in Judge Fisher.

"And nobody contends they [the newspapers] do," Mr. Kirkland said, "so you needn't take up any of your time on that."

"All right," answered the city hall representative, "Mr. Kirkland says nobody claims they have any right to publish lies against public officials."

"Don't leave off the word 'officials'," Mr. Kirkland said.

"You say they have about some public officials—that is to say—I understand Mr. Kirkland's distinction is, if I get it right—he has not expressly said it—the paper, the newspaper, has a right to publish lies about the official that they are opposing but not against the official that is in their favor."

A Difference of Opinion.

"You didn't get me right and you know well you didn't get me right," replied Mr. Kirkland.

"That is what you said," insisted Mr. Cleveland.

"No, I didn't say that, and you know I didn't say it," answered Mr. Kirkland.

"Yes, you did."

"No, I didn't say that."

And then Mr. Cleveland changed the subject.

During his argument Mr. Cleveland quoted Leon Hornstein, an assistant corporation counsel, as one of his authorities.

WALKER AGAIN NAMED TO HEAD ILLINOIS LABOR

Reëlection of John A. Walker of Springfield and Victor A. Olander of Chicago as president and secretary-treasurer of the Illinois State Federation of Labor is indicated in the results of nominations announced here yesterday.

The election will be by referendum vote in the various affiliated organizations, beginning Dec. 1 and ending Dec. 31. The result will be announced about Jan. 15.

Walker is opposed by Duncan McDonald of Springfield. McDonald also was nominated by three organizations for secretary-treasurer.

The highest-salaried girl in her class

WHEN she graduated from high school, she faced the usual problem. A business man suggested she study filing as a profession. She took a course at the Illinois School of Filing, where she learned every important method of filing. Today she holds a position of responsibility in a large bank. According to her high school principal, she is the highest-salaried girl in her class.

But she is only one of the many thousands of young women who have found in filing a well-paying, congenial profession. A course at the Illinois School of Filing will equip you, too, to step into a lucrative position.

This course in filing and the opportunities open to graduates, are explained in an interesting, readable booklet: "Filing as a Profession for Women." Write for your free copy or call in person. Ask for Miss Gladys Bridges, principal.

Day courses start twice a month; evening courses once a month.

Business Boosts the Opera

In line with the city-wide movement enlisting popular support of the grand opera season many business houses are financing tickets for their music loving employes. This picture shows a numbet of office girls employed by the wholesale tailoring concern, Edward Rose & Co., 628 West Jackson boulevard, in conference with company officials, agreeing to use and pay for season tickets purchased by their employers for their benefit. The employes in this way receive the 10 per cent discount allowed on season tickets and pay for the seats only as they use them. The opera company has announced that total sales for the season already have passed the $200,000 mark.

POLICE QUIZ 4 IN MICHIGAN'S TRIPLE SLAYING

Dowagiac, Mich., Sept. 24.—Cass county authorities today were questioning four men in an effort to clear up the mystery surrounding the murder in their home here of William Monroe, his wife Mary, and their 17 year old daughter, Neva.

Although the alleged confession to the crime made by Gus Cogan, an escaped inmate of the Illinois hospital for the insane at Jacksonville, is discredited by the authorities, Cogan is held pending further investigation. According to the authorities Cogan described minutely the interior of the Monroe home, declaring he entered the place, killed the three victims and then beat Ardith, 10 year old daughter of Monroe, on the head, as the four lay asleep. The reputed confession, however, gave no motive.

Cogan's alleged confession is discredited, because he admits, it is said, participation in every murder mentioned to him.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR OAK PARK'S WAR MEMORIAL

At a meeting of the memorial committee, headed by E. E. Morrell and Frank J. C. Borwell of Oak Park, Gilbert Riswold, sculptor, of 742 North Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park, was selected to create the memorial in honor of Oak Park and River Forest's war heroes in Scoville place in Oak Park.

The monument as planned by Mr. Riswold will rise twenty feet above the ground on the crest of a hill and will incorporate distinctly American ideals, style, and art.

Columbia will be the central figure of a group including the soldier, sailor, and aviator. Names of the Oak Park and River Forest men who served in the war will appear on a bronze scroll at the base of the monument, and tablets with the names of those who lost their lives will be placed on either side.

SHERIDAN ROAD AT ARGYLE

Kitchenette Apartments and Rooms Without Kitchenette

Again, all this week, Hotel Somerset will keep open house. Whether or not you are considering rental of a kitchenette apartment or of a room without kitchenette, accept our invitation to inspect this foremost kitchenette apartment hotel. Come today, tonight, or any other time to suit your convenience.

The Somerset will be the scene of various unique social events this fall and winter and we want everyone to know about the hotel.

Consider the Great Convenience of the Kitchenette Apartment

Since people first sought relief from the unnecessary worries and cares of old-fashioned housekeeping under modern trying conditions no genius has evolved a more practicable arrangement than the kitchenette apartment. In The Hotel Somerset you will see the kitchenette idea at its best.

AND THE COST IS MODERATE

All the privacy and luxury of the most elaborate and costly private home will be yours in The Somerset without the many worries and cares of the ordinary apartment, and yet the total cost of living in The Somerset is surprisingly small. When considering the rates, printed below, bear in mind that they include full service and that, aside from food, clothing and laundry, the fixed monthly charge covers practically all the necessities of life.

A VERY ADVANTAGEOUS LOCATION

The Somerset's location combines every advantage one could ask for his home. It is in the best part of the city's finest boulevard, in the most favored section of Chicago. The quiet residential street intersection insures restful surroundings and yet it is only a few steps to the liveliest part of the North Shore, with its many shops, theaters and other conveniences and means of amusement.

ACCESSIBLE BY 3 LINES OF TRANSPORTATION

Both the surface and the elevated cars are convenient. Through express trains from the loop make their first stop at Argyle station, 2 blocks west of the hotel.

Motor busses to the Loop stop at the door.

RATES FOR APARTMENTS AND ROOMS

Kitchenette apartments of 2, 3, 4 and 5 rooms, $125 to $450 a month. Rooms without kitchenette, $25 a week and up. No additional charge for two persons. Private bath, including both tub and shower, attached to every apartment or room.

SMALL LAWYERS 'UP IN AIR' OVER 'KINDLY' COUNTY

Change of Venue Up Tomorrow.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Attorneys for Gov. Small, after nearly a week of conferences, have not been able to agree as to the county they prefer for the governor's trial if a change of venue is granted from Sangamon county.

The nearest approach to a conclusion, it is learned, is that some county north and west of Springfield is preferred, provided it is outside of the Chicago metropolitan district and well removed from any influence of the "Sangamon county machine."

Scouts have been covering available counties looking over local conditions as precedent to the showdown that will come tomorrow or Tuesday at Springfield when a change of venue motion is scheduled for argument.

Reports brought back to the governor's attorneys, reports from the inside say, have not been reassuring from the Small point of view, and indications are there will be difficulty in picking a county satisfactory both to State's Attorney Mortimer and to the governor.

Smith to Name Judge.

Unless something new develops tomorrow, Judge E. S. Smith will announce the judge who will be called in to hear the arguments on the change of venue motion. This judge will be either Judge Norman L. Jones of Carrollton or Judge Frank W. Burton, co-judges with Judge Smith in the Seventh judicial circuit. Both are Democrats, although at the June election party lines were eliminated and the three were reelected on a nonpartisan ticket without opposition.

It is barely possible the defense will spring a fresh bunch of affidavits, thereby making good on an earlier forecast from the governor's camp that they "would blow the Sullivan machine out of the water."

Both Sides Ready.

Each side, it is understood, will be prepared to proceed Tuesday with formal arguments. State's Attorney Mortimer has announced he is ready. In accordance with his formal statement of several weeks since, Mr. Mortimer will not resist the motion for a change from Sangamon.

James H. Wilkerson will represent Attorney General Brundage in the proceedings.

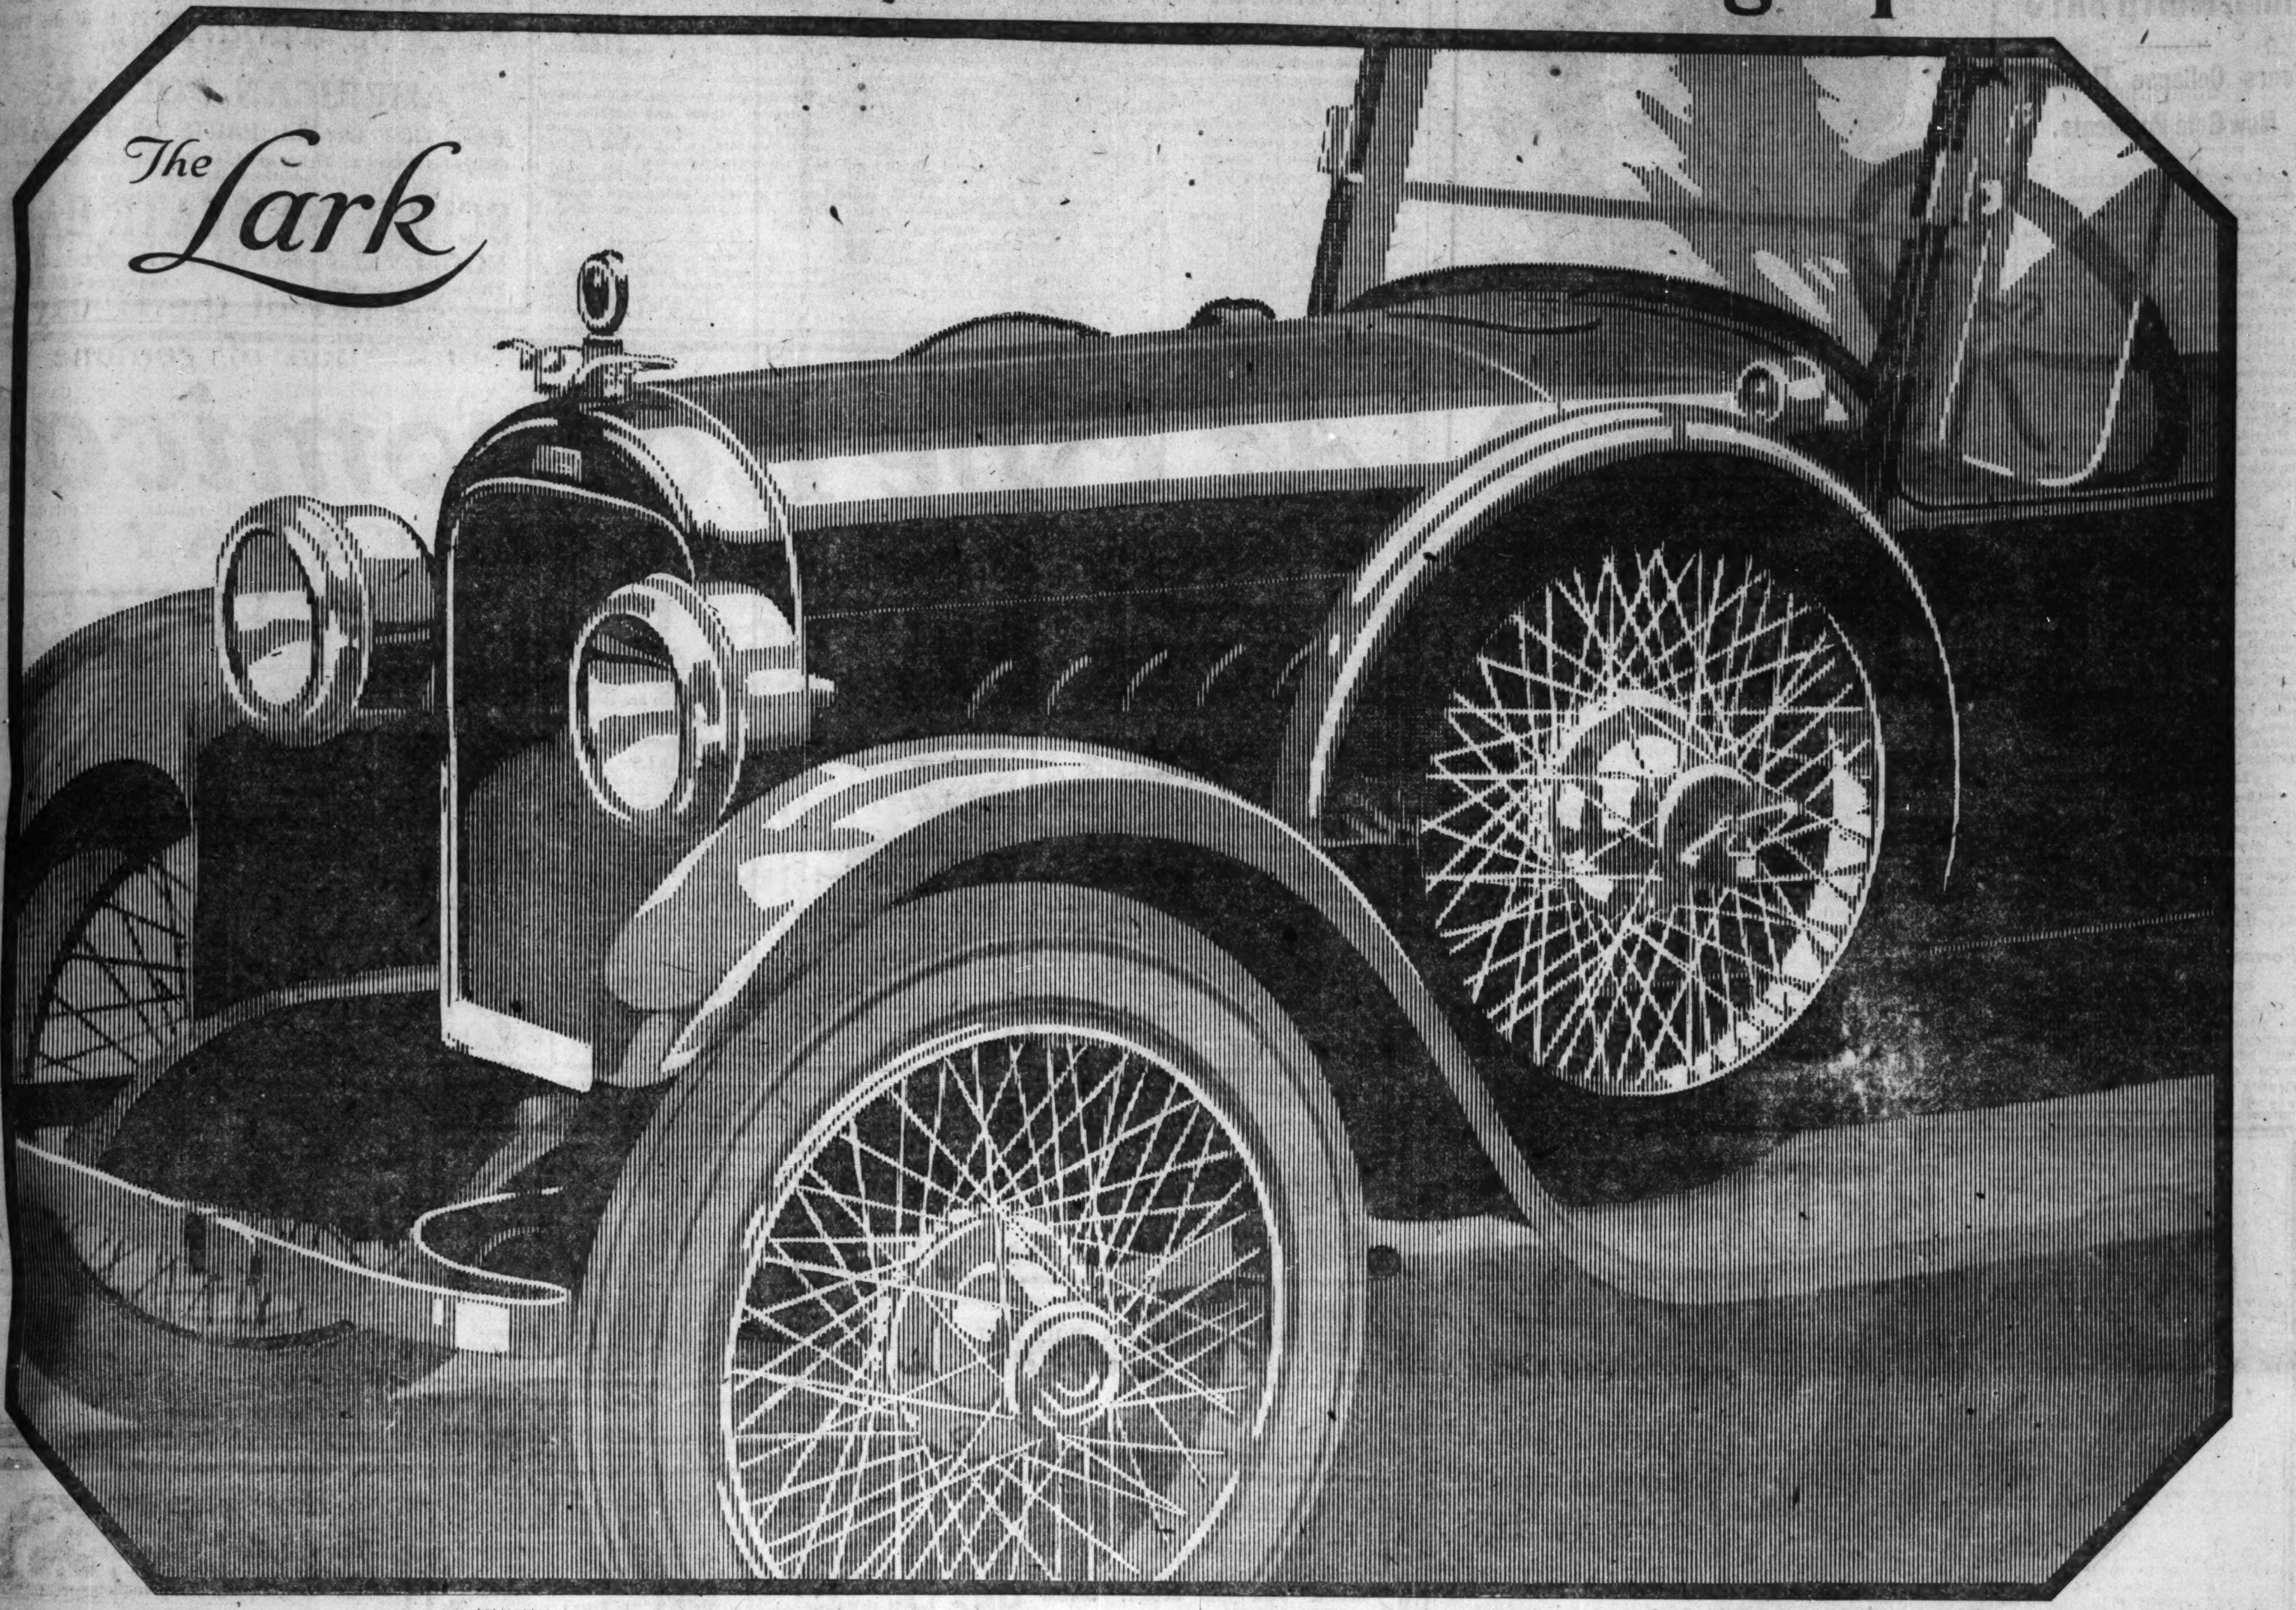
"The Best Looking and Best Performing Sport Car"



High Valve Lift of Ansted Engine Opens Flood Gates of Power

You haye probably seen it and wondered what fine, special, custom-built car it was.

Of course, you have heard about its sensational performance—how the Ansted Engine has been consistently outperforming much larger, higher priced cars.

No previous experience will serve as an adequate comparison for the quiet, quick, efficient way the Lark does your bidding. You must take the wheel, and then you will agree with others that it is "the best looking and best performing sport car."

The Lark you buy is exclusively yours in appearance—our wide variety of color options, with upholstery to match, enables you to express your individual taste.

Its unusually complete equipment includes a bumper—front and back, winged motor meter, a spare wheel with cord tire on each running board, windshield wings, trunk rack and trunk in rear!

In every feature, the Lark is refreshingly different from the usual run of fine cars—there is nothing commonplace or drab about it. And it never begs favors of the driver! It gives you a new sense of freedom and unconcern about its ability and reliability to meet all driving conditions from quick start to sudden stop—from two miles an hour to racing speed!

Its greatest joy lies in the quiet, effortless way in which it meets the average day-in and day-out motor requirements, without worrying or fatiguing the driver.

It thrills you to sit behind the Ansted Engine when occasion demands extraordinary performance on a straightaway or hill.

The wide revision of standards introduced by the Ansted Engine seemed incredible until the owner-made records all over the country proved our claims.

It could have been accomplished only by an innovation as vitally significant as high valve lift—long supreme in the racing field for its intensified efficiency. But noise was unbearable.

When the remarkable "rocking chair" rocker arm really put the "quietus" on high lift noise here is what became possible in the Lexington—

—Half again as much power as in conventional motors of the same size!

—More power even than in considerably larger motors!

—Better fuel records than those of many smaller motors!

The development of this veritable "miracle motor," as it has been termed, was made possible through direct Lexington control of its own great Ansted Engine plant. Here also the constant temperature oiling and cooling system was perfected; vibration reduced to the vanishing point, and other exclusive features added to the long list which includes the famous Lexigasifier and Moore Multiple Exhaust System.

The Lexington body plant—another of the ten industries associated for greater progress and value—has fittingly matched the superiority of the Ansted Engine.

Give us an opportunity to show you the Lark—real soon!

GERMANY NOW ON BANKRUPTCY RIM, WIRTH SAYS

Fears Collapse Through New Gold Payments.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—"In the event that Germany is compelled to continue the reparations payments in gold Germany's bankruptcy will be unavoidable," declared Chancellor Wirth in an interview published throughout the European press. "It will be impossible to make the coming payment with the same ease as was the case in the first billion marks. It will be remembered what a crash in the foreign value of the mark occurred in the effort to pay the first billion."

He inferred that a similar result is bound to occur if the gold payments are continued, and that Germany will be forced to declare itself bankrupt.

Reverses "Pay All" Policy.

This interview, which first appeared in the Italian press, was not denied by the foreign office this afternoon, but no comment on it was given.

The conservative right press says Dr. Wirth's attitude is an unconditional reversal of the chancellor's former program for the fulfillment of Germany's obligations, a reversal which unquestionably indicates the approaching bankruptcy of his policies. It also points out that the chancellor's statement contradicts the repeated assurances of Reconstruction Minister Rathenau that there is no such thing as unfulfillable conditions.

Like Russia's Condition.

The Deutsche Zeitung says Chancellor Wirth now shows the whole policy of the present administration is false, and observes: "We can now realize that we can come to conditions, such as exist in Austria and Russia today, which will destroy the foundations for reconstruction and the last possibility for political and economic liberty."

Former Convict Slain on Porch of His Home

Glen Jones, who completed a term for manslaughter in the Indiana state penitentiary four years ago, was shot dead last night on the porch of his home at Crown Point, Ind. The identity of the murderer or his motive was not learned.

ACES---OF HEARTS

NELLIE AND SARA KOUNS.

[Walinger Photo.]

Although these girls received 875 proposals of marriage when they were in France singing songs for the A. E. F., one is still single. News of Nellie's recent marriage to a Chicagoan leaked out yesterday.

Weds No. 444

NO wonder her wedding was secret. If some of the 445 doughboys who proposed to her in France had known their little lady was going to marry, there's no telling what might have happened to the groom.

So it was that news of the wedding of Miss Nellie Kouns, former Chicagoan, to Culver Amsden, advertising manager for J. W. Ball & Co. of this city, was not disclosed until yesterday. The ceremony occurred two weeks ago in St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church, Buffalo, N. Y. The bride was accompanied by her sister, Sara.

During the war these two young ladies comprised the champion heart breaking team of the A. E. F. Entertaining soldiers overseas under the auspices of the Theater league, they succeeded so well that no less than 875 proposals of marriage were made to them.

Both girls are widely known as concert singers. They are daughters of the late C. W. Kouns, who was general manager of the Santa Fe railroad at the time of his death.

FLORENCE PAGE'S BEQUESTS DIVIDE $750,000 ESTATE

The will of Florence Lathrop Page, sister-in-law of the late Marshall Field Sr. and wife of Thomas Nelson Page, former ambassador to Italy, which was filed yesterday in the Probate court, disposes of an estate of $750,000. Mrs. Page died in Washington, D. C., June 6.

By the terms of her will the Chicago Orchestral association is to receive $50,000 as a memorial to her brother Bryan Lathrop, to found a school of music in Chicago.

The greater part of the estate is left to her husband and to her two daughters by her first husband, Henry Field, the brother of Marshall Field Sr., who died some years ago. The daughters are Minna Field Page of Leicestershire, England, and Florence Field Lindsay of Southborough, Mass.

Her sister, Helen Aldis Lathrop, is to receive $25,000; her brother, Barbour Lathrop, $25,000; Algeron Edwyn Burnaby, son-in-law, $5,000.

ALL NIGHT JAZZ CABARET SCHEME AROUSES CHIEF

Chief of Police Fitzmorris grew indignant last night when he was informed that Will J. Harris intended to open an all night cabaret, called the Little club, on the second floor of the Randolph hotel, beginning Oct. 8. Dancing, under Mr. Harris' plans, would start at 11 o'clock and continue until sunrise.

"Not in this town!" exclaimed the chief. "They ought to know that I've ordered all cabarets closed at 1 a. m." He turned to his secretary, Capt. Martin Mullen. "Send this memorandum to Capt. Patrick Lavin, commander of the First precinct:

"On what authority is the Little club announcing all night dancing? Please make an investigation at once and report your findings to me. No cabaret can violate the 1 o'clock closing order."

Pastor for "Proper" Dancing.

"Why," said the Rev. Johnston Myers, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church, last night, "I see no objection to an all night cabaret in the loop, provided the music, crowds, and dancing are proper. If it will be a drunken carousal, I'm opposed to it. But I don't see why folks who work at night can't have a little wholesome dancing if they want to."

"The after midnight cabaret must not flourish in Chicago," exclaimed the Rev. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist church, the only church in the loop. "I will denounce the idea from my pulpit. An all night church would be a better idea.

"Houses of worship build up character; cabarets tear down and demoralize character. A whooping, toddling, jazz saturated cabaret, in full blast during the night when respectable folk are sleeping, would have a vicious psychological effect on the city. We will fight it."

Arthur Burrage Farwell, president of the Chicago Law and Order league, who demanded on Thursday that federal troops be sent to Chicago to enforce the prohibition laws, declared last night that he would have investigators attend the opening session of the Little club, if it opens.

Recalls Chief's Promise.

"The average cabaret is bad enough," he said. "An all night one would be terrible. The later the hour the more loose the morals of dancers. The chief promised me on Jan. 21 that he'd close these dissolute places at 1 o'clock."

However——

The saxophones groan and whinny, the dancers shuffle and wiggle, and waiters flit from table to table every night, it is said, until 2, 3, and 4 a. m. at the following cabarets:

Erie, Belvedere, Athenia, Friars inn, Lincoln gardens, Entertainers', Sunset inn, Panama, and Dreamland cafés.

Why?

MAN STABBED BY NEGRO.

When he refused an unidentified Negro a drink yesterday morning Edward Barnhardt, 4800 South Michigan avenue, was stabbed and seriously wounded by the latter in front of 4722 South State street.

These Prices Will Be Maintained as Long as Market Conditions Permit.

Before the Brevoort Hotel first made a specialty of Breast of Guinea Hen, some years ago, few people in Chicago realized the delicious possibilities of this now famous dish. It was reserved for the Brevoort Hotel to make it popular in Chicago. Served as it is in the Brevoort, with a slice of delicately flavored ham and topped with a fresh mushroom, it is both ample for a meal and dainty enough to tempt the most laggard appetite.

And where, in the whole range of edibles, is there a more toothsome morsel than the sweet, tender small lobster, piping hot from the broiler?

In the wide variety of a Brevoort menu, there is that to please every person, morning, noon and night.

ASK $14,000,000 TO AID STARVING JEWS IN EUROPE

Aroused by the suffering of homeless Jews in the famine districts of eastern Europe, 200 prominent Jews from various parts of the country met for a conference at the Standard club as guests of Julius Rosenwald, last night, and decided to raise $14,000,000 for emergency relief work.

The money will be spent for the immediate succor of Jewish war victims in the troubled districts of Europe, including Russia, through coöperation with the Hoover relief organization and the Society of Friends. Plans for a nation-wide campaign will be made at a meeting today.

Tells of Relief Work Done.

A report of Jewish relief work during the last year was given by Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the American joint distribution committee, who has just returned from an inspection of humanitarian agencies abroad.

"Many thousands of Jews in Europe are still in need of aid, because they have been deprived of all means of livlihood, have lost their homes, their little farms, and shops," he said. "We must help the war refugees.

"American Jews must support the 10,000 orphans who are threatened with pauperism and disease. American Jewish women should interest themselves in the financial adoption of children in Poland, Roumania, Czecho-Slovakia, and Russia.

War Orphans' Needs.

Reconstruction and rehabilitation work was discussed at the conference by Col. Herbert H. Lehman. Dr. Boris D. Bogen told of the plight of refugees, James H. Becker explained the needs of war orphans, and Howard Gans made a plea for sanitation and medical aid.

Other speakers were Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey; Louis Marshall, New York; Julius Rosenwald, and Gen. Abel Davis, Chicago; Jacob Billikopf, Philadelphia; Lee Frankel, Toronto, and David A. Brown, Detroit.

Discovers New Way to Make Synthetic Camphor

New Orleans, La., Sept. 24.—Prof. P. Baudet of the University of Paris and Loyola university, New Orleans, has announced the discovery of a process for the manufacture of synthetic camphor from turpentine. Application has been filed for a patent, which will relieve the government from the present Japanese monopoly, he states.

A WINNER

MISS GRACE HOADLEY.

This girl, who represents her sorority in the Pan-Hellenic council, has been awarded the Bonbright prize for the highest honors in the junior class at Northwestern.

MISS GRACE HOADLEY of Lafayette, Ind., member of Delta Zeta sorority, has been awarded the Bonbright prize of $200 for highest grades in the junior class at Northwestern university, it was announced yesterday in Evanston.

Miss Hoadley, now a senior, represents her sorority on the Pan-Hellenic council. Delta Zeta had the highest record for scholarship last year, including fraternities and sororities.

She is majoring in history and Latin and is very active in student activities. The first two years she was placed on the honor roll.

3 New Members Named for Hoover Trade Conclave

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Three additional members of the unemployment conference which will convene Monday were announced today by Secretary of Commerce Hoover. They are Clarence J. Hicks of New York, assistant to the president of the Standard Oil company; James A. Campbell of Youngstown, O., president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, and Charles M. Babcock of St. Paul, state highway commissioner of Minnesota.

RUSSIA PLEADS WITH EUROPE TO HALT POLISH WAR

MOSCOW, Sept. 24.—[By the Associated Press.]—The keynote of headlines in all Moscow newspapers today concerning Poland's ultimatum to Russia is: "We want peace."

Karl Radek and other prominent Communists contribute articles in which both the proletariat and bourgeoisie in the European countries are called upon to "check the Polish war plans," which are alleged by the writers to be inspired by France.

Agree on Reply to Poland.

Russia's reply to the Polish ultimatum of Monday last was agreed upon today and will be forwarded immediately. In it the soviet government states that while Poland insists upon compliance by Russia with the first three sections of the peace treaty, Russia likewise insists on Poland's compliance with Article 5, under which both states mutually guarantee to respect the sovereignty of each other and agree not to interfere with domestic affairs by supporting organizations fighting against the respective governments.

Seek 30,000,000 Gold Rubles.

The three sections of the treaty on which Poland's ultimatum is based provide for restoration of railway rolling stock, the creation of a joint Russian-Ukranian-Polish commission for the evacuation of Poles from the Ukraine, and pledges the soviet government to restore to Poland 30,000,000 gold rubles of the Russian imperial gold fund.

BOY SCOUTS START OWN FUND TO HELP STARVING RUSSIANS

Members of the Boy Scouts of America, Troops 442 and 443, have answered Charles Dailey's urgent appeal from the Russian Boy Scouts for aid with a check for $10. Other troops are expected to respond to this appeal and a separate fund will be maintained for their contributions. All checks intended for the Russian Boy Scouts' fund should be so addressed.

THE TRIBUNE famine relief fund received ten contributions yesterday, totaling $62.50, making the grand total $3,071.69.

OPPAU BLAST MAY BARE NEW WEAPON OF WAR

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By the Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—Prof. Fritz Haber, the inventor of the nitrogen from the air processes which were used in the Badische Anilinfabrik company at Oppau, where the explosion which caused the greatest industrial catastrophe in Germany's history occurred, is also the man who produced Germany's poison gas which was used against the Canadians at Ypres and which now has become one of the world's greatest weapons of warfare.

In an exclusive interview Prof. Haber makes the remarkable statement that in the extraction of nitrogen from the air no explosion is possible and that the by-products produced have never been known to explode since the first successful experiments at Niagara falls in 1902. The professor believes, therefore, that an investigation may reveal new and terrible explosive forces.

In that part of the interview which for the first time reveals the beginning of Germany's poison gas warfare Prof. Haber confirms the view held by the American army in France that Germany could have won the war had it exploited gas on a large scale instead of the experimental attack at Ypres in April, 1915, which brought results miles ahead of the expectations.

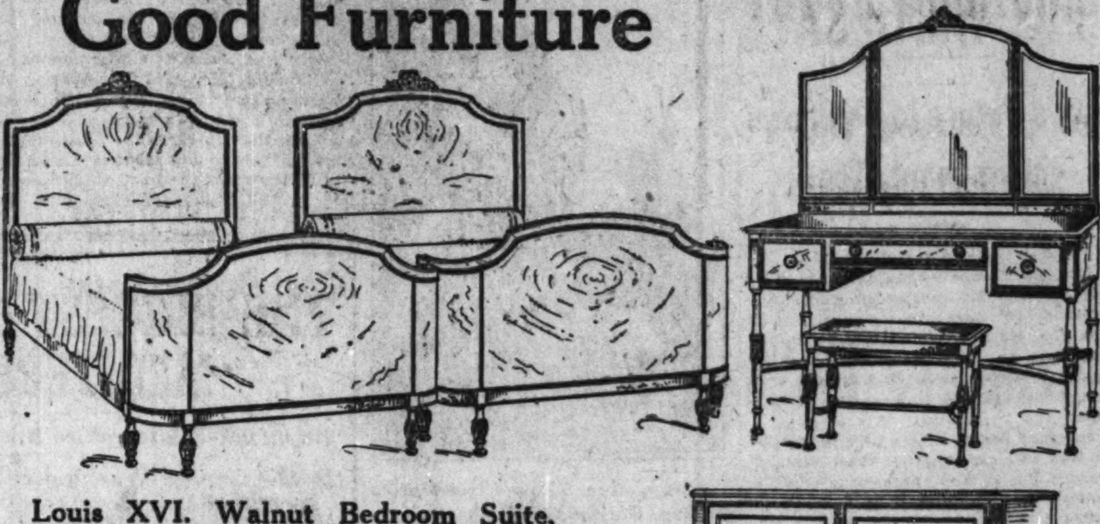
Scholle's Semi-Annual Sale OF Good Furniture

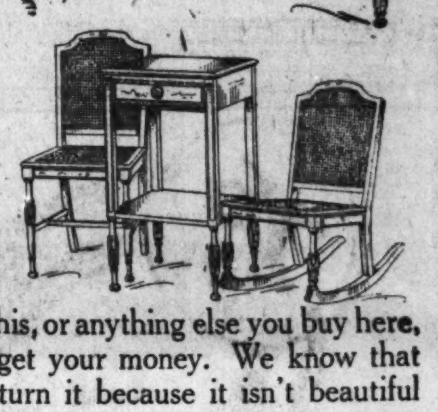


Louis XVI. Walnut Bedroom Suite, constructed entirely of solid walnut with overlay panels of beautifully figured Burl walnut veneers:

Twin Beds
53 inch Dresser
Chifforobe
Dressing Table
Stand
Chair
Rocker
Bench
9 pieces—Sale price, $725.00.
8 pieces, including full size bed, $635.00.

HERE'S something for you to come and look at, even if you have no idea of buying it. Not to tempt you to buy; but just to enjoy the sight of some very beautiful furniture.

It's a special bedroom suite in the beautiful Louis XVI. style; made throughout of solid walnut with overlaid veneer panels of burl walnut, richly figured. We think it's as handsome a suite as we've ever had in our store. We shall take pleasure in showing it to you, even if you come "just to look" at it.



Last year we couldn't have sold it for less than $2000, but the maker needed money and we had it; we helped him in buying it, and we are sure we shall help some of our customers by selling it at the price we name—$725 for the suite of nine pieces.

It may not be necessary to say that if you find this, or anything else you buy here, not wholly satisfactory, you may return it and get your money. We know that anyone who gets one of these suites will not return it because it isn't beautiful enough, nor because it isn't Scholle quality.

FIRE FESTIVAL PLAY WILL TELL CHICAGO'S STORY

City's Future to Be Shown in Pageant, Too.

"Undaunted—We Build."

That is the official slogan selected by the Chicago Association of Commerce for the semi-centennial celebration of the Chicago fire, which will be staged Oct. 2 to 15. The watchword was selected because in three words it tells the true history and spirit of this city.

A great festival play portraying the history of Chicago from the coming of the French missionairies and explorers, Marquette and Joliet, in 1673, up to the present time, and closing with a prophetic vision of the city's future fifty years hence, will be given in Grant park.

What Pageant Will Show.

Fort Dearborn in 1803, with the United States flag floating over the western outpost of th young nation, and the massacre of 1812 will be reproduced. Other scenes will show the last Indian treaty in 1833, which removed the red man as a nation from Illinois, a Pottawatomie war dance in South Water street in 1835, the dancers under the influence of frontier whisky, the troops leaving in 1861 for the Civil war, the news of the victory at Fort Donelson in 1862, the great fire, the World's Fair, a victory march in 1918 following the armistice, and finally, the vision of the Chicago of the future.

Wallace Rice, an old Chicago newspaper man and author, has written the scenario, book, and lyrics for the play, and the music is the work of Edward Moore, musical critic of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Donald Robertson, an actor, coach, and dramatic authority, is in charge of the presentation of the play. Herbert E. Hyde will direct the chorus and orchestra.

A cast of 2,500 actors, a chorus of 1,000 voices, and an orchestra of 100 pieces will enact the production.

Chicago "Homecoming."

The anniversary of the fire is Oct. 9, now celebrated all over the United States as Fire Prevention day, but because of the semi-centennial this year's program in Chicago will extend over two weeks.

Neighborhood clubs, business men's organizations, churches and schools are preparing special programs in which the history of the city will be told.

The Association of Commerce is also endeavoring to make the semi-centennial period a "homecoming time," when the many former Chicagoans now located elsewhere may be induced to come back for a visit.

"GLORIOUS"

Miss Laura Kramer and prize bulldog, Glorious McNibbs Jr.

"Glorious McNibbs Jr.," is the unusual moniker for the ferocious looking pet of Miss Laura Kramer of 5337 University avenue, daughter of A. F. Kramer. "Glorious" was imported by Miss Kramer from London specially for the Chicago Bulldog club show to be held Oct. 1 at Marigold gardens.

NO ACCIDENT-NO FIRE WEEK

Oct. 8 to 14 will be "no accident—no fire week." The Chicago safety council will direct an educational campaign designed to stop the accidental deaths in the city and to cut down the fire loss.

City firemen will visit every home in Chicago during "No Accident—No Fire Week" from Oct. 8-14, under the auspices of the Chicago Safety Council of the Association of Commerce. This was arranged yesterday through Chief John C. McDonnell of the fire prevention bureau of the Chicago Fire Department.

The firemen will deliver copies of a proclamation from Fire Chief O'Connor calling upon all citizens to take every precaution against fire and to clean up their homes as a protection for their families.

Members of every automobile club in the city are taking an active part in the work and will do everything possible to establish a clean record of no accidents during safety week. In this they will work with the Chicago Surface lines, all the different taxicab companies, all railroads entering Chicago and all other transportation concerns.

SCULPTOR URGES U. OF I. STADIUM WAR MEMORIAL

Before a large assembly of University of Illinois alumni yesterday in the Chicago College club, Lorado Taft, the sculptor, who was a member of the class of 1879, urged the building by the alumni of a new stadium on the campus at Urbana as a war memorial.

Following Mr. Taft's address on "Campus Art" the old grads were taken on a motion picture trip to the seat of the university. More films, showing this year's campus activities, will be shown at the next alumni meeting, at the Chicago College club, on Oct. 15.

AMERICAN LEGION NEWS

Selection of a delegate and an alternate to the state convention at Decatur, Oct. 10 and 11, will be made at the next meeting of James G. Brophy post No. 195, American Legion, tomorrow evening at Garfieldian hall, 4041 West Madison street.

The 1st division auxiliary No. 1, A. E. F., has sent out invitations to a "bunco party" the evening of Sept. 27 at Knights of Columbus hall, 165 West Madison street.

FIND BODY IN CANAL.

The body of John Orzbut, 3143 West 37th street, whose wife died recently, leaving him out of work with seven children to support, was found in the drainage canal yesterday near South Kedzie avenue.

THE BIGGEST AND FINEST MEDITERRANEAN CRUISE

Raymond-Whitcomb to Break American Tour Precedents

S. S. "George Washington" of Presidential and Belgian Royalty Fame Chartered by America's Leading Travel Company. Sailing from New York February 14, 1922

Raymond-Whitcomb announces the perfecting of two years' planning for the biggest and finest cruise to the Mediterranean since the first Tyrian Galleys pushed through the Pillars of Hercules into the Great Father Ocean. The largest ship that has ever carried passengers into the most famous and spectacular waters of the world will be the great, luxurious "George Washington," which America's premier tourist agency has chartered to take the members of a special cruise party from New York on February 14, 1922, to fourteen countries, including Egypt and the Holy Land and back to New York—if desired—the only cruise that runs from New York to New York in one ship and gives immediate access to Paris, London, and other European points.

THE FAMOUS "GEORGE WASHINGTON"

The "George Washington" was chosen as the Presidential Ship at the time of the conferences at the close of the great war—and again, when King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians were to be the guests of America, this great, luxurious liner was chosen. The accommodations on the ship are of singular diversity, ranging from single rooms to suites of three and four rooms. Consequently, the scale of rates is unusually varied and the prices are from $625 upward.

A MANIFOLDLY UNIQUE CRUISE

The outstanding feature of the Cruise is, obviously, that it is a "Raymond-Whitcomb Cruise to the Mediterranean" and not merely a cruise there.

Other unique features are visits to the Azores, so fascinating to our people; to Palermo, the gem city of Sicily; Corfu, the chief jewel of the "Isles of Greece"; Cattaro, in Jugo-Slavia, where is the only "Norwegian Fjord" in the Mediterranean; and Corsica, birthplace of the Great Napoleon. This is the only cruise this season which includes these romantic out-of-the-way places.

HISTORIC AND SPECTACULAR

A great travel expert has called this cruise "A visit to the most historic and spectacular lands and waters known to man." This is not an exaggeration. The mere listing of places visited will prove this. Madeira, Cadiz o' Spain, Gibraltar, Algiers, Naples, Athens, Constantinople, The Holy Land, Syria, Egypt, Ville-Franche, gateway to Nice; Monte Carlo, and the Riviera; Italy, Switzerland and Southern France and Cherbourg, the great port of Great France herself.

PEOPLE ALREADY INTERESTED

While only preliminary and incomplete information has, heretofore, been available, nevertheless many people have already applied for membership on the cruise which will leave New York on next St. Valentine's Day, Tuesday, February 14. Plans of the ship and other information are now available at the local office of the Raymond & Whitcomb Co., 112 S. Dearborn Street, Telephone State 6396, where application may be made in person, by letter, telegram or telephone.—Advertisement.

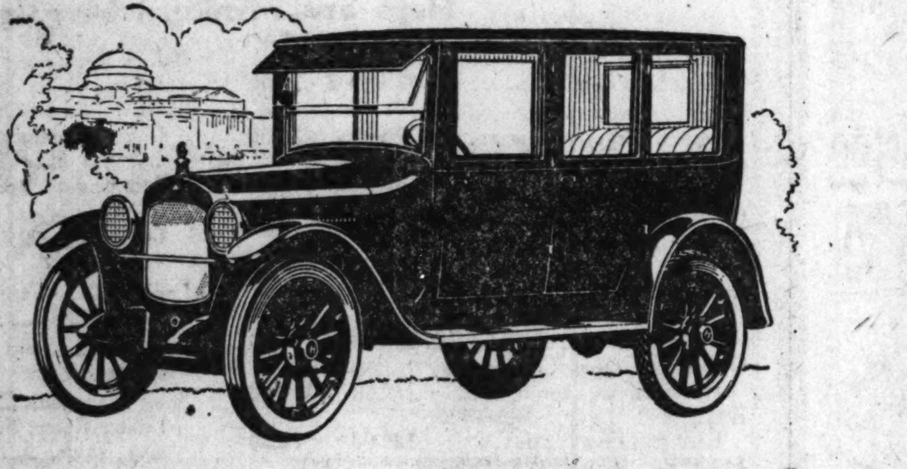
New Prices—New Improvements on the Hupmobile



With the latest price reductions and the latest improvements, the Hupmobile now stands at the very peak of good motor car values.

The new prices are as follows:

Sedan	$2250.00	—Cord Tire Equipped
Coupe	2200.00	—Cord Tire Equipped
Touring Car	1485.00	—Cord Tire Equipped

F. O. B. Factory—War Tax Extra

If Hupmobile value had previously been open to comparison there is no ground for comparison now.

These new prices and the betterments we speak of put this car more than ever in a class by itself.

No car of equal quality and equal ability is to be bought today at such a fair and reasonable figure.

All of the improvements are such as to add to the car's performance, economy or convenience. They include:

1. Cord tires, 32x4 inches, as regular equipment on all models.
2. New carburetor which, by means of an automatic economizer, increases gas mileage and improves acceleration and flexibility by automatic operation of an acceleration "well." The engine starts more easily and warms up more quickly and smoothly.
3. An increase of 25 per cent in the capacity of the storage battery. Thirteen plate battery.
4. New seat cushion springs that increase riding comfort.
5. Brake adjustment and equalization made easy and permanent.
6. Heavier frame increases rigidity of chassis and makes both body and chassis more quiet.

If you have been waiting to buy a car, the time to buy is here, now, and the car is the Hupmobile.

Come and see it. Ride in it. Even go out and try to find its equal in the matter of price, quality, performance, or any other feature, and we feel sure you will come back to the Hupmobile.

STUDENTS FROM 9 STATES ENTER MEDILL SCHOOL

BY EYE WITNESS.

From as far east as Columbia university, and as far west as the University of Idaho and Washington State college, advanced students are trooping into the newly opened full time department of the Joseph Medill school of journalism on the campus of Northwestern university. Nine states are now represented by Medill students enrolling from universities and colleges elsewhere. Thus:

ILLINOIS.
University of Illinois.
University of Chicago.
Northwestern Univ.
INDIANA.
Indiana University.
De Pauw University.
NEW YORK.
Columbia University.
KANSAS.
State Agricult. College
WASHINGTON.
State University.

WISCONSIN:
Univ. of Wisconsin.
Marquette University.
OHIO.
Miami University.
IOWA.
Iowa State College.
Cornell College.
IDAHO.
University of Idaho.

Registration Reaches 100.

Fourteen institutions for higher education are thus feeding students into the full time Medill school during the first week of its existence. The total registration is just 100.

In the part time Medill school, which was opened for working men and women so recently as last February and which has its lecture and class rooms in Chicago, this semester's registration shows an increase over last semester. The registration of men and women studying journalism exclusively is 120, and then there are 64 others who are taking some courses in journalism in connection with other work.

Therefore the grand total of students of journalism now working under the Medill-Northwestern ægis in the full time and part time schools is 284.

Educators are unable to account for so large an enrollment in a new foundation. Newspaper men of Chicago can account for it.

They know that it is partly the result of the intensely practical instruction, the businesslike methods of giving that instruction, and the intensive, concrete work done by the students in the classrooms and in great newspaper plants last winter and spring. Mr. Washburne, Mr. Blake, Mr. Dill, and Dean Heilman established standards of speed and precision which captivated students.

Journalists Rally to Aid.

Another source of good results was the whole-heartedness with which educators and journalists of international fame rallied to the new school in its experimental days. Presidents Judson, Kinley, and Scott of the three great universities of this commonwealth helped.

Northcliffe, Brisbane, President Harding, Lady Bathurst, and the most powerful editors in France helped. Everybody helped, from the editor of the Thunderer in Fleet street to Garfield McEdward, the grouch-cure doctor, on the telephone of THE TRIBUNE city desk.

Coming forward with valuable lectures and addresses on specific phases of the profession were Oscar Hewitt, who opened last year's "Lectures from the Laboratory," Frederick Pasley ("Paz"), E. B. Fullerton, S. E. Thomason, Arthur Evans, J. C. Northup, R. R. Atkinson, and Mr. McEdward—all of THE TRIBUNE—and Curley of the American, Strong of the News, Cutter of the A. P., Duncan Clarke of the Post, Patterson of the Newspaper Union, Bowman of the Evanston News-Index, and Senator Young of the Des Moines Capital.

That is why the Medill school, now spaciously housed in the old Metallurgical building on the Evanston campus, but sadly overcrowded in its quarters in the loop, is today a permanent factor in the educational life of the country.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In the announcement printed in THE TRIBUNE Friday of the marriage of Miss Nellie Kouns, the name "Sara" Kouns was printed in the headline by mistake. Nellie Kouns was meant.

In the story in yesterday's TRIBUNE of a plot to murder Miss Lillian Kennedy, 6318 Greenwood avenue, for her jewels valued at $1,000, the name of Jack Williams of the Strand hotel was mentioned. Mr. Williams said he was approached several days ago with the proposition, but turned it down. He said he had nothing to do with the affair.

ROOSEVELT HOUSE TO BE CENTER OF AMERICANISM

New York, Sept. 24—"The restoration of Roosevelt house, the birthplace of Theodore Roosevelt, is well under way," Mrs. John Henry Hammond said today. She is president of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial association, 1 East 57th street.

"The walls are up, the steel work is in place, and the building soon will be ready for occupancy," she declared.

Pending completion of the building, the Roosevelt birthday festival, Oct. 27, will be celebrated in Carnegie hall.

"While Col. Roosevelt's birthday has not yet become a national holiday," Mrs. Hammond added, "we believe that on that day there should be commemorated everywhere the great services which he rendered his people. To this end we are organizing the Roosevelt birthday festival, to be held generally throughout the United States on the 27th of October of each year.

"Surely, the 27th of October should be made a day of national rejoicing, and we invite the followers of Roosevelt everywhere to join us in making it such.

"It is his joy in the performance of duty, his willingness to share the burdens of others and of the community at large, that it is the purpose of Roosevelt house to instill in the youth of America. To assist in making the growing generation Roosevelt minded, through the schools and the homes of the country, is, we believe, the most useful tribute to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt that can be paid by the American woman. In order to supply her with a national instrument for this purpose, Roosevelt house has been founded."

Marshall Field Rents Davison Home in N. Y.

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—The residence of Henry P. Davison, at the southwest corner of Park avenue and 69th street, has been rented, furnished, for the winter season, to Marshall Field of Chicago, who is to build a $1,000,000 residence on a site on East 69th and 70th streets. Mr. Davison, according to report, will spend the winter in the south. The Davison house is one of the finest in the exclusive Park avenue colony.

ON SALE AT 9 A. M. TOMORROW AT 23 W. MONROE ST.

Maker's Cost Was $7 and $8

THESE shoes were made by a famous American manufacturer—bought by an Italian representative—consigned to Italy—held up for months by the Longshoremen's strike in New York—finally shipped across to Italy. That's the history of these shoes! And they arrived in Italy at a time when foreign exchange was so low that Italy couldn't pay the bill—so back they came in the original cases and we got the whole lot for little more than the cost of freight and storage. They must be disposed of quick, so come and take your choice of black or tan, all sizes—good-looking, long-wearing shoes at $2.89 a pair.

Calves Liver and Bacon	35c

The North American is the most popular Restaurant in Chicago. Our saying so might sound like bragging if it were not a statement which anyone can verify. One needs only to dine here just once to realize that it is a fact.

The North American Restaurant has solved the problem of how and where to dine. It is the happy medium which gives you just the food you like best and at fair prices. Heretofore you had to go to one extreme or the other. Either you paid big prices for the food you wanted—or, you had to content yourself with food less good at low prices.

At the North American you can have your pick of the finest food the market affords and the price will be anywhere from 40 to 60 per cent less than other good restaurants must charge to include "service." Is it worth the amount of the saving just to have your food carried to you? Evidently not. Thousands of the most discriminating people are dining here every day. They are serving themselves and saving the difference. They find it worth while. You can safely follow their example.

You can't find a more convenient, comfortable, delightful place to dine anywhere in this or any other city. Here you have all the privacy you can get in any good dining place. You dine at your own table. We could accommodate more people by the boarding-house style of big tables, but we refuse to lessen your comfort and privacy.

The portions are big—usually ample for two, and we purposely make them large enough so two people can have a complete meal for a very small cost.

If you haven't tried the North American you have missed the one big outstanding success in the restaurant world.

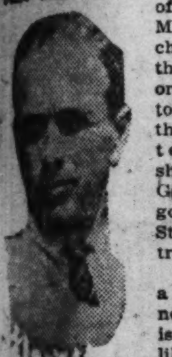
GUILFORD CAPTURES NATIONAL GOLF TITLE

GARDNER BURIED UNDER 7-6 COUNT IN FINAL MATCH

Poor Morning Round Costs Chicagoan Crown.

BY JOE DAVIS.



ROBERT GARDNER.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 24.—[Special.] Jess Guilford of the Woodland club of Boston, the Massachusetts champion, gained the greatest honors of his career today by winning the national amateur championship from Bob Gardner of Chicago, 7 to 6, at the St. Louis Country club.

It is becoming a tradition that no national final is close and this, like those of several years past, was a disappointment in that it failed to furnish a close finish. Expectations of a thrilling duel to the end of the round were dissipated when Guilford by a display of great putting, and aided by some wild play by Gardner after passing the eighth hole, secured a lead of 4 up in the morning.

Four Birdies in a Row.

The only hope then was for Gardner to regain his normal form and for Guilford to lose some of the magic of his putter. Although the Chicagoan succeeded in reducing the lead against him to four holes at the fourth hole in the afternoon, the Bostonian performed the remarkable feat of getting four birdies in a row.

Gardner's deficit swelled from 4 to 7 down at the ninth hole, and he was hopelessly out of the running, the match finishing on the twelfth green, where the crowd after being tied down by the etiquette of the game gave three rousing cheers for both the winner and runner-up.

Champion at 14 Years.

Guilford, who is 26 years of age, won the championship of New Hampshire when he was 14 and since then his greatest successes have been in winning the open and amateur championships of Massachusetts.

Guilford's road to the final was through victories over George Von Elm of Salt Lake City, 5 and 4; Dewey Weber of Chicago, 3 and 2; H. R. Johnston of St. Paul, 1 up; Chick Evans, 6 and 5, and Gardner, 7 and 6. These last two wins indicate the strength of his game. His ability has never been questioned, but as he never had reached the semi-finals of a national event before, he was not picked as a probable winner, which again demonstrates the futility of trying to dope the golfers.

Gardner won from Clark Spiers of Seattle, 1 up; Tom Armour of Scotland, 4 and 3; Rudy Knepper of Sioux City, 4 and 2, and Willie Hunter, the British champion, 5 and 4.

Guilford Stars on Greens.

Guilford's putting, when the strain of the match is considered, was probably the best of the tournament, while the usually reliable Gardner was far below normal, and he missed enough putts to make his margin of defeat twice as big. Guilford's victory, however, was well deserved.

The aqueous weather of the preceding day was succeeded by the same fine brand of sunshine which has favored the players through the week, and although the course was still soft the overhead conditions were such as lead to par scoring by the experts.

From the tee Gardner had a slight advantage, but after Jess had established a good lead in the afternoon he loosened up, and it was a fine duel between these long hitters. Gardner's irons for the green were not as accurate as usual, while in the chip shots and long range putting he fell below the wonderfully fine play of the Bostonian.

Chicagoan Below Form.

Guilford's 74 in the morning would have taken a lot of beating, but when Bob Gardner finished 6 down to such a total, it is a sure indication he was not at his best.

The first eight holes in the morning presaged a tight match with expectations of perhaps a thirty-six hole finish. Neither had been able to get a lead of more than 1 up. There is a break in almost every game, and when Guilford's second shot for the ninth hole, which was ticketed for out of bounds, kicked in and stopped on the course, it looked as if dame fortune was favoring him.

Then Gardner's second shot scooted along the ground, and, hitting the bank of the ditch, bounced along and finally rested on the side. He had to get down in the ditch, and, being four feet below the ball, swung his club like a baseball bat. It was a strike, the ball not moving an inch. His second effort was almost as futile and, as it put the ball in the water, he had to take a penalty stroke and so conceded the hole.

Gardner Takes First Hole.

At the thirteenth hole Gardner reached the green one stroke ahead of Guilford, but blew a three foot putt and was 6 down. At the fourteenth hole both had four foot putts and Gardner missed, while Guilford holed. These mistakes made Guilford's work easy, but there was still hope that Bob might rehabilitate his position. This hope went glimmering when Jess, who had lost the sixteenth, put in a grand second shot for the home hole, and, landing fifteen feet from the pin, won it with a birdie 3.

A big crowd surrounded the first tee

WEISSMULLER SETS 100 YD. TANK MARK

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—John Weismuller, spectacular 17 year old swimmer of the Illinois Athletic club, Chicago, broke the world's tank record for 100 yards today in the open air pool of the Brighton Beach baths. In a special match race against Harold [Stubby] Kruger, Hawaiian backstroke star, he swam the century in :53 1-5, a performance which shaved four-fifths of a second off the old world's tank record held jointly by Duke P. Kahanamoku, Honolulu swimmer, and Perry McGillivray of the I. A. C. In accomplishing his record swim, Weismuller came within one-fifth of a second of the world's mark for open waters, which is :53.

Weismuller probably would have equaled the 100 yard open water mark but for a slight departure from his avowed task during the progress of the race. On the third lap he slowed momentarily and looked over his shoulder to determine Kruger's position. The delay was slight, but was enough to deprive the Chicago youngster of the other mark.

Cyclists to Race Today in National Trial Events

Elimination trials to select the best riders from the middle west for the national bicycle championships in Washington, D. C., next month, will be held at Humboldt park this morning. There will be a half mile and one mile sprint races and a three mile and five mile against time. The first race will be called at 9 o'clock.

CITY SERIES TO OPEN OCT. 5 AT WHITE SOX PARK

Regular Season Prices to Prevail for Games.

CITY SERIES DATES

Oct. 6-7, at Cubs park.
Oct. 8-9, at Comiskey park.
Oct. 10-11, at Cubs park.
Oct. 12, at Comiskey park.
All games begin at 2:30 p. m.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Comiskey park will be the scene of the opening of the Chicago city series coincident with the start of the world's championship combat a week from next Wednesday, Oct. 5.

WM. VEECK.

That fact was determined yesterday at the offices of Commissioner Landis, when the method of conducting the first local series since 1916 was determined, with President Veeck representing the Cubs and Secretary Grabiner speaking for the White Sox.

The schedule as agreed on calls for the first game at Comiskey park, then two games at the Cub park, Oct. 6 and 7, to be followed by two games on the south side lot, Oct. 8 and 9; then a pair on the north side Oct. 11 and 21, reverting to Comiskey park for the eighth game, Oct. 12. If a ninth game is necessary, the grounds will be determined by tossing a coin.

Season Prices to Prevail.

The schedule differs from that arranged for the world's series in that postponements prior to Oct. 8 and 9 will not disarrange the dates so as to prevent the first Saturday and Sunday games of the city series from being played in Comiskey park, which is the more commodious of the two local arenas.

The same prices that have prevailed all season will be used for the post-season series, and five games out of nine will decide the city championship.

Open Seat Sale Tuesday.

The sale of seats for the games to be played at Comiskey park will open at the park Tuesday at 8:30 a. m., continuing until 6 p. m., and will be conducted at the same hours thereafter. At the north side park the sale of reserved seats will open next Wednesday at 8:30 a. m. and continue until 6 p. m. daily thereafter.

General admission and bleacher seats will be on sale at the park where the game is to be played only on the day of the game.

YALE OPENS WITH 28 TO 0 VICTORY AGAINST BATES

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 24.—Yale defeated Bates college in the opening game today, 28 to 0. Neidlinger, substituting in the Yale backfield for Aldrich, furnished the spectacular play of the game in the fourth period when he ran thirty-seven yards around right end for a touchdown. The long run of the game was made by Wight, who replaced Mallory in the Blue lineup. He went through a broken field for a fifty yard gain in the last period.

Dartmouth, in First Tilt, Swamps Norwich by 34 to 4

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Dartmouth opened its season with a 34 to 3 victory over Norwich. The Green attack showed up to advantage at all times and found little difficulty in piercing the Vermonters' defense for long and repeated gains. Capt. Jim Robertson of Dartmouth was the star, scoring three touchdowns and as many goals from touchdown.

The Question.

Do you approve of the Chicago and New York High school champions meeting in a post-season football game?

Where Asked.

Clark and Lake streets.

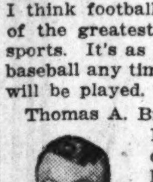
The Answers.

Henry Weil, 404 Bowen avenue, real estate—Of course they should play the New York team, and the game should be played in Chicago and not in the east. A game between high school students is worth watching because the boys are in it to win and not for money.

Harry Neal Brown, 200 East 31st street, merchant—I'm for it, and if they play the game in Chicago I'll be there. Chicago high schools should not only play New York, but they should play the champions of other cities. And I'll root hard for Chicago.

John Gibson, 1901 Warner avenue, salesman—I was captain of a football team last year and I certainly am in favor of this high school game. Football in the high schools is a great sport. I believe our high schools should compete in all sports with other cities' teams.

Nick Hamel, 720 North Drake avenue, clerk — College teams in the various cities compete with each other, so why should high school teams not do the same? I think football is one of the greatest of our sports. It's as good as baseball any time. I hope these games will be played.



Thomas A. Brockmeyer, 1537 North Irving avenue — Chicago has some great high school football boys. I think they can beat the New York teams or the teams of any other city. Football is a good game for high school contests. It will develop the best sportsmanship there is in the boys.

SPEAKERS BUMP YANKEES, 9 TO 0; 38,000 AT GAME

New York, Sept. 24.—Cleveland's Indians tied up the so-called "crucial series" with the New York Yankees today, taking the second game, 9 to 0. As a result the Yankee lead in the American league race again has been cut to less than two points.

GEORGE UHLE.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Five New York players reached base on Uhle in the first two innings, but the Yankees could not hit in the pinches. Uhle pitched brilliant ball after these innings and New York was helpless before his sharp breaking curves. He yielded only four hits and New York was shut out for the third time this season.

Scores After Three Walks.

Uhle had a freak batting average, as he was not charged with a time at bat, drawing three bases on balls and hitting a sacrifice in four times up. He scored after each of his bases on balls.

Harper pitched two good innings for New York and then went to pieces, walking six men in the third and fourth innings, forcing in a run in the fourth. Shawkey pitched better, but Cleveland scored three more runs in the sixth.

Huge Crowd at Game.

A crowd of 38,000 saw the game. Score:

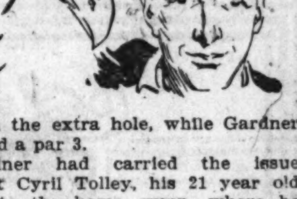
IN the WAKE of the NEWS

BOB GARDNER'S GOLF.

THERE was a peculiar appropriateness in Robert A. (Bob) Gardner being the medium to turn back the hopes of Willie Hunter, British champion, in the National Amateur golf tourney at St. Louis.

A year ago last June, Gardner was one of the American contingent which went abroad in quest of the British crown, and the only one to make a notable showing. Bob survived to the final round and was a topheavy favorite for the title, only to lose on the thirty-seventh green, when his opponent sank a sixteen foot putt for a 2 on the extra hole, while Gardner notched a par 3.



Gardner had carried the issue against Cyril Tolley, his 21 year old rival, to the home green, where he squared the match by a wonderful rally, after being 3 down with four holes to play.

Of the six Americans who went abroad at that time, Gardner was the most popular, despite the fact he seemed likely to earn honors only once before attained by an American invader. His likable personality melted even the stolid British.

Gardner has an ideal golfing temperament. We always have thought him one of the greatest American amateurs. When he entered business after leaving Yale, where he was the Elis' champion pole vaulter, he did not give the time to his favorite sport that many of our most consistent players do. Yet Gardner always is consistent.

When Bob won the national in 1915 (he also won in 1909), he was referred to as a "week-end golfer," which, while not strictly true, contrasted with the almost daily practice of other stars.

Gardner this season was unable to spare time for the British invasion and remained out of the western event at Westmoreland to compete at St. Louis. He is engaged in the bond business with offices in the Rookery. He stands slightly over 6 feet, with a poundage around 165 pounds, and is 31 years old.

Probably Guilford, too, would have taken Willie Hunter, but we are glad the honor fell to Bob Gardner of Chicago, inasmuch as this city had to relinquish the national title which was held last year by Chick Evans.

Meet the cheapest bird you ever saw:
He won't stand a raise for the chance to draw
But waits until the hand is played,
Then, "Gosh, I wish that I'd a stayed.
When Arthur raised, I had to drop,
And here's my tenspot right on top.
Now that's what I call pretty tough
For I'd have drawn but for Art's bluff.
Then Roy, he had to raise it back;
You guys must think I'm made of jack.
If you're bound to boost, why can't you wait
And gimme a chance to make my straight?
I'm going home right now, I'm through"—
And thus we attain what we had in view.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Following the ball and taking advantage of the consequent break, Beloit defeated Northwestern yesterday on the Purple gridiron, 7 to 0, in the first game of the season for both elevens.

CHUCK PALMER.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

As is generally the case with supposedly weaker teams, the visitors could not be denied after they had made their score early in the opening quarter. The Badger players bent to their task and fought back the purple clad warriors with a strong determination. They took the ball away from Northwestern in the shadows of the goal posts once and at other times they recovered fumbles when the Purple was within scoring distance.

Beloit Follows the Ball.

It has always been a principle of football that a weaker team which follows the ball and plays for the breaks will win from a stronger aggregation which fails to do these things. This was proven conclusively in yesterday's battle. When Beloit did get possession of the oval, it seldom tried to advance except by punting.

Coach Tom Mills apparently figured that a kicking game was the best to play under the adverse weather conditions. The drizzling rain made accurate handling the oval impossible and fumbles were frequent. In this department Northwestern excelled.

Beloit's score was the result of a fumbled pass by Putnam, right tackle, who had dropped back for a punt. The toss slid through the kicker's hands and rolled back of the Purple goal line. Putnam gathered in the oval and barely got over the goal line, when he was tackled. The impact caused him to lose control of the ball, and Dahlgren, sterling right tackle of Beloit, dropped on it on the Purple one yard line. On the next play Clayton Addie drove off the Purple left tackle for the only touchdown.

Purple Again Loses Ball.

After Beloit had scored, Northwestern fought back in a manner which speaks well for the team in its preparation for the Chicago game next Saturday. In the third quarter the Purple had the ball on Beloit's eight yard line and it looked as if a touchdown would be made. Here Grausnick fumbled and Beloit recovered.

In the fourth period, Chuck Palmer, who played a stellar game for Northwestern, went over for a touchdown, but the Purple was penalized five yards for offside play. Despite this discouraging ruling, Northwestern still had two more chances and at the end of the second attempt the ball rested six inches from the counting line. Beloit punted immediately and Northwestern started an aerial attack.

Ineligible Man Catches Ball.

With Palmer hurling the ball and Quarterback Knight on the receiving end, a few passes were completed. Just when the attack was going well a Purple guard leaped up in the air and pulled down one of the tosses. As he was ineligible to receive a forward pass, the ball went to Beloit at the point of the previous down. Still Northwestern tried. Reserves were injected, but the best efforts of the Purple had been spent.

NO. 25 TO FABER AS SOX WIN, 18-1; LOSE FIRST, 7 TO 4

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 24.—[Special.] — Two notable achievements marked the doings of the White Sox today. They finally halted their losing streak of eleven straight, and Urban Faber compiled his twenty-fifth victory of the season. The Sox lost the first game to the Athletics, 7 to 4, but they expended their pent up energies of the last fortnight in the second affair when they won, 18 to 1. Kerr was the losing pitcher.

The twilight session was very fruitful. A young person named Freeman started to pitch for the A's, and after he retired two, the Sox got busy. Three hits, including a triple by Ed Collins, a pair of passes, a hit batsman—all contributed to four runs.

Score Six More Runs.

The real blowout happened in the second inning with Wolfe working. A single by Hooper followed four consecutive passes in which Mr. Wolfe put three balls over the plate in twenty-one attempts. Keefe followed Wolfe and Sheely socked him for a double. These two hits fetched six runs.

What followed was of little moment, save that it fattened the averages of the White Sox. Amos Strunk plunked out a home run in the seventh which pleased the Philadelphia fans.

Faber would have achieved a shutout, but Barrett doubled in the ninth and took third on an out. Faber let loose a wild pitch that Lees knocked down. He was slow in recovering the ball, so Barrett dashed home.

Dykes Swats Home Run.

Rommell was too much for the Sox in the first game, although they made enough runs to win an ordinary contest. Dick Kerr toiled four rounds and did not do well. In the third three hits, including Dykes' homer, set him back four runs.

The Athletics pounded the little fellow hard in the fourth when they made five hits. Johnson and Calloway had doubles. Then Kerr went away and Fenner finished. He was strong. Scores:

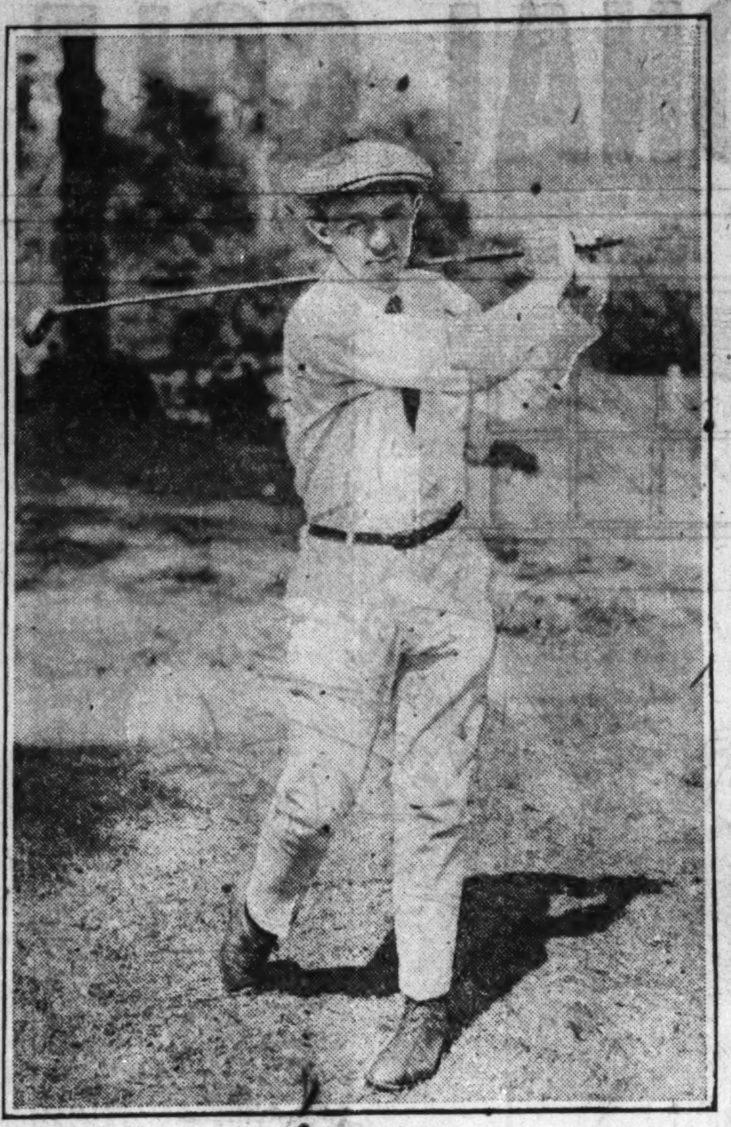
Massachusetts State Title Holder, Who Attained Country's Highest Amateur Honors on Links by Defeating Robert A. Gardner in Final, 7 and 6, at St. Louis Country Club.



JESSE GUILFORD.

Guilford Defeats Gardner for National Title, 7 and 6

when the players got away on the final leg of the race, the majority hoping that the popular Gardner would at least get back a few holes from the Boston player and so make a close race. This hope was partly realized when Gardner won the first hole, but he dropped the second. However, Gardner won the next two and was 4 down.

Then Guilford got a birdie 3 at the sixth with a five foot putt, another birdie at the seventh with a twenty-five foot putt, and still another at the eighth, and one more at the ninth. He had made four holes in eleven shots.

This put him 8 up and the end came two holes later. He had gone out in 34, taking one putt on the last four greens. Guilford had fifty-three putts on the thirty greens played and on ten greens had only one putt. In the morning he had thirty-two putts.

Afternoon Play.

Gardner after hooking to the rough at the first hole in the afternoon made a fine recovery to the edge of the green, while Guilford, who had been down the middle, put his second to the left of the green and pitched over on his third fifteen feet. Gardner holed a six foot putt for a win of 4 to 5.

Gardner sliced his tee shot badly to the third tee, while Guilford getting home, won, 3 to 4, Bob missing a ten footer for his 4-3. Guilford pitched his next tee shot into a trap at the foot of the green and got out on his second, but missing a long putt he conceded Gardner a 2, the Chicago player being six feet short on his tee shot.

Gardner reached the fourth green on his second, Guilford being trapped, the Boston player missed a twelve footer for his four and Bob with a short putt nailed a par 4, reducing his deficit to four. Bob had a chance to cut this down at the next hole, 492 yards. Gardner was a little short of the green on his second, while Guilford was off to the left under some trees. Jesse's pitch stuck on the edge of the green, while Gardner's approach was six feet over. He missed the putt and Guilford, whose runup was five feet by, holed for a half in 5.

Gardner drove out of bounds at the sixth, but his second was at the base of the hill, equal with Guilford, 285 yards. Jess chipped up to five feet and got a birdie 3. Both were on the seventh green from the tee, but Jesse stole a twenty-five footer for a birdie 2, and was six up.

Victor Makes Perfect Play.

The seventh hole, 347 yards, which is a dog leg, was played perfectly by Guilford, a drive and an iron leaving him an eight foot putt, which he made for a birdie 3, Gardner having reached the creek on his drib and incurring a penalty. Guilford was now 7 up, but he took another hole at the ninth with a 4, when his six foot putt curled around the edge of the cup and finally dropped in. Gardner was short of the green in his second and his pitch stopped just on the edge of the green.

CARDS SMOTHER GIANT PITCHERS IN 8 TO 4 SCRAP

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 24.—The New York Giants, leaders in the National League pennant race, were defeated, 8 to 4, in the first game of the series with St. Louis today. The Cardinals won by chasing Toney in the fourth and then continuing their bombardment against Barnes. Doak hurled for the Cardinals and pitched good ball after the third inning. Score:

SEMIPRO BASEBALL

THE double header between Joliet and the Pyotts at Pyott park will feature the schedule today in the Midwest league, the first game starting at 1:30. Manager Niesen of the Pyotts announces Ed Miller and Tom McGuire probably will do the flinging for Joliet, while Gob Buckeye and Henning will work for the Pyotts. The Marquette Manors will be called upon to face the redoubtable Hippo Vaughn at 63d and Western when the Manors hook up with the Fairbanks-Morse team. The Logan Squares entertain the Simmons company team of Kenosha in the third game.

Other games today:

Cuban Stars at American Giants park [two games].
Romeos at White Giants park.
Pioneers and Mason Parks at New Trier.
Weiskopf's All Stars at Feron's Oak Park.
Armours at Aurora.

DAVIS PITCHES DOUBLE HEADER; LOSES, THEN WINS

Boston, Mass., Sept. 24.—The Red Sox split even in a double header with the Browns today, winning the first, 2 to 1, and losing the second, 11 to 0. Davis pitched both games for St. Louis and, after dropping a tight duel to Pennock, tossed a fine six hit shutout. Scores:

All Else Means Little
Unless The Wear Is There

You can select a becoming style, a pleasing pattern and a price that appeals to you, but the most important thing in buying clothes is the wear.

You can't see it in buying yet you can depend upon the lasting quality which insures wear, when your clothes are tailored by Nicoll.

We have never had woolens possessing more durable quality than those we are now showing—the kind that will give you satisfactory wear and comfort in the days to come.

Restful Driving
Is Part of Restful Riding

RESTFUL riding in the 1922 Auburn Coupe or Sedan is based on fundamentals. A flexible, vibrationless motor; a chassis of perfect balance; scientific spring suspension, and a sturdy frame to take the road shocks with a comforting sense of security.

Restful driving goes hand in hand with Restful riding in the 1922 Auburn. Brake and clutch pedals operate with slight pressure. The gearshift responds to the touch of a finger. The instrument board is arranged with particular regard for the driver's convenience. You will like the smooth, positive action of the large brakes. And, in cramped quarters, you will appreciate this car's short turning radius.

Restful riding—restful driving. Certainly these qualities are worth investigation! Come in—let us demonstrate this car's 42 impressive betterments.

KILBANE STILL ON TOP AND LIKELY TO STAY THERE

BY RAY PEARSON.

We take off our hats to John Kilbane, featherweight champion of the world.

JOHNNY KILBANE. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Cleveland John, who it was thought might have been carrying around a hunch that he was slipping, and likely to have his crown knocked off his head, showed everybody—and showed them a-plenty—when he knocked out Danny Frush at Cleveland the other day, that he is head and shoulders above the younger fellows who aspire to his title. Frush was conceded to be as good as any of the fellows who are battling in the featherweight division, and by popping Danny into dreamland in seven rounds after a slugging contest Kilbane demonstrated that he still belongs on the championship throne.

Holds Out for Big Coin.

No one who knows anything about pugilists ever would say that Johnny Kilbane lacked class. Most of us fellows who do our punching on the typewriter, however, did find it difficult to refrain from taking a shot at Johnny because the champion "stuck out" for big coin and refused to meet likely youngsters—Frush was one of them—thereby gaining the disfavor of those identified with boxing and the fans who follow the sport.

But Kilbane showed by brushing Frush out of the way that it would not be at all hard for him to regain the popularity he held until a couple of years back, when he instituted the policy of hooking the big money or remaining idle. If he ever had any suspicion that he had gone back his victory over Frush should convince Kilbane that his long layoff hasn't dulled his speed or knocked the kick out of his famous right hand punch.

Can Beat Them All.

It is our opinion that Kilbane can beat any featherweight in the world today, and he needs to do just one thing, and that is, meet all opponents just as rapidly as the matchmakers line 'em up for him, to hop back into the popular esteem in which he formerly was held.

The Cleveland boxing commission has ruled Kilbane out of the ring at Cleveland because of his dictatorial attitude regarding the selection of judges to assist the referee in the Frush contest. When the names of two newspaper writers were drawn from a hat (lottery style) to act as judges, Kilbane quickly lodged a protest, basing his opposition to the men named because neither was a resident of Cleveland.

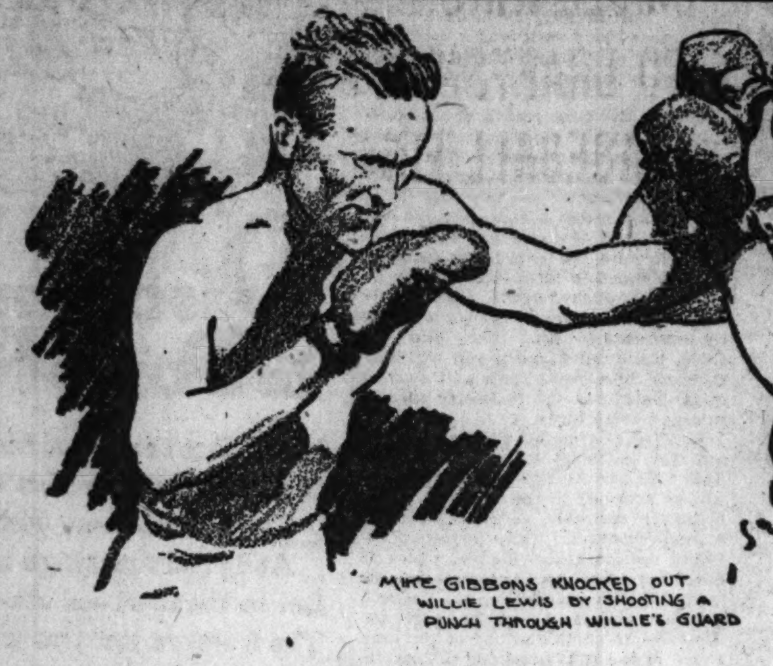
The commission claims that Kilbane agreed to this method of selecting the judges, and bases the suspension on his refusal to go through with his agreement.

Should Live Up to Promise.

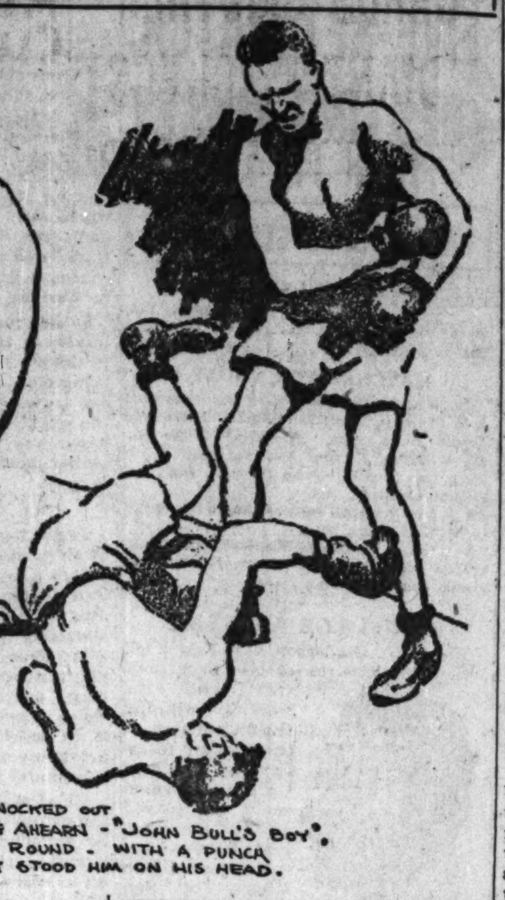
Perhaps there is some "inside stuff" with which we are unfamiliar which might cast a different aspect on this suspension business, but from this distance we are inclined to the opinion errors may have been committed on both sides. If the champion agreed to accept the two men whose names had been drawn from the hat, he should have done so.

However, the commission, after that unsatisfactory Wilson-Downey bout, in which an outside referee was accused of pulling a raw deal, was not expected to permit the selection of officials by haphazard methods. The lottery system is something new, for the importance of the assignment cannot be overlooked. The men chosen, I know, would have made very efficient judges, but there is doubt as to the efficiency of the system.

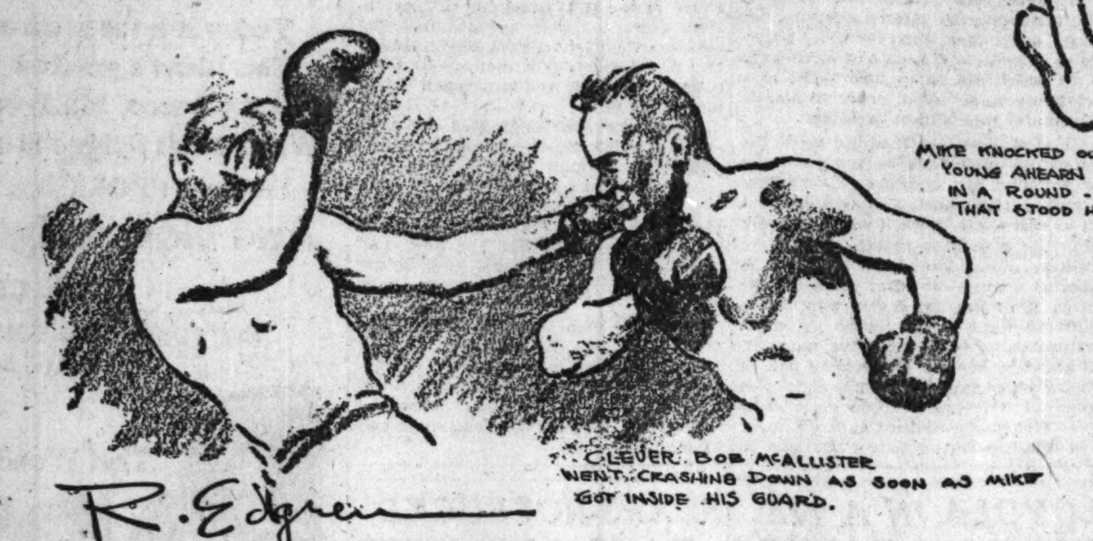
THE RING RETURN OF THE ST. PAUL PHANTOM



MIKE GIBBONS KNOCKED OUT WILLIE LEWIS BY SHOOTING A PUNCH THROUGH WILLIE'S GUARD



MIKE KNOCKED OUT YOUNG AHEARN - "JOHN BULL'S BOY", IN A ROUND - WITH A PUNCH THAT STOOD HIM ON HIS HEAD.



CLEVER BOB McALLISTER WENT CRASHING DOWN AS SOON AS MIKE GOT INSIDE HIS GUARD.

R. Edgren

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

MIKE GIBBON'S "come-back" has been developing gradually until it has placed Mike right among the top notchers in the sporting columns. Mike has conducted his campaign like a general and has delivered the goods in much better style than any one thought he would. It isn't often that an old timer, out of hard competition for two or three years, comes back and shows all of his former speed and skill.

When you consider that Mike Gibbons showed his best fighting form from six to eight years ago—in 1913-'15—it's rather remarkable that he is going so well again. Nothing explains it except the fact that Mike's fighting always was almost entirely a matter of skill, and his punch only an incident. As for ruggedness, Mike never had it. He always was extremely careful to avoid being hit. Sometimes his caution, when against a hard hitting and aggressive fighter, was so extreme that he was roasted for being "yellow.". Not that Mike was yellow. It was his phantom style of fighting.

Not a "Fighting Fool."

Mike had brains. He fought to win, and he never was the kind of a fighter taht is called a "fighting fool." It wasn't part of Mike's plan to be careless. But when he decided that he could afford to stand close to his man and give and take punches, no one would stand closer or shoot counters through a smaller opening. Mike never was a great K. O. fighter, yet he had a fairly good list of knockouts, and seemed able to flatten his opponents whenever he thought it necessary.

Mike was born in St. Paul, Minn., in 1888. He began fighting in 1908. He was 20—that may be why he lasts so well. Mike didn't start with a long list of knockouts, like many famous boxers, but he won some bouts and went along without losing for a couple of years, when clever Jimmy Clabby trimmed him in ten rounds. Mike tells me he never knew there were so many boxing gloves in the world and that losing to Clabby was the best thing that ever happened to him, because it taught him the necessity of knowing something about boxing. He immediately began trying to develop skill that would compare with Clabby's and became one of the keenest students of boxing I've ever known.

Incidentally Mike developed a style of boxing all his own, that made him the cleverest middleweight in the country and a dangerous hitter. Mike always was well within the middleweight limit of 158 pounds ringside. Like Tommy Ryan, he could fight at about 152 pounds any time, and even under 150 if he wanted to. Mike was outgeneraled in matchmaking once, when Packey McFarland kidded him into making 146 pounds—a weight that burned him out and spoiled all chance of a decisive win.

I first saw Gibbons when he came to New York to look for an eastern reputation, and stopped Young Sherman in four rounds. He had just fought two no decision bouts with Jimmy Clabby at Winnipeg, and was becoming fairly well known. Young Sherman was a well built fellow with a good punch and a fair degree of cleverness. New Yorkers rather thought he'd take Gibbons' measure. Mike came out with his half sneering smile, rubbing his nose with the back of his right hand and looking amused and superior as he bobbed in close and let Sherman's swings fly around his ears. In a minute, he clipped Sherman on the chin and sent him reeling, and from that on to the finish followed Sherman deliberately, cool, unhurried, and beat him down. That first look at Mike Gibbons in action convinced me that he was one of the few master workmen of the ring, and that he would go far.

I'll say here that Mike Gibbons' head is unique among fighters. Practically every champion has been of another type, with skull protruding well over the eyes, and sloping sharply back—the skull that denotes aggressiveness and natural fighting instinct. Even the ancient Greek statues of boxers show the same type. Mike has the head of a priest, a student, a scientist, rather than that of a boxer. Perhaps that's why he always let caution hold him back a bit when tearing in, and taking chances might have made him an unrivaled champion.

Still, Gibbons could knock a good boxer out quickly when he went in determined to do it. He fought Willie Lewis in New York in 1912. Lewis had done some great fighting, but was a little fat when he met Gibbons, having a taste for the brew. Gibbons played with him, stood close and rubbed his nose as he ducked and bobbed around Willie's fists until Willie was bewildered and helpless, then picked an opening inches wide and drove a sharp left hook between Willie's crossed forearms to his chin for a knockout in two rounds.

HARVARD TEAMS BEAT BOSTON, MIDDLEBURY

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—For the first time in the history of the university, Harvard opened its 1921 football season with a double header victory this afternoon. Boston university was the first victim, 10 to 0, and Middlebury the second, 16 to 0.

GEORGE OWENS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Owen carried the ball over for the first touchdown and Buell kicked the goal in the Boston game. In the opening of the third quarter Chapin caught Boston's kickoff on the fifteen yard line and ran it back seventy yards through the entire opposing team. Buell then drop-kicked the pigskin over the bar.

In the game with Middlebury the teams were fairly evenly matched. Towards the middle of the second period Pfaffman kicked a drop for the first score. Churchill, by a pretty exhibition of footwork, then scored a touchdown and followed by kicking the goal. Churchill broke around left in the third quarter and put over the second.

LINDBLOM SLIPS GIVE DEERFIELD 14 TO 6 COMBAT

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Mainly because of superiority in pouncing upon fumbles, the Deerfield High school of the Suburban league trimmed the Lindblom team of the Chicago Public School league, 14 to 6, yesterday at Highland Park.

With a light rain falling continuously, the ball was slippery and the fumbles on each side were frequent, but the Deerfield boys clung to the ball better than the south siders, and nearly every time a Lindblom fellow let the oval slip away an opponent fell upon it. Coach Rothaker of Deerfield has his youngsters well schooled in the important fundamentals of following the ball.

Young Stewart, the colored half back, was the sensational performer of the contest, twice getting loose for long runs to the goal line. Once he circled the end and was speedy enough to run around all his opponents. Another time, after Lindblom had fumbled on its own thirty-five yard line and lost the ball, Stewart was sent through the line on the first play and ducked and dodged and twisted his way over the goal. Lineup:

OAK PARK SPLITS WITH HARRISON

Oak Park heavyweights started another football year auspiciously by defeating Harrison, 12 to 0, on the suburban field, but the home lightweights took the count before the tech school, 9 to 0. The heavy game was a tie for one half, Harrison managing to invade Oak Park's ten yard zone, but being repulsed. Oak Park's line stood up better than the lighter wall of the visitors in the heavy field. Heavy lineup:

	OAK PARK [12].	HARRISON [0].

Touchdowns—Lewis, Robinson.

Englewood Uses Crusher on Gridley Eleven, 56 to 0

Gridley, Ill., Sept. 24.—Playing a brilliant brand of football, the eleven representing Englewood High of Chicago easily trounced the much touted Gridley High school eleven here today, 56 to 0. The work of Capt. Art Folz of Englewood featured the play of the winners. Folz scored three touchdowns.

ROCKNE'S SQUAD USES ROLLER ON KAZOO MEN, 56-0

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Using three full teams in nothing but straight football, Notre Dame swamped Kalamazoo today in the opening game of the season, 56 to 0. Thirty-five points were run up in the first quarter. Rockne took his stars out of the game after the first period.

GUS DESCH. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Chet Wynne, Notre Dame track captain and football full back, took the opening kickoff and raced through the entire Kalamazoo team for a touchdown. Open field running by Mohardt, Desch, and Coughlin and line plunging by Lieb were responsible for most of Notre Dame's scores. Shaw kicked seven goals.

Capt. Eddie Anderson made a finger tip grab of a 35 yard pass from Mohardt on the only open stuff attempted by the Notre Dame first squad. Notre Dame used sweeping end runs behind splendid interference almost completely and Mohardt, Desch, and Coughlin competed in sensational dashes around the ends and through the line. Lineup:

	Kalamazoo [0].	Notre Dame [56].
L. E.	Coleman	E. Anderson [C.], Seyfrit, Cam'on	R. E.
L. T.	Doyle	Garvey, Cotton	R. T.

The Keenest Critics

Those you meet at theatres, dinners and other social affairs are quick to see faults and flaws in Formal Dress —And yet they recognize and appreciate the fine details that go to make perfection.

Jerrems' dress clothes are distinguished by their quiet simplicity, their evident individuality and correct style. They give that ease and lack of consciousness, and the freedom that most men want but seldom get "when all dressed up".

From the finest Foreign and American looms we are showing materials of exceptional quality for Formal Clothes, designed according to the styles prevailing for the coming season.

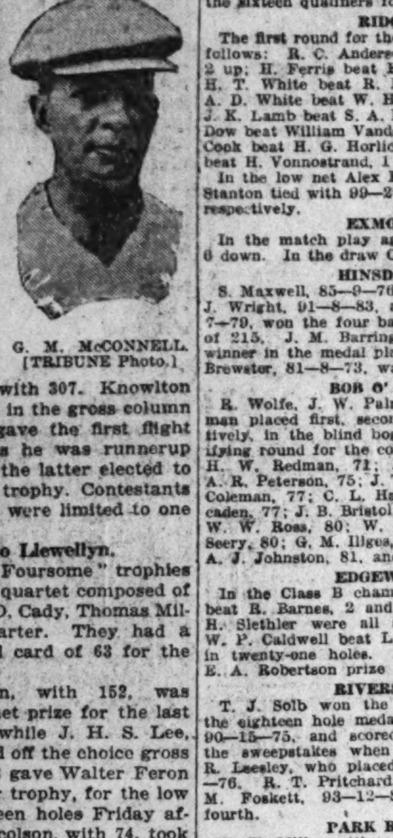
TWA DAYS' PRIZE FOR M'CONNELL WITH 325 CARD



G. M. McCONNELL.

Finishing like a good mudlark with 325 for the seventy-two holes, G. Malcolm McConnell of Edgewater yesterday at Glen View won the Laigh & Langh trophy, the chief prize in the annual Twa Days golf tournament. The last twenty-seven holes were played in a drizzling rain and some of the matches were decided at dusk.

Bertrand Hopper of Kalamazoo finished second with 339, but won the low net prize with 307. Knowlton L. Ames was third in the gross column with 341, which gave the first flight prize, inasmuch as he was runnerup to McConnell and the latter elected to take the low gross trophy. Contestants in the tournament were limited to one prize.

Low Net to Llewellyn.

The "Fearsome Foursome" trophies were taken by the quartet composed of W. H. Kidston, J. D. Cady, Thomas Miller, and F. R. Carter. They had a combined best ball card of 63 for the four rounds.

J. S. Llewellyn, with 152, was awarded the low net prize for the last twenty-six holes, while J. H. S. Lee, who had 79, carried off the choice gross card. A card of 73 gave Walter Feron the Tam O'Shanter trophy, for the low net score at eighteen holes Friday afternoon. L. M. Nicolson, with 74, took the Rhoderick Dhu trophy, for the best score made yesterday forenoon.

Takes 45 for One Hole.

All records for high scores and a world's record for one hole were broken by M. J. Agnew, who won the Whustle Binkie trophy with 75—92—167, allowing for a 45 on the eighteenth hole. The various flight winners were:

First, K. L. Ames; second, D. R. Forgan; third, J. W. Fall Jr.; fourth, J. C. Slade; fifth, J. N. Welter; sixth, W. M. Lyon; seventh, C. B. Latham vs. J. R. Platt, all even; eighth, E. H. Lee; ninth, H. A. Tukey; tenth, J. H. Burns; eleventh, G. E. Haskins; twelfth, C. H. Thompson; thirteenth, J. T. Llewellyn; fourteenth, A. Bowen; fifteenth, L. R. Wasey; sixteenth, J. D. Berkey, seventeenth, E. H. Bennett; eighteenth, M. B. Austin.

GOLF TITLE GOES TO MISS LEITCH; 17 AND 15 SCORE

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 24.—Miss Cecil Leitch, British woman's golf champion, today annexed the Canadian woman's title by an unprecedentedly easy victory for a championship match. In the final round of the tournament she defeated Miss Mollie McBride by 17 up and 15 to play.

Miss McBride won only one hole of the twenty-one played, and only two were halved, Miss Leitch winning eighteen. Miss McBride played far below the form she had hitherto displayed in the tournament.

GOSSOON MAKES BEST YACHT TIME

The Marconi rigged R boat, Gossoon, owned and sailed by F. M. Railton, made best time in the annual eight mile buoy race of the Chicago Yacht club yesterday afternoon. Gossoon beat a fleet of N, P, Q, R, and S boats without much trouble, its time for the sixteen miles being 2:03:24, less than a minute better than Ogden T. McClurg's Lipton champion Yank. S. Dauchy's Sari was third.

In the Class B championship, H. Mitchell beat R. Barnes, 2 and 1, and S. Cilbe and H. Slethler were all square. In Class C, W. P. Caldwell beat L. S. Whitehead, 1 up in twenty-one holes. H. L. Cary won the E. A. Robertson prize for low net with 65.

RIVERSIDE.

T. J. Solb won the W. Hellyer prize in the eighteen hole medal play handicap with 90—15—75, and scored his second win in the sweepstakes when his card nosed out R. Leesley, who placed second with 89—13—76. R. T. Pritchard, 89—12—77, and R. M. Foskett, 93—12—81, were third and fourth.

PARK RIDGE.

W. H. Miller with a low net of 69 won the eighteen holes of medal play from a field of seventy-five starters.

MIDLOTHIAN.

Yesterday's downpour blotted out the scheduled golf events at many clubs, Midlothian postponing its feature card, which included the annual tourney of Royal and Ancient golfers, the second half of the president's cup event, and play for the George Turnbull prizes, until today.

FLOSMOOR.

Winners in the club handicap event were: Class A—C. E. Faust, 91—8—82. Class B—G. W. Hall, 84—12—72. Class C—W. MacArthur, 99—18—81. Class C—R. Polson, 109—24—85.

THREE semi-final matches were played in the club championship event at Indian Hill yesterday, A. E. Gardner beating F. G. Berstach, 6 and 5, in the class A event; H. V. O'Brien beating George Leslie, 1 up, on the twentieth hole, in class B, and P. H. McInerny beating H. T. Stanton, 4 and 3, in class C. The eighteen hole match against par was won by Francis Blossom, 5 down.

ELMHURST.

Semi-finalists in the club championship will be Paul Albert vs. Jack Pentecost and E. F. Seney vs. S. E. Naess. In the third round Albert beat G. E. Challacombe, 2 and 1; Pentecost beat W. Lovegrove, 2 and 1; Seney beat F. Rockwood, 4 and 3, and Naess beat J. O. Armstrong, 2 and 1. Leaders in the third round of the President's cup, which is a medal play handicap event, were: E. F. Seney, 89—13—76; J. J. Sutton, 114—38—76; S. E. Naess, 94—17—77; J. O. Armstrong, 107—27—80; G. E. Challacombe, 105—22—83; Paul Albert, 95—10—85; F. Rockwood, 111—16—95.

WESTMORELAND.

In the final of the club championship for class B players, George Eddy defeated J. H. Stehman, 2 up. H. Mosier defeated W. H. Watson, 2 and 1, in class C.

The Fellowship cup lodged with Dr. E. H. Raedel, with 79—5—74 in the eighteen hole handicap competition. Sweepstakes winners were R. G. McKay, 100—24—76, and J. M. Boggs, 86—9—77.

A triple tie developed in the blind bogey as follows: E. Zipf, 101—15—86; W. H. Watson, 101—15—86, and Frank H. Burnaby, 90—4—86. First round matches for the Directors' cup were decided by the following margins: J. J. Jennings beat A. C. Hammond, 4 and 2. O. W. Schmidt won by default. H. J. Sloan beat D. W. Bennett, 2 up. T. C. Moulding beat J. A. Cavanaugh, 2 up.

RIDGEMOOR.

A. M. Jones went to the twenty-seventh green before being downed by Thomas Gallagher in the final for the J. H. Victor trophy. In the qualifying round for the Anderson and Arminger prize, Harry E. Radix led with 75. Others well up were R. H. Simpson, 76; J. W. Robb, 76; T. F. Gallagher Jr., 78.

SOUTH SHORE.

Finishing 4 down, F. G. Maloney won the first prize in the ball sweepstakes match play against par, one-half handicap. Other winners were F. M. Harless, 5 down; H. J. McLaughlin, 6 down; R. E. Hughes, 6 down.

EDGEWATER.

One match was concluded in the second round of the club championship, Hiram D. Fargo Jr. beating J. G. Condon, 6 and 4. Second round results for the Autumn trophy were: Hiram D. Fargo Jr. beat C. W. Jordan, 2 and 1; C. P. Meyer defeated Harvey Pickrell, 2 and 1; D. A. Matteson beat John P. Harding, 2 and 1.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

In the qualifying round for the Solace cup, Frank H. Walz and J. C. White tied with 80 low gross, while M. J. Devaney had 93—18—75 for low net.

CALUMET.

Despite the rain, the club championship contest was played per schedule. Lee Thiltges, however, was forced to go to the thirty-eighth green to defeat Joe N. McDonald. In the blind bogey event, W. A. McWhorter and Judge Frederick L. Fake tied at 83.

LOCAL GOLFERS TRAIL IN MATCH AT PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Schenley park golfers triumphed over the Jackson park golfers of Chicago, today in the first half of the intercity match between the golfers from the public links of the two cities, registering 11 points to their opponents' 4. It was the superior play of the locals which enabled them to triumph and their advantage should tide them over tomorrow when the match is resumed in Chicago. The team scoring the highest number of points in the seventy-two holes competition will receive a cup. Scores:

BOB KINSEY.

Francis T. Anderson, fast New York junior, enabled the east to even matters with the west by winning the only match of the annual intersectional team tennis which could be played during the rain yesterday. Anderson defeated Bob Kinsey of San Franisco in five gamely fought sets on the South Side Tennis club grass courts, 6—3, 9—7, 8—10, 1—6, 8—6.

The other two matches scheduled for yesterday afternoon were postponed until 10:30 o'clock this morning, and the three matches originally scheduled for this afternoon, will be held as carded. Tickets for yesterday's play, and rain checks from the general admission, are good this morning without extra charge, when World's Champion Tilden and Arnold Jones of Providence, his partner last June in the invasion of France and England, will play against J. O. Anderson and J. B. Hakwes of the Australasian Davis cup team

Doctor Stops Johnston.

Billy Johnston of San Francisco, captain of the western team, was ordered not to play by physicians yesterday, and left last night for the coast to rest and receive treatment for his illness.

The Anderson-Kinsey match used up more than five dozen balls, and Anderson used three rackets and Kinsey four. Five dozen balls in one match is a record for national tennis events. Both Anderson and Kinsey proved gluttons for punishment. Anderson's winning margin came on his ability to play the net game despite the handicap of treacherous turf. He smashed well and coupled speed with accuracy whenever the footing gave a chance for snappy work. His placements deeply along the alleys were good point winners.

Officials Wear Raincoats.

All the officials of the match wore raincoats, and most of the gallery, but the latter stuck till the last point of the sixty-fourth game.

WOODS AND WATERS—By Bob Becker.

JACKSNIPE.

THE jacksnipe is the acrobat among our fall game birds. A blue-wing teal may take most of the honors for speed, but when it comes to trick and fancy flying, Mr. Jack wins the prize. The peculiar, jerky flight of this bird makes it a sporty proposition for the hunter. You never know which way a jack is going to jump, and, once in the air, he twists and turns, swerves and side-slips until the confused hunter hardly knows when he has the bird covered.

Jacksnipe may not be the fastest flying birds that the hunter encounters in the early fall, but they are far from being slow on the wing. A scared bird can travel at a pretty speedy gait and the quick manner in which it can get under way, plus a jerky, erratic flight, make jacksnipes anything but easy targets.

Jacks have a habit of sitting tight, often permitting a hunter to approach within a few feet. Then, zeep! and the bird jumps into the air like a shot. Just as the hunter gets his gun to his shoulder, zeep! and another one sets sail. This sort of a tandem jump is not conducive to steady shooting, as many a gunner will testify. Sometimes it looks as if a pair of birds have it all doped out as to just when they are going to jump, in order to startle the hunter as much as possible.

This habit of not flushing until the gunner is quite close makes the game of jacksnipe shooting one of surprises. A pair of these birds sprang a surprise on us one day last week when we were prowling around a marsh. We were walking along some mud flats at the edge of a pond—an ideal place for the birds. Stopping for a few minutes to examine some tracks made by small mammals we forgot, for the moment, all about jacksnipe. Suddenly a pair of birds popped into the air not eight feet from us. We were taken completely unawares and it seemed as if we spent five minutes trying to get the gun in action. Fortunately, the birds flew not four yards apart so it was a comparatively easy set-up for a double and both birds were bagged.

One of the best points about jacksnipe is that you can hunt them most any time during the day. The duck hunter who finds time hanging heavy on his hands after the morning flight is over can taken a turn through the lowlands and if there are any jacksnipe around, he can enjoy another kind of shooting until it is time to go after the ducks again. Mud flats along a river, bayou or pond are favorite grounds for jacks. They like the thick, black muck and if you will hike through these moist spots at this time of the year, you can be pretty sure of jumping some birds.

A .20 gauge double makes an ideal gun for jacksnipe shooting, as it is light and easy to handle. A gun that can be snapped to the shoulder easily is highly desirable, as snipe shooting is snap shooting. Many hunters have found the .20 gauge double, which is bored to take the two and three-fourths inch shell, an excellent gun. Using a standard shell in the right barrel for the close-up shots and one of the long shells in the left barrel for the second shot (which is usually as some distance) makes an efficient arrangement. Those two and three-fourth inch shells have a dandy pattern and can reach 'em a long ways off.

Small size shot is needed for jack shooting. No. 8 is preferred by many gunners, although some fellows who go out for jacks only use No. 10 shot. We have bagged many birds with 7½s. However, a jack is a pretty small "boid," so the smaller the shot and the denser the pattern the better chance you have of bagging your game.

Jacksnipe may be small, but old timers will tell you that a neater, trickier small game bird would be hard to find. And if you like snap shooting at a difficult target, nothing can equal the sport that the acrobatic jacksnipe can give you.

LOYOLA IN A TIE WITH MILWAUKEE

Loyola and Riverside High of Milwaukee played to a scoreless tie on the former's field yesterday. A steady rain fell during the entire contest and made play slow and caused frequent fumbles. Loyola, although outweighed by the visiting preps, kept the ball in the opposing territory for the majority of the contest. Lineup:

SEARS-ROEBUCKS TAKE "Y" MEET

Sears-Roebuck athletes won senior honors in the track and field meet of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday at Sears-Roebuck field, scoring 38 points. Other teams scored as follows: Hyde Park, 28; Wabash, 15; Wilson Avenue, 13; Central, 3; Larrabee, 1; Division Street, 1.

Bowers of Hyde Park was individual point winner with 18 and Sutton and Burbank of Sears-Roebuck followed with 14 and 13 respectively.

Sears-Roebuck also won in the intermediate division with 30 points, Wabash was second with 27, Larrabee third with 6, and Central fourth with 1. Honors in the junior section went to Wilson Avenue with 31. The others scored as follows: Wabash Avenue, 18; Larrabee, 12; Sears-Roebuck, 4.

Discovered in Porto Rico

When first the Great Discoverer's band
Set foot on Porto Rico's strand,
The natives came with gifts galore
And piled them high upon the shore.
But to the tired and sea-worn host
The fragrant leaf was welcome most.
Today it is the same as then—
This island's greatest gift to men
Is that tobacco, MILD and sweet,
Which sends fatigue in swift retreat.
Smoke a "PORTINA" any day
And blow fatigue and care away.

BRIDGEPORT BANK LOSS $125,000; CASHIER SEIZED

Bridgeport, Ill., Sept. 24.—Charged with defalcations which, it is estimated, will amount to more than $125,000, Roy E. Laughlin, cashier of the Bridgeport Bank and Trust company, was arrested late last night. He had been connected with the institution in various capacities since 1910.

The bank was visited by state bank examiners early in the week and there was a sensation here on Wednesday when they ordered the doors closed pending a thorough audit of the books and records.

This excitement was nothing in comparison to that which followed the arrest of Laughlin and the announcement that the shortage would amount to more than $125,000.

Liberty Bonds Missing.

Thousands of dollars worth of Liberty bonds were found to be missing and in addition many notes supposed to have been signed by prominent Lawrence county farmers were discovered to be forgeries.

This afternoon the little town was full of farmers who stormed into the doors of the institution in an effort to learn whether or not their names had been forged.

Laughlin admitted, according to the sheriff, that he had forged a number of notes, but asserted he did not know their aggregate.

Bail Fixed at $150,000.

Bail was fixed at $150,000 but Laughlin said he would make no effort to furnish it. The trial probably will be in October, and Laughlin stated he was satisfied to remain in jail until that time.

Laughlin has been connected with the bank about ten years. He is married, but has no children.

Laughlin has been known as a ready spender, but there has been no intimation that he gambled on the stock exchange or the board of trade, and it would be hard to run through a very large sum of money in a town the size of Bridgeport.

County Jail Is Jammed; 1,002 Prisoners in Cells

Jailer Peter Lawrence announced yesterday that prisoners in the county jail now number 1,002, 300 prisoners more than were ever before in the institution at one time. Sheriff Charles Peters and Chief Justice Kickham Scanlan will confer on plans to alleviate the situation this week.

State Senator Wright Says He Seeks Re-election

Dixon, Ill., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Senator Harry Wright of Dekalb entertained the press association of the thirty-fifth senatorial association at dinner at Lowell Park today. To his forty-nine guests from Dekalb, Lee, and Whiteside counties he announced his candidacy for reëlection.

Beautiful New Subdivision at

Beverly Hills

Get Our Special Pre-Public Opening Offer

This is an advance notice of one of the most attractive opportunities for home seekers and investors in recent years.

In the near future we will publicly announce and offer for sale lots in a new subdivision at Beverly Hills in the choicest portion of the famous Ridge property within 35 minutes' ride of downtown Chicago.

This select tract is the last of the most desirable Beverly Hills home-site locations, and the public announcement should quickly dispose of the limited number of lots available.

Lots are 180 feet deep, well timbered, and beautifully situated on high, level ground in a rigidly restricted residential district, surrounded on all sides by homes costing from $10,000 to $30,000. Water, sewer, gas, and sidewalks are in.

Home seekers or investors who reply to this advance announcement will have first choice of these lots at special prices and very attractive payment terms. We will be glad to show the property to those interested now in advance of the public offering.

Any one who knows the many attractions of the Beverly Hills district will recognize this offer as a rare opportunity to locate a home, as well as to secure a substantial increase in the investment value of this steadily growing property.

KEWANEE

All is not gloom through- out the industrial world in spite of what some pessimists would have you believe. The past two or three months have brought quite a decided increase in the business of some manufacturing plants. And this is particularly true of the Kewanee Boiler Company.

The demand for Kewanee products has increased to such an extent that we are now compelled to operate six days a week and with almost our entire normal force. So that the feeling of optimism that pervades this big plant is unmistakable.

As you doubtless know, the Kewanee Boiler Company has reduced the price of Firebox Boilers three times during the past year, in spite of the fact that when the first reductions took effect there was no decrease in the cost of raw material and we had large stocks. It was the best judgment of this Company to take this loss and not pass it on to the man who buys boilers.

It must be plain to you that a product that has been marketed for as great a period of time as the Kewanee Boiler must have a lot of merit in order to maintain these conditions when so many other manufacturing plants are either closed entirely or are working only part time. Moreover competition has been keener during the last three months than ever before. Yet, in spite of this fact, the orders have kept coming and are still coming to Kewanee.

We sincerely believe that the quality of the product is not alone responsible for this condition. We know as a matter of fact that the service we give the users of our boilers and the confidence they feel in our way of doing business, has had fully as much to do with it. Naturally we are profoundly grateful and we will leave nothing undone to keep Kewanee Boilers in the forefront of public opinion.

GRAINS WEAKEN AT CLOSE AFTER OPENING STRONG

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

A weakened technical position due to the heavy covering movement of Friday, combined with realizing sales by recent buyers and poorer buying support, turned a strong and advancing market early into a weak and declining one later. The finish was around the lowest of the day, with wheat off 1⅛@⅞c, corn ¼@½c, oats ¼@⅜c, rye 1@1¼c, and barley ½c.

In the face of the varying factors and heavy liquidation as well as creation of an oversold and overbought condition at different times, the wheat prices at the close Saturday were unchanged to ⅝c higher than a week ago, the strength being in May. Corn was unchanged to ⅞c lower, oats ⅝@1¼c, the latter on September, while rye lost 1@1⅛c. Provisions were heavy and closed with lard 32½@67½, and short ribs 20@42½c lower for the week.

Bearish News Effective.

Bearish news was most effective in all grain markets and especially in wheat. Sentiment was strongly in favor of the constructive side of the market early, and prices moved up 1@1¼c, with the local element leading the buying. At the top, $1.26¼ for September, $1.28¾ for December and $1.32¾ for May commission house offerings became more than sufficient to offset the effect of the liberal covering by previous sellers, as well as new buying, which was soon satisfied, and with commission house selling and reselling by previous buyers, prices declined to 3¼c, with the finish ¼@½c above the inside.

Northwestern selling was a factor, a number of the big commission houses having orders from that section. The trade made much of a revamped report that Italy would have 188,000,000 bu from this year's crop, or 50,000,000 bu more than last year, and that the export demand for wheat was poorest of the week. Reports of big sales of wheat and flour to China and Japan, with 250,000 brls flour sold to Shanghai, were lost sight of at the last.

Arrivals in the southwest and northwest were smaller and below last week's, while Winnipeg, with 939 cars for the day, had nearly 100 cars less than a week ago and 319 cars more than last year.

Iowa Sells Cash Corn.

Iowa holders of cash corn sold fairly while wet weather deterred Illinois holders from selling. Cash houses hedged the corn by sales of December and one of the largest cash houses bought September. Wet weather and damage to the crop by worms checked selling, but there was enough pressure to force a drop of ½ cent and make an easy close with prices in the bids. Primary receipts have dropped off and shipments increased.

Oats had support from buying against privileges at the bottom and from a number of the large commission houses, who took the bulk of the offerings, but the weakness in wheat and selling by local interests carried prices off ½c to 42c for May at the last. Buying of May and selling of December at 4⅛c was on by the leading cash house, who recently sold December heavily. Another increase in the visible is expected.

Buying of September and selling of December rye at 3c difference furnished the bulk of the trading. Cash rye was ⅝c over September.

Lard Closes Lower.

Pressure was on the nearby deliveries of lard and the close 40@42½c lower, while the deferred lost 17½@20c. Packers were the main sellers. Ribs lost 15@17½c with trade light. Cash trade in lard and meats domestically was moderate. There is a small profit in making regular product at present prices. Hog supplies are liberal and prices the lowest since January, 1916. Packing here since March 1 aggregates 3,283,000 hogs or 231,000 more than last year. Prices follow:

TRAFFIC IN FORD CARS BOOM TO FORD RAILROAD

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—Increased earnings of Henry Ford's Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad were attributed by the Association of Railway Executives, in a formal statement issued today, to a heavy advance in shipments over the road of automobiles, motor parts, and other manufactured products.

Figures as to traffic over the road in April, May, and June of this year, as compared with the same months of last year, when the road was not under Mr. Ford's management, were presented by the association to show that bituminous coal shipments decreased from 554,440 tons in 1920 to 416,840 tons in 1921. Bar and sheet iron and similar shipments advanced from 20,980 tons in 1920 to 104,897 tons in 1921, and automobiles and auto truck freight, amounting to 4,004,400 tons in 1920, increased to 208,570 tons during the corresponding three month period of this year.

TO HEAR PLEAS FOR CHANGES IN CURB ON PACKERS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—A committee representing the department of justice, the department of commerce, and the department of agriculture was formed today to hear arguments relative to the proposed modification of the court decree applying to the Big Five meat packers.

The committee will meet Monday to decide on a date for opening hearings. All interested parties, including the wholesale grocers, who are leading the fight against a modification of the decree, and the California Fruit Growers, who have made the application, will be invited to appear.

In requesting the modification of the decree the California Fruit Growers have urged that it be made possible for them to ship their products in the packers' refrigerator cars. Wholesale grocers, in opposing the modification, fear that it will be an entering wedge for a return of the packers to the grocery business.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for cash wheat at the seaboard and gulf was slow, and no sales were reported. Rumors of resales were denied by Russell's News and by New York interests. China bought 250,000 brls flour on the Pacific coast.

Charters were made for 150,000 bu wheat and 200,000 bu corn at Chicago to Buffalo. Domestic shipping sales were 10,000 bu wheat, 10,000 bu corn, and 40,000 bu oats. Deliveries on September contracts were 89,000 bu wheat, 437,000 bu corn, 78,000 bu oats, 65,000 bu rye, 50,000 lbs lard, and 50,000 lbs short ribs. Sales of 50,000 bu wheat were made to go to store.

Offerings of cash wheat on spot at Chicago were small, and premiums firm at 2@3c over September for No. 2 red and ½@1½c over for No. 2 hard. Receipts, 29 cars. St. Louis and Kansas City reported a slow demand, with prices unchanged, while Omaha was 1c higher, with milling orders from many points. Minneapolis was unchanged to 1c higher and Winnipeg ½c lower.

Demand for cash corn was fairly good, and the basis somewhat firmer on yellow and white, with sales at 1@1¼c over September, which mixed was 1c over. Sample values were unchanged early and ¼c lower at the last. Receipts, 325 cars. Outside markets were ½c lower to 1c higher, the latter at Kansas City.

Cash oats were ¼c lower, with a moderate demand at 1@1½c over September for No. 2 white, September to 1c under for No. 3 white, and 1½@2½c under for No. 4 white. Receipts, 91 cars.

·WORLD'S·GRAIN·MARKET·NEWS·

A majority of the local element evened up for the week in wheat at the last and sentiment after the close was somewhat less bullish than on Friday, although there were very few who can see material change in the situation from a statistical standpoint. Better weather conditions in the northwest are expected to result in a resumption of thrashing and larger arrivals at Minneapolis and Winnipeg, but mills continue to absorb all the choice winters offered in the west. The market as a whole is regarded as in a position where an increase in outside speculation is necessary if bulges are to be maintained.

Manchuria has been definitely removed from the list as a possible exporter of wheat this season. Private cables received by a New York house yesterday reported the wheat and rice crops very short, which would seem to be confirmed by the recent purchases of flour at the Pacific coast. Broomhall has repeatedly claimed of late that Manchuria would have 16,000,000 bu wheat for export. India, another country that normally exports, asked for offers of hard winters and Manitobas c. i. f. Indian ports.

Reports from Ottawa, Canada, said that a conference of Canadian authorities has been called for next Tuesday to consider the handling of grain through American and Canadian ports.

In commenting on the cables claiming that Japan, China, and Manchuria had short crops of wheat and rice this year, Harris, Winthrop & Co., said: "The San Francisco rice market has been advancing for two months, with the Japanese demand an important influence. Grades which sold at $3.30@3.40 per 100 lbs two months ago are now quoted at $4.75@5.00."

It is understood that Chicago mills have started to draw spring wheat from Minneapolis, as the grain is not available here.

Included in the shipments of corn from Chicago last week was 2,204,000 bu via lake to Canadian ports.

With favorable weather conditions over Sunday it is expected that thrashing of wheat will be resumed in Canada early next week. A message from Wentworth, S. D., said stack thrashing has been resumed there, but the grain was damp.

The steamer Harvester loaded 432,980 bu of corn at the Donohue & Stratton company's elevator at Milwaukee Friday for Tiffin. This is said to be a record cargo of corn.

Preparations for trading in cottonseed oil in Chicago is being completed. The provision inspection committee has the work in charge. The same quality and style of package traded in on the New York produce exchange is to be used here. Provision warehouses are to store the oil and there will be no difficulty about securing storage. Trading will be in units of 60,000 lbs, equal to one-tenth car. Four of the big packers were in conference with the provision inspection committee Friday and expressed a willingness to coöperate and make trading in cotton oil in Chicago a success, as it is the largest consuming market in the country.

The statistics are all right as a number of the local bears see it, but for the present there is not enough outside trade to carry the market very far, and a trading position is assumed by a majority of the pit element who are mostly selling on the sharp bulges and buying on the breaks. One of the most aggressive bears said after the close that he believed lower prices are inevitable, but he would not advise any one to sell wheat short. As to corn and oats they are so low there is little in selling them and nothing to encourage buying.

Joseph Simons of Simons, Day & Co., with W. P. Tuttle, spent Friday afternoon examining the corn fields of Dupage county, Ill. They found the ravages from the corn worm very severe, and that they are still working and will continue until there is a hard freeze, as an ordinary frost is not expected to affect them. They work underneath the husk and are protected from moderate weather changes. A large farmer from Washington, Ia., informed Mr. Simons that considerable damage from worms has developed in that territory. The corn borer is active in northern Ohio and in other sections, and disappointing yields of corn are expected.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Southern selling was a feature and was well absorbed. Crop news continues unfavorable, but is not attracting the same attention of a few weeks ago. The government report, due Oct. 3, is expected to furnish a new incentive. Closing prices were at gains of 22@29 points. Prices follow:

BOSTON EXPERT HOLDS LIBERTYS BEST INVESTMENT

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—"There has been no more impressive fact brought home to the student of economics at this time than the disproportion between the replacement value of the property of our great industrial corporations and the price at which their shares of stock are selling in the market," in the opinion of George S. Mumford, president of the Commonwealth Trust company of Boston. "Where the product is a real necessity to civilization," he says, "and the business is old enough to have perfectly well established markets for its goods, the investor may well find it to his advantage to ignore the present falling off in earnings."

Discussing the present conditions in the bond and stock markets, Mr. Mumford says:

"Every thoughtful student of this matter admits that Liberty bonds are the best possible investment in the world at the present time.

"It is the enormous volume of these issues, and not their safety or their taxable features that tends to keep the price down.

"Some of our best railroads are offering or propose to offer their bonds at 6 per cent interest for twenty year terms or over.

"There are other corporations besides railroads whose business is of such a high character and whose bonds yield such a generous return as to offer good opportunities to the careful investor.

"Then there are stocks, some of them selling so low that even though dividends should be cut, the chances they offer for investment are perhaps better than may be seen again in many years."

FOUND DEAD IN ELEVATOR SHAFT.

John E. Caesar, 45, 8026 South May street, a plastering contractor, working in the Strand hotel building, 6219 Cottage Grove avenue, was found dead yesterday at the bottom of a freight elevator shaft at the rear of the hotel.

Truth—

THE loaning of money on improved property has developed into a highly specialized business. To make a safe loan today requires an organization which must be able to command the services of specialists in the various phases which are necessary to the completion of a paying building.

For example, one year ago this month it became apparent to our statistician that there was a change in the Real Estate Mortgage Bond Market. As a result of conditions, the 6% return increased to 7%. Since that time the majority of the up-to-date Mortgage Bond Banking Concerns have increased their rate to 7%.

In the meanwhile the customers of Lackner, Butz & Company were enjoying the extra 1% return with the same degree of safety a long time before it was a generally accepted fact.

Conditions are again changing. A new type of loan is developing. Mortgage Bond Investors who look first to their own interest should familiarize themselves with the market before investing. Circulars No. 125 and No. 240 describing two new loans made to conform to new conditions may be had for the asking.

Sooner or later you will conclude that "Recommended by Lackner, Butz & Co." MEANS A SAFE INVESTMENT.

Great Responsibilities

The shipmaster is responsible for the safety of his vessel and the lives aboard, the engineer for his train, the captain for the conduct of his men, the parent for the education and habits of the children, the bank for the safety and the economic use of its customers' funds, and so on in all lines of human activity.

Responsibility pervades civilization.

Apropos of responsibility, we believe that parents cannot too strongly impress the young with the importance of saving. A bank account is a boon to a young person and a blessing to an old one. It was a sense of responsibility that caused us to decide to have a free distribution of a monthly business survey.

We feel that our customers and friends should have such business facts and information that keen minds and trained judgment can give.

We believe that an accurate presentation of the economic, industrial and commercial trends will be valuable to you. Our responsibility to our sons and daughters is greatest while they are young. Write us, call or phone Randolph 4550 and ask for October issue Current Business Survey.

PREDICT FULL RECOGNITION OF MEXICO SHORTLY.

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Wall street sees affairs in connection with Mexico rapidly shaping towards the point where full recognition may be granted to the republic by the United States government. To go back over recent political and industrial happenings indicates that relations are much less strained than, say, a month ago, and that the opportunities for improvement in these relations are bright. Probably the most significant business affair in connection with Mexico of the year of 1921 was the oil tax agreement.

Another straw which indicated the direction of the wind was the trip to Mexico of Samuel Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive company, who returned from Mexico with orders for locomotives. Nine of these have been delivered. Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, accompanied by James W. Gerard, formerly ambassador to Germany, who is particularly conversant with Mexico, is returning home after a visit to Mexico. Reports are current in the financial district, and have been since the head of the steel corporation departed for Mexico, that some big steel orders will be brought back. Mexico particularly needs railroad and bridge steel.

Probably most important of all the trips to Mexico this year by business men is the pilgrimage of Thomas W. Lamont, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., who leaves on Sept. 30 for Mexico, as emissary of a group of bankers. Mr. Lamont goes to Mexico with the knowledge of the state department for the announced purpose of discussing with officials of the government the defaulted debts of that country.

WE INTEND to make the investment season of 1921-1922 the greatest in our history and are determined to supply the investing public with issues that are FIRST IN SAFETY—FIRST IN INCOME. In this, the first of our new offerings for Autumn, the margin of security is the largest we have ever provided in any issue.

Limited space allows us to show only a few of the buildings comprising the security.

IN ADDITION to the buildings and land, which alone make this issue an exceptionally attractive one, the bonds are secured by valuable equipment, and are backed by the earnings and high credit standing of a successful company.

THE plant occupies land in fee of approximately 600,000 square feet and is improved with six buildings. Most of the buildings are new and fireproof, constructed of brick, concrete and steel. They are of a standard type, adapted to many lines of manufacturing. The plant is served by complete switchtrack facilities and is located in Chicago's foremost manufacturing district. The general office building is located in the great manufacturing and wholesale district just northwest of the loop.

Value of land, buildings and equipment in excess of $2,000,000, or ALMOST SEVEN TIMES AMOUNT OF BONDS.

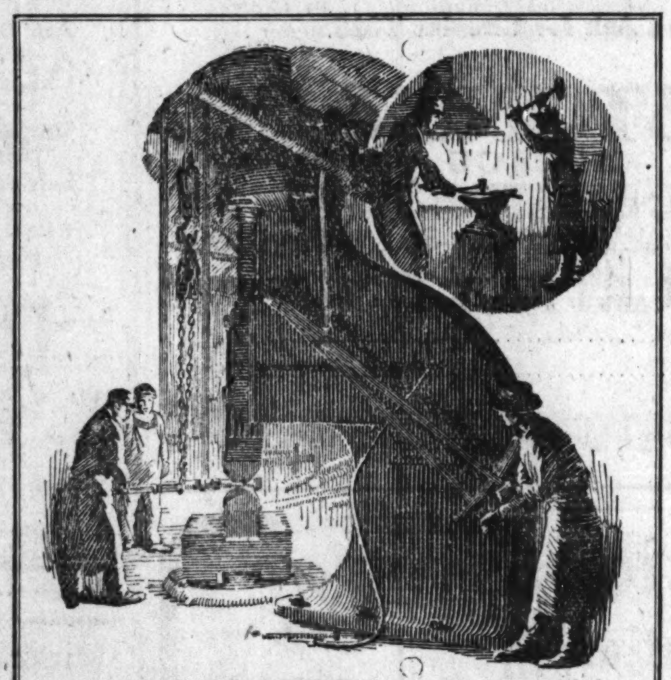
Value of land and buildings, exclusive of equipment, in excess of $1,000,000, or OVER THREE TIMES AMOUNT OF BONDS.

Value of land alone in excess of $560,000, or ALMOST TWICE AMOUNT OF BONDS.

How To Order These Bonds

IF AT all possible, call at the bank personally to purchase these bonds or obtain further information. It will pay you to do this. If not convenient to call, just telephone or write.

These bonds can be ordered with perfect safety by mail. Send us the name of your local bank and we will forward bonds to it, where you can examine them and pay the bank. Or send us a draft or certified check and we will make delivery by registered mail.



THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH generations ago filled an indispensable part in the life of his community. Horseshoes, farming implements, tools, nails and scores of other necessities were turned out by him.

Modern progress has brought about a transformation in the village blacksmith. He has been replaced by the drop forge industry, which manufactures, better than he did himself and in infinitely greater quantity, the same homely necessities, as well as hundreds of newer articles.

A drop forging represents the highest development in the steel manufacturing art and is used where only the greatest strength and toughness are required. Your sewing machine, washing machine, automobile and typewriter would not be possible without drop forgings.

Owing to the demand for our new investment offerings, we urge you to send us your order or reservation at once before this issue is exhausted.

Largest in the Country

THIS is the largest jobbing drop forge company in the country. The company manufactures drop forgings for a great variety of purposes—all the way from typewriter bars to locomotive parts. It numbers among its customers the largest railroads, agricultural implement manufacturers, automobile companies and machinery manufacturers.

The company was established in 1881 with an original capital of $20,000. There has been no additional capital invested since then, and its assets have been built up entirely from the production of drop forgings and increased value of its property.

Net annual earnings, averaged over a period of five years, are $93,200, or OVER FOUR TIMES GREATEST ANNUAL INTEREST CHARGE ON BONDS.

Partial Payments and Reservations

THESE bonds can be bought on partial payments. The initial payment is 10% or more of the par value, with succeeding payments at the rate of 10% a month, payable monthly, semi-monthly or weekly. Each payment earns 7%. Ask for further details.

Ask about our plan for transferring money in savings accounts to these bonds.

Bonds will be reserved for future payment and delivery without extra charge.

Chicago First Mortgage Real Estate Gold Bonds

For the next few days we are offering the unsold portion of two issues of First Mortgage Real Estate Gold Bonds at 94 and accrued interest—a price which will yield 7% on the investment.

As these bonds have usually sold at par, the buyer at present is able to purchase them at $60 per thousand dollar bond less than when first offered. This discount is due to the change in the Real Estate Mortgage Bond market, which has come about during the past few months.

These issues are secured by first mortgages on the land and buildings. The locations are the best on the north and south sides of Chicago.

The values are conservatively estimated by us to be over double the amount of bonds issued.

The income is more than ample to pay interest and principal charges.

Only a comparatively few of these bonds remain.
Now is the time to make a safe 7% investment.

Starting in steady to 10c lower, the hog market closed strong yesterday, with everything sold. Best sold at $8.20, while the large proportion of heavy weights among the offerings cut the average price to $7.10, against $7.60 a week ago and $16.50 a year ago. Chicago prices are still relatively much higher than outside markets.

Closing cattle trade was strong for the better grades at prices current a week ago, while the poorer kinds closed 25@50c below previous Saturday. Week's top for yearlings was $10.90. Lambs were in excessive supply, with closing prices largely $1.50@1.75 lower than a week ago, few fat lambs selling above $8.00.

Receipts of hogs at Chicago last week at 122,400 were largest in nearly two months, 12,000 larger than the previous week, 43,800 larger than a year ago and 18,400 larger than the ten year average. Average weight was lowered another two lbs, to 248 lbs, due to increased receipts of underweights, standing 7 lbs heavier than a year ago and 13 lbs heavier than the ten year average.

Lowest in Five Years.

Average cost of hogs at Chicago last week at $7.50 lost another 15c compared with the previous week, now standing lowest in over five years, $9.20 lower than a year ago, and $4.65 lower than the ten year average.

Receipts at Chicago for next Monday are estimated at 23,000 cattle, 33,000 hogs and 28,000 sheep, against 28,980 cattle, 21,124 hogs and 20,602 sheep the corresponding Monday a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 62,000 cattle, 120,000 hogs and 115,000 sheep.

Various estimates place next Monday's probable receipts of hogs at 25,000 to 42,000. E. S. Waterbury marked 42,000, A. Wescott 40,000, F. W. Waddell 38,000, E. R. Gentry 36,000, Edward Morris 35,000, F. R. Burrows 31,000, and W. H. Overman 28,000.

Twenty markets last week received a total of 300,000 cattle, being the largest combined arrivals of the year. Quality at most markets, however, was poorest of the season, forcing the widest price range of the year. Combined receipts of sheep and lambs at the twenty markets also totaled largest of the year at 460,000.

Studying Business Conditions Is an Aid to Wise Investments.

It is more important for the investor to watch the commodity markets and changes in the industrial and business world than to watch the security markets. Following the rise and fall of prices on the stock and bond markets is all very well for one who wishes to speculate, basing his judgment of the probable future price of securities on the law of averages. But the intelligent investor, the one who wishes to invest his funds wisely, should learn to interpret changes in commodity prices and transportation rates, business reorganization, industrial and railroad legislation, etc., in terms of their natural and probable effect on the value of securities.

A fall in the price of certain commodities may curtail the earnings of the industrial corporations marketing them and, in consequence, cause the market price of the securities of these corporations to fall. On the other hand, the lowered price of these same commodities may largely benefit other lines of business and enhance the value of their securities.

Take, for example, the slump in the prices of many commodities that are essential to the production of light and power. This slump has had a very beneficial effect on the public utility companies, enabling them to produce gas, light, heat, power, etc., at lower operating costs and substantially increasing their profits. These increased profits very naturally give added value to the securities of the public utilities corporation.

By careful, intelligent study of the constantly changing market and business conditions the investor should develop "investment sense" that will enable him to discern the wise investment from the foolish.

The public utility industry has made great strides in the last year and has completed readjustment about as satisfactorily as any other industry in the country. Improvement among the industrials is slow, but is making progress.

Textiles, leather goods, building construction all show improvement. The copper and steel industries seem to have reached the turn. Substantial progress is being made in working out the more difficult problems of the railroads. Car loadings show a substantial increase and earnings are better. With congress in session, constructive legislation may be anticipated. All these things have a definite bearing on the securities market which the investor should learn to interpret.

Lake Shore Motor Bus.

J. O. K.—The Lake Shore Motor Bus corporation was organized to acquire all stock of the Chicago Motor Bus company and all property or stock of the American Motor Bus corporation, which builds the busses for the company. It has issued $750,000 of 8 per cent bonds secured by deposit of most of the stock of the Chicago Motor Bus company and by a mortgage on the fixed property or stock of the American Motor Bus corporation, and by first mortgage on all real estate of the issuing corporation. Net earnings for the year ended May 31, 1921, covered interest charges on the bonds over two and one-half times. Fixed assets of constituent companies covered the principal amount of this issue by a good margin. The bonds are unseasoned. We consider them a somewhat speculative investment, suitable for one who does not require the maximum of safety.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Two special trains leaving Chicago Tuesday, one on the Rock Island and the other on the Burlington, will carry a large part of the central states' delegation to the annual convention of the American Bankers association in Los Angeles Oct. 3 to 7. A third special will start from Des Moines. The Chicago Clearing House association will give a dinner tomorrow evening at the Hotel La Salle for the departing bankers.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber company first mortgage 8 per cent bonds to the amount of $750,000 par value have been designated by lot by the trustee for redemption under the sinking fund provisions. Numbers of the bonds drawn are obtainable from Dillon, Read & Co., sinking fund agents.

The American Fuel Oil and Transportation company has declared a dividend of 40 cents a share on the preferred stock, representing the regular quarterly of 20 cents a share, due Oct. 1, and the 20 cent dividend, due July 1 last, which was deferred. The dividends will be paid on Oct. 1 in scrip bearing no interest. No action was taken on a dividend on the common stock, which also was deferred in July.

Under the plan proposed by banking interests for the merger of Burns Bros. and William Farrell & Son, Inc., the new Burns Bros. "A" common stock, which is to be issued for the present Burns Bros. common stock, will be cumulative as to dividends up to 8 per cent yearly.

Arrangements between bankers and the Cuba Cane Sugar corporation calling for new financing of the extent of $10,000,000 have been practically concluded and a circular will be sent out to holders of the 7 per cent bonds asking for their approval of the plan and offering as an inducement an increase of 1 per cent in the interest rate on their holdings.

There were 331 failures in the United States last week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 463 in the preceding week and 256 during the corresponding week last year.

A. H. Smith has been appointed vice president in charge of the commercial department of the Madison and Kedzie State bank. Mr. Smith was formerly with the Liberty National bank of New York.

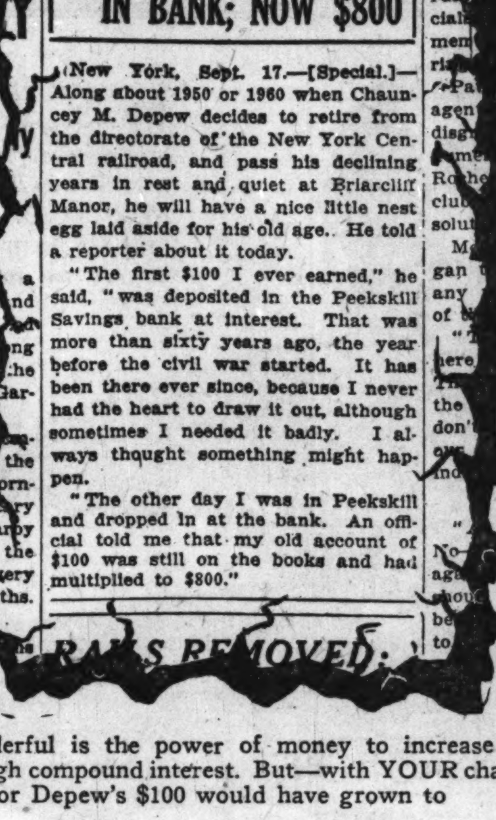
YOU Can Do Better Than Chauncey M. Depew!

THROUGH THE COURTESY of THE TRIBUNE we reproduce this article on Chauncey Depew's nest egg and how it grew. Read it—then see the profitable point in it for you.



CHAUNCEY DEPEW'S FIRST $100 IS STILL IN BANK; NOW $800

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Along about 1950 or 1960 when Chauncey M. Depew decides to retire from the directorate of the New York Central railroad, and pass his declining years in rest and quiet at Briarcliff Manor, he will have a nice little nest egg laid aside for his old age. He told a reporter about it today.

"The first $100 I ever earned," he said, "was deposited in the Peekskill Savings bank at interest. That was more than sixty years ago, the year before the civil war started. It has been there ever since, because I never had the heart to draw it out, although sometimes I needed it badly. I always thought something might happen.

"The other day I was in Peekskill and dropped in at the bank. An official told me that my old account of $100 was still on the books and had multiplied to $800."

Wonderful is the power of money to increase itself through compound interest. But—with YOUR chance—Senator Depew's $100 would have grown to

$6,423.65

For he could have bought one of our $100 First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Gold Bonds—as safe as his money proved to be in his bank. It would have paid him 7% INTEREST. And if his interest had been reinvested—as it could have been under our Savings-Investment Plan—his $100 would have grown and grown until it would now be $6,423.65.

You expect to live as long as he. Wouldn't it profit you to invest your savings where they will grow most rapidly and amount to most when the time comes to use them?. Let us tell you about our Plan.

Please Ask for Circular T925.

Cairo Co. has made 66% Net and has a possible 100% Net for 1921 without salesmen or giving credit to customers.

Cairo Co. can't accept all the orders pressed upon it today. It could today book a Million Dollars of orders at 25% net profit, if it had the equipment to handle them. It could do this because Cairo Co. delivers a finished Home Building—perfect and complete—for about 25% less than average contract price and because America is short today at least One Million places to live.

For the next 10 years Cairo Co.'s Business and Profits should be enormous. For making money today no field equals the Home-Building field. Cairo Co. in the Home-Building field is a possible peace bride with possible profits beyond the profits of the war brides.

Cairo Co.'s securities are $10 par—Common Shares only—no bonds or preferred stock. At present price they yield 10% cash. Stockholders expect unusually large extra dividends in both Cash and Stock. Next dividend, 2½%—October 1, 1921.

The general public never before has had the opportunity to get any securities in a D. K. Jeffris enterprise. Only a few shares are available now at a price to yield 10%.

Subject to increase in price without notice, we will supply a limited amount of stock of Cairo Wood Products Co. at $10 per share to yield 10%.

Come in or Telephone or Write—today—for Bulletin 925, which will give you Full Information about Cairo Wood Products Co. Open Wednesday evenings and Saturday afternoons. Come in and talk it over.

The New York Times.

New York, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—On the stock exchange the week closed today with initial strength, which seemed to illustrate the general character of the financial situation, and subsequent reaction, which marked the presence of professional speculators, taking their "week-end profits." During the early business a few stocks reached the high prices of the year. The market, however, was not active, and changes at the last were altogether irregular.

Comparison of this week's closing prices with these of last week shows both advances and declines, the noteworthy gains being in railway shares, several of which reached in the course of the week the highest level since the reaction of last autumn began.

Rise in Bonds More Uniform.

The bond market's showing of improvement for the week is much more uniform; the number of net advances ranging from 1 to 4 points being very considerable. Practically all of the United States war loans—the 3½ per cents being the main exception—touched last week the highest prices of 1921. In most of them that high price was reached in today's market, on which the Victory 4¾s nearly regained the maximum level of 1919.

In other markets there were no very striking changes today; indeed, the tendency to move conservatively in response to the altered financial conditions has, on the whole, been accentuated during the last week. This is recognition of the fact that trade revival itself is pretty sure to be cautious and deliberate.

Trade Weather Signs Mixed.

Even in the case of the cotton market, whose recovery in some ways has been the key to the more hopeful feeling elsewhere, it is necessary to remember that the advancing of prices and the consequent relief of southern holders of cotton carried over from the crop of 1920 was made possible through what would in ordinary years be described as an agricultural catastrophe.

It has frequently been pointed out that financial weather signs, such as a halt to falling commodity markets, reviving exports and increased steel and iron production, have been in evidence this season. But the careful watcher will also observe that two highly important indices to trade recovery—increase in bank clearings and increase in gross railway earnings—have as yet not come in sight at all.

Credit Market Grows Easier.

One reason for the remarkably strong showing of the New York reserve bank on Thursday appeared from today's weekly statement of the New York associated banks, reporting a decrease of $31,500,000 in reserve credits of those institutions in the federal reserve. That account had been increased $62,800,000 in the preceding fortnight, along with a corresponding expansion of loans. Last week's decrease in reserve credits brought the surplus reserve of the clearing house banks to a figure not much more than half the $54,625,000 of a week before, which was the largest surplus since November, 1919.

The lack of pressure on the federal bank to provide a basis for expanding loans of member institutions shows what the credit market's position is. Loans at the associated banks increased only $5,300,000 last week.

Details of Bank Statement.

The statement of actual condition, with comparison with last week's figures, follows:

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The weekly review of F. M. Zeller & Co. follows:

"The local unlisted securities market was featured by the rise in Consumers preferred to sales at 68 on the declaration of the dividend. At the close, stock was offered at 70, with bids of 67. The common improved to 6¼. Burroughs Adding Machine after selling at 139 closed easier, with stock offered at 138 and buyers at 134. Wahl preferred was in demand, improving to 80 bid, ex dividend, with small lots offered at 84, while Gossard Corset changed hands at 23. Goodyear trading with within a narrow range, the preferred at 27 to 28½ and the common at 10 to 11. Although the volume of trade was small, a steady demand existed for United States Gypsum common, stock being traded in at 19¾, ex dividend.

"Motor shares were heavy. Continental sold down to 4¾, while Peerless, after selling at 42½, reacted to sales at 36, closing with a net loss of 4 points at 38½ bid, offered at 39½. Packard common reacted to 5½. McCord common was without special note at 5⅝ to 5⅞.

"Public utility sales were as follows: American Light and Traction common, 91½@92½; preferred, 79½@80½; Cities Service common, 118@120; preferred, 43½+44; bankers, 13¼@13⅝; Commonwealth Power common, 8½@9½; preferred, 26½@27½; Northern States Power common, 44@46; preferred, 80@81; Standard Gas common, 7¾@8; preferred, 33@34; United Light common, 21⅞@22¼; preferred, 58@59, ex dividend.

"Trading in the bond market was exceptionally broad and prices strong, many issues breaking into new high ground. Swift 7s of 1931 led in volume of trade, advancing to 100 bid, 100¼ asked. Commonwealth Edison 6s also were very active, improving a point to 97¼@97½. Commonweath Edison 7s at 101@101½ were up a half. The remainder of the list were all fractionally higher."

CHICAGO STOCK TRANSACTIONS

Trading in Chicago stocks was fairly active in the week-end session yesterday, but prices showed a downward drift. Libby-McNeill and National Leather led in activity, the former gaining and the latter losing a minor fraction. Other packing house issues were irregular and the motor shares were lower, with Yellow Manufacturing declining 1½ points. On small sales Chicago City and Connecting Railways preferred showed marked weakness, dropping 1¼ points. Middle West Utilities gained a point. In bonds, Peoples Gas refunding 5s were up a point.

RAILROAD NOTES

Railroads operating east from Chicago and St. Louis in some instances report an increase in cars loaded with revenue freight for the week, and in general merchandise there has been a good movement. Southern roads had somewhat more encouraging reports in some instances. The gulf lines are handling a big run of wheat and there is also considerable cotton moving. The total western movement was better, but about 10 per cent under last year. Grain shipments increased from 20 to 35 per cent.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the National Industrial Traffic league held in Chicago Friday, action was taken calling upon the carriers for an immediate readjustment of wages and freight rates, based upon wages and working conditions in other industrial lines.

Grain shipments from Chicago and South Chicago by lake since the opening of navigation this season have been nearly 100,000,000 bushels, 47,112,000 bushels to American ports and 52,271,000 bushels to Canadian. The corn movement was 57,000,000 bushels.

The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway company was granted authority by the interstate commerce commission to issue 6 per cent refunding and improvement mortgage bonds to be pledged as security for a 6 per cent promissory demand note for $3,500,000.

The Pennsylvania morning train No. 40 beginning today will leave Chicago for New York at 8:30 o'clock instead of 8:45 as heretofore.

OIL MARKETS.

NEW YORK.—COTTONSEED OIL—Closing bids 16@25 points net lower. Sales, 5,100 brls. Tenders, 500 brls. Prime crude, $8.00 nominal; prime summer yellow spot, $9.50; October, $9.63; December, $9.59; March, $9.70, all bid.

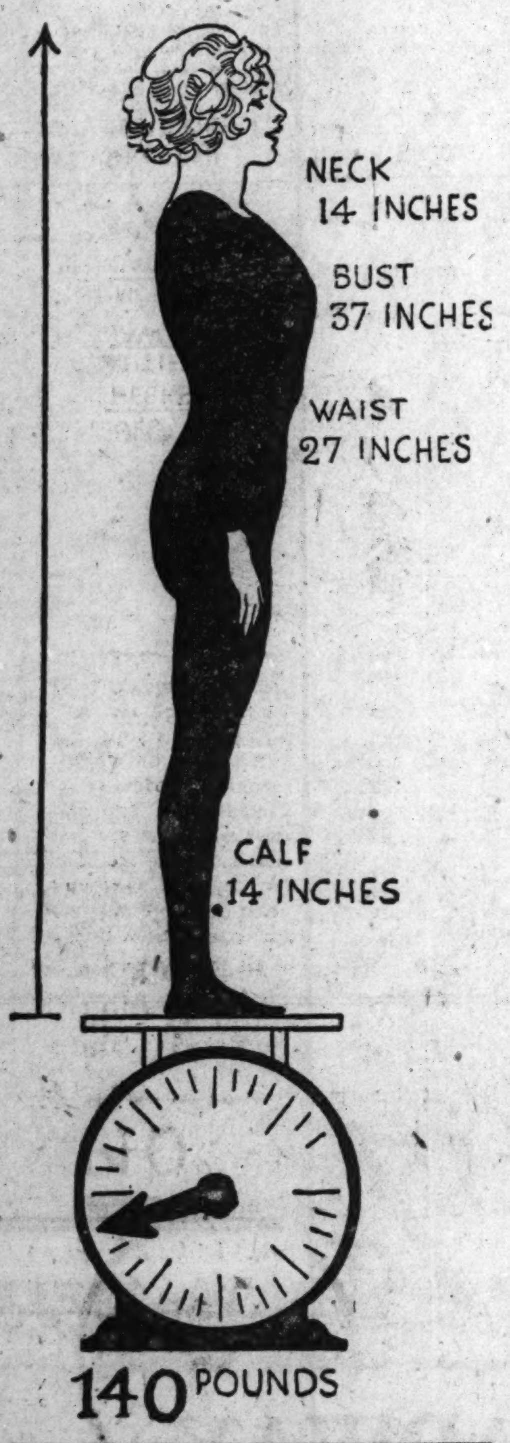
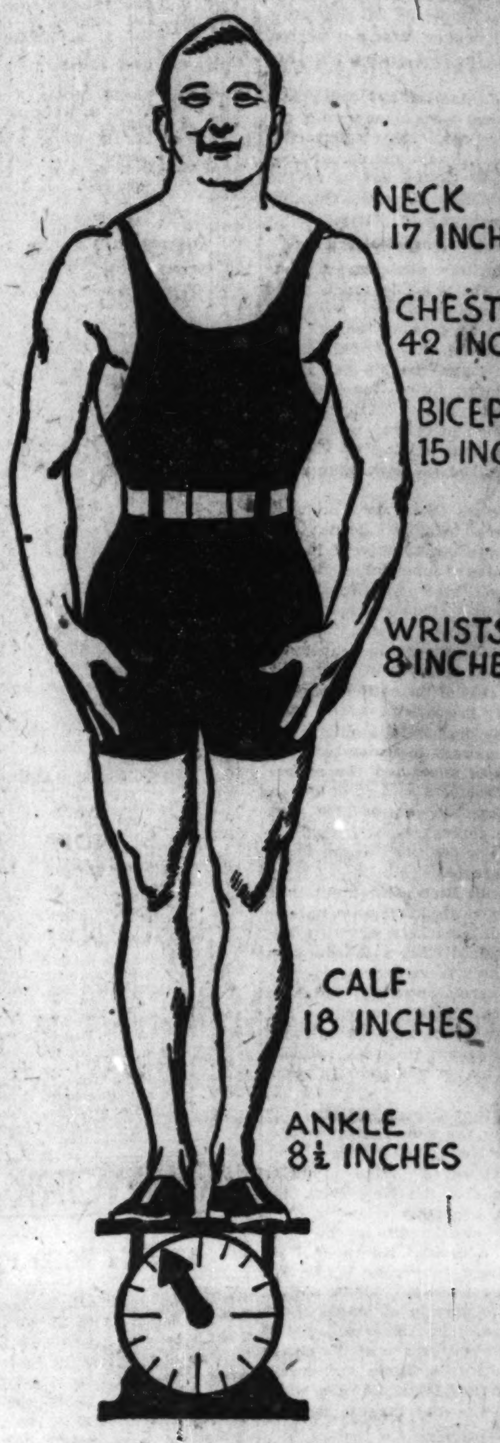
How Yeast Vitamon Tablets Put on Firm Flesh

Increase Your Energy. Banish Skin Eruptions and Beautify the Complexion. Easy and Economical to Take. Results Quick





THIN or run-down folks will find this simple test well worth trying: First, weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next, take Mastin's VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue taking Mastin's VITAMON Tablets regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight, "pep" and energy.

Mastin's VITAMON tablets are now being used by thousands who appreciate their convenience, economy and quick results. By increasing the nourishing power of what you eat Mastin's VITAMON supplies just what your body needs to feed the shrunken tissues, strengthen internal organs, clear the skin, and renew shattered nerve force. Mastin's VITAMON Tablets do not upset the stomach—do not cause bloating and belching. They leave you with a comfortable, elated feeling. Under their influence pimples, boils and skin eruptions seem to vanish as if by magic, and the complexion becomes radiantly clear and beautiful. But it is not only a question of how much better you look and feel—or how much renewed strength and energy you may seem to have, how much more beautiful your skin may become, or what your friends will say and think—let the scales and tape measure tell their own story. A two weeks' test should surprise you.

JUST WHAT Mastin's Yeast VITAMON Tablets Are

What Vitamines Are and Why They Are Used as a Basis for Mastin's VITAMON Tablets

Vitamines are wonderful health-giving elements contained in many raw foods. There are three kinds of vitamines, and all three are regarded as absolutely necessary for perfect health, vigor and proper physical development.

By a special process of concentration a proper dose of all of the three known vitamines is contained in an active state in Mastin's VITAMON Tablets, together with other such valuable tonic ingredients as Calcium Glycerophosphate, Nux Vomica and Peptonate of Iron.

Mastin's VITAMON Tablets contain highly concentrated yeast—Vitamines as well as the two other still more important Vitamines (Fat soluble A and Water soluble C), all of which Science says you must have to be strong, well and fully developed.

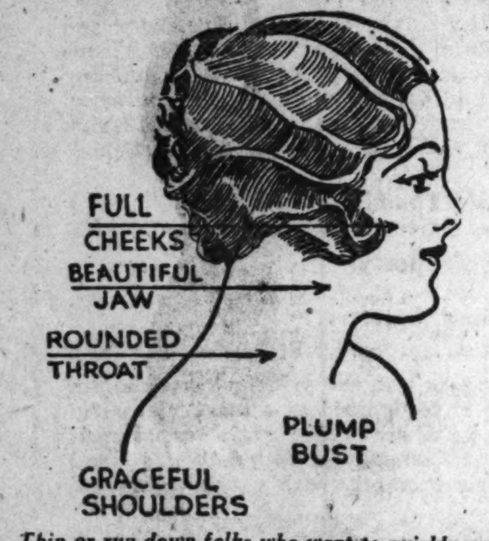
Yeast is rich in one class of vitamines—Water soluble B. But most scientists say that yeast contains only one of the three vitamines Science has thus far discovered. There are two other known vitamines—Fat soluble A—normally present in raw milk, cod liver oil, and certain plants—and Water soluble C, contained in certain fruits and vegetables.

Mastin's VITAMON Tablets, containing all three vitamines, highly concentrated, are ideal for mixing with your daily food, as they supply all the needed vitamines which are lacking in the average daily menu. They aid digestion and by acting in a natural way as a general conditioner of the whole system help to put on firm flesh, clear the complexion, correct constipation and increase energy.

IMPORTANT While the amazing, health-building value of Mastin's VITAMON Tablets has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of eruptions, poor complexion and a general weakened physical and mental condition, they should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having the weight increased to normal. Remember, furthermore, that although Mastin's VITAMON Tablets are bound to bring the weight to normal they will not cause overweight. All the pent-up energy and health-giving qualities of Mastin's VITAMON which are no longer necessary to add weight after the body has been fully and naturally rounded out will be utilized in increasing your energy and vitality. Their continued use is therefore advisable for those who insist upon being physically fit, energetic and alert at all times.

Your Weight Indicates Your Health. Are You Gaining or Losing?

If you want that firm flesh, "pep" and healthy glow of youthful beauty, eat whatever you like, but be sure to take two of Mastin's yeast VITAMON Tablets with every meal to supply the precious vitamines your foods lack. Then watch the truly amazing results. Weigh yourself before you start taking Mastin's VITAMON Tablets—your weight in two weeks' time will be a revelation to you.



Thin or run down folks who want to quickly get some good, firm, solid flesh on their bones, fill out the hollows and sunken cheeks with strong, healthy tissues and build up increased energy and vitality should try taking two of Mastin's tiny yeast VITAMON Tablets. They banish pimples, boils and skin eruptions as if by magic, strengthen the nerves, build up the body with firm flesh and tissue and often completely rejuvenate the whole system.

If you are thin, pale, haggard, drawn-looking or lack energy and endurance you will find it well worth while to make this simple test, it will pay you well in good looks and better health.

Your Weight Indicates Your Health. Are You Gaining or Losing?

If you want to quickly get more strength and vitality and have that firm flesh, "pep" which makes you look and feel 100 per cent better, just try taking two of Mastin's yeast VITAMON Tablets with each meal for a short time and watch the truly amazing results.

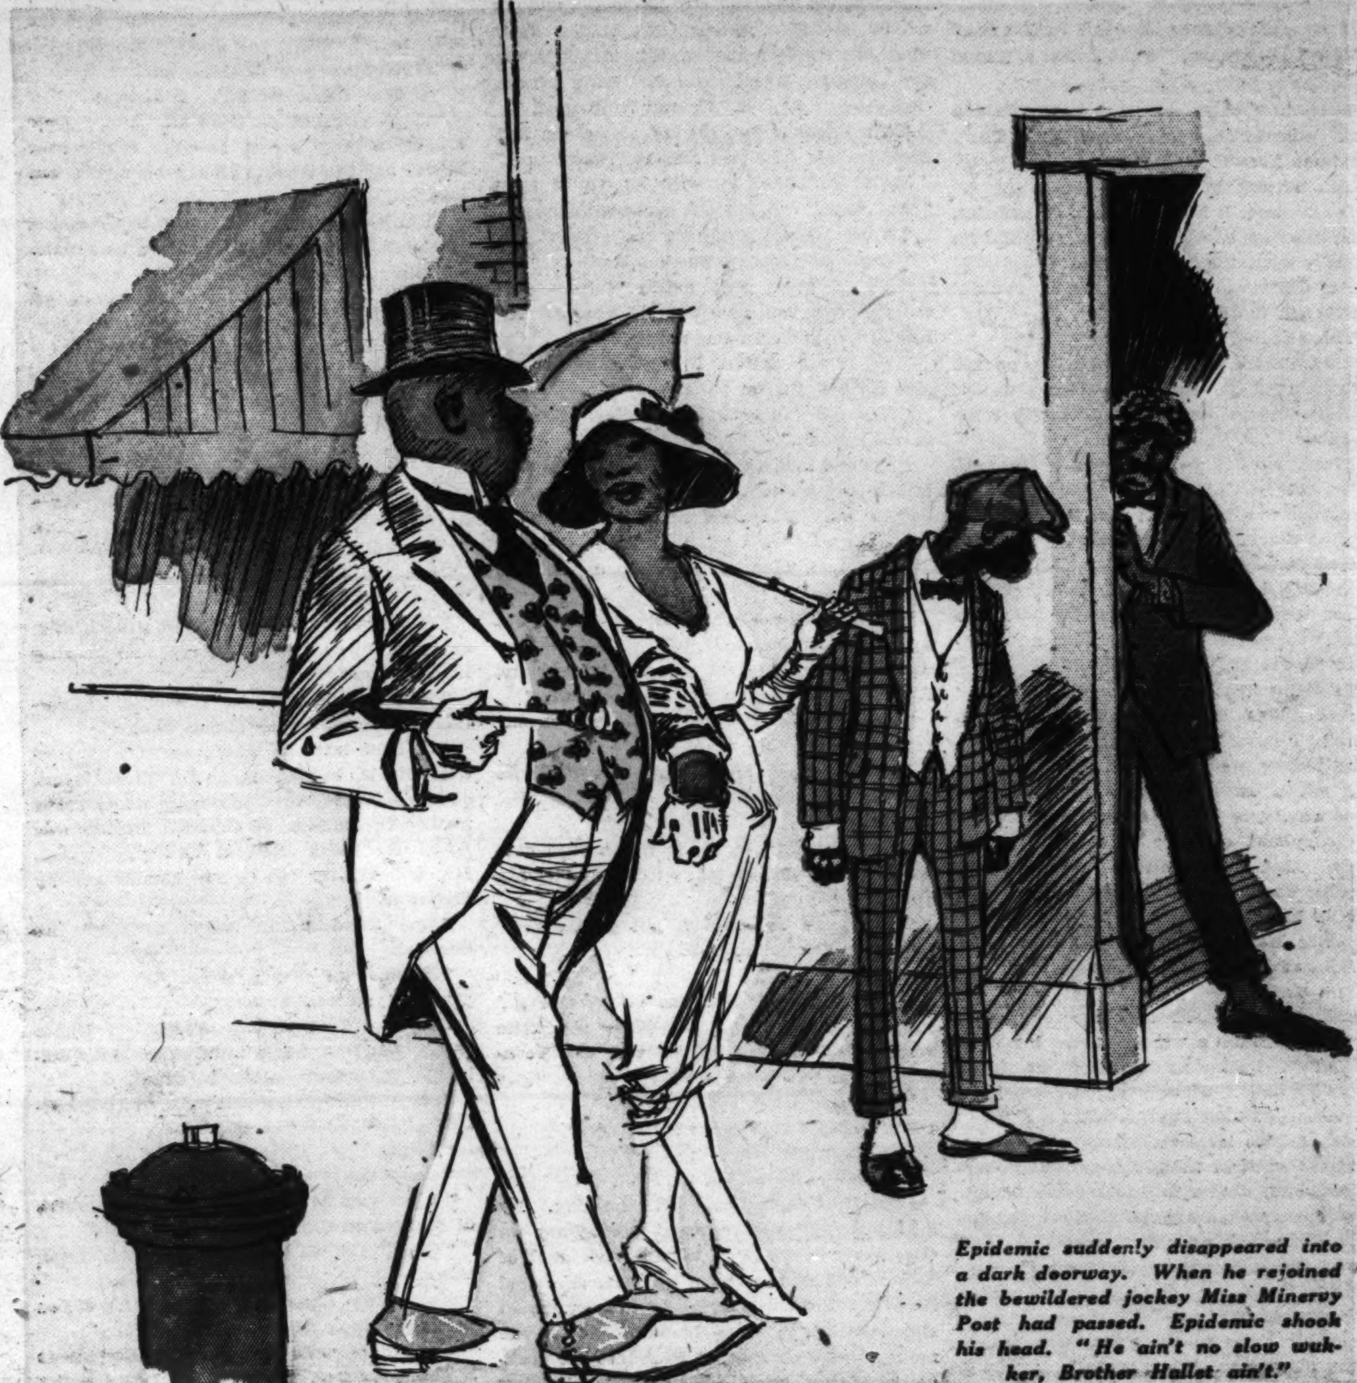
Epidemic Taylor Takes a Long Chance on Tangled Hunches for Love's Sake



Epidemic suddenly disappeared into a dark doorway. When he rejoined the bewildered jockey Miss Minervy Post had passed. Epidemic shook his head. "He ain't no slow wukker, Brother Hallet ain't."

MR. EPIDEMIC TAYLOR gazed pleadingly into the eyes of his most dearly beloved.

"Aw, please, Minervy," he begged. "Jes two dollars!"

Miss Minervy Post shook her head skeptically. "Two dollars is two dollars——"

"But it's gwine make you four hund'ed dollars. Woul'n't you ruther have that much?"

"Ruther have ain't is got."

"It's jes' the same as. Ain't I done tol' you I had a dream bouten the lott'ry which says the Baby Gig gwine win?"

"Baby Gig," ruminated Minervy. "That's one, twelve an' twen'y-one. Don' soun' like a winnin' to me."

"It's a hunch, sweetness."

"Hunches don' git you no credick."

"No'm, but they gits you money if'n you plays 'em."

Minervy went into executive session with herself.

"Hunches ain't no good nohow. I went an' got my ownse'f a lott'ry hunch . . . yassuh . . . my ve'y own hunch——"

"Says which, honey?"

"On'y it was the Blood Gig: numbers five, ten an' fo'ty, not ary one of which is in yo' hunch. So one of us is wrong."

"Yassum, you sho' is."

"An' if'n one of us is wrong, how is I to tell we ain't both wrong? I needs them two dollars. I is buyin' me a coat suit an' those moneys was put away to pay my Sat'dy night 'stallment."

"Loant me this heah two dollars an' you is gwine git yo'se'f a bran' new coat suit as well as the one what you is payin' on, an' a shirt waist as well."

"If'n you was to cash yo' conwersation, Epidemic, Mistuh Rockyfeller's income woul'n't be nothin' on'y the intrus' on yo' money."

"You is tootin', honeybunch. I prospec's to be a gittin' man when it comes to money."

"Yeh, but you ain't got none."

"Ain't got you neither," countered Epidemic adroitly, "an' I craves you plentiful."

"Other men does that—men which don' have to borry money fum the gal they is co'tin'."

"Meanin' which?"

"Dionyshus Hallet." A faint lavendar blush suffused the racially mahogany cheeks.

Epidemic exhaled his disgust. "That bloated immytation of a th'ee-cent screech balloon? Him? Why, hones', Minervy, if'n I could buy that feller at what I knows he's wuth an' sell him at his own value, I woul'n't never even talk to no man which di'n't own at least fo' limmysines."

"He's a pow'ful figger in a crowd of folks."

"So's a skunk."

"He's vice president of the Bummin'ham Afro-'Merican Savin's Bank, Pas' Grand Magnificent High Potentate of The Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise——"

"Pas' Grand is right."

"Chief Mourner of The Over the River Buryin' Sassiety, President of the Northern Distric' of Alabama Cullud Fair Association, Ink, an' ——"

"Never min' what else he is," snapped Epidemic peevishly. "All I knows bouten him is what he ain't!"

"He ain't never broke."

"Well I is. Ise broke now, an' I is got a chance to win fo' hund'ed dollars down to the Pool an' Ginuwine Lott'ry. What I asks you straight an' plain: Is you gwine loant me them two dollars, or ain't you?"

"I ain't said I ain't."

"You ain't said you is."

"I aint said nothin'."

"Well, I asks: Is you is or is you ain't?"

"Hmm! I don' hahdly know——"

"It's a suah thing, sweetness."

"So is dyin'."

"Fo' hund'ed dollars. . . ."

Minervy went off on a new tack: "Seems to me like you would have mo' se'f-respec' than borryin' money offen the gal you wan's to ma'y."

"Huh! If'n I cain't borry offen the gal Ise gwine ma'y, what gal can I borry it offen?"

"Mmm! Tha's true nuff. . . . Lemme see. You is gotten a hunch on the Baby Gig an' I is gotten one on the Blood Gig. They ain't no mo' reason why I should loant you the money to play yo' hunch than they is why I shoul'n't play my own."

"Mine's gwine win."

BLACK SAURIOL, a Blue Ribbon short story, by Arthur Stringer.

"You says."

"I knows." Suddenly Epidemic's face broke into a beatific grin. "Hot dam! I got it."

"Got which?"

"An idee."

"Tell it to me, culud boy; tell it to me."

"You is got a hunch an' I is got a hunch. You len's me two dollars, I goes down to the lott'ry an' plays one dollar on the Blood Gig an' one dollar on the Baby Gig. Both win an' us is got fo' hund'ed dollars. Come on'y one wins, we gits two hund'ed. An' no matter how comes the lott'ry out—we splits even. How that strikes you, Minervy?"

Minervy was a woman of instant decision. She modestly turned her back, fumbled at her stocking, and handed over two one-dollar bills.

"You spoke it, Epidemic. Go you to the lott'ry an' bet them dollars two ways."

Epidemic headed for the door. "Ise gone!"

He traveled the first block in ten flat. Then his pace slowed perceptibly. The second block was covered in a dog trot. The third in a walk. In the middle of the fourth block he paused and took counsel with Mr. Epidemic Taylor.

"Minervy," he reflected, "is all right when it comes to figger, but she aint so much in the haid."

His eyes fell upon a vermilion placard announcing the annual jubilee of the Northern District of Alabama Colored Fair Association then in progress. At the foot of the poster was the name: "Dionyshus Hallet—Presdt."

"Pssh!" raved Epidemic. "She even likes that feller!"

Epidemic possessed a trust fund of two dollars and an overpowering hunch. He knew that his gig was destined to win in the immediately forthcoming drawing of the Pool and Genuine lottery. He knew that such a victory meant four hundred dollars in return for a two dollar investment. Therefore, since he was destined to win and his lady love not, the logic of the situation was unanswerable: it behooved him in justice to himself and to her to place the entire two dollars on his hunch.

He convinced himself that it would not be honest to squander one perfectly good dollar playing Minervy's hunch. He felt a sense of personal resentment that she should so desire it. Why, it was tantamount to robbing him of half of the two hundred that extra dollar was certain to win. Filled with a righteous indignation at Minervy's perverseness, he shoved through the portals of the lottery room and greeted Cap'n Jackson Ramsay, the portly white man who Dionyshus strolled to the window, where he stood gazing thoughtfully down upon the traffic.

The Companionship of Health

The Debt Every Mother Owes to Her Children.

It Is the Health, Strength and Vitality of a Mother Which Makes the Happiness of a Home

There Are Countless Numbers of Mothers Who Are as Youthful in Spirit and Action as Their Boys and Girls

Their sports are her sports, their pleasures are her pleasures, and her health, vigor, and strong nerves keep her always ready to take part in their fun. By keeping her blood filled with iron she drives away the approach of signs of age and ill health—her brow is unmarked by the imprint of lines that weariness and nervousness bring—her body is erect, her flesh firm and her skin clear with all the freshness and charm of youth.

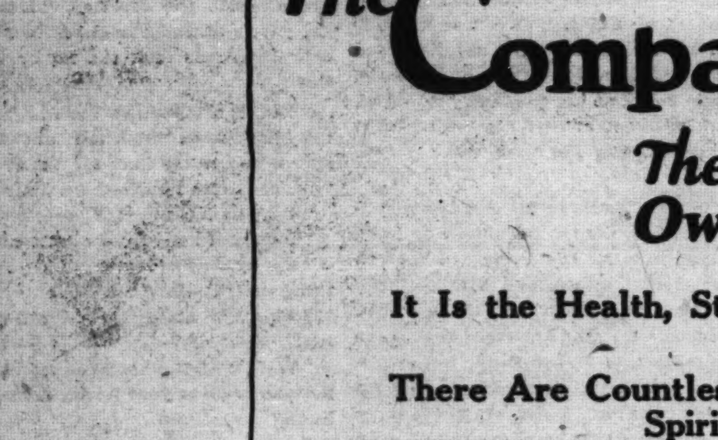
It is the happiness and well-being of the mother that gives home its true meaning—where the mother is nervous and irritable the home is clouded with a shadow that casts its darkness over husband and children. If these women only knew how quickly the state of their health is reflected in the whole nature and appearance of their children they would want to build themselves up into stronger, healthier women, better able physically to take an active interest in the welfare of their children and home.

In most cases mothers who have allowed themselves to become weak and generally run-down fail to realize the importance of building up reserve strength and energy by keeping their blood rich in iron. The strain of home cares and work cannot be borne by a woman unless she does feed her blood health-giving iron. It is the strong, healthy woman who can smile at the trials of life, for she has the strength and stamina to weather reverses and come thru a winner—and this is the kind of woman Nuxated Iron helps make.

When your blood is starving for iron no mere tonics or stimulants can put you right. Starving blood must have iron, the same as a starving person must have food; iron is red blood food and you must take iron to supply such food. But be sure the iron you take is organic iron, and not metallic iron, which people usually take. Metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acid on small pieces of iron, and is therefore entirely different from organic iron. Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. It may be had from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron.

Nuxated Iron also contains a remarkable product, brought to the attention of the French Academy of Medicine by the celebrated Dr. Robin, which represents the principal chemical constituent of acting, living nerve force, FOR FEEDING THE NERVES, so that NUXATED IRON may be said to be both a BLOOD and a NERVE FOOD.

Over four million people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters NI on every tablet.



NUXATED IRON

gleaned a more than fair livelihood from its operation.

"Evenin', Cap'n."

"Hello, Epidemic."

"Ain't drawed the Genuwine yet, is you?"

"Not yet. Want to lay a bet?"

"Yassuh—I sho' does."

"How much?"

"Two dollars."

"Hmm! You're prosperous today."

"Ise gwine be mo prosperouser when I leaves heah, Cap'n." Epidemic extended the two dollars. "Write me out a ticket, Cap'n, on the Baby Gig—straight."

"Had a dream?"

"You said it."

The ticket was duly written and passed over to Epidemic. One hour later that gentleman, considerably more ashen than intended by nature, staggered into the street and tore into tiny bits his hunch-ticket.

Epidemic was ill—very ill. For not only had his hunch failed to materialize, but three of the first four numbers to appear from the lottery wheel had been five, ten, and forty: Minervy's Blood Gig!

"Ain't that jes' like a woman?" he soliloquized. "I cain't splain to her, cause 'n chances is she never will on'erstan'."

He paused and then: "Epidemic Taylor," he said softly, "you is in one mo' hell of a mess. You not on'y ain't got nothin' but you owes yo' gal one hund'ed dollars. Epidemic, you' hunches ain't no good. Fum now on you is jes' nachelly got to use yo' brains!"

* * * * * * * *

Dionyshus Hallet took the rejection of his proposal good-naturedly. "You is jes' on'y a foolish gal, Minervy."

"How come?"

"You is some day gwine ma'y me."

"Says so?"

"I knows it. You is the on'y gal I ever ast that honor an' it kinder s'prises me you should tu'n me down temporary."

"Temp'ry! Huh! You says!"

The portly president of the Northern District of Alabama Colored Fair Association patted his be-flowered waistcoat smugly.

"Ain't sawn you trottin' roun' with Epidemic Taylor recent."

"Ain't you?"

"I said it. Sumthin' wrong?"

"Not hahdly."

"You an' him ain't split up, has you?"

"Not yet."

Something in her tone attracted the attention of Dionyshus: a nuance of ill-concealed hostility toward the heretofore favored Epidemic.

"He is pretty wuthless," said Dionyshus, concurring in her unspoken thought.

"I ain't said he ain't."

"Yet you is reflectin' on makin' ma'iage with him."

"Huh! You is the knowinest man," she vouchsafed sarcastically.

Dionyshus was long on tact as well as ego. He felt that this was an excellent exit cue and he took advantage of it. He made his way dignifiedly down Eighteenth street, past the Champion Theater, and entered the elevator of the Penny Prudential Bank Building. He alighted at the eighth floor and paused to admire the ground glass door of his office whereupon was inscribed in vivid gold his many florid titles.

His stenographer entered the inner office in his wake.

"Gen'leman to see you, suh."

Dionyshus cleared his throat. "Who he is?"

"That jockey fum the cullud fair."

The suggestion of a smile curled the corners of Dionyshus' lips. "'Scort him in."

Jockey Spider Hawkins, tiny, wiry, and attired shriekingly, seated himself gingerly on the very edge of a near-leather chair.

"Yassuh?"

"Spider," orated Dionyshus unctuously, "You an' I is 'scussed this matter heahtofore, an' now I is comin' down to brass tacks."

"Yassuh."

"You is a good jockey, Spider, ain't you?"

"I sho'ly is, suh. I is been ruled offen some of the bestest tracks in this country."

"You c'n make a good hawss win, cain't you, Spider?"

"Yassuh—you said it."

"Mmm! But Spider——" Dionyshus leaned forward with a hint of tenseness, "— c'n you make one lose?"

Spider Hawkins' eyes narrowed. Here were words from a language not unknown to him. "I c'n!" was his positive answer.

"C'n you make him lose so's they won't nobody know you is doin' same?"

"I c'n do it so clever, suh, that even the hawss wouldn't know it."

"A-A-ah!" Dionyshus Hallet rubbed the palms of his hands together unctuously. "Confidence in you, Spider, is 'bout the on'y thing I ain't got nothin' else but."

"What hawss you wishes me to pull, Mistuh Hallet?"

"What hawss is you ridin' in the fo'th race Sat'dy, Brother Hawkins?"

"Greenbrier—the fav'rite."

"What hawss is the bestest hawss in the fo'th race?"

"Greenbrier. She c'n win under wraps."

"An'," sibilated the large man, "she c'n lose the same way, cain't she?"

"You is tootin'."

"If Greenbrier does lose this heah race," continued Dionyshus, "what hawss is gwine win?"

"They ain't on'y one other hawss in the race," returned the jockey expertly. "Tha's Christmas Tree."

"You is shuah?"

"Ise so shure it hu'ts. Barrin' Greenbrier, Christmas Tree coul'n't lose that race if'n he was to die on the backstretch."

"An' Christmas Tree is gwine be runnin' at 'bout ten to one, ain't he?"

"There or there'bouts."

Dionyshus reached into a capacious pocket and extracted therefrom a warworn wallet. From its depths he produced twenty crisp five-dollar bills.

"If'n I was to han' these over to you, Spider, does you reckon you could guarantee Greenbrier won't win that race Sat'dy?"

Spider reached for the money. "Fo' one hund'ed dollars, Brother Hallet, I'd guarantee life-long happiness to a bridal couple."

"An' also that yo' lips won't utter no soun's 'bout what has jes' happen' an' transpired betwix us?"

"Talkin' private affairs like'n to this," retorted Spider Hawkins with dignity, "is sumthin' I never does. 'Taint healthy!"

The jockey made his exit. In the anteroom sat a haunted looking Negro, who stared enviously at the sartorial perfection and trimphant swagger of the diminutive jockey. As the door closed behind Spider, Epidemic questioned the stenographer.

"Who him is?"

"Spider Hawkins."

"Which is ridin' out to the cullud fair?"

"You said it!"

"Hmm!" speculated Epidemic enviously. "He sho' is ridin' a winner in the big fo'th race Sat'dy. I'd like to have 'bout a hund'ed dollars down on Greenbrier. S'posin' you tells Mustuh Hallet I'se heah."

Two minutes later the rivals were alone. Epidemic's manner indicated excessive nervousness and not a little embarrassment. Dionyshus watched his visitor through half-closed eyes, probing for the reason.

"You wishes to see me, Epidemic?"

"I does."

"'Bout which?"

Epidemic came to the point with praiseworthy directness. "I is broke."

"You mos' usamly is."

"I needs money."

"That ain't no news to me."

Epidemic hitched his chair closer and lowered his voice. "I is jes' nachelly got to have some."

"Hmm! Got to have ain't is got. What I is gotten to do with yo' troubles?"

Epidemic waxed passionately loquacious. "You is my las' an' mos' best resoht, Brother Hallet. I ain't pawned nothin', 'countin' I ain't got nothin' to pawn. N'r neither I ain't been able to borry nothin' on account Flo'ian Slappey, which is the on'y feller I know which would loant me sumthin'——"

"You said it!" interjected the other discouragingly.

"— ain't in town. So I is come straight an' hones' to you, Brother Hallet to ast you fo' a loand of one hund'ed dollars."

Dionyshus rose and jerked his thumb toward the door. "Good mawnin', Mistuh Taylor."

"But, Brother Hallet——"

"I ain't hankerin' on talkin' with no crazy man. Good mawnin'! I'se busy."

"I—I needs that hund'ed dollars."

"So do I."

"But you is got a-plenty."

"An' if'n I loands you them hund'ed dollars Ise gwine have that much less. I requests you to leave me to myself."

Epidemic rose sadly to his feet. "Ain't you got no heart?"

"Yeh, but also I is got sense."

"Ise gwine pay you back."

"Nossuh you ain't. They ain't gwine be nothin' to pay back."

"If'n they was sumthin' to pay back, I'd sho' do it."

"You says."

"I knows. If'n I was to owe you that much money an' di'n't pay back you might could put me in jail. An' does you reckon I wan's to go to jail?"

"Ain't no tellin' what a man like'n to you wants."

"I'd leave town fust. . . ."

A thought struck Dionyshus. It slammed him right between the eyes. Epidemic was telling the truth: should he become hopelessly entangled in a web of debt with Dionyshus in the rôle of spider, chances were he'd leave town if the meshes proved too much for him. And with Epidemic removed far, far from Birmingham, Dionyshus faced a clear road to the hand of Miss Minervy Post.

Dionyshus rose and strolled to the window where he stood gazing thoughtfully down upon the traffic seethe of Eighteenth street: the clanging street cars, clattering trucks, clamorous taxicabs. Finally he turned.

"If'n I loands you a hund'ed dollars, Epidemic, when does you aim to repay same?"

Epidemic looked up with hope-filled eyes. "Ten days," he blurted optimistically.

"Hmm! Tha's a mighty sho't time."

"Tain't as short as no time a tall."

"If'n I gives you ninety dollars cash money does you give me yo' note fo' one hund'ed payable in ten days?"

"Fo' ninety dollars I gives you that an' also my las' pair of pants."

"Keep yo' pants, Brother Taylor. Yo' note is bad enough."

Epidemic laid a pleading hand on the arm of his to-be saviour. "Is you gwine do it?"

"All men is foolish sometimes," replied Dionyshus.

"You is a ginrous-hearted man, Brother Hallet."

Dionyshus scribbled a check and filled out a note. Both were signed. "If'n you don' pay that back I gives you hones' warnin', Epidemic, that I gits you in the lockup."

"If'n you does, Brother Hallet, you is sho' gwine be travellin'."

Epidemic rose to go. At the door he turned. "Brother Hallet."

"Yeh?"

"How c'n a feller which has a cash capital of ninety dollars make a heap of money quick?"

"It depen's on if'n he's got good sense."

"Bettin'?" queried Epidemic.

"P'raps."

"You is president of the cullud fair an' you knows a heap," wheedled the little Negro. "How 'bout bettin' this on Greenbrier in the fo'th race Sat'dy?"

"How you mean: what 'bout it?"

"Is Greenbrier gwine win?"

"She suttinly is."

"Is you gwine bet on her?"

Dionyshus did some quick thinking. By inducing Epidemic to wager his money on Greenbrier he would be making assurance of default doubly sure. He had just arranged that Greenbrier was to lose. And now, should Epidemic bet on that horse and lose, the money would go straight back into the pockets of Dionyshus Hallet, who was planning to play the certain winner of the race. Furthermore, it would result in Epidemic's sudden and complete departure from Birmingham for a permanent residence elsewhere. Said Dionyshus:

"I is bettin' on Greenbrier to win."

Epidemic grinned as he opened the door. "So is I," he flung over his shoulder. "An' thanks to you, Brother Hallet."

Left alone, Dionyshus smiled a crafty smile. "The po' simp," said he, "I is gotten him hooked fo' fair now. I gits me that money back by bettin' on Chris'mas Tree an' also I gits rid of Epidemic. Ise a clever man, I is."

To himself, as the elevator plumbed its shaft, Epidemic murmured: "Dionyshus Hallet mus' think I is as big fool as I looks. He tells me Greenbrier is gwine win that race. Which means that Greenbrier ain't gwine win it! Epidemic Taylor, it's up to you to fin' out which hawss is gwine win it."

* * * * * * * *

In the smoke-laden atmosphere of Bud Peaglar's Barbecue Lunch Room and Billiard Parlor, Epidemic Taylor insinuated his company upon Jockey Spider Hawkins. By dint of excessive labor he managed to lose five games of pool and five dollars to the dapper little racing man and thereafter bought the Spider two barbecue sandwiches and a soft drink. They made the street arm in arm. At the corner of Third avenue Epidemic suddenly disappeared into a dark doorway. When he rejoined the bewildered jockey Miss Minervy Post had passed.

"Why you duck like that, Brother Taylor?"

"Nawthin' special."

"You acted like you seen some one you owed money to."

"I done did."

"Meanin' Mistuh Hallet which was with that good lookin' gal?"

"He's him. Where at did they go?"

"Champeen theayter."

Epidemic shook his head. "He ain't no slow wukker, Brother Hallet ain't."

"Hot dam! You said it."

They strolled southward in silence. Suddenly Epidemic shot a statement at his new-found friend. "You is ridin' a loser at the fair groun's tomorrow!"

The jockey looked up in surprise. "Says which?"

"I says the fav'rite hawss Greenbrier, which you rides t'morrow, is gwine lose the fo'th race!"

"How come you to think such?"

"I don' think nothin'. I knows!"

"Then you knows: tha's all. But I says it's all a dirty shame to take the bestest hawss an' the bestest jockey an' make 'em lose."

"Tha's the way money is made," retorted Epidemic complacently. "Us is gwine make a killin', ain't we?"

"Reckon so. But I don' know who to git to bet my money fo' me."

"Lemme do it."

"How I know anything 'bout you?"

"I owes money to Dionyshus Hallet—ain't that proof I is trus'ful?"

Jockey Spider Hawkins handed over seventy-five dollars. "Bet that on the winner."

"Be mo' specificker, Brother Hawkins—so they won't be no misunderstandin'. Which hawss you means by name?"

Jockey Spider Hawkins lowered his voice. "Chris'mas Tree to win!"

The heart of Epidemic Taylor gave a wild, exultant surge. His strategy was bearing luscious fruit.

"You said it, Brother Hawkins. Chris'mas Tree is where my money hangs."

One hour later he was closeted with Boston Marble, betting agent for those layers of money who desired to remain under cover in any transaction of chance. Boston was noted for being discreet and tight-lipped. He counted over the money handed him by Epidemic.

"One hund'ed an' fifty dollars," he checked.

"Hund'ed an' fifty is cirrec'."

"How you want it bet?"

Epidemic drew a long breath: "I wants you to bet that whole hund'ed an' fifty dollars fo' me on Greenbrier to win!"

Jockey Spider Hawkins was waiting outside. "Bet it all?" he queried.

"I done."

"On which?"

"I bet you' sevumty-five an' sevumty-five of my own on Chris'mas Tree!"

"Good," exulted the Spider. "It's a shuah thing."

Epidemic's answer was Delphic. "You don' even know how shuah it is!"

The fair grounds were jammed. Dionyshus Hallet, president of the Northern District of Alabama Colored Fair Association, into whose pockets a tithe of every dollar expended was jingling, paced pompously about greeting friends of prominence: Rev'en' Plato Tubb, Urias Nesbit, Belshazzer Elliott, Lawyer Evans Chew, Dr. Vivian Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Quintus Weefalls . . . they were all there, the socially high and the socially higher; a jazzy riot of lavender and yellow, and violet, and brown . . . a very great deal of brown.

Dionyshus radiated gloriously. On the left lapel of his shiny Prince Albert he sported an enormous insignia which bespoke the fact that he was the one and only judge of the horse races which featured the day's amusement card. Dionyshus was no expert racing man, but, as he declared when he nominated himself for the position of racing judge, seconded his own nomination, and announced that as there was no opposition he was elected—a man doesn't need anything but a pair of eyes to tell him which horse has won.

From the opening the annual fair had been blessed with success. On this final day it was outdoing itself. The improvised paddock was crowded with dollar-itchy humanity trying to learn in an hour as much about the racing game as professionals have failed to learn in a lifetime. The talk was of horses horsey. Down the midway ballyhoo men vied raucously with one another: concessions were breaking all records for quick and easy money. Unfortunate winners at the lottery wheels staggered about under armsful of kewpie dolls, impossible candy, live ducks and turkeys, baskets of groceries, huge hams, Indian blanket robes.

Three of the four races on the afternoon's card had been run. The fourth was impending. The three bookmakers were taking wagers as fast as their assistants could said nothing. She was a very wise woman.

"Robin left me to go to the library, I am sure of that," Mary went on breathlessly.

"Why?" her mother asked.

The girl hesitated.

Then she said slowly:

"You and I have always been good pals, mother, so I may as well tell you. Robin had just asked me to marry him. So I told him I was engaged to Hartley. He went on in the most awful way and said that I was selling myself and . . ."

She broke off and raised her hands to her face. Then she put her elbows on the mantel shelf and burst into tears.

"O, it was hateful," she sobbed.

Her mother put her arm round her soothingly.

"Well, my dear," she said, "Robin was always fond of you and I daresay it was a shock to him. When men feel like that about a girl they generally say things they don't mean. . . ."

Mary Trevert straightened herself up and dropped her hands to her side. She faced her mother, the tear drops glistening on her long lashes.

"He meant it, every word of it. And he was perfectly right. I was selling myself and you know I was, mother. Do you think we can go on forever like this, living on credit and dodging tradesmen? I meant to marry Hartley and stick to him. But I never thought . . . I never guessed . . . that Robin . . ."

"I know, my dear," her mother interposed. "I know. Perhaps it doesn't sound a very proper thing to say in the circumstances, but now that poor Hartley is gone, there is no reason whatsoever why you and Robin . . ."

The Treverts were a hot tempered race. Lady Margaret's unfinished sentence seemed to infuriate the girl.

"Do you think I'd marry Robin Greve as long as I thought he knew the mystery of Hartley's death?" she cried passionately. "I was willing to give up my self-respect once to save us from ruin, but I won't do it again. I'm not surprised to find you thinking I am ready to marry Robin and live happy ever after on poor Hartley's money. But I've not sunk so low as that! If you ever mention this to me again, mother, I promise you I'll go away and never come back!"

"My dear child," temporized Lady Margaret, eyebrows raised in protest at this outburst, "of course, it shall be as you wish. I only thought . . ."

But Mary Trevert was not listening. She leaned on the mantel shelf, her dark head in her hands, and she murmured:

"The tragedy of it! My God, the tragedy of it!"

Lady Margaret twisted the rings on her long white fingers.

"The tragedy of it, my dear," she said, "is that you have sent away the man you love at a time when you will never need him so badly again. . . ."

There was a discreet tapping at the door.

"Come in!" said Lady Margaret.

Bude appeared.

THE GREEN LIGHT

By J. J. Bell

UNDER the moist, heavy darkness one had the sensation of moving in a tunnel, for here the road had been deeply hewn and blasted through a narrow spur that ran down to the sea. And since the road curved, one came abruptly into the lesser gloom of the open and heard the beat and break of the swell far below. One guessed rather than saw that the land on the right swept steeply up to the mountains, and on the left dropped sheer to the beach. Daylight would have discovered a stout, though rather low, wall, skirting the precipice, and on the opposite side of the road a cot of the usual crofter type, yet with a trimness of its own.

In the mirk I saw nothing but a small green light, clear as emerald, motionless, a tall man's height, I imagined, above the ground, and perhaps fifty yards ahead.

"What is yonder?" I asked of my companion, and halted because he did so. I had a suspicion that he crossed himself furtively.

"It is the light of Anna Macleod," he answered. "And now we will be going back, sir, and maybe you will get to the inn with a dry skin—and maybe you will not, for it is four miles, and the rain is coming fast. Oh, it will be a dirty night—a dirty night, I can tell you."

He was on his way before he finished speaking. In the week I had thus far spent on the island, or, rather, on its chief loch, I had learned that it profited to humor old Hector (whose manner of speech I make no attempt to record), not only in the matters of sea fishing and sailing a boat. So, meekly enough, I overtook him and fell into step.

At last, as we strode the open hillside again, he emitted a heavy breath containing the syllable "Ay!" Another score of paces, and he said:

"So you have seen the light of Anna Macleod, and it is going to be a dirty night, and I am thinking if it was the winter now it would be as dirty a night as the first night of the green light, two and twenty years past, in the month of February.

"Oh, but yon was a terrible dirty night. For weeks it had been cold, cold; I never saw so much snow on the island. Then the wind changed and blew soft from the south, and all at once it seemed to get warm, and the snow up yonder began to melt. And on the second day, about three o'clock in the afternoon, there was what they call a cloudburst, just over where we are now. Some of the people were thinking it was the end of the world, for there was thunder and lightning, too. The burns could not hold the water. It came down the hills like—like—I do not know what. It was worst at the place where you saw the green light. There it came in deep, wide rivers, and heather and rocks, ay, and sheep came, too. It burst through the seawall, and a great piece fell out of the road in front of Anna Macleod's house—it was her father's then—and down to the shore: a fearful hole that got deeper and broader till the water got less. But, God, what a miracle!—Macleod's house stood fast! There was but six feet of road left between its door and the edge of the hole—and it stood fast!"

"And so," I said, like an ass, "the green light is a sort of memorial, perhaps."

Ten minutes passed ere Hector deigned to speak another word. Then he resumed as though there had been no interruption.

"Well, well; the flood got smaller and smaller and the wind went up to the nor'-west. But the dark was coming. A lot of us looked at the hole in the road—there was nothing else we could do. The road was broken in other places, telegraph poles were down. . . . No, there was nothing could be done, except to put up a warning. 'We must have a red lamp,' I said; and they all said it was a very good notion. But nobody knew where to find one. Then Duncan MacTavish said he thought he had a green one in his shed; so we bid him run home hard, and at long last he came back with an old starboard light. Well, we cleaned it, and filled it, and lighted it, and put it up on Macleod's wall to be a warning in the terrible dark night. Then I sent young fellows to the village and all round about, to tell the people. And if any man was forced to take the road at night, he must walk as close as he could to the green light on Macleod's house."

Hector paused to relight his pipe.

"I was not thinking of many people who would need the warning," he resumed, thoughtfully; "maybe only of two—Angus MacVicar and Donald Maclennan, the cousins who were not good friends. Now I will tell you that Anna Macleod then had half the young men after her. A fine lass, but so proud that nobody could guess which she favored. Still, some of us were thinking that it would be one of the cousins, for they were forever hanging about the house in the evenings. This went on for months and months, and then all of a sudden, on the day before the storm, it came out in a whisper that Donald Maclennan had got her. He was a good lad, anyway, was Donald. So at first I was pretty sure that Donald would take the road that night, though what made me think of Angus, too, I cannot tell you. But afterwards, when the nor'west wind was blowing a hurricane, and the hail was like to break the window, I did not think that any man, except he was clean mad, would take the road on that black, blind night for any lass in the world. Anna Macleod was thinking the same, I am sure, for it was her that got the great surprise when Donald's mother, that was a widow, came early in the morning, asking for her Donald, because he had not been home all the night.

"Ay; it was Anna that got the great surprise—first, when she opened the door to Donald's mother, and, once more, when she saw the starboard light, still burning, sitting on the road, at the edge of the great hole, not far from where the wall had been, and on the far side of the hole as you came from the village. . . . And after a while they found Donald down on the shore, all broken, and colder than his oilskins."

"The cousin!" I let out before I knew.

"Maybe it was Angus MacVicar that shifted the light," he said. "Angus was not to be found on the island, and, four days after, his motor boat was picked up by a trawler in the Sound, full of water. And everybody said that Angus was drowned, for it must have been a terrible sea, and dark, when he tried to cross. . . . But Anna said nothing—nothing at all. And that night she put the starboard light up on the wall, and every night for two and twenty years you would have seen the green shining as you have seen it this night."

Very respectfully I asked Hector if he had any theory of the green light's significance as it concerned the woman.

After considerable reflection, he said:

"I will tell you one thing. About three years ago a woman went to see Anna about some tweed. It was just beginning to grow dark. The woman got no answer to her knocking, but she had come a long way and did not want to go back without making sure. So she looked in at the window. There was the green light burning on the table; and there was Anna, on her knees on the floor, praying to it. . . . Now I will ask you a question, and you can answer it to yourself, for I have my own answer already, and it is secret. Is it Donald Maclennan or Angus MacVicar that Anna will be seeing in the lamp?".

I did not visit the island next year, but in the summer following I was there again. The weather was atrocious—cold, wet, stormy—and I was forced to spend much of my holiday ashore. I dislike walking, but there was nothing better to be done. However, had the circumstances been otherwise, I might not have made the acquaintance of Anna Macleod.

It came about quite naturally. I was passing her house in the beginnings of a wild squall; she happened to be at the door, and invited me to take shelter. More, she insisted on making me a cup of tea. I judged her to be little over forty, though there was gray in her black hair; she was a fine looking woman. Her manner was as gentle as her voice. She was not badly off as things went on the island. Her father had inherited a little money, and it had come to her intact. She was industrious at her loom and, oddly enough, she was an adept at old Scandinavian embroidery; of course, there is Norse in the Macleods. Also, she had read more than most educated women of the cities. I had some books at the inn, and next day I fetched them along, and we became friendly. Old Hector wagged his head when I told him of it.

One afternoon, towards the end of my holiday, I found her, though hospitable as ever, less disposed to talk. Her frank eyes seemed to reflect mental strain, and I fancied the fine tan of her face had paled. Did her head ache, I asked her. She answered that there was a strangeness in her head, but not a pain. She asked me, as we chatted, about the guests at the inn. I told her of the three anglers, of the elderly gentleman who read guide books in the little smoking room while his two muscular daughters climbed the mountains; also that a new guest was expected by the afternoon steamer. She thought it would be a fine thing to travel; she had not been to the mainland for more than twenty years. Of course, that brought to my mind the green light, a subject which, somehow, I had never ventured to mention.

I must have taken my leave earlier than usual, for I arrived at the inn as the steamer was backing out from the pier. The boots was carrying in a couple of suitcases much decorated with the labels of New York and other American city hotels and bearing the name J. M. Parson.

Mr. Parson was my companion at dinner—a dark, well set up man of fifty or so, with carefully trimmed beard and whiskers, turning gray, a kindly smile and wistful, melancholy eyes. He was friendly in an unobtrusive fashion. We found ground for sympathy in the fact that neither of us cared for angling or climbing mountains. He told me he was a Scotsman who had spent most of his life in the United States. This was his first holiday in many years, and he was "doing" his native country. A friend had recommended the island as being typical of the remoter parts, and he had decided to give three days to it. Did I know it well? As a stranger, almost a foreigner, he would be glad of any information respecting the place and its people. I told him what I could, and suggested for the morrow a trip in my boat or a land excursion, as the weather permitted. He accepted readily and with a graciousness that was charming.

Afterwards he went upstairs and I to the smoking room to be made drowsy by the anglers' tales and the sight of the elderly gentleman of the guide books. By ten o'clock I was quite ready for bed.

My room was over the inn door. Voices came up from the porch.

". . . a good walk . . . sleeping badly . . . do you lock up?"

More distinctly the landlord replied: "Ay, we turn in pretty early here, sir; but the front door is always open. . . . Yes, the moon will soon be setting, but it will be a fine clear night. Good night, sir."

Mr. Parson walked into the road, halted, looked east and west, apparently considering, turned abruptly, and went westwards.

He did not come back. . . .

A clew was given by a crofter who had passed near the tunnellike part of the road shortly after eleven o'clock, and the search party, working along the shore, found him at the foot of the cliff, early in the forenoon. A county councillor declared that he would not rest until the dangerous wall was raised by at least twelve inches.

I was present when the constable called on Anna Macleod.

"Miss Macleod," he said, pointing to a footprint, certainly not native, on the soft grass beside the doorstep, "I am thinking the poor gentleman might have been at your door before he took the fit, or whatever it was."

"Yes; it might have been he," said Anna. "A gentleman knocked about half-past eleven and asked how far he was from the village. I told him, and he went away."

"Was he looking ill?"

"I did not see—it was dark then."

"Ay, ay; and so it was. Did you hear anything afterwards?"

"No. I went to my bed and heard nothing."

"Well, well; it must have been a fit. I suppose he came to your house, seeing the green light."

"Ay, he would see the green light," said Anna in her gentle voice.

The innkeeper was waiting for me; I had become of absurd importance as being the one person with whom poor Parson had held any sustained conversation; but when the constable left I had a word with Anna.

"You must not think too much of this tragic affair," I said, and she gave a little nod of acquiescence. "And in spite of it," I went on, "you look better than you did yesterday."

"I am very well," she said. "I am thinking I have not felt so well for a long time—a long time."

I shook hands with her and rejoined the impatient innkeeper, who bored me dreadfully over the four miles. The truth is, I was half in love with Anna Macleod—alas, the folly of fifty!

We had just finished dinner—a melancholy enough meal—when I was told that Hector wished to see me.

"Will you be for a walk, sir, this fine night?"

I was not much surprised when he turned westwards. It was a warm, velvety night. Not a word did he speak until we were in the tunnel. Then he said softly, almost as if to himself——

"There was a brown mark, the size of a sixpence, on the third finger of his left hand. I saw it when they lifted him from the rocks. . . . I saw it when he used to pull the boat for me at the saithe fishing, long and long ago. . . . They nearly always come back to the place. . . . Anna knew. . . . And the green light was like the eye of a serpent. . . . And so he threw himself over. . . ."

Hector clutched my arm with one hand and crossed himself with the other.

"Now you will see!" he whispered, and we stepped into the open.

But I saw nothing. There was no green light.

write. Greenbrier was ruling favorite at five to three. A heavy play had stamped a nag named Happy Days as second choice at two to one. Nabob was receiving a play at four to one, but little attention was being paid Christmas Tree at ten to one.

Quietly and unobtrusively bets ranging from five to ten dollars each made their way into the betting ring, and all were placed on Christmas Tree. His price dropped to eight to one. Through the crowd circulated Epidemic Taylor, tense and eager, tracing the Christmas Tree bets from source to bookie and from bookie back again to source. The same always: it was Dionyshus who was laying the Christmas Tree wagers—and, being a sure-thing man and the judge of the day's races—Epidemic knew that Dionyshus knew that Christmas Tree was destined for victory: had been well groomed for a killing.

Fifteen minutes before bugle time Epidemic saw Dionyshus coming toward him. Epidemic turned and started for one of the betting stands. Glancing over his shoulder, he made certain that Dionyshus was following. He hesitated long enough for Dionyshus to be within earshot and then he shoved two one dollar bills into the bookie's face.

"Two dollars on Christmas Tree to win," he proclaimed loudly.

Dionyshus started in surprise. Epidemic turned away, then swung back and handed the bookie another dollar. "An' one mo' dollar on Christmas Tree," he emphasized.

He shoved by the bewildered Dionyshus to the next stand. There the performance was repeated. Two one-dollar bets were placed on Christmas Tree to win . . . and it was then that Dionyshus grabbed him by the arm.

"Cullud boy," rasped the big man, "is you plumb foolish?"

"Yeh! Like a fox."

"You is bettin' on Christmas Tree."

"Infohm me sumthin' I don't know. An' lemme be, 'cause I craves to place the res' of my money on that same winnin' hawss."

Dionyshus felt himself traveling around in circles. Epidemic betting on Christmas Tree and Christmas Tree certain to win at long odds! That meant a young fortune for the little negro and an inevitable sequel to matrimony with Minervy Post cast in the role of matrimonee.

"B-b-but," stammered Dionyshus, "di'n't I tell you Greenbrier was gwine win?"

Epidemic met his eyes squarely. "You suttinly did, Mistuh Hallet, an' the minute you done same I knowed that Greenbrier was not gwine win!"

"Y-y-y-you figgered that, right outen yo' own haid?"

"Right outen my own haid. An' knowin' that Greenbrier wa'n't gwine win, I figgered out which hawss was. An' all that money, Brother Hallet, 'ceptin' on'y ten dollars which I has spent an' espended fo' eatments, has been bet on Christmas Tree to win! An' now, Brother Hallet, I craves you to make way fo' me 'cause Ise a busy man."

Dionyshus fell back a step. "Wigglin' tripe!" hue muttered, "he's gwine cl'ar up 'bout seven hund'ed dollars!"

Epidemic paused only for a Parthian shot. "I stan's to git me a bankroll, Brother Hallet, which is gwine pay all espenses of the swellest honeymoon you ever hearn tell of. An' the pahty of the secon' paht is gwine have a maiden name of Minervy!"

Epidemic faded into the crowd. Dionyshus gasped for air. His hated rival betting on the horse which he, Dionyshus, had planted for a killing. Epidemic about to make seven hundred dollars clear profit with money Dionyshus had loaned! It was unthinkable—horrible beyond belief.

Victory for Christmas Tree spelled affluence for Epidemic and a state of absolute defunctness for Dionyshus' connubial ambitions. Already the big man had risked ninety dollars to insure the expunging of the name of Epidemic Taylor from the list of candidates for the hand of the voluptuous Minervy.

And finally a great resolve was born in the breast of Mr. Dionyshus Hallet, great magnificent mogul of all things connected with the Northern District of Alabama Colored Fair Association. He clenched one flabby fist and promised himself a sacred promise.

"That gal Minervy is wuth a heap mo'n money! An' Epidemic 'll be healthier some place else than Bummin'ham. Ise gwine see he goes there!"

Epidemic and Minervy recoiled from the accidental collision at the corner of the ramshackle grandstand. Epidemic conscripted an expression of surprised delight and plastered it all over his face.

"Well, I'll swanny if'n 'taint Minervy Post. Where has you been at these las' sev'al days, Minervy?"

Minervy frowned skeptically. "Ain't be'n no place you coul'n't of foun' me, Mistuh Taylor."

"Yassum, you has, too. I ain't been able to locate you nowheres a tall. I is got some money fo' you: 'bout a hund'ed dollars."

Her hand was stretched forth. "Gimme it."

"Whaffo?"

"I wants to bet some of it on this race."

"Hawss name of which?"

She lowered her voice. "Chris'mas Tree!"

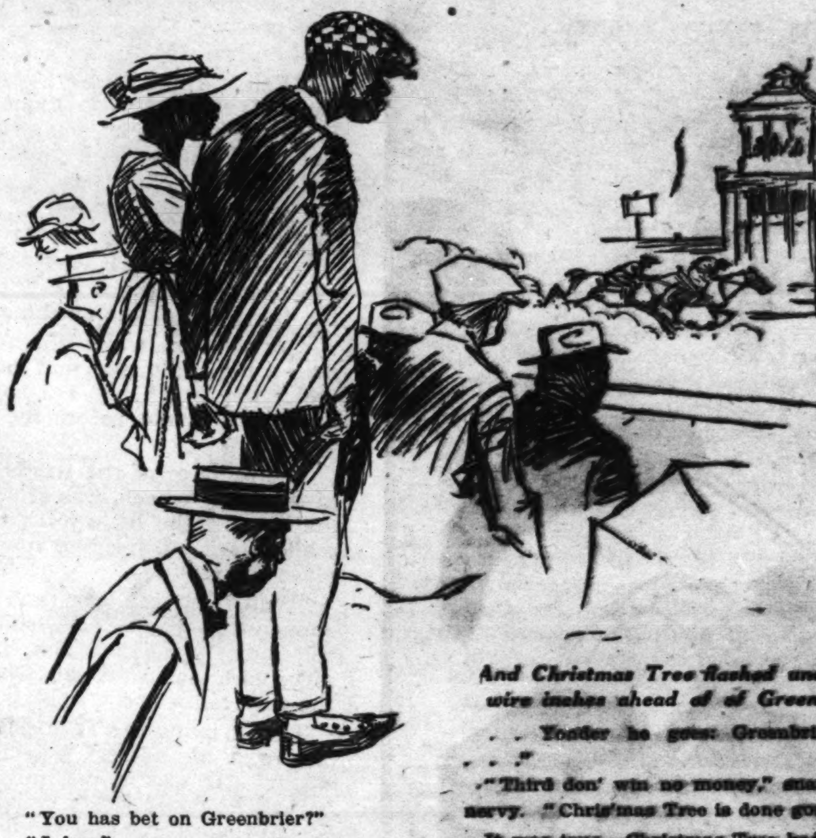
"Shucks! Greenbrier's gwine win."

"He ain't, neither."

"He is, too. He's the bestest hawss in the race, ain't he?"

"Yeh, but Dionyshus Hallet is judge of the racin' an' he tol' me to bet on Chris'mas Tree."

Epidemic spoke positively. "What that man ain't got is no brains, Minervy. Greenbrier is gwine win."



And Christmas Tree flashed under the wire inches ahead of ol' Greenbrier.

"You has bet on Greenbrier?"

"I has."

"Well, you gimme my hund'ed dollars. I craves to get it on Chris'mas Tree."

"No'm. I ain't gwine let you pull no foolishment like'n to that."

"It's my money."

"I ain't sayin' 'taint, honey; but seein' as I is yo' future husban' I is gwine keep you fum makin' feenancial mistakes."

"My future husban', you says?"

"Tha's my echo."

Minervy's head went two points higher. "A man what ain't got no mo'n what you ain't got, ain't got no call talkin' 'bout makin' ma'iage with no gal."

"What I is got is some sense. Sense 'bout racin' an' sense 'bout wantin' to ma'y you. An' I says you ain't gwine have that money ontil after this heah race is ran. So don' make no mo' talk bouten it."

Minervy did make more talk bouten it. She made plenty of talk, but it didnt carry her any appreciable distance. Finally she hooked her arm through that of Epidemic and together they took up positions at the fence opposite the judges' stand.

Epidemic was nervous, extremely so. He knew that he was taking a long chance. But taking long chances had become an absolute necessity.

He was banking entirely on Dionyshus' hatred of himself and on that gentleman's love for Miss Minervy Post. Dionyshus, he knew, had wagered heavily on Christmas Tree, yet Epidemic had bet that Dionyshus' passion for Minervy was greater than his love for money. He had played his hunch straight and to the limit, and, possessed of additional capital, he would have plunged yet more heavily.

"Fo'," he reasoned, "what the good Lawd give a feller brains fo' if'n 'tain't to use 'em?"

Epidemic's scheme was so complicated as to be simple. He had convinced Dionyshus that he bet on Christmas Tree. No one, and least of all Dionyshus, suspected that his money was all placed on the chances of Greenbrier. The small amounts laid on Christmas Tree had been by way of camouflage and Epidemic knew that his rival was duly impressed and considerably bewildered.

The bugle sounded clear and shrill in the afternoon air. There was a colored surge from the paddock and betting ring for places of vantage along the fence. The seven entries, with their silk-clad jockeys, paraded before the judges' stand, saluted the portly and pompous Dionyshus, whirled and eddied about under the hoarse bellowings of the starter.

The race was for one mile. It was the final event of a five day program which had jazzed Darktown to its roots. Every available penny of surplus cash was wagered, one way or the other, on this particular race. And finally——

"Yonder they go!" howled Epidemic, pressing sinewy fingers into Minervy's rounded arm until that lady winced. "Yonder they is. . . . Hot dog! see 'em run. . . . Nabob in front—that don't mean nothing. . . . Chris'mas Tree secon'. . . . Happy Days third. . . . Greenbrier fo'th. . . ."

"Tol' you you was foolish bettin' on Greenbrier."

"Tellin' me foolish ain't is foolish. C'mon, you Greenbrier! Yo' daddy's lookin' at you. . . . Yonder he goes: Greenbrier thi'd. . . ."

"Third don' win no money," snapped Minervy. "Chris'mas Tree is done gone fust!"

It was true. Christmas Tree had spurted on the lower turn, passed Nabob and cut into the rail. Up the back stretch they fled; three smooth-running horses busy distancing a tiring field. Then Nabob commenced to falter. Jockey Spider Hawkins, up on Greenbrier, gave the reins slightly and the horse responded with a sudden spurt which carried her by Nabob. A shriek of frenzied delight split the afternoon air.

Then Christmas Tree, groomed for a killing and running at the top of his form, settled down for a gruelling finish with Greenbrier. The Spider was riding his mount easily; working closer and closer to the swiftly moving long shot, making his plans to take the turn safely and pass ahead on the stretch.

The crowd was delirious. Christmas Tree had been lightly played and the money and sympathy of the spectators were with Greenbrier. Epidemic, seeing the apparent ease with which Christmas Tree was maintaining the lead, commenced to grow apprehensive. He did not know enough about racing to understand that the Spider had Greenbrier well in hand for a strong finish, nor did he know that Dionyshus' frenzied search for Jockey Spider Hawkins just before the race had been unsuccessful.

They whirled into the stretch far ahead of the field, Greenbrier swinging wide and Christmas Tree hugging the rail. But Christmas Tree was beginning to tire, and the little ebony jockey went out on his neck, hand-riding the mount.

The spectators formed into one yelling, howling mob. The spirit of it probed the usually equable soul of Epidemic Taylor and directed his shouting——

"C'mon Greenbrier! C'mon home to yo' Pappy! Yo' daddy loves you, ol' Greenbrier! You is runnin', Greenbrier—beatin' hawses like'n to that is 'bout the easiest thing you does. Hot dam! hawss, I sees you comin'. . . ."

The dust rose behind the racers in a thick cloud. In the judge's stand, Dionyshus leaned over the rail and stared intently. He inbreathed audibly. Christmas Tree and Greenbrier were neck and neck now . . . and suddenly Greenbrier stumbled.

It was only for an instant, but the crowd saw. A groan of agony rose heavenward. Thrown off his stride for the fraction of a second, Greenbrier yielded the lead to the flying, game little Christmas Tree.

They came closer to the finish—closer. The howling mob had become quiet now, save for here and there the hysterical screeching of some woman who had bet a dollar. Quietly Spider Hawkins edged forward on his mount . . . once he brought his whip down. . . .

Greenbrier surged ahead. His nose passed that of Christmas Tree. He led by a half length. A wild pean of joy arose from the inclosure. Greenbrier's race. . . .

Then something went wrong! Jockey Spider Hawkins settled back in his seat. His sinewy fingers wrapped around the reins and Epidemic distinctly saw him yank at the head of his mount. Greenbrier, startled, faltered. They were at the wire now . . . almost under it.

And in that instant Christmas Tree threw the last ounce of effort into the finish. There was a leap, a howl——

And Christmas Tree flashed under the wire inches ahead of Greenbrier!

Epidemic heard nothing but silence! And then, from the void, came the sound of Minervy's reproachful voice——

"What you knows 'bout hawses, Epidemic—jes' nachelly ain't!"

Epidemic made no answer. There was no answer to make. To himself he thought: "That ol' skunk Dionyshus. He thunk mo' of the money he was gwine make than he did of Minervy!"

The spectators stood as though dazed. The unexpected reversal of form in the last few strides had generated a community paralysis.

And then Dionyshus Hallet rose in the judges' stand for the official announcement. The silence of the crowd became more so.

Dionyshus' eyes lighted on the cowed figure of Epidemic slinking against the rail. And Dionyshus expanded muchly to his triumph of power.

"Fo'th an' las' race," he bellowed through his battered megaphone. "Chris'mas Tree come in fust, but is disqualified fo' foulin'. Official finish as follers: Greenbrier fust——"

For a split-second Epidemic stood as one in a trance. Then, as the sense of the situation percolated through his slow-working brain, his figure stiffened. Suddenly he raised his head and a wild yell split the air.

"Greenbrier wins!" He whirled and leaped for the betting ring. "Wait fo' me, Minervy. I an' you gits ma'ied in thutty minutes! O-o-oh! Greenbrier wins an' Dionyshus wan him!"

* * * * * * * * * *

Fifteen minutes later Epidemic Taylor burst wild-eyed into the dressing room of Jockey Spider Hawkins. He found that racing gentleman excessively disconsolate.

"Tain't that I min' pullin' a hawss," bemoaned Spider, "but to have yo' own man double-cross you. . . ."

Epidemic waved two hundred dollars under Spider's nose. "Smell 'em, Spider; an' smell 'em good. Them is real ginuwine moneys, Spider, an' they is all your'n!"

"Mine?"

"You said it! Yo' sevumty-five dollars, an' a hund'ed an' twenty-five mo' what it won on Greenbrier! An' the same also fo' me."

"Greenbrier?" echoed the dazed Spider.

"You speechified. I knowed all the time Chris'mas Tree wa'n't gwine win, an' so I bet it thataway."

"An' you also is two hund'ed dollars in the clear?"

Epidemic shook his head. "Not prezac'ly. I owes all the two hund'ed dollars what I is got. . . ."

Spider divided his roll and handed half of it to Epidemic. "Tha's yo' rakeoff," he said generously. "One hund'ed fo' yo' ve'y own se'f."

"Aw, Spider——"

"Take it, Epidemic. An' that leaves me with a hund'ed mo'n I thought I had."

Epidemic took it. "Honeymoon expenses," he said. Then his voice dropped confidentially. "How come Chris'mas Tree to foul you?"

Spider looked up in surprise. "Tha's the funny paht of it, Brother Taylor. Chris'mas Tree never fouled me a tall! I never been so s'prised in my life as when Dionyshus Hallet 'squalified that hawss. He never fouled me a tall—an' I asts you now—ain't that a funny thing what Mistuh Hallet done does?"

"Funny?" chortled Epidemic. "Funny? You bet yo' soup it's funny. On'y you don' know yit how funny it is. An' neither does Mistuh Dionyshus Hallet! But Ise gwine tell him! Ise gwine tell him the whole story jes' as soon as I an' his gal is safely married!"

sected rose beds cut into all manner of fantastic shapes, where stood the slender shoots of the young rose trees, each with its tag setting forth its kind, for Hartley Parrish had been an enthusiastic amateur in this direction.

Robin turned round and faced the house. From his elevation he could look down into the library through the window with its shattered pane. He could see the gleaming polish on Hartley Parrish's big desk and the great arm chair pushed back as Hartley Parrish had pushed it from him just before his death.

The bare poles of the woodwork festooned with the black arms of the creeping roses, standing out dark in the fast falling winter evening, must, he reflected, have been the last view that Hartley Parrish had had before . . .

But then he broke off his meditations abruptly. His eye had fallen on a narrow white patch standing out on one of the uprights supporting the clambering roses.

It was a stout young tree, the light brown bark left adhering to its surface. It was a long blaze on the bark on the side of the trunk which had caught his eye. Robin walked round the gravel path until he was within a foot of the pole to get a better view.

The pole stood almost exactly opposite the library window. The scar in the bark was high up and diagonal and quite freshly made, for the wood was dead white and much splintered.

The young man put a hand on the upright for support and leaned forward, carefully refraining from putting his foot on the soft brown mould of the flower bed which fringed the path between it and the rustic woodwork. Then he ran lightly down the steps until he stood with his back to the library window. From here he carefully surveyed the upright again, then, returning to the rosary, began a careful scrutiny of the gravel paths and the beds.

Apparently his search gave little result, for he presently abandoned it and turned his attention to the wooden framework on the other side of the rectangular rose-garden. He plunged boldly in among the rose-bushes and examined each upright in turn. He spent about half an hour in this meticulous investigation and then, his boots covered with mould, his rough shooting coat glistening with moisture, he walked slowly down the steps and reëntered the house.

As he was wiping the mud off his boots on the great mat in the front-hall, Bude came out of the lounge-hall with a pile of dishes on a tray.

"Bude," said Robin, "can you tell me if the fire in the library has been smoking of late?"

"Well, sir," replied the butler, "we've always had trouble with that chimney when the wind's in the southwest."

"Has it been smoking lately?" The young man reiterated his question impatiently.

The man looked up in surprise.

"Well, sir, now you come to mention it, it has. As a matter o' fact, sir, the sweep was ordered for today . . ."

"Why?"

"Well, sir, Mr. Parrish had mentioned it to me . . ."

"When?"

The question came out like a pistol shot.

"Yesterday, sir," answered the butler blandly. "Just before luncheon it was, sir. Mr. Parrish told me to have that chimney seen to at once. And I telephoned for the sweep immediately after luncheon, sir."

"Did Mr. Parrish say anything else, Bude?"

Robin eagerly scanned the butler's fat, unimpressive countenance. Bude, his tray held out stiffly in front of him, contracted his bushy eyebrows in thought.

"I don't know as he did, sir. . . ."

"Think, man, think!" Robin urged.

"Well, sir," said Bude unmoved, "I believe, now I come to think of it, that Mr. Parrish did say something about the wind blowing his papers about. . . ."

"That is to say he had been working with the window open?"

Robin Greve's question rang out sharply. It was an affirmation more than a question.

"Yes, sir, leastways I suppose so, sir."

"Which window?"

"Why, the one Mr. Parrish always liked to have open in the warm weather, sir . . . the one opposite the desk. The other window was never opened, sir, because of the dictaphone as stands in front of it. The damp affects the mechanism. . . ."

"Thank you, Bude," said the young man.

With his accustomed majesty the butler wheeled to go. In the turn of his head as he moved there was a faint suggestion of a shake . . . a shake of uncomprehending pity.

Dr. Romain was just finishing his breakfast as Robin Greve entered the dining-room, a cosy oak-paneled room with a bow window fitted with cushioned window seats. Horace Trevert stood with his back to the fire. There was no sign of either Lady Margaret or of Mary. Silence seemed to fall on both the doctor and his companion as Robin came in. They wore that rather abashed look which people unconsciously assume when they break off a conversation on an unexpected entry.

"Morning, Horace! Morning, doctor!" said Robin, crossing to the sideboard. "Any sign of Lady Margaret or Mary yet?"

The doctor had risen hastily to his feet.

"I rather think Dr. Redman is expecting me," he said rapidly. "I half promised to go over to Stevenish . . . think I'll just run over. The walk'll do me good. . . ."

He looked rather wildly about him, then fairly bolted from the room.

Robin, the cover of the porridge dish in his hand, turned and stared at him.

"Why, whatever's the matter with Romain?" he began.

But Horace, who had not spoken a word, was himself halfway to the door.

"Horace!" called out Robin sharply.

The boy stopped with his back towards the other. But he did not turn round.

Robin put the cover back on the porridge dish and crossed the room.

"You all seem in the deuce of a hurry this morning . . ." he said.

Still the boy made no reply.

"Why, Horace, what's the matter?"

Robin put his hand on young Trevert's shoulder. Horace shook him roughly off.

"I don't care to discuss it with you, Robin!" he said.

Robin deliberately swung the boy round until he faced him.

"My dear old thing," he expostulated. "What does it all mean? What won't you discuss with me?"

Horace Trevert looked straight at the speaker. His upper lip was pouted and trembled a little.

"What's the use of talking?" he said. "You know what I mean. Or would you like me to be plainer . . ."

Robin met his gaze unflinchingly.

"I certainly would," he said, "if it's going to enlighten me as to why you should suddenly choose to behave like a lunatic . . ."

Horace Trevert leaned back and thrust his hands into his pockets.

"After what happened here yesterday," he said, speaking very clearly and deliberately," I wonder you have the nerve to stay."

"My dear Horace," said Robin quite impassively, "would you mind being a little more explicit? What precisely are you accusing me of? What have I done?"

"Done?" exclaimed the young man heatedly. "Done? Good God! Don't you realize that you have dragged my sister into this wretched business? Don't you understand that her name will be bandied about before a lot of rotten yokels at the inquest?"

Robin Greve's eyes glittered dangerously.

"I confess," he said with elaborate politeness, "I scarcely understand what it has to do with me that Hartley Parrish should apparently commit suicide within a few days of becoming engaged to your sister. . . ."

"Ha!"

Horace Trevert snorted indignantly.

"You don't understand, don't you? We don't understand either. But, I must say, we thought you did!"

With that he turned to go. But Robin caught him by the arm.

"Listen to me, Horace," he said. "I'm not going to quarrel with you in this house of death. But you're going to tell me here and now what you meant by that remark. Do you understand? I'm going to know!"

Horace Trevert shook himself free.

"Certainly you shall know," he answered with hauteur, "but I must say I should have thought that, as a lawyer and so on, you would have guessed my meaning without my having to explain. What I mean is that now that Hartley Parrish is dead, there is only one man who knows what drove him to his death. And that's yourself! Do you want it plainer than that?"

Robin took a step back and looked at his friend. But he did not speak.

"And now," the boy continued, "perhaps you will realize that your presence here is disagreeable to Mary. . . ."

"Did Mary ask you to tell me this?" Robin broke in.

His voice had lost its hardness. It was almost wistful. The change of tone was so marked that it struck Horace. He hesitated an instant.

"Yes," he blurted out. "She doesn't want to see you again. I don't want to be offensive, Robin. . . ."

"Please don't apologize," said Greve. "I quite understand that this is your sister's house now and of course I shall leave at once. I'll ask Jay to pack my things if you could order the car. . . ."

The boy moved towards the door. Before he reached it Robin called him back.

"Horace," he said pleasantly, "before you go I want you to answer me a question. Think before you speak, because it's very important. When you got into the library yesterday evening through the window, you smashed the glass, didn't you?"

Horace Trevert nodded.

"Yes," he replied, looking hard at Robin. "Why?"

"To get into the room, of course!"

"Was the window bolted?"

The boy stopped and thought.

"No," he said slowly, "now I come to think of it, I don't believe it was. No, of course it wasn't. I just put my arm through the broken pane and shoved the window up. But why do you ask?"

"O, nothing," answered Robin nonchalantly. "I just was curious to know, that's all!"

Horace stood and looked at him for an instant. Then he went out.

A quarter of an hour later Hartley Parrish's Rolls Royce glided through the straggling main street of Stevenish. A chapel bell tinkled unmusically and on the pavements gleaming with wet went a procession of neatly dressed townsfolk bound, prayer book in hand, for their respective places of worship. A newsboy, sorting out the Sunday newspapers, which had just come down by train from London, was the only figure visible on the little station platform. Robin bought a selection.

"There's all about Mr. Parrish," said the boy, "'im as they found dead up at 'Arkings las' night. And the noospapers 'asn't 'arf been sendin' down today . . . reporters and photographers . . . you oughter seen the crowd as come by the mornin' train. . . ."

"I wonder what they'll get our of Manderton," commented Robin rather grimly to himself as his train puffed leisurely after the habit of Sunday trains, into the quiet little station.

In the solitude of his first class smoker he unfolded the newspapers. None had more than the brief fact that Hartley Parrish had been found dead with a pistol in his hand but they made up for the briefness of their reports by long accounts of the dead man's "meteoric career." And, Robin noted with relief, Mary Trevert's name was out of the picture.

He dropped the papers onto the seat and as the train steamed serenely through the Sunday calm of the country towards London's outer suburbs, he reviewed in his mind such facts as he had gleaned regarding the circumstances of his late host's death.

He would, he told himself, accept for the time being as facts what, he admitted to himself, so far only seemed to be such. Hartley Parrish, then, had been seated in his library at his desk with the door locked. The fire was smoking and therefore he had opened the window. According to Horace Trevert, the window had not been bolted when he had entered the library, for, after smashing the pane in the assumption that the bolt was shot, he had had no difficulty in pushing up the window. Hartley Parrish had opened the window himself, for, on the nail of the middle finger of his left hand, Robin had seen, with the aid of the magnifying glass, a tiny fragment of white paint.

Who had closed it? He had no answer ready to that question.

Now as to the circumstances of the shooting. The suicide theory invited one to believe that Hartley Parrish had got up from his desk, pushing back his chair, had gone round it until he stood between the desk and the window, and had there shot himself through the heart. Why should he have done this?

Robin had no answer ready to this question either. He passed on again. Bude had heard loud voices a very few minutes before Mary had heard the shot. That morning's experiments had shown that Bude could only have heard these sounds by way of the open window of the library and the open doors of the garden and the library corridor. Additional proof, if Bude had heard aright, that the library window was open.

Leaning back in his seat, his finger tips pressed together, Robin Greve resolutely faced the situation to which his deductions were leading him.

"The voice heard at the open window," he told himself, "was the voice of the man who murdered Parrish and who closed the window, that is, of course, if the murder theory proves more conclusive than that of suicide."

This brought him back to his investigations in the rose garden. The abrasure he had discovered on the timber upright was the mark of a bullet and a mark freshly made at that. Moreover, it had almost certainly been fired from the library window—from the window which Parrish had opened; the angle at which it had struck and marked the tree showed that almost conclusively.

Yet there had been but one shot! If only he had been able to find that bullet in the rose garden! Robin thought ruefully of his long hunt among the sopping rose bushes.

Yes, there had been only one shot. Mary Trevert had stated it definitely. Besides the bullet that had killed Hartley Parrish had been fired from his own revolver and had been found in the body. Robin Greve felt the murder theory collapsing about him. But the suicide theory did not stand up, either. What possible, probable motive had Hartley Parrish for taking his own life?

"He wasn't the man to do it!"

The wheels of the train took up the rhythm of the phrase and dinned it into his ears.

"He wasn't the man to do it!"

The riddle seemed more baffling than ever. Robin thrust one hand into his right hand pocket to get his pipe, his other hand into his left hand pocket to find his pouch. His left hand came into contact with a little ball of paper.

He drew it out. It was the little ball of slatey blue paper he had found on the floor of the library beside Hartley Parrish's dead body.

. . . .

Horace Trevert walked abruptly into Mary's Chinese boudoir. Lady Margaret and the girl were standing by the fire.

"Well," said Horace, dropping into a chair, "he's gone!"

"Who?" said Lady Margaret.

"Robin," answered the boy, "and I must say he took it very well."

"You don't mean to tell me, Horace," said his mother, "that you have actually sent Robin Greve away. . . .?"

Mary Trevert put her hand on her mother's arm.

"I wished it, mother. I asked Horace to send him away. . . ."

"But, my dear," protested Lady Margaret.

Mary interrupted her impatiently.

"Robin Greve was impossible here. I had to ask him to go. I suppose he can come back if . . . if they want him for the inquest. . . ."

Lady Margaret was looking at her daughter in a puzzled way. She was a woman of the world and had brought her daughter up to be a woman of the world. She knew that Mary was not impulsive by nature. She knew that there was a wealth of good sense behind those steady eyes.

In response to a look from his mother Horace got up and left the room.

"Mary, dear," said the older woman, "don't you think you are making a mistake?"

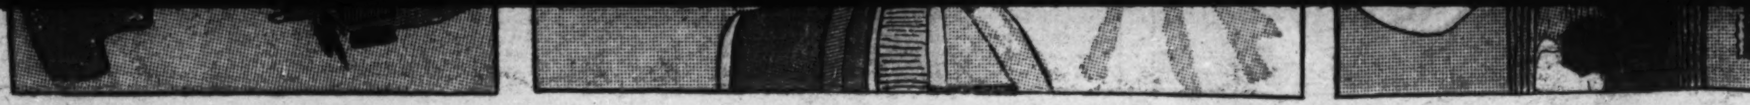
The girl turned away, one slim shoe tapping restlessly against the brass rail of the fireplace.

"My dear," her mother went on, "remember I have known Robin Greve all his life. His father, the admiral, was a very old friend of mine. He was the very personification of honor. Robin is very fond of you . . . no, he has told me nothing, but I know. Don't you think it is rather hard on an old friend to turn him away just when you most want him?"

There was a heightened color in the girl's face as she turned and looked her mother in the face.

"Robin has not behaved like a friend, mother," she answered. "He knows more than he pretends about . . . about this. And he lets me find out things from the servants when he ought to have told me himself. If he is suspected of having said something to Hartley which made him do this dreadful thing, he has only himself to thank. I did try to shield him—before I knew. But I'm not going to do so any more. If he stays I shall have the police suspecting me all the time. And I owe something to Hartley. . . ."

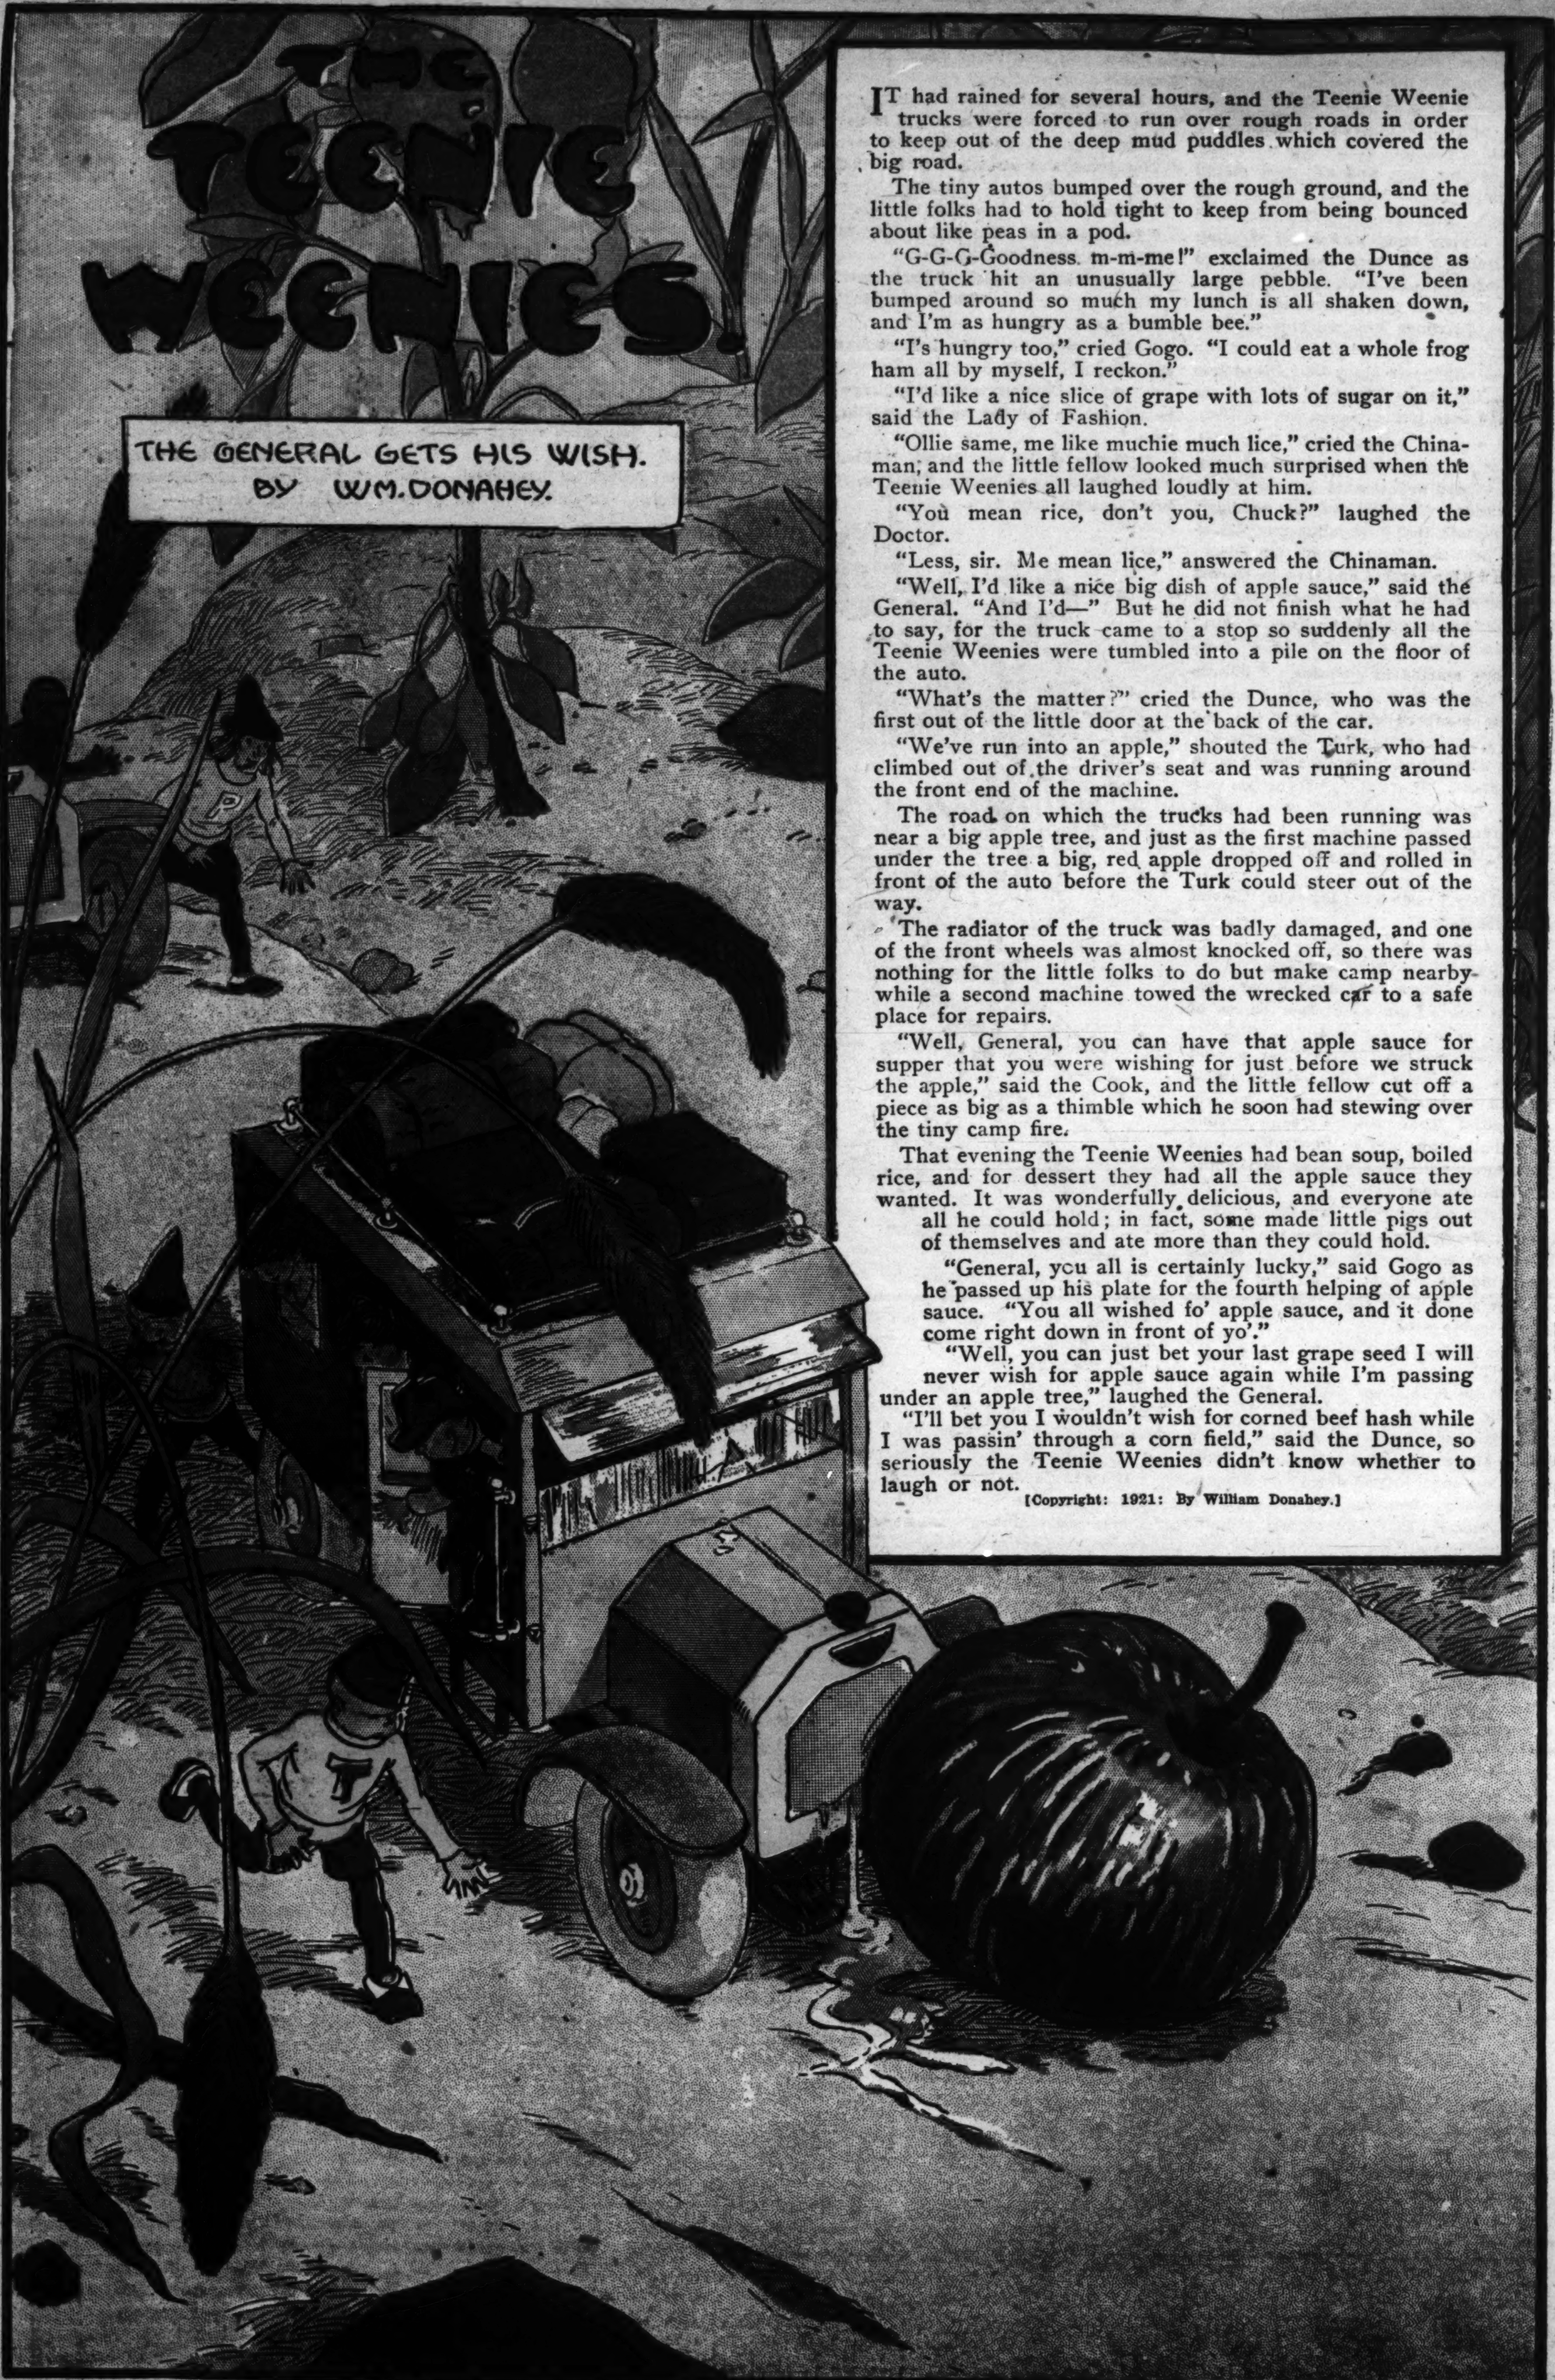
Her mother sighed a soft little sigh. She



THE TEENIE WEENIES.

THE GENERAL GETS HIS WISH.

BY WM. DONAHEY.



IT had rained for several hours, and the Teenie Weenie trucks were forced to run over rough roads in order to keep out of the deep mud puddles which covered the big road.

The tiny autos bumped over the rough ground, and the little folks had to hold tight to keep from being bounced about like peas in a pod.

"G-G-G-Goodness m-m-me!" exclaimed the Dunce as the truck hit an unusually large pebble. "I've been bumped around so much my lunch is all shaken down, and I'm as hungry as a bumble bee."

"I's hungry too," cried Gogo. "I could eat a whole frog ham all by myself, I reckon."

"I'd like a nice slice of grape with lots of sugar on it," said the Lady of Fashion.

"Ollie same, me like muchie much lice," cried the Chinaman, and the little fellow looked much surprised when the Teenie Weenies all laughed loudly at him.

"You mean rice, don't you, Chuck?" laughed the Doctor.

"Less, sir. Me mean lice," answered the Chinaman.

"Well, I'd like a nice big dish of apple sauce," said the General. "And I'd—" But he did not finish what he had to say, for the truck came to a stop so suddenly all the Teenie Weenies were tumbled into a pile on the floor of the auto.

"What's the matter?" cried the Dunce, who was the first out of the little door at the back of the car.

"We've run into an apple," shouted the Turk, who had climbed out of the driver's seat and was running around the front end of the machine.

The road on which the trucks had been running was near a big apple tree, and just as the first machine passed under the tree a big, red apple dropped off and rolled in front of the auto before the Turk could steer out of the way.

The radiator of the truck was badly damaged, and one of the front wheels was almost knocked off, so there was nothing for the little folks to do but make camp nearby while a second machine towed the wrecked car to a safe place for repairs.

"Well, General, you can have that apple sauce for supper that you were wishing for just before we struck the apple," said the Cook, and the little fellow cut off a piece as big as a thimble which he soon had stewing over the tiny camp fire.

That evening the Teenie Weenies had bean soup, boiled rice, and for dessert they had all the apple sauce they wanted. It was wonderfully delicious, and everyone ate all he could hold; in fact, some made little pigs out of themselves and ate more than they could hold.

"General, you all is certainly lucky," said Gogo as he passed up his plate for the fourth helping of apple sauce. "You all wished fo' apple sauce, and it done come right down in front of yo'."

"Well, you can just bet your last grape seed I will never wish for apple sauce again while I'm passing under an apple tree," laughed the General.

"I'll bet you I wouldn't wish for corned beef hash while I was passin' through a corn field," said the Dunce, so seriously the Teenie Weenies didn't know whether to laugh or not.

SYNOPSIS.

Hartley Parrish, who has had a sudden rise to wealth as a result of the war, has several guests at his country house. Among them are Lady Trevert, her daughter Mary, and her son Horace, and Robin Greve, who is in love with Mary and she with him. When he proposes she tells him she has become engaged to Parrish. He accuses her of mercenary motives, which she admits, and leaves her in anger. A few moments later she hears a shot and informs her brother and others. They break into the library, which is locked from the inside, and find their host dead with a revolver in his hand, apparently a suicide. Greve realizes Mary suspects him, and from a remark to the police by the butler, Bude, that Greve was near the library when the shot was fired, the inspector questions him closely and finally is closeted with Mary. She isn't able to enlighten him much. Later Mary questions the butler, with the result her suspicions of Greve are increased. Greve seeks and is granted an interview with Mary. He denies having had any quarrel with Parrish and reveals his suspicion that the latter was murdered. Detective-Inspector Manderton takes charge of the case and is frankly skeptical of Greve's story. Dr. Romain pronounces Parrish's death a suicide. Why? is now the question.

FOURTH INSTALLMENT.

The Mystery Grows Deeper.

A RED sun glowed dully through a thin mist when, on the following morning, Robin Greve emerged from the side door into the gardens of Harkings. It was a still, mild day. Moisture from the night's rain yet hung translucent on the black limbs of the bare trees and glistened like diamonds on the closely cropped turf of the lawn. In the air was a pleasant smell of damp earth.

Robin paused an instant outside the door in the library corridor and inhaled the morning air greedily. He had spent a restless, fitful night. His sleep had been haunted by the riddle which, since the previous evening, had cast its shadow over the pleasant house. The mystery of Hartley Parrish's death obsessed him. If suicide it was—and the doctors were both positive on the point—the motive eluded him utterly.

His mind, trained to logical processes of reasoning by his practice of law, balked at the theory. When he thought of Hartley Parrish as he had seen him at luncheon on the day before, striding with quick, vigorous step into the room, boyishly curious to know what the chef was giving to them to eat, devouring his lunch with obvious, animal enjoyment, brimful of energy, dominating the table with his forceful, eager personality . . .

The sound of voices in the library broke in upon his thoughts. Robin raised his head and listened. Some one appeared to be talking in a loud voice . . . no, not talking . . . rather declaiming.

Stepping quietly on the hard gravel path, Robin turned the corner of the house and came into view of the library window. The window pane gaped shattered where Horace Trevert had broken the glass on the previous evening when effecting an entrance into the room. Framed in the ragged outline of the splintered glass bulked the large form of Sergeant Harris. He stood half turned from the window so as to catch the light on a copy of the Times which he held in his red and freckled hands. He was reading aloud in stentorian tones from a leading article.

"While this country," he bawled sonorously, "cannot . . . in hour belief . . . hevade . . . er . . . responsibility . . . er . . . h'm . . . disquieting sitwation . . ."

"Dear me!" thought Robin to himself, "what a very extraordinary morning pursuit for our police!"

Suddenly the reading was interrupted.

Robin heard the library door open. Then Manderton's voice cried:

"That'll do, thank you, sergeant!"

"Did you 'ear me, sir?" asked the sergeant, who seemed very much relieved to be quit of his task.

"Not a word!" was the reply. "But we'll try with the library door open! I'll go back to the hall and you start again!"

A thoughtful look on his face, Robin turned quickly and, hurrying round the side of the house, entered by the front door. Standing by the door leading to the library corridor he found Manderton.

The detective did not seem particularly glad to see him.

"Good morning, inspector," said Robin affably, "you're early to work, I see. Having a little experiment, eh?"

Manderton nodded without replying. Then the stentorian tones of Sergeant Harris proclaiming the views of The Thunderer on the Silesian situation rolled down the corridor and struck distinctly on the ears of the listeners in the hall.

Presently Manderton closed the corridor door, shutting off the sound abruptly.

"I think you said you could not hear the sergeant with the library door shut?" queried Robin suavely.

"With the door shut—no," answered the detective shortly. "But with the door open . . ."

He broke off significantly and dropped his eyes to his boots.

"Would it be troubling you," Robin struck in, "if we pushed your experiment one step farther?"

Manderton lifted his eyes and looked at the young man. Robin met his gaze unflinchingly.

"Well?"

There was no invitation in his voice, but Robin affected to disregard the other's coldness.

"Let the library door be shut," said Robin, "but leave the glass door leading into the garden open. Then give Sergeant Harris another trial at his reading."

The detective smiled rather condescendingly.

"With the library door shut you'll hear nothing," he remarked.

"The library window is open," Robin retorted, "or rather it is as good as open, as one of the two big panes is smashed."

His voice vibrated with eagerness. The detective looked at him curiously.

"O, try if you like," he said carelessly.

Without waiting for his assent, Robin had already plucked open the corridor door and was half way down the passage as the other replied. He was back again almost at once and, motioning the detective to silence, took his place at his side by the open door. Then the sound of the policeman's voice was heard from the corridor. It was muffled and indistinct so that the sense of his words could not be made out. But the voice was audible enough.

Robin turned to the detective.

"Bude could make out no word," he said.

"But how do we know that the glass door was open?" queried the detective skeptically.

"Because I left it open myself," Robin countered promptly, "when I went out for my walk before tea. Horace told me that he found the door banging about in the wind when he went out to get into the library by the window."

Mr. Manderton allowed his fat, serious face to expand very slowly into a broad, superior smile.

"Doesn't it seem a little curious," he said, "that Mr. Hartley Parrish should choose to sit and work in the library on a gusty and dark winter evening with the window wide open? You'll allow, I think, that the window was not broken until after his death."

Robin's nerves were ragged. The man's tone nettled him exceedingly. But he confined himself to making a little gesture of impatience.

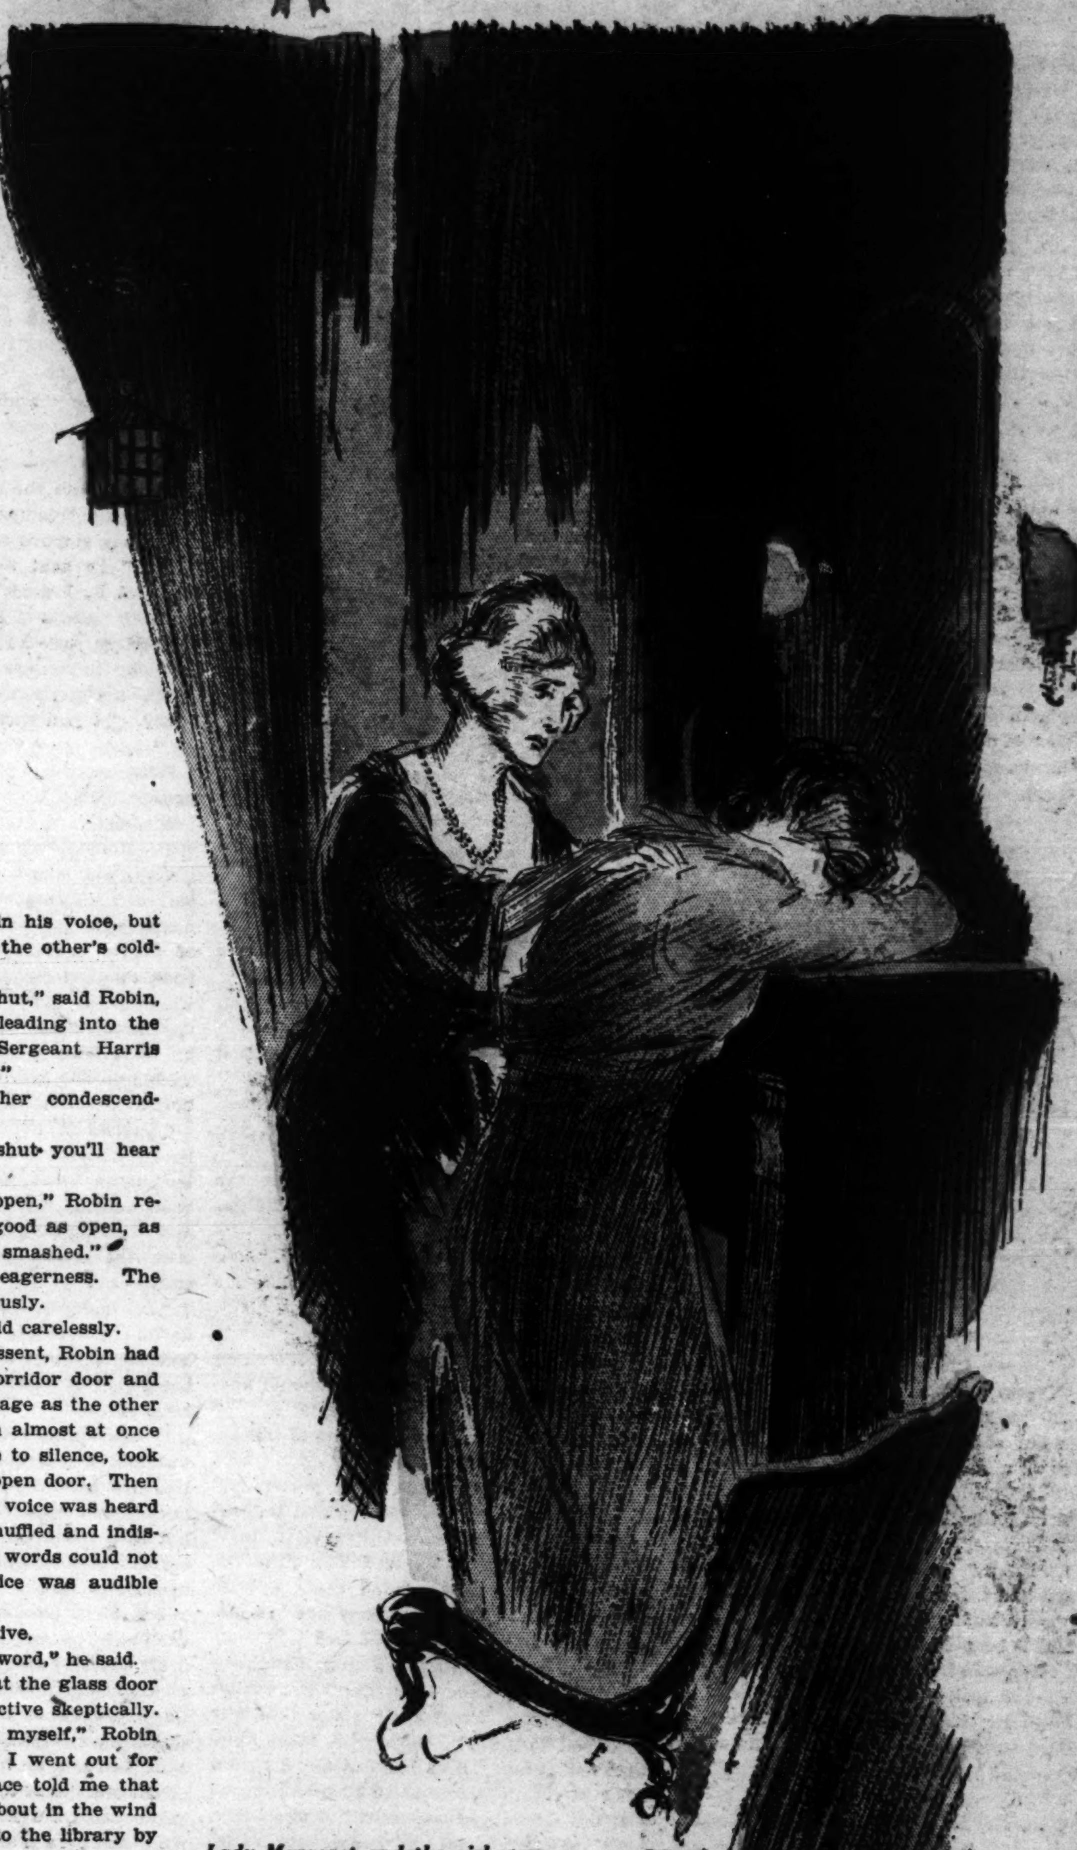
"No, no, sir," said Mr. Manderton very decidedly, "I prefer to think that the library door was open, left open by the party who went in to speak to Mr. Parrish yesterday afternoon . . . and who knows more about the gentleman's suicide than he would have people think. . . ."

Robin boiled over fairly at this.

"Good God, man," he exclaimed, "do you accept this theory of suicide as blandly as all that? Have you examined the body? Don't you use your eyes? I tell you . . . bah, what's the use? I'm not here to do your work for you! . . ."

"No, sir," said the detective quite unruffled, "you are not. And I think I'll continue to see about it myself!"

With that he opened the corridor door and vanished down the passage.



Lady Margaret and the girl were standing by the fire. "Robin Greve was impossible here," said Mary. "I had to ask him to go. I suppose he can come back if—if they want him for the inquest."

With great deliberation Robin selected a cigaret from his case, lit it, and walked out through the front door into the fresh air again. More than ever he felt the riddle of Hartley Parrish's death weighing upon his mind.

His intuitive sense rebelled against the theory of suicide, despite the medical evidence, despite the revolver in the dead man's hand, despite the detective's assurance. And floating about in his brain, like the gossamer on the glistening bushes in the gardens, were broken threads of vague suspicions, of half-formed theories, leading from his hasty observations in the death chamber.

In itself the death of Hartley Parrish left him cold. Yes, he must admit that. But the look in Mary Trevert's eyes, as she had urged him to shield himself from the suspicion of having driven Hartley Parrish to his death, haunted him. Already dimly he was beginning to realize that Hartley Parrish in death might prove as insuperable a bar between him and Mary Trevert as ever he had been in life.

She was now a wealthy woman. Hartley Parrish's will had insured that, he knew. But it was not the barrier of riches that Robin Greve feared. He had asked Mary Trevert to be his wife before there was any thought of her inheriting Parrish's fortune. He derived a little consolation from that reflection. At least he could not appear as a fortune hunter in her eyes. But, until he could clear himself of the suspicion lurking in Mary Trevert's mind that he, Robin Greve, was in some way implicated in Hartley Parrish's death, the dead man, he felt, would always stand between them. And so . . .

Robin pitched the stump of his cigaret into a rose bush with a little gesture of resignation. Almost without knowing it he had strolled into the rosary up a shallow flight of steps cut into the bank of green turf which ran along the side of the house facing the library window to the corner of the house where it met the clipped box hedge of the Pleasure Ground.

The rosary was a pleasant rectangle framed in a sort of rustic bower which in the summer was covered with superb roses of every hue and variety. Gravel paths inter-

CANDY MINE
A GUMP & SON
WHAT ARE YOU EATING? WHAT'S THAT IN YOUR MOUTH?
NOTHIN'
WHAT HAVE YOU IN YOUR MOUTH? WHAT ARE YOU CHEWING ON?
JUST A LITTLE CANDY. IS ALL-
CANDY- FOREVER EATING CANDY- YOU'LL TURN INTO CANDY SOME DAY- I SHOULD THINK YOUR JAWS WOULD ACHE- WHAT DID YOU DO WITH THAT QUARTER I GAVE YOU?
I SPENT 10¢ FOR CANDY AND 15¢ FOR PICTURE SHOW-
DON'T YOU EVER THINK ABOUT SAVING MONEY? I DON'T MIND YOU GOING TO PICTURE SHOWS OR EATING CANDY-
BUT EVERY TIME I GIVE YOU SOME MONEY YOU OUGHT TO PUT A PART OF IT IN YOUR BANK- YOU'LL NEVER GET ANY PLACE IN THIS WORLD SPENDING EVERYTHING YOU MAKE OR EARN- STARTING A BANK ACCOUNT IS LIKE ROLLING A SNOW BALL DOWN A HILL- THE FURTHER IT GOES THE BIGGER IT GETS-
YOU OUGHT TO START A LITTLE BANK- CALL IT CHESTER'S BANK AND WHEN YOU GET YOUR BANK FULL DEPOSIT IT IN A SAVINGS BANK- LET IT DRAW INTEREST FOR YOU- THEN WHEN YOU GET TO BE A BIG BOY YOU'LL HAVE SOMETHING TO START OUT IN LIFE WITH- BE INDEPENDENT-
TAKE THE LITTLE SQUIRRELS- THEY LAY UP FOOD ALL SUMMER LONG FOR THE WINTER- NOW IF THEY ATE UP EVERYTHING THEY SAW IN THE SUMMER THEY'D STARVE IN THE WINTER- LIKE THE OLD STORY OF THE GRASS-HOPPER- FIDDLED AROUND ALL SUMMER- HOPPED AROUND AND ENJOYED HIMSELF- ATE EVERYTHING HE SAW-DIDN'T LAY UP ANYTHING- THEN THE WINTER CAME ALONG- EVERYTHING BLEAK AND BARREN- COULDN'T FIND ANYTHING TO EAT- WENT AROUND TO ALL HIS FRIENDS AND TRIED TO BORROW- THEY JUST HAD ENOUGH FOR THEMSELVES- THEY COULDN'T GIVE HIM ANYTHING TO EAT- SO HE HOPPED AWAY AND STARVED TO DEATH-
NOW WHAT DO YOU WANT TO BE? A COZY LITTLE SQUIRREL OR A FREEZING STARVING GRASS HOPPER? DO YOU WANT TO BE A BIG SUBSTANTIAL ROCK OR DO YOU WANT TO BE A ROLLING STONE? YOU KNOW THE OLD SAYING- A ROLLING STONE GATHERS NO MOSS-
IT GATHERS NO MOSS BUT IT TAKES ON A BEAUTIFUL POLISH-
THERE YOU GO AGAIN- EVERY TIME I TRY TO ADVISE HIM AND TEACH HIM AN OBJECT LESSON-
YOU COME ALONG WITH ONE OF THOSE STALE VAUDEVILLE GAGS- YES- YOU WANT HIM TO BE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES- HOW DO YOU THINK HE'S GOING TO GET THERE? ON A TRICYCLE WITH A STICK OF CANDY IN HIS HAND?
IT'S BETTER FOR HIM TO DROP DIMES IN HIS BANK NOW THAN TO HAVE PEOPLE THROW THEM IN HIS HAT WHEN HE'S OLD-

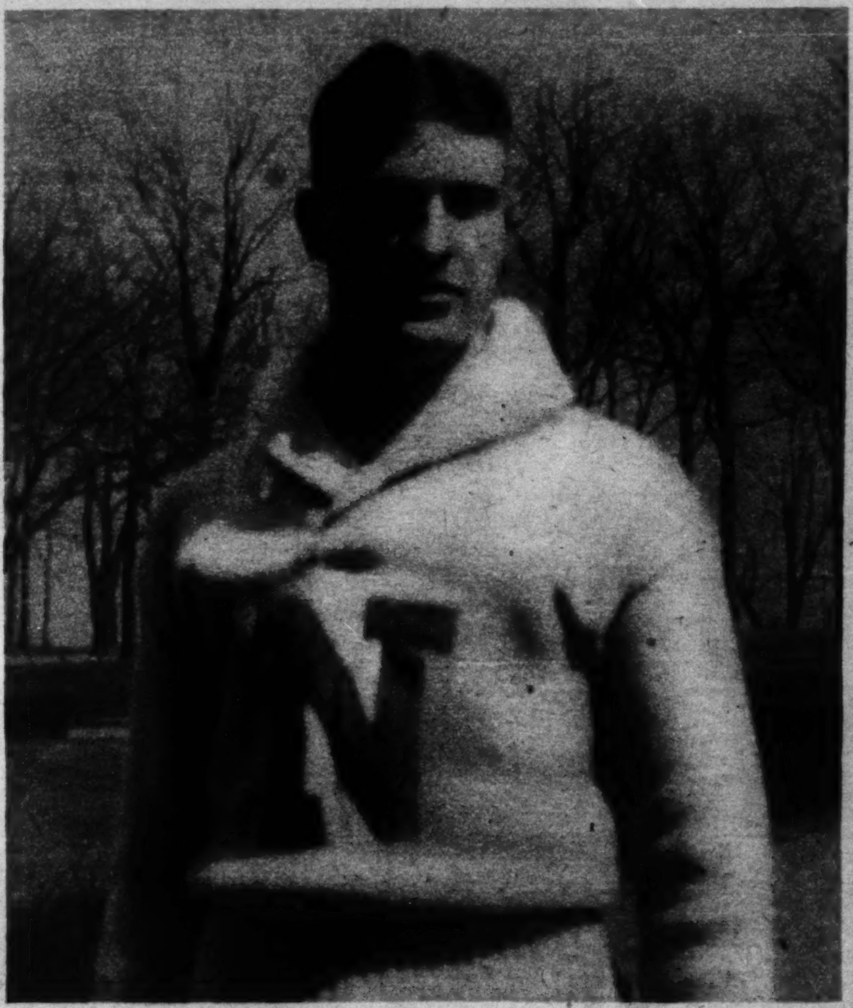
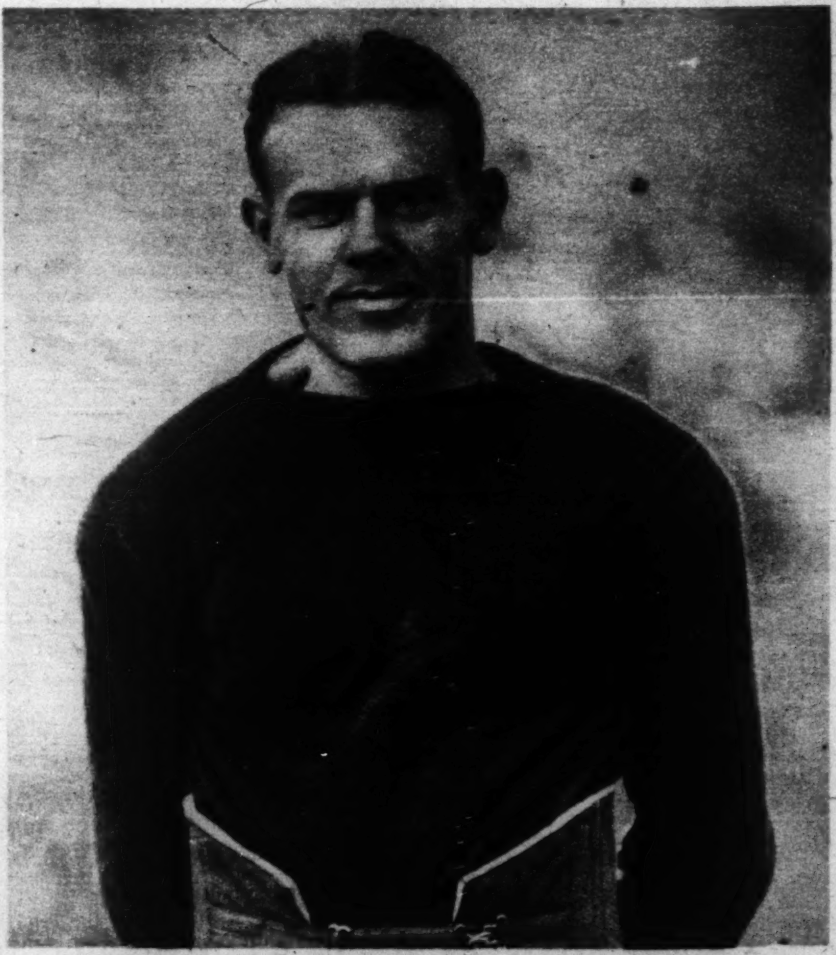
ALL READY FOR THE GREAT KICKOFF

Captains of some of the star football teams of the middle west, and how they measure up for the approaching battle.

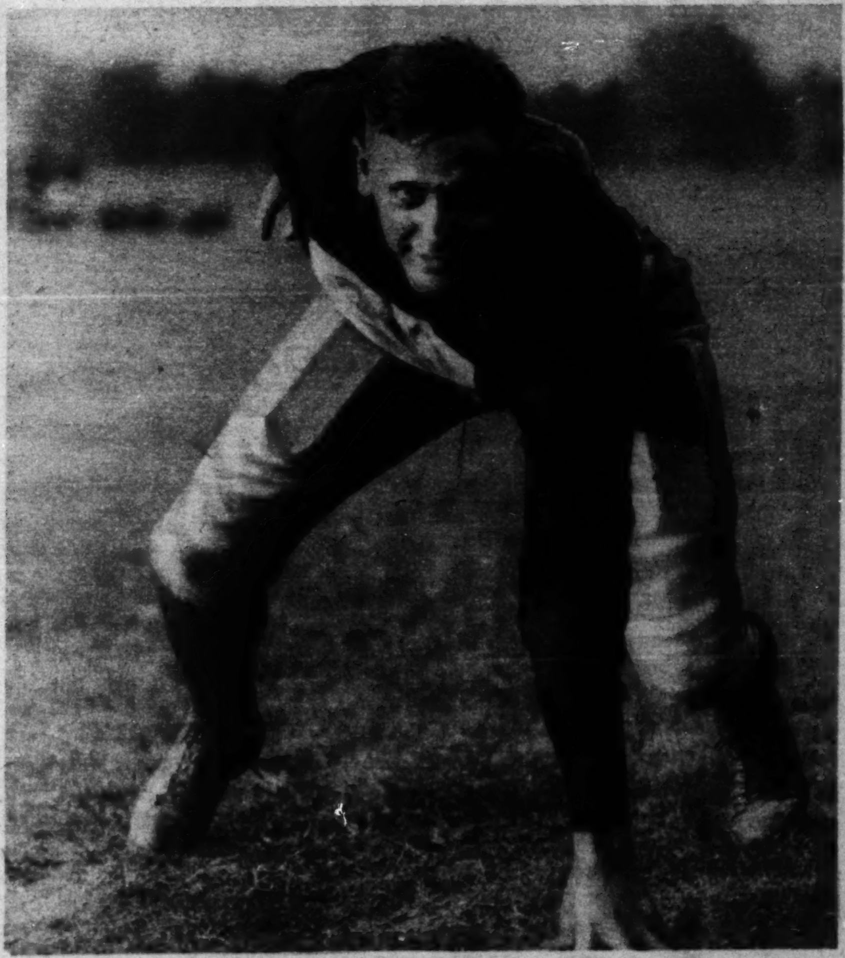
CHARLES McGUIRE of Chicago, whose campus nickname is "Chuck," will be the captain of the University of Chicago football team this year. He is 21 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs in at 191 pounds—ample weight to make himself felt on the gridiron. He will play his old position as tackle.



JACK HATHAWAY of Covington, Ind., is the husky captain of this year's gridiron battlers at Northwestern university, and will play center. He is 22 years old, weighs 158 pounds and is 5 feet 9½ inches tall.



LAWRENCE WALQUIST of Rockford is captain of the University of Illinois team this year. He weighs 140 pounds, is 5 feet 5 inches tall and is 21 years old. He played half back last season and may play quarter this season.



CAPT. E. R. CARMAN of Purdue is called "Zeb" by his fellow gridiron gladiators and hails from Joliet. He is 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighs 190 pounds, is 26 years old and plays tackle. He played on the Municipal Pier team while in the navy during the war.

Additional pictures of football captains will be found on page three.

"He hugged her shamelessly"

"His reputation amongst the fair sex was terrific. What he saw he captured . . . .

"He hugged her shamelessly in the course of what passed for a tango. They both danced well, inventing weird and extravagant steps which drew forth considerable admiration. There was no sign on her face of the intending suicide."

From "HER PHANTOM LOVER."

Starts IN TOMORROW'S
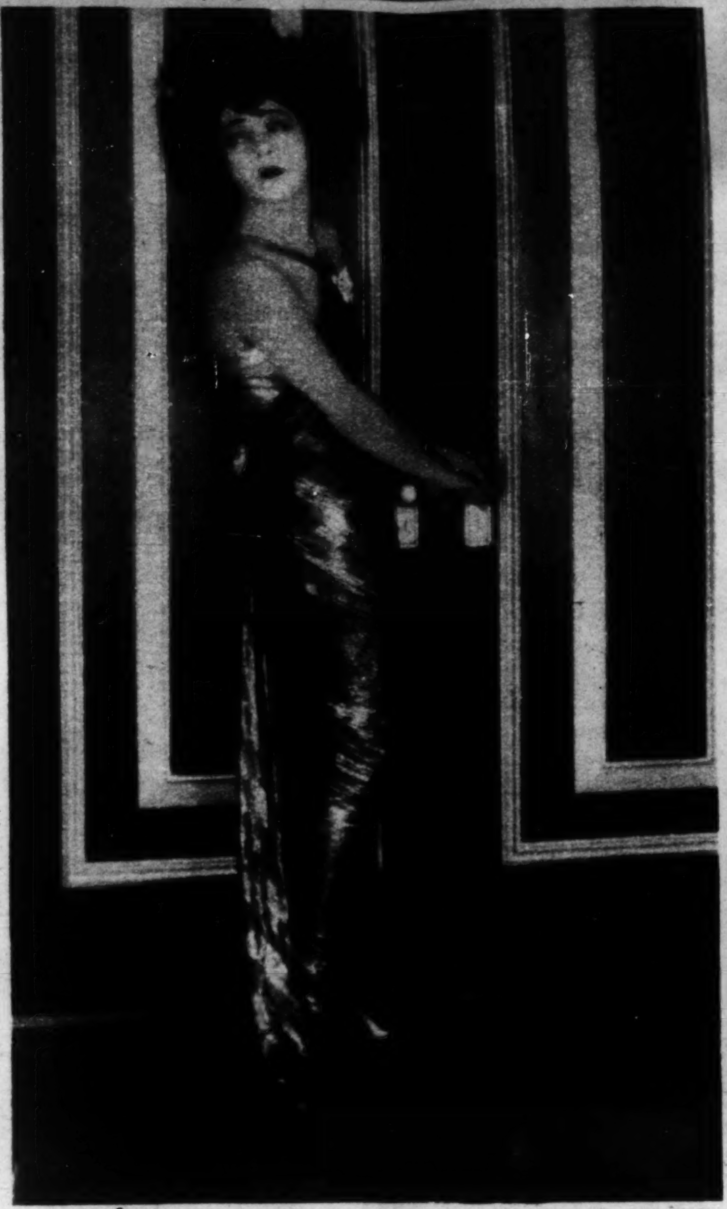
Chicago Daily Tribune

Girls! Have you ever suffered with a torn heart? Do you know the aching pains of unreturned love? Do you know men—their whims, their passions?

Beginning TOMORROW and continuing daily thereafter The Chicago Daily Tribune will publish one of the most remarkable love stories ever written—an astounding narrative of the love life of a butterfly woman—"Her Phantom Lover."

In this powerful human story are revealed the [illegible]—the heart pangs, the hopes, the fears [illegible] a woman of social distinction. It is [illegible] ONE will want to miss. IT STARTS TOMORROW—MONDAY.

Order your Daily Tribune delivered to your home regularly, beginning TOMORROW. Phone your newsdealer or Central 100.



NAZIMOVA as Camille! What do you think of the serpentine effect? Also what do you think of her hair? I bet she just washed it and couldn't do a thing with it. Mae Tinee.

WALLACE REID AND ELSIE FERGUSON will look like this when you see them in the screen version of "Peter Ibbetson."

Dear, dear, can't you just see the damsels of olden days pining away with unrequited love for our Wally as he looks here, with his stripes and his ring, his weskit, his curls and everything?

(And on the other hand, how a man would gladly lay him down and die for Miss Ferguson as here depicted!) Mae Tinee.

JACK HOLT and JACK HOLT JR. are the two brown eyed gentlemen here submitted for your consideration. The baby, who is two years old, is the second of Mr. Holt's three children. He seems not at all interested over the fact that dad is just about to make his stellar debut in "The Call of the North." Mae Tinee.

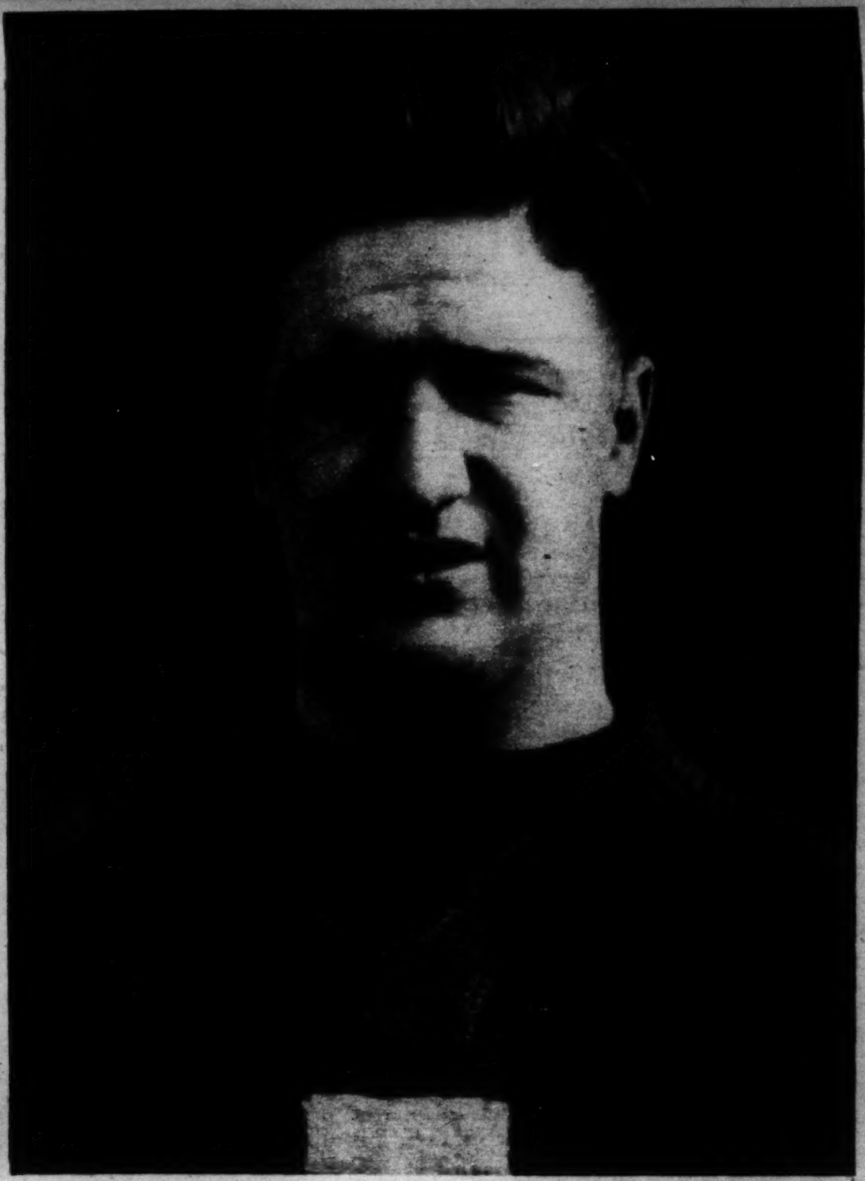
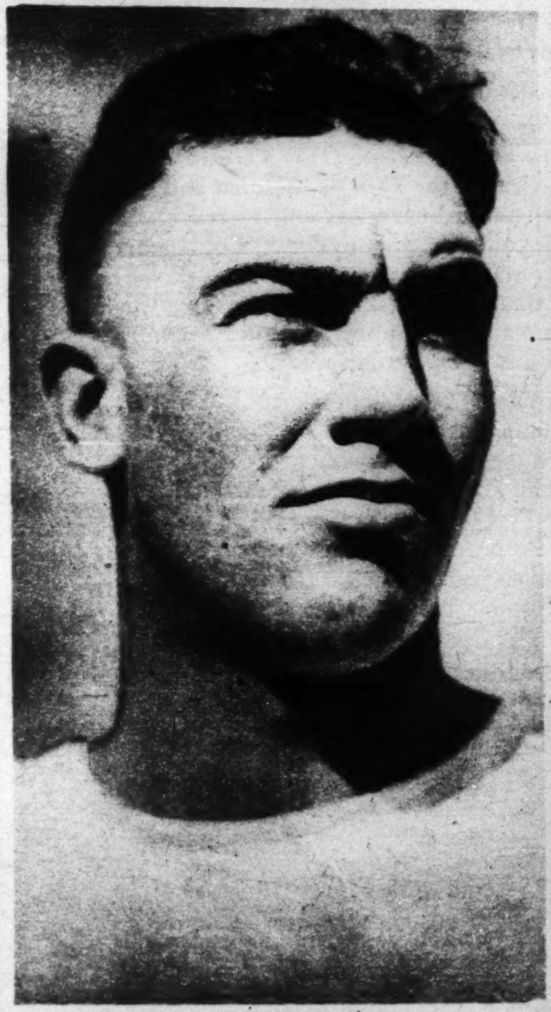
KATHRYN McGUIRE is a Mack Sennett beauty who will have a minor role in "Molly O," the Sennett dramatic production starring Mabel Normand. She hasn't any especial screen history up to date, but, knowing the Sennett gift for selection, it is pretty safe to predict that the name of McGuire will some day become fairly famous. Mae Tinee.

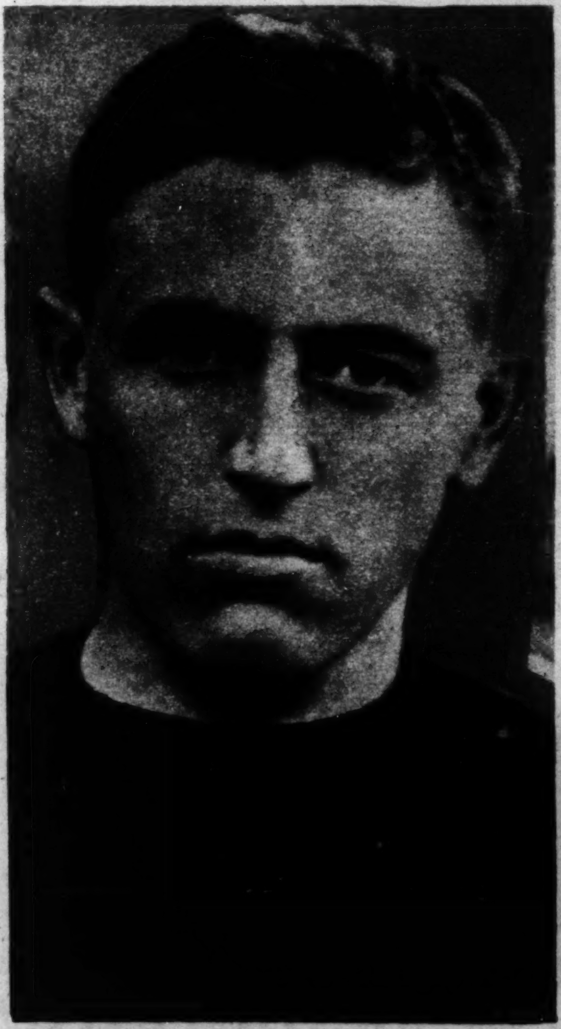
R. J. ("DUKE") DUNNE of Chicago, son of former Governor Dunne, is captain of the Michigan team. He is 22 years old, weighs 184 pounds and is 6 feet 2 inches tall. He will play guard this year, but is an end player of ability.



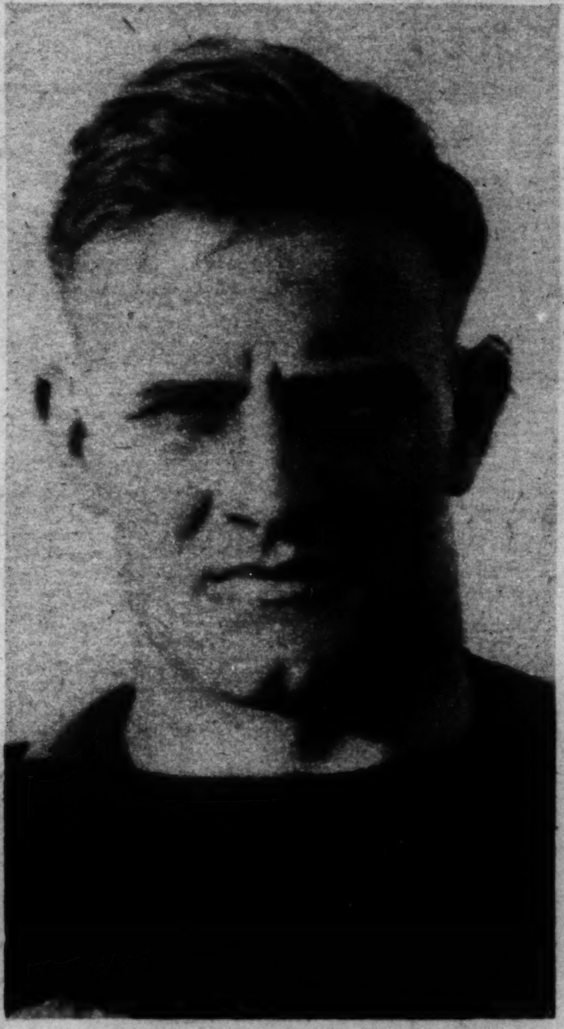
JOHN W. KYLE of the University of Indiana is the giant heavyweight of grid captains this year, weighing 202 pounds. He plays the position of full back, is 22 years old, stands 5 feet 9 inches tall, and lives in Gary.



LAURENCE TEBERG, Minnesota's six-footer captain, tips the scales at 185 pounds, is 27 years old and lives at Litchfield, Minn. Last year was his first on the team. He will play tackle again this year.



AUBREY DEVINE is the captain and quarter back at the University of Iowa. He is 5 feet 9½ inches tall, weighs 172 pounds, is 23 years old, and lives in Des Moines.



GUY SUNDT, captain and full back of the University of Wisconsin football team, lives in Stoughton, Wis., weighs 175 pounds, is 5 feet 9½ inches tall and is 21 years old. He will do most of the kicking this year.

One cream alone cannot do justice to your skin

Every normal skin needs a daytime cream to protect and freshen—and at night an oil cream to cleanse

For daytime use—the cream that will not reappear in a shine

A tired looking skin adds years to a woman's age. To freshen the skin instantly use Pond's Vanishing Cream. This cream is made without oil—you can put it on just before you go out, for there is nothing in it which could reappear in a shine.

Take a bit of Pond's Vanishing Cream, and smooth it lightly in with an upward motion. Your skin relaxes as the cool, refreshing cream works in. The dullness, the flat, unbecoming tones disappear—your complexion takes on a new freshness and transparency.

When you powder, do it to last. First smooth in a little Pond's Vanishing Cream. Now powder. The powder will stay on two or three times as long as usual.

This cream is so delicate that it can be kept on all day without clogging the pores and there is not a drop of oil in it which could reappear and make your face shiny.

At night—the cleansing cream made with oil

Cleanse your skin thoroughly every night if you wish it to retain its clearness and freshness. Only a cream made with oil can really cleanse the skin of the dust and dirt that bore too deep for ordinary washing to reach. At night, after washing your face, smooth Pond's Cold Cream into the pores. It contains just enough oil to work well into the pores and cleanse them thoroughly. When this dirt is allowed to remain in the pores, the skin becomes dull and blemishes and blackheads appear.

To stimulate the play of blood beneath your skin that keeps it looking young, slap the face very gently, very persistently with finger tips dipped generously into Pond's Cold Cream. This acts as a tonic to a dull or sluggish skin. Pond's Cold Cream is so soft that it cannot stretch the finest pores as it works into them. This oil cream rouses and stimulates the skin—notice the way it responds to this toning up.

Start using these two creams today. Both these creams are too delicate in texture to clog the pores, and they will not encourage the growth of hair. In both jars and tubes at any drug or department store. The Pond's Extract Company, 130-E Hudson St., New York.

HOLBROOK BLINN is the benign bandit of "The Bad Man," Porter Emerson Browne's satirical comedy at the Princess theater. Mr. Blinn puffs an impeccable cigaret and does all those Villaesque things in the play, and generally is sort of a sardonic Robin Hood.

STABBED IN THE HEART when he fell upon a sharp instrument, Frank Farino of Brooklyn spent seven weeks in the hospital, then returned home and "jumped rope" just as though he never had sustained any accident more serious than stubbing his toe. The rope skipping proved his complete recovery, as doctors say it is a strain upon his heart. After regaining consciousness at the hospital, Frank had announced that he would live, because he must in order to support his mother. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)

THEY HIKE ACROSS U. S.—Mildred Karp (the girl at the left), Esther Eisman, and Fay Fink resigned their positions as stenographers last May in New York and started off afoot for Seattle, which they reached after a record "hike" of many weeks. Not content with this achievement, they then struck out for Los Angeles, where they will spend the winter. (Photograph copyright by Kadel & Herbert.)

Do you wonder what the idea of this pose is? When the model, Miss Kathlene Martyn, of "Sally," was asked how she would demonstrate the length of "Vanity Fair's Plus-4-Inch Vest," she picked up a Benda mask lying in the studio and demonstrated in this fashion. Nicholas Muray, the photographer, liked the pose. The result is this illustration.

The Vest—Four Inches Longer —With Straps That Won't Slip Down

ITS extra four inches in length and its non-skid shoulder straps, of course, distinguish the Vanity Fair vest. But, they're not all! The glove-silk itself is quite as unusual.

Vanity Fair glove-silk is the quality which makes silk underwear an economy. Economical in that its firm, even weave is wear-resisting and because with Vanity Fair your laundry expenses vanish.

It requires no boiling, bluing nor bleaching but may be rinsed out at home in the bathroom basin, saving both laundry costs and laundry wear-and-tear.

One of the newest of Autumn frocks exploits the grace of black Frostkrêpe and for smart contrast adds platinum gray Crêpe Chenette. Shaded purple grapes and silver leaves form the girdle.

The richness of the cut velvet tapestry background for this charming gown emphasizes but one of the distinguished decorative and upholstery fabrics produced by Cheney Brothers.

Silks for the Fashions of Fall

UNRIVALLED in sheer loveliness, the new Cheney Silks herald the Fashions of Autumn. Experts at their looms have devised exquisite new weaves, elusively crêpey with just a suggestion of soft satiny glint; artists have spent their genius to discover rare and fresh nuances of colour; and all of Nature's infinite variety is reflected in the richness of design.

Cheney Crêpes, of which Frostkrêpe, Starkrêpe, and Mirrorkrêpe are the very newest, will fashion the chosen day frocks for Fall; Cheney Satins—Satin Panne and Satin de Lyon—will lend their brilliance to smartest evening gowns; and the wraps which accompany them, whether of cloth or of fur, will be lined with richly-patterned Cinderella or Illuminated Satin Panne.

Stores with a reputation for fine merchandise will be quite sure to sell Cheney Silks, either by the yard or in garments ready to wear.

To free your skin from blemishes—the right way

ASK a skin specialist why it is that your skin is continually breaking out with disfiguring little blemishes. He will almost certainly tell you that this condition comes from an outside infection.

Authorities on the skin now say that skin blemishes are generally caused by bacteria and parasites which are carried into the pores from outside, through dust and soot in the air. By the following simple treatment, you can gradually but thoroughly free your skin from blemishes:

EACH night just before retiring, wash your face with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water, finishing with a dash of cold water, and dry carefully.

Now dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, cream-like lather.

Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes.

Rinse your face thoroughly, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

Supplement this treatment with the regular use of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your daily toilet, to keep the new skin which is constantly forming free from blemishes.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake will last for a month or six weeks of this treatment and for general cleansing use. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario.

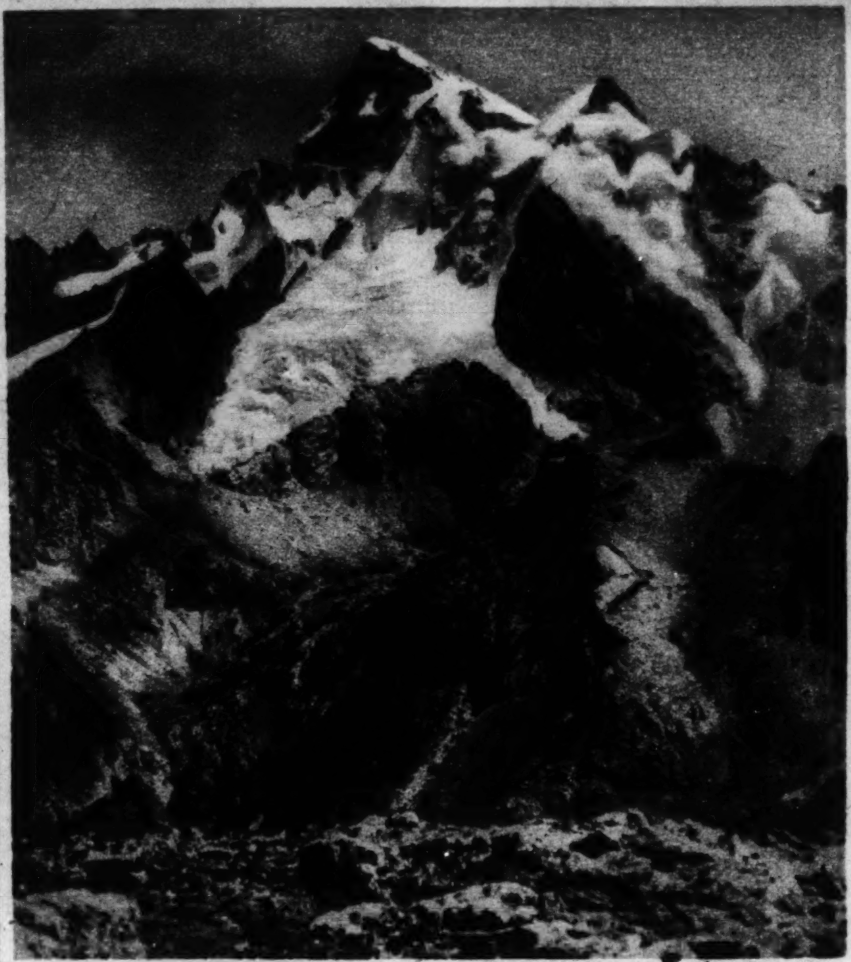
CAN · MT. EVEREST · BE · CONQUERED ?

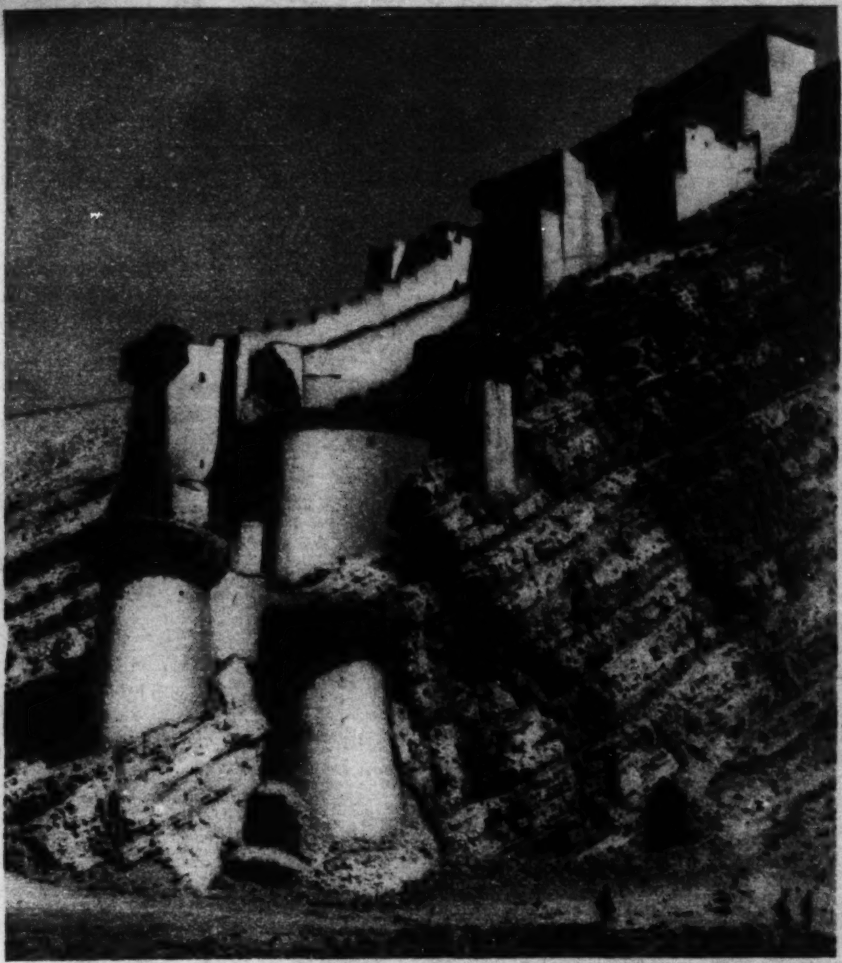
First pictures of the British expedition attempting to scale the giant of the Himalayas, highest mountain in the world.



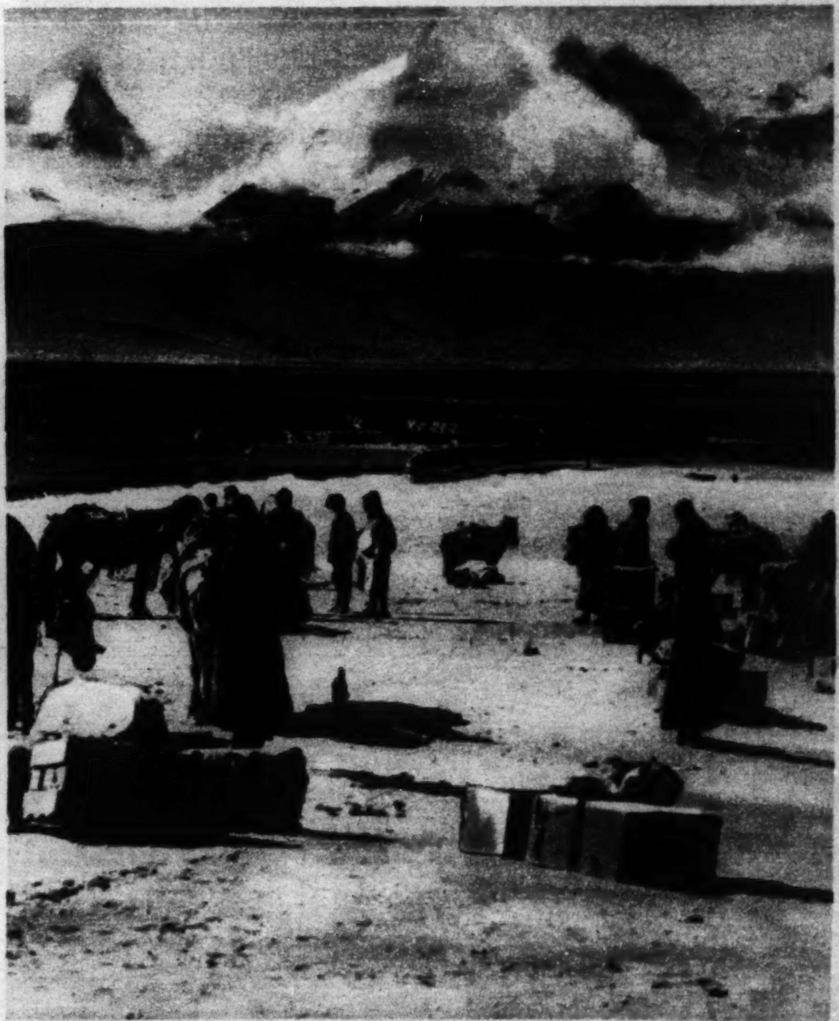
THIS STRIKING HIMALAYAN PANORAMA, showing the peak of Chomolhari from the south, was photographed from a mere hill 17,500 feet high, near Chepi. The atmosphere in these altitudes is said to be nearly unbearable and the cold is extreme. In addition, maps of Mt. Everest, as drawn by the party, have been found to be inaccurate, as Mt. Everest is an intricate and baffling maze of peaks and ridges, and the best path to the heights remains to be studied out. Veteran Alpinists say that at 25,000 feet the strongest and most experienced climber will face the battle of his life—but the great adventure is on!

(Photographs copyright by New York Times company; from Wide World Photos.)

THESE BUDDHIST LAMAS, or Tibetan monks, welcomed the explorers at Shekar Dong, the base of the expedition, which is fifty miles from Mt. Everest. Many hermit monks and nuns live on the mountain sides, self-exiled from the world, and in one temple, before this unvisited by white men, Col. Bury and his party saw a colossal statue of Buddha, fifty feet high and covered with all manner of precious stones.



THE WALLS OF KAMPA DZONG, an ancient fortress encountered by Col. Howard Bury and his party from the British Geographical society and the Alpine club after leaving the lower levels of the Himalayas. The explorers are seeking to climb Mt. Everest, the world's rooftree, towering 29,002 feet above sea level. The Tibetan government hitherto has forbidden such attempts.



YAKS AND COOLIES are the principal burden bearers in the Himalayas and are the explorers' only means of carrying supplies to the majestic mountain fastnesses. Above is a view of the expedition's supply train at Dochen, with the peak of Chomolhari, 23,946 feet high, reaching toward the skies in the background. The picture gives a faint idea of the grandeur of the Himalayan scenery.

EVENING FROCKS BOTH SLINKY AND PUFFY

By CORINNE LOWE

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The other day I met a fellow-fashioneer at the door of a certain shrine, where we had both had a peep at the autumn dressmaking mysteries of Paris.

"Well," I asked her, "how do you feel about it all?"

Promptly came her answer. "As if they had put on an observation car to go through the tunnel," she retorted.

This is perhaps too bitter a word. There is more scenery than that to the new autumn things. Yet if any woman has been buoyed up all summer by the hope that after the autumn styles are announced she can go home and conscientiously throw away all of last winter's wardrobe she is doomed to disappointment. There has been little change in the silhouette. And anybody has to be a real sophist to persuade herself that she cannot fix up the old things to look like new.

Particularly is this dictum true of the evening gowns. Again they fall into two main groups—the slinky and the puffy. The slinks are called grandly frocks of "classic inspiration." The latter is too familiar a phrase to be exactly stimulating and it really can't blind us a bit to the main issue—that these alleged heirs to the draperies of Greece and Egypt often look very much like bags with the cramps. They are long and they have a spasm of drapery here, and another convulsion some place else. Also, though the cramps vary from year to year, the bags are pretty much the same.

As to the puffy, these are represented mostly by either Spanish or second empire styles. The latter goes out at the waistline and keeps on going, while the former drops straight from its precipices at the hips. Both styles are widely shown and both are undoubtedly becoming to the young and slender.

There is, however, something new to record in the way of color. The black evening gown is still here—yes! It is carried out in both the classic and the second empire modes. It is also stunning in those frocks that look as if they had been quickened from a Velasquez canvas. But the time is certainly gone by when a ballroom looks like that classic scene of four and twenty blackbirds stepping from the pie. The blackbird is now rivaled by the brilliant plumage of a tropical forest.

When it comes to colors and fabrics used in some of these Paris gowns there is, in fact, no justification for saying, "Here are the footlights. Where is the play?" The brocades are marvelous. Often in bold pattern, they stand out luminously from satin and crepe satin and even crepe background. There is much gold brocade and also gold lace. And perhaps the most famous application of silver is exploited in the canary yellow and silver evening gown, which Madeleine & Madeleine launched with such success.

Nor are plain fabrics much less dazzling in tint than the brocades. Velvet is often chosen, and it is particularly rich in the violet and fuchsia tones. For such a gown gold lace or gold passementeries is often used. By the time it is finished it looks like something the dressmaker of the Doge of Venice might have had made up for him just before he sat for a portrait by Tintoretto. Satin also appears in these wonderful Venetian tones as well as in sea green and the beautiful canary yellow of which I have spoken.

As I have remarked, the bag which is known as the classic gown sometimes changes its convulsions. One of the newest of these cramps is to wrap the material tightly about the body in a way to produce the long waisted effect, and let the skirt hang in peaks of uneven length. As to necklines, nothing equals our V-garies these times. These French dressmakers now and then try a bias decolletage—in effect a V at the side instead of in the middle of the back.

But a great many of the most extreme models from Paris aren't worried by any V—crooked or otherwise. The bodice stops under the arms, and a chain of jet or of beads over one shoulder is the only shelter afforded these upper areas. This limited shade for the shoulder zone is favored by Paris. Again and again we find the classic model provided with only one shoulder strap. In other cases a strap of self-material on one shoulder is contested by one of beads on the other. These are barbaric—not to say bare-bare-ic modes—and, though they have their place in the pageantry of costume, few American women will consider them seriously.

To the full skirt of both the second empire and Spanish dance frocks taffeta is particularly well adapted, and this lustrous, spirited fabric is worked out chiefly in combination with lace or tulle. The black taffeta frock of this style is, in spite of the lifted censorship on the rainbow, still a favorite with both French and American designers, in proof of which may be mentioned a model from Lanvin where the tuliplike skirt of the Empress Eugenie period is inset with graduated bands of black tulle echoed in the short sleeves and on the corsage.

At the right of this page we show a black taffeta draped with black chantilly. From the extensive landscape gardening about the hips the black lace falls in the picturesque Spanish mode. There are two rows of tiny turquoise beads to effect the line of demarcation, and these are repeated above this boundary on the cuffs of the lace sleeves and in the two ropes hanging from the pointed bodice to the skirt hem.

Canary and orchid and sea green are other tints much favored by the taffeta whittlers. With these the metallic laces are frequently used, and nothing can be more charming than some of the orchid frocks banded with silver lace. Canary yellow is also exquisite in combination with silver lace, and one of the most charming models I have seen this fall exploited this combination in connection with a narrow underskirt of silver lace, above which billowed a rather short, rather full overskirt of the yellow taffeta trimmed with motifs of the shimmery lace. Be it remembered, too, that this tight underskirt is a mode favored by Lanvin.

In the center we are showing a white velvet gown with cascading side panels of black lace. The notable part about this charmingly graceful model is the fact that the upper part is beaded with white crystal, while lower part finds self-expression in jet beads. This same model would, of course, be equally effective in a brocaded fabric with the panels of metallic lace.

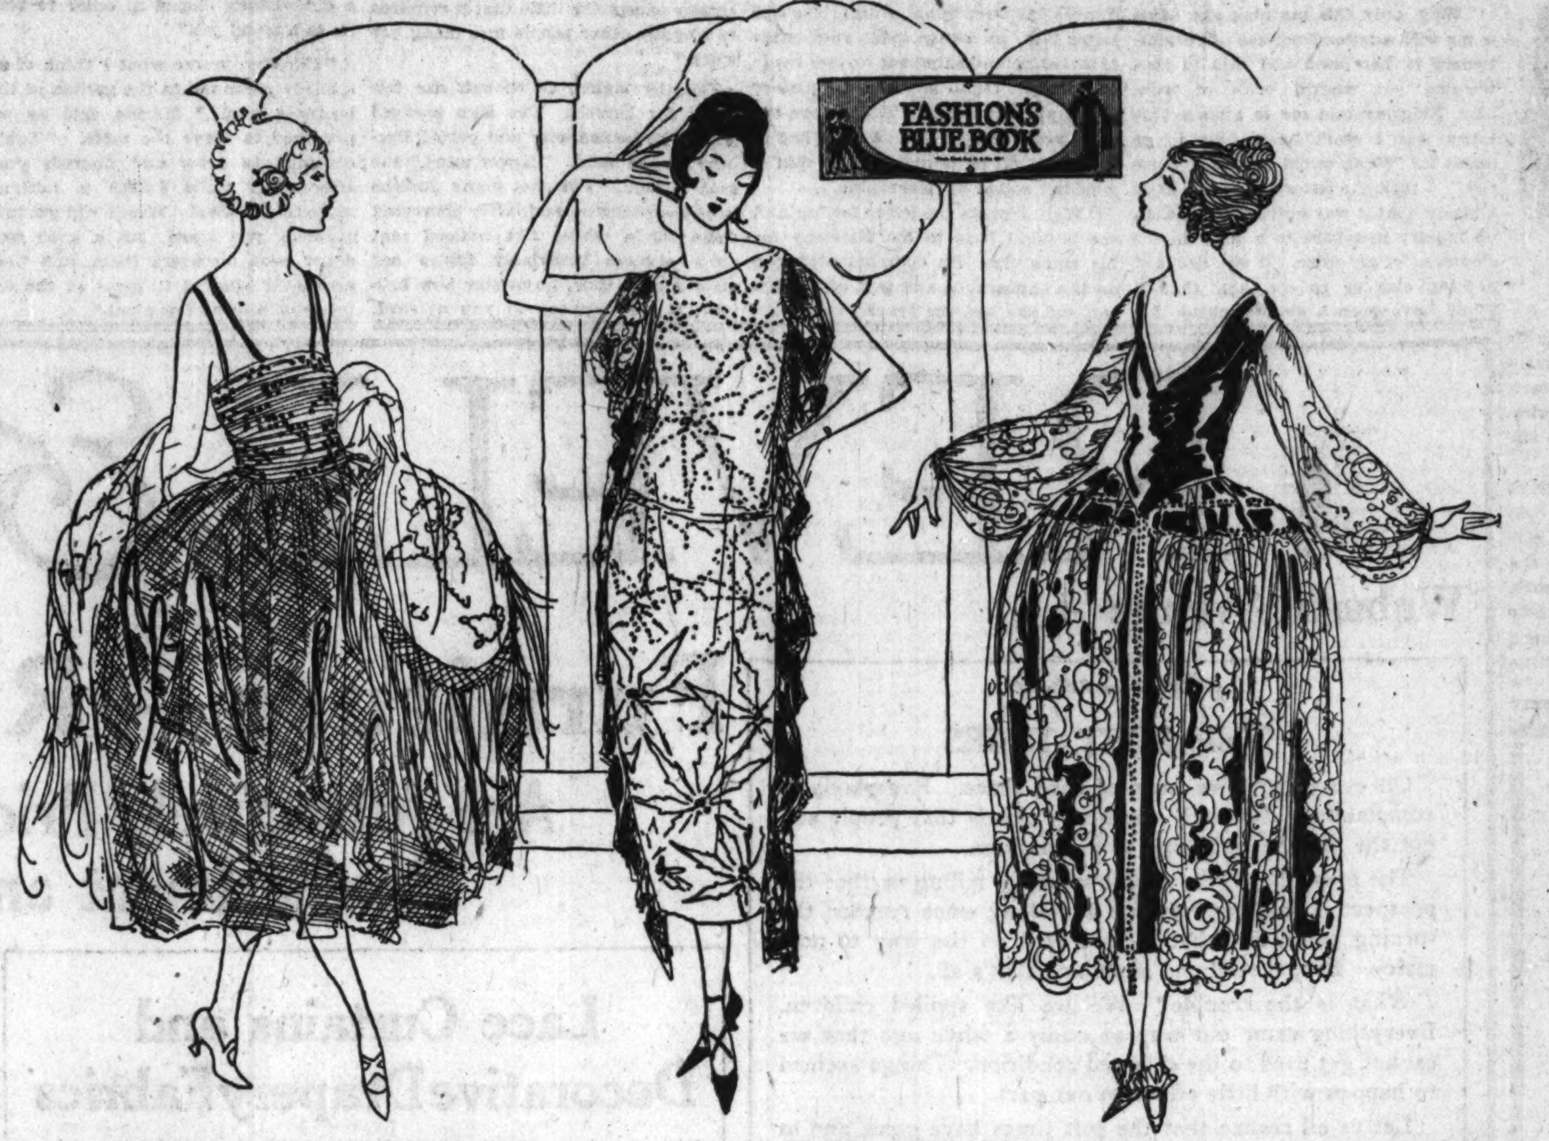
The last dress shown has gone to the scarlet tanager and learned how. For it is of black and red, the former being contributed by a prim little bodice of black satin, a scalloped underskirt of black satin, and a full overskirt of black tulle, while the latter is asserted in the long ribbon strands placed at irregular intervals upon the tulle, by red ribbon shoulder straps, and by the design of square, flat beads on the bodice. The ribbon thought of the skirt is a new and effective one, and the whole model may, of course, be transposed into another color scheme. Sea green tulle, for example, over white satin would be charming.

Compared to our present day system, the conduct of Yankee Doodle seems extraordinarily circumscribed. We don't content ourselves with sticking a feather in our hats. No, we stick it in any vacant cranny we can find. Thus, a few ostrich plumes or a swirl of queer exotic feathers is often the note of contrasting color chosen for the waistline of an evening frock. Furthermore, fronds of feathers are sometimes sown over the transparent surface of tulle or lace. Quite often some bit of plumage is employed as the center for lace motifs.

Fringe is another feature of some of the new evening gowns, and of beading we have no end. Jet is particularly good, and ropes of this lustrous black often form the one shoulder strap already mentioned and otherwise weight the gown in ways to suggest the captive maiden in the triumphal Roman procession.

For dance frocks and dinner frocks sleeves are occasionally used. To say that they are merely suggested would perhaps be a more literal statement, for these coverings are likely to be strands of fringe reaching from shoulder to wrist or perhaps a dab of the material moored at the same points. In this connection one is reminded of a famous model of Lanvin's in which the sleeves are mere strips of the plaited black Valenciennes lace that adorns the billowing skirt of canary taffeta. These bands extend from a tiny arm cap to the customary bracelet cuff of the wrist.

As a last word! The newest evening gowns are longer. Some of those from Paris come to the ankles. Let it be added, however, that they don't do much damage when they get there. For, thanks to transparencies of tulle or lace, uneven skirt hems, floating panels, and other similar contrivances, the barrage is a poor one. Also, although these long skirts are shown, it remains to be seen whether they will be worn. So far one has yet to see a really long skirt in action in New York City.



PICKING your side in evening clothes is a difficult task when the long and slim line is represented by the beaded and lace trimmed white velvet in the center and when the wide is represented respectively by a beaded black satin with black tulle overskirt and by a black taffeta combined with Chantilly and turquoise beads.

FOR AND BY BUSINESS GIRLS

By Loretta King.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Miss Loretta King, The Tribune, Chicago.

AN OFFICE PARASITE.

THERE'S a girl in Dorothy's office who has been a source of exasperation and envy to all the others there. Dorothy's been telling us bits about her from time to time, greatly to our amusement. Not that Dorothy finds her particularly amusing. On the contrary, she and the other girls in her office are continually complaining about her to one another. Why should they have to slave every inch of their way to success while Judith, apparently, arrives without any effort? That's the burden of their cry.

Judith, according to Dorothy's account, is of the clinging vine type, to whom any independent or decisive action is impossible. She got her job through the influence of one of the men of the firm, a long-standing friend of her father's, and she is keeping it because she has quite cleverly managed to enlist the services of first one and then another member of the staff, until now she has everybody, systematically, doing her work for her.

She was never really fitted for office work, or for work of any kind, as far as that goes, but since most of the girls she knew had good jobs she decided that she would get one, too.

She has an idea—its existence may be wholly subconscious—that the world owes her a living. So when she started on her quest for a job, its requirements and her own unfitness were disregarded.

I wish I could give you Dorothy's imitation of her coaxing one of the men to do some bit of her work that she can't or won't do. But it isn't only the men that help her out with her work. The girls do it, too, but not in a whole hearted way. Their favors are tinged with impatience and perhaps a little contempt.

In talking about her yesterday Dorothy said: "The queer thing about the situation is that much as we all resent her getting by without doing any work and using us the way she does, there isn't a person in the office who ever hesitates a second when she calls on them for help.

"Why, only this morning she came to me with a letter from one of our customers in her hand and said in that whining yet wistful voice of hers, 'Mr. Ridgway told me to answer this letter, but I don't know how to go about it. What would you say, Dorothy?' I took the letter out of her hand and saw that it was nothing more than an inquiry in regard to a delay in the shipment of an order. If she had had nothing else to go on than that it would have been a simple matter for her to look up the order in the files and find out from the construction or shipping department why the order hadn't gone out.

"But even that routine was saved her, for written across the face of the letter in Mr. Ridgway's hand was the notation, 'Delayed account mistake in dimensions on original order; refer our letter 17th, correction made your letter 19th; complete shipment to be made this week.' Could anything be plainer or simpler than that? There were the very words she needed. All she had to do was to fill in the message so that it wouldn't sound so telegraphic.

"Well, I wrote the letter for her and she brought it in to Mr. Ridgway for his signature. He complimented her on the appearance and text of the letter, and she had the grace to pass his commendation on to me. But it does make me furious to have her get the credit for work that I actually performed. I suppose she'll go on getting credit and promotions and people will continue to help her out on one job after another. She'll find herself a success without having wasted any energy except the little that it requires to wheedle other people into doing her work."

Dorothy sighed as though she felt sorry for herself. The sigh aroused Ann, who leaned over and patted Dorothy on the hand. "Never mind," she said to her. "I've met many Judiths in my experience, and, after observing them for a while, I've noticed that their success invariably fizzles out after a little time, no matter how brilliant it may appear to you at first. That sort of success, Dorothy, can only be temporary. There's nothing to build on there, and success requires a solid foundation. So don't think you're wasting your time and effort now. You will probably be directing a department some day—or maybe an entire business—while Judith will be trying to work a diminishing charm in order to hold on to a small job."

"Dorothy, you're what I think of as a hardy perennial in the garden of the business world," Marion said as we prepared to leave the table. "You'll continue to grow and flourish year after year, while Judith is nothing more than a weed. Weeds will get into gardens, you know, but a good gardener soon discovers them, and they are never allowed to grow at the expense of a flowering plant."

Varied Activities of Women

Only three women have been portrayed the United States postage stamps—Martha Washington, Queen Isabella of Spain, and the Indian girl, Pocahontas, who saved the life of Capt. John Smith.

In Rhode Island four women are employed as managers of farms and twenty-two are registered as farm tenants. Nearly 300 women farmers operate 23,232 acres in the state, while the men operate 308,368 acres.

Federal reports show that women are losing ground in competition with the men for industrial jobs.

More than 500,000 women and girls are enrolled in the nation's army of out-of-works.

In the United States there are approximately 712,000 women, 45 years of age or more, who never entered matrimony.

According to a prominent London photographer, American women have the most beautiful eyes in the world.

THE SOFT TIMES

On every hand we hear of hard times. Everybody is complaining. 'Tis only the heavy clouds that people see, not the sun that is trying to pierce them.

The press, however, is optimistically telling us that the prospect is brighter, that we have long since reached the turning point, and that we are well on the way to normalcy. People read and smile and that's all.

What is the trouble? We are like spoiled children. Everything came our way so easily a while ago that we cannot get used to the changed condition. Things seemed to happen with little effort on our part.

Let us all realize that the soft times have gone, and in their place has come a time when all must buckle down and work hard for the good things of life.

It isn't the stringency of the present that we detest; it is only the fact that the easy times of yesterday have gone.

Let's turn about, forget the softness of yesterday, and make the best of the blessings of today.

How to Use the Patterns

WOMEN who do their own work never seem to have enough aprons. Pattern No. 1131 ought to solve the problem of morning dresses or aprons for many of the readers of this column.

The pattern is in one piece, which means, of course, that the sleeves are cut in one with the garment, kimono fashion. It is intended to be slipped on over the head, and the pretty collar, pockets, and belt make it quite complete.

There is quite a variety of materials to choose from, plain or figured. If plain, the material will look well embroidered in bright, contrasting colors. If figured, bias bindings of some plain, contrasting color; or rick rack or other finishing braid will be pretty.

In cutting, allow sufficient length to make a wide hem—it is better for several reasons. It holds the apron in better shape at the bottom, and if necessary to lengthen after being laundered there will be something to let out.

If percale or other heavy material is used for this apron, the seams should be finished by overcasting together, making the seams one-half inch wide. Fine overcasting will make a smoother, flatter edge than any other, and will wash well. After the overcasting is done the seams can be turned towards the front or back, as one prefers, and stitched from the right side about one-fourth inch from the first stitching. This gives a finished appearance, and if the machine tension is not too tight these seams will iron beautifully.

No. 1123 is a dear little design for a small boy. It is one he will be sure to approve of.

Trousers and waist can be made of one or contrasting materials. Lawn or fine linen can be used for the waist; duck, galatea, or any other preferred material for the trousers. The trousers are straight and finished with hems at the bottom. Pockets are set in each side.

The pattern tells clearly about setting the facings on and all other necessary details of making, so there should be no trouble with it.

It will be wise to thoroughly shrink the band material and perhaps reinforce it with a strip of good muslin, laid in between the inside and outside parts of the belt. This should be shrunken also. Overcast the buttonholes from the wrong side, and in working don't take too deep stitches, but even and close together—the rule being one thread of the material between stitches.

In sewing the buttons on, be careful to leave a deep shank of the thread. They will hold better, and not be so apt to tear away, pulling some cloth with them.

The tiny waist is cut kimono fashion, and there can be nothing prettier for a trimming or finish than the narrow ruffles suggested in the picture.

No. 9666 is a one-piece dress, with a front panel, and the closing is at the left side front. This design seems to be especially suited to some of the heavier wash or woolen materials. For a dress to wear under a long coat, serge, tricotine, wool jersey, or other similar material would be smart; and if liked for wear at home afternoons, cotton crêpe, linen or Indian head cotton would look well. White dresses are always attractive looking in the house, even through the coldest months; and as Indian head wears unusually well, and one might get tired of the dress, why not dye it some becoming color? It takes dye beautifully, and will stand frequent laundering.

If one of the woolen materials is used, baste the seams together on the wrong side and stitch; then, holding the seam edges together, bind them with ribbon binding, sewed on loosely by hand. Or take a thin lining of muslin and cut bias strips and baste them over the seam edges, turning in the raw edge of the binding on the upper side only, and stitch close to the turned in edge. Then, with the dress right side out, baste the seams towards the back, seeing that the cloth does not full at all on the right side close to the seams, and stitch ⅜ inch from the first stitching. This gives rather a tailored look, appropriate for this style of dress.

AUTUMN THRIFT.

GREEN tomatoes on vines which have been pulled up and hung up by the roots, may be slowly ripened in such a way as to supply ripe fresh tomatoes for several months. An amateur gardener, the wife of a school principal, who learned gardening during food conservation days, has told me that she hung up tomato vines in this way in a cellar and had tomato salad from them on her husband's birthday in January.

If you have not a garden of your own it is easy to find at this season many neglected tomato vines all about, covered with green tomatoes, which may be had for the asking. Perhaps these will not be so abundant this year as usual because this season many a green tomato has dried up instead of ripening.

In reference to the pulling up of tomato vines, that veteran in vegetable gardening, Eben E. Rexford, has written: "If frost nips the tomato vines before all their fruit is fully ripened, pull them up and hang them against a wall where the sun can get at them. Hang blankets over them if the nights are cold. Here they will ripen as perfectly as on the vines in the garden, and one can enjoy fresh fruit from them until the coming of very cold weather."

The old fashioned housewife ripened tomatoes in the window—on ledges and on the top of the lower sash, and for slower work put them away in drawers. She did it because ripe tomatoes were not purchasable in late fall, and early winter. We may do it to save the 60 or 70 cents a pound which they cost.

Last fall boxes of tomatoes costing around 40 cents had not been out of the market three weeks before I was charged 60 cents per pound for ripe tomatoes, and no better ones than I might have ripened in my own house. I then considered myself quite unthrifty. Green tomatoes in this case would have come from the market, and I would have been more unthrifty if I had neglected a garden supply. Mr. Rexford says: "Really, there is but little chance for waste of garden productions if there is an appreciative and prudent woman in the kitchen."

Always Waste in Stores.

But after all we are seeing more shocking wastes of food in stores than in gardens. Something ought to be done about it, but what? The costs of growing and handling and transporting, with further handling, are all wasted in this case. In the time of autumn abundance this waste often reaches a climax, and the housewife could do her part in preventing it.

The thrifty peoples of the world would not waste a cabbage, yet we see them wasted all the time by the hundreds of pounds, and are indifferent. Cabbage can be canned or made into slaw. Those who grow and store their own cabbages leave the stem on, but stems, after the top has been cut off, will grow little bunches of leaves that make delicious greens. When the stems are left in the soil in late fall and after early frosts these bunches of sprouts are as sweet and dainty as the best Brussel sprouts grown. People who care for their own home grown cabbages turn them upside down for a day or so before they put them in cellar or pit, also upside down. They may be buried also.

The thrifty housewife may easily lay in a supply of onions at the height of the onion harvest, when they cost about $2 or less per hundred pounds. They will keep for some time in an ordinary apartment storeroom with an open window. Onions, of all the things we have around, in small quantity or large, need ventilation. In a closed can they will grow musty, in an airless paper bag they will be heated, so as to both sprout and rot quickly. If hung up in thin bags in an airy place they will keep for months, the red ones best and the yellow ones next—the latter sort we find most abundant in our market. It is best to buy them when we know the harvesting period has been dry. In the case of onions we may, as with other things, put them away with things which will quickly destroy them, and so we must sort them. Open crates on shelves, in dry, well ventilated places are excellent for onions.

While we want and must have air for onions, we exclude air from almost all the other things that grow in the ground, and so we pack them in sand or dirt, or florists' moss. Sphagnum moss is excellent in which to pack roots for winter, and all of these things may be used for the things we wish to force and bleach for salads.

The list of roots is rather long, and may include radishes. These, if they are stored in sand in a cool cellar, especially the black radishes, may be restored to crispness, if not crisp when taken from the sand, by dropping them into cold water for a time. Cucumbers may be kept for weeks in cold sand. I believe it is always best to leave the stem end up. A few horseradish roots are worth having in our sand pile. These may easily be forced for greens.

Treatment of Fruit.

Fine fruit purchased in the market, if without bruise, and if wiped clean and dry, may be wrapped, each piece separately, in oiled paper, and if put in a dark, dry and cool place, will keep for a long time while the price doubles in the market. Grapes hung up by the stem in bags may be kept in the same way, but it is a little harder to get them clean, and we must remember that it is often what we can put away with our perishables that is so likely to destroy them, even when ventilation and temperature for keeping them is correct.

Such items as squashes, pumpkins, citron melons, and other members of the gourd family will keep from harvest time around to summer time again, if properly harvested and stored, but we see them ruined often within three weeks or less from harvest time. If you buy these things in the market, try to get unbruised specimens with a piece of the stem attached.

These keep best where it is light and airy instead of in the dark, and where the temperature averages fifty degrees. I have kept citron melon until well into the winter in an ordinary kitchen, where the window was always open. Fresh candied citron is best for our puddings and cakes and excellent for our fruited brown breads, ice cream puddings, and so forth.

Peppers.

Peppers are the easiest of all things to string and dry. Old fashioned people will take pleasure in drying a few apples on strings, perhaps using an electric fan to help in the work. But there are extended and valuable treatises on the subject of drying which are easily procurable. Farmers' Bulletin 841, on "Drying Fruits and Vegetables in the Home," costs nothing but the trouble of sending to the division of publication, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for it.

The effort in this article is to show how many ways there are of saving and caring for the things at hand, by hanging them high, storing them in good air, burying them in dirt or sand, drying and storing, brining, planting them for further growth, and so forth.

A little chopped parsley can be taken up and potted and will grow all winter. This is the most economical way to manage parsley, so many bushels of which are wasted. European cooks utilize it far more completely and advantageously than we do, but that is a story by itself. It may be kept growing until severe cold weather under boards and straw, but roots may be dug up, trimmed slightly, the top cut back, then planted in six inch pots. Keep in a sunny window and water when necessary.

Chicory.

One of the pleasantest things many a housewife has learned to grow or force for winter salads, and to save the expense of buying at from sixty cents to one dollar a pound, is what in summer is called chicory, a thing bitter as gall of leaf, but when blanched is called "French endive," or "Brusselslof," or "Witloof," and so forth. The large chicory roots are grown during the summer months at the edge of many a garden, but those who know how may purchase these for winter forcing.

Any one doing this should get specific directions for caring for them. Much has been printed first and last on the subject. The growth from one large root may furnish the crisp white club, the leaves of which, when separated, will make enough salad for four people, delicious and dainty with French dressing, or it may be used as a beautiful basis for a fruit salad, in which case it is best to dress them with French dressing before adding the fruit.

Plain dandelion roots of large size may be treated in exactly the same way as the French endive or chicory roots, and give long white leaves that make an excellent and most attractive salad. I have not tried it, nor seen it mentioned anywhere, but I have every reason to believe that oyster plant roots could be forced in the same way for an excellent salad material.

In corn shocking time the housewife could get two things of service, the husks, for tamalelike cakes of corn meal and meat, which need not be the hot, rather crude tasting things tamales generally are, and some corn on the cob for parching—an excellent item and historic for the Thanksgiving feast. The Indians taught the white man how to parch corn, and also how to grind it and carry it in a pouch at the belt as food on long journeys. Common field corn is as palatable as sweet corn for the purpose, I think.

Parched Corn.

Pick over a cup of corn, pour boiling water over it to cover, let it stand five minutes, then drain for twenty and wipe dry. Put a tablespoon of butter or other sweet fat in a cast frying pan (heavy bottom) over the fire turned low, and when it is melted put in corn. Stir all the time for twenty minutes, when each kernel should be thoroughly brown, and some will break or pop slightly. Turn out on absorbent paper, and, if you like, sprinkle with salt. This quickly grows stale, as does popped corn, but while fresh and crisp it may be ground fine, mixed with sugar and used in various ways.

As in the case of drying, there is much printed matter to be obtained on the subject of brining. Any number of things, from mushrooms to pork, may be brined, but the old slovenly ways are far less safe today than formerly, because we live in air far less than clean. It is highly objectionable to eat food that comes out of a brine with an iridescent or a flaky film over it. The art of dry salting is mostly lost except among the very poor races, where it is more of a curse than a blessing.

We may talk about autumn thrift, but with our city markets it is in considerable measure an all the year around thrift to conserve the perishable foods. If buyers at large knew more about caring for fresh goods a larger variety would be obtainable, and at a lower cost. One of the great wastes of this season is that of sweet potatoes, which are thereby made expensive where they should be cheap.

Peas and Beans.

It is not necessary to say anything about laying in a supply of dry beans and peas at harvest time. No products are so easy to store as these. But, unfortunately, when we consider the more perishable things we find that different conditions are required for different commodities. Turnips shrivel in dry air and a lower temperature is required for foods stored in moist air than in dry, otherwise the bacteria and fungi get in their work of decomposition.

In putting anything away, it is highly important to see that it is in the proper condition for keeping. Much of the decay of fruits and vegetables in storage is not due to storage, but to conditions existing before they were put away.

The Best Beauty Doctor—Sleep

by Antoinette Donnelly

Nothing Like It for Tired Nerves and Weary Bodies.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

THE other day a physician of distinction said that half the nervous ills of women and the aged faces of so many young girls of the present day is due to lack of sleep.

"You cannot burn up energy night after night with late hours, and not show it in health and looks," said he.

Which is just another form of expressing the well known platitudes about beauty sleep.

It does not seem necessary to attempt any concrete evidences of what lack of sleep will do to a system. You know and I know that we are not the same agreeable, patient, companionable folk to live with, if we have been deprived of our regular nine hours per for two or three nights in succession. When you are awfully tired, which you are after sleep loss, your digestion is all upset. Continue this sleep deprivation for any length of time and it is bound to affect the whole nervous system. And what it does for the looks, you know, too. Circles under the eyes, lines in the face, a drawn, colorless expression and tired, weary eyes.

And so, this is not written to tell you what you know yourself about the damage lack of sleep can do. Rather, it is to remind you of the benefits of this greatest of nature's rejuvenators.

How Much to Sleep.

The number of hours of sleep generally needed varies with circumstances. The average is from eight to nine or ten hours. Children require more sleep than grown ups. A fairly good general rule is to sleep when sleepy and not try to sleep more than that. Following this rule, you will find you need the eight or ten hours, and will furnish it to your system.

Your best sleep is with the stomach practically empty. There is a popular theory that food eaten before going to bed induces sleep. It is true that it puts one to sleep at first by diverting the blood from the head, but it disturbs sleep later.

Water and fruit may be taken without injury before retiring. A glass of hot milk is often prescribed for people troubled with insomnia, but no heavy eating.

There is a wonderful nervous relaxation induced by neutral baths, which in turn induces sleep. They help in cases of extreme nervous irritability, sufferers from which are the worst victims of insomnia.

How to Get Sleep.

Everybody has his or her own trick of inducing sleep by counting numerals, or counting sheep going over a wall, or whatever the pet count may be. It is true that sleep may be induced by monotonous sound and the monotonous holding of the attention. Lying awake is due to continued change and interruption of the attention.

Dropping work and cares at bed time may be easier to advise than to do. But you can do it by suggesting to yourself the pleasantest thought which memory or imagination can conjure up. If worried, read something diverting, but not exciting, before retiring. Often abstruse books that require great mental concentration will prove serviceable in quieting the mind and inducing sleep.

Slow, deep, rhythmic breathing will produce sleep, as will light exercises before retiring. But, after all, unless one has pressing worries on the mind, sleep is a matter of habit. You can train yourself to a certain number of hours for every night, and the pardonable occasional missing on account of a social event should be made up the next night.

Beauty Needs Rest.

You simply cannot preserve your beauty without the aid of Dr. Sleep, the best beauty doctor in the business. Perhaps on the young flappers and debs the ravage is not noticed at first—but even with their youth, lack of sleep takes its beauty and health toll.

During the growing years, a full measure of sleep is just as important as a full measure of food or exercise. No pleasure, excitement, study, or social obligation should be allowed to interfere with the sleep the body requires for recuperation and development of the young.

The hours of sleep are not the only important thing. The hygienic condition of the sleeping room is no less important. It must be quiet, and with plenty of ventilation. Sleeping outdoors is more restful, of course, than indoors, but the lot of mankind is unevenly divided in this regard, for sleeping porches are few compared to the millions of sleepers.

That being the case, all the fresh air possible must be allowed into the sleeping room. A heavy, tired body and mind answers the alarm clock (if it answers at all) after a night spent in a stuffy, ill ventilated room.

Pillows should be proportioned to the dimensions of the sleeper. A small shoulder rquires a small pillow. Going without pillow has been used to advantage in corrective work on round shoulders. But the average person wants and profits from something soft to lay his weary head upon.

Two performances daily:

10:30 A.M.—1:30 P.M.

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday.

A Fashion Review which promises to be delightfully instructive. The garments therein are typical of the new style tendencies in all their changing phases. The foremost designers in America have contributed to the collection, which includes also models of Parisian origin that will be displayed. But all garments are both modish and sensible, fashionable and practical, calculated to appeal to all women who appreciate beauty in style.

The prices are another source of gratification—they are uniformly moderate, even low. It required effort and careful planning to gather such splendid values in—as shown in our Autumn Exposition, but our efforts will be more than repaid by our customers' appreciation. Be sure to attend and bring your friends with you.

In conjunction with our Autumn Exposition we hold a sale of women's suits at 29.75 | sale of splendid dresses 25.00

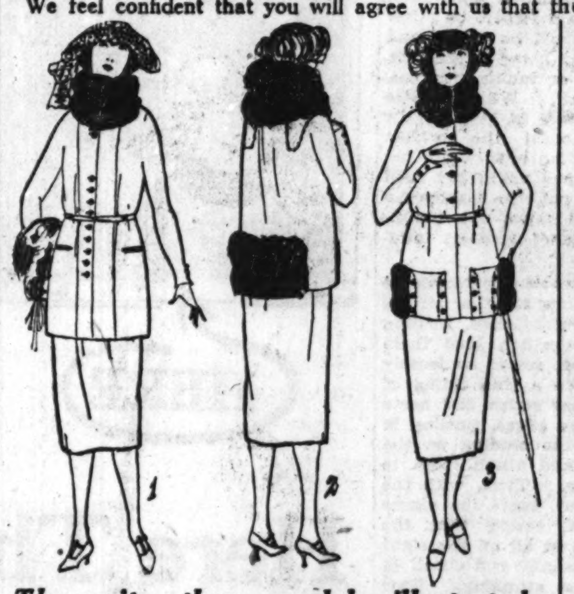
which we consider exceptional values.

These suits and dresses will also be shown on living models and we direct your particular attention to them. We feel confident that you will agree with us that the word "exceptional" is a mild term for them.

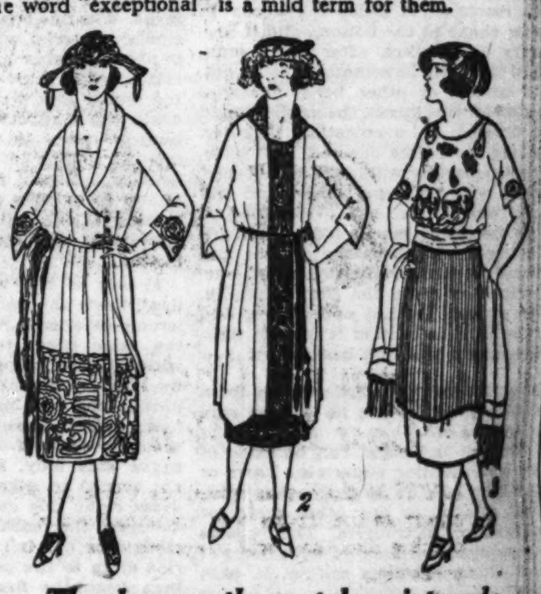


The suits, three models illustrated:

No. 1 is a straight line model of duvet de laine with beaverette collar. Finished with pockets. 29.75.

No. 2 has a ripple coat and is made of suede velour; trimmed with collar and border of beaverette fur. 29.75.

No. 3 is a youthful style of tricotine handsomely embroidered and trimmed with fur. 29.75.



The dresses, three styles pictured:

No. 1 is a dress of Poiret twill; handsomely braided and trimmed with pearl buttons. 25.00.

No. 2 is a combination model of tricotine and satin; straight line effect; embroidered front. 25.00.

No. 3 is a beautiful style of Canton crepe with hand embroidered blouse and accordion plaited tunic. 25.00.

DRY CLEANING AT HOME

by Alma Harding

This is the twenty-second article of a series giving instructions in dry cleaning, fine laundry work, bleaching, and dyeing.

ALPHABETICAL TABLE OF SPOT REMOVERS.

To remove walnut stains dissolve one-half ounce of sulphite of soda in one quart of water, to which has been added one-quarter ounce of hydrochloric acid, or oxalic, if the other is not available. Spot the stain repeatedly. The same treatment is also used on photographic stains unless they have been made with nitrate of silver, which isn't usual nowadays.

Water Spots.

These spots will come out only with water. They are especially annoying on silks, as taking them out is likely to leave a ring. Use soft or distilled water, moisten a tampon slightly, and brush the spot until it disappears; then dry rapidly with a piece of buckskin to avoid rings. Colored silks are liable to bleed, so use acetic acid in the water. On light gray and tan wools be careful to dry quickly to avoid rings.

Waterproof Goods.

Wear destroys their rain resisting powers, but with a little care the fabric may be treated and be as good as new. The rewaxing of the threads where the wear has taken place makes the garment waterproof again. Warm some benzine in a hot water bath and melt in it as much paraffin as it will take up. Let it cool and then pour off, leaving the separated wax behind. Rub the liquid into the parts affected with a brush, putting on plenty and only rubbing one way. When the benzine has evaporated take the garment into a hot room or near a radiator, and when it no longer looks spotted iron with a fairly hot iron to press the wax into the thread.

Wax.

Blotting paper and a hot iron will take off most wax. Scrape off all that is possible when it is on a dress. Place a damp linen rag beneath the spot and blotting paper above and iron with a warm iron. If it is in an inaccessible place for an iron, use chloroform.

Wet Cleaning.

The principal factor in wet cleaning and removing special stains by water is to have soft or distilled water, otherwise a white ring forms around the stain and will not go. The spots should be dried as quickly as possible with buckskin. Use a soap which will not gelatinize at an ordinary temperature—a neutral oil soap. The French have always been particularly successful with wet cleaning. They usually soak their garments six hours before cleaning and soak their colored garments in salt water to begin with and rinse in an acetic acid solution to harden and brighten the colors, as well as do away with the probability of bleeding.

White Goods.

When white materials turn gray or yellow in gasoline or benzine, it is sure proof that they are moist or that there is water in the gasoline.

Whortleberries.

See Fruit Stains.

Windows.

When windows have become opaque through the action of the sun and rain, rub with vinegar or dilute muriatic acid and then polish.

Window Shades.

When window shades are either badly faded or too dirty to clean at home, it is always possible to dye them a good green or deep cream yellow (if they are white) by dissolving in gasoline oil paints of the desired shade. Paint on with a wide brush, working quickly and lightly.

Wine Stains.

Put a thick layer of salt on the stain when it is made and later pour boiling water from a height. If the stain is old, use eau de Javelle. An excellent soap for removing wine and vinegar stains may be made of sixteen parts ordinary soap with two parts turpentine and one part ammonia.

Wood.

When wood like the kitchen floor becomes stained from acids, pour lime water on the spots and leave for one-half hour, then wipe off and the wood will be its original white color. This can be used only on plain unvarnished woods.

Wood Finish Stains.

Sometimes perfume or alcohol smears over a wood finish and the stains get on the hem of a light dress. To remove them, follow the directions given under Color Stains.

Wool.

Wool shrinks in a high temperature and felts in a low. So the important thing to remember is to keep it always at a moderate temperature both for the washing and the rinsing. Do not dry where it is too hot so the wool will steam. For all kinds of woolen fabrics, clothlike tissues, furniture damask, carpets, plush fabrics, and mixed wool and cottons, any kind of potash, soda lye, concentrated ammonia, or hot solutions of alkaline carbonates are harmful. The wool fiber is quite dissolved in concentrated ammonia.

Wool is, however, resistant to dilute acids. Caustic alkalis, if they must be used, must be nearly cold and weak. The same is true of alkaline carbonates, as the fabric becomes harsh and rough and loses its luster. This is especially true of blankets.

White serge and white wool which is to be dry cleaned will become yellow unless it is thoroughly dry before dipping into the benzine. A thick paste of benzine soap and benzine should be brushed into the dirtiest spots, and as much cleaning as possible should be done before putting in the benzine bath. Exposure to heat after the cleaning will yellow the material, so let it dry in a room not more than 68 degrees.

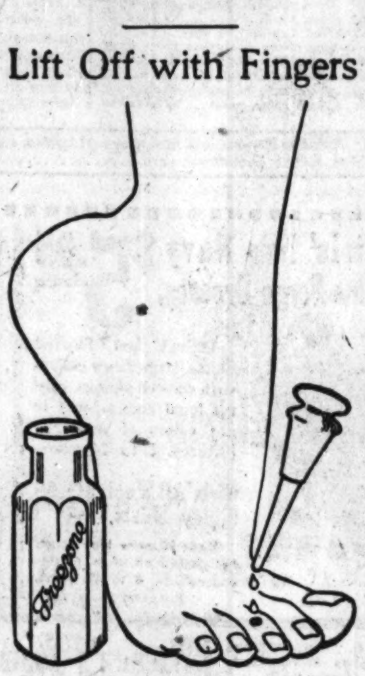
CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers



Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Even the Children's Clothes Cost Less With the Deltor

LITTLE clothes as quaint as those in picture-books—as smart as the frocks wee Parisiennes are wearing—so becoming that they will make your children look their very sweetest.

You can make them yourself and they will actually cost you less than any clothes you have ever bought or made!

Even if you have never attempted a little garment, you can now create with your own fingers the smartest of school dresses, the most picturesque of party frocks. All because of a wonderful new invention accompanying every new Butterick pattern; an invention that guides you in three steps to sewing ease, to success, to wonderful economy.

The DELTOR
Saves 50c to $10
On a Gown for Yourself

First the Deltor gives you an individual layout chart (yes, an individual chart—not just a general chart, but one for your exact size and for each suitable width of material.) You lay out your pattern—the expert's way. You buy ¼ to 1⅜ yards less material on every garment, a saving that amounts to from 50c to $10 on a gown for yourself!

Then the Deltor saves time. Following the Parisian professional's picture-and-word putting together explanations, you sew swiftly and accurately. Whether you are making a pair of bloomers or a frock, the Deltor for that particular garment guides every stitch.

And finally as the little garment nears completion, precious secrets of finish are revealed to you—how to bind the buttonholes, how to finish the neck, how to work the scallops—important touches evolved for the garment you are making. The little garment reveals all the "artful artlessness" of childhood as interpreted by Paris!

GO to the Butterick pattern counter. And whether you select a child's pattern or one for yourself remember that the Deltor specifies ¼ to 1⅜ yards less than would otherwise be possible—a saving of 50c to $10 on every frock for yourself.

FOR FASHIONS
Paris clothes for every winter occasion—style that the Deltor will interpret for you.

WISHING LORE

by DORIS BLAKE

IN England, if a person drops a pin into a wishing well and makes a wish, that wish will surely come to pass.

If you can wish before the first circle disappears when you throw a stone in the water you will get your wish.

Spit on the last car of a train and make a wish at the same time, and you wish will come true.

The Welsh say that one has only to wish for a thing with sufficient energy to get it.

The spring is the luckiest time for wishes.

Wishes wished in the spring
Best results will bring.
Wish and rub your hand on brass,
Your wish will surely come to pass.
Wish and rub your hand on tin,
Your wish will surely come again.

Whenever you wish a good thing for somebody else, a blessing will come to you; but if you wish evil to some one else it will surely rebound upon you. Wishes are like boomerangs.

If a person goes into a strange church and makes a wish, he or she will get it before the year is out.

Wish on a load of hay, without looking at the load again, and your wish will come to pass.

Make up a rhyme when you hear a beautiful strain of music, and your dearest wish will be granted.

What you eagerly wish for will be likely to meet you.

Throw a rusty nail over your head and wish and you will get it.

If you stand on a stone that cannot be moved and make a wish you will get it.

If you have onion skins, put a sprinkle of salt and pepper on them Friday morning and burn them for good luck, making a wish.

If you make a wish without speaking, when about to eat any new fruit or vegetable, the wish will come true.

Any wish would come true if it was made on the divining rod, but it has to be made on certain nights of a new moon.

In Germany the wishing rod is cut from the black thorn, and those possessing it will have their wishes granted.

When you find a stone broken in halves, place the two parts together, throw them over the right shoulder, and wish.

If you pull wishbones, the one who gets the junction of the bone does not get her wish; and if it flies away neither girl will be married.

If a person will make a wish and then cut an apple in halves without cutting the seed, it is a sign that the wish will be fulfilled.

Take the little bow out of a man's hat without his knowledge, wear in your shoe, and all your wishes will come true.

If you find a dead bird bury it under a pine tree and make a wish; your wish will then come true.

Every Japanese believes firmly that at least one wish of his heart will be granted. Their goddess of mercy with her lunar aureole must not be prayed to but once in a lifetime by any person, but that once she will hear and answer.

The wishing rod was a rod of pure gold belonging to the Niebelungs. Whoever possessed it could have anything he wished, and hold the wide world in subjection.

In East Prussia the sap of dogwood, absorbed in a handkerchief, will fulfill every wish.

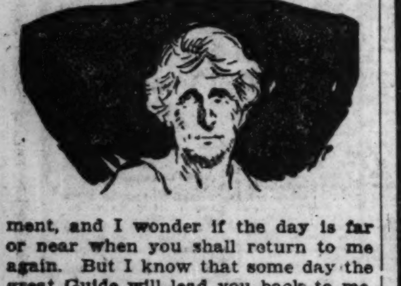
LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $5 for ever love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to retain possession of.

WAITING.

Ever my thoughts are with you, no matter where in this big wide world you are roaming. In the far east or over the western mountains, or on the rough and high seas; always I'm waiting for your return.

Sometimes it seems my heart would break when I think of our parting moment, and I wonder if the day is far or near when you shall return to me again. But I know that some day the great Guide will lead you back to me, for I have prayed for you in those long hours of watching.



In my heart I cherish a dream of your return to me. I can see you come to my outstretched arms, and I can press you to my heart again as I did in the years of your childhood.

Do not let this dream fade, but turn your weary feet and come back to the one who loved you faithfully and stood by you in all those long years.

Remember that I'm walking towards the sunset of life and long to meet you before I depart for the great beyond.

YOUR MOTHER.

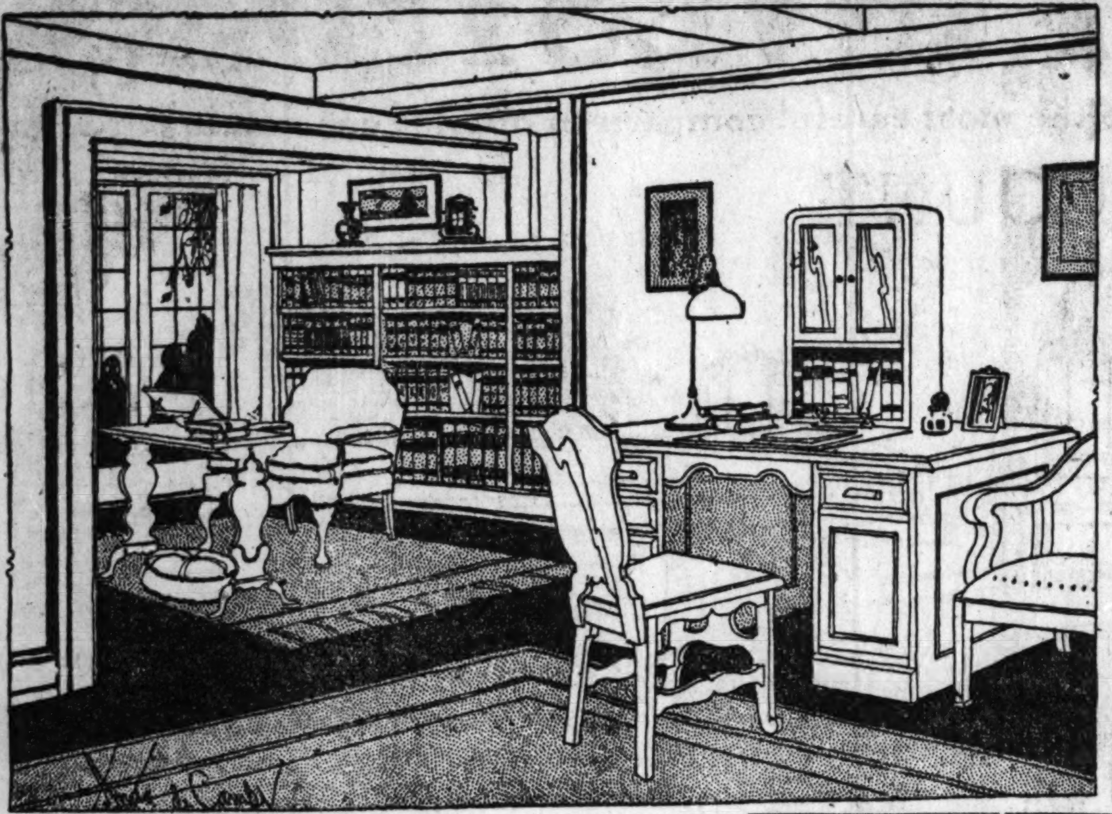
Big Chairs and Real Colors Are Essential for Bachelor Quarters



By Anita de Campi.

Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

CREATURE comfort is what the bachelor insists upon in his living quarters. The male person invariably wants plain, unpretentious furniture, but it must be substantial—big, strong, squashy chairs 'n' everything.

As a rule the room fitted up for a man costs at least twice as much as a more elaborate looking room planned for a woman would cost. It corresponds in price with the difference between tailor made and fluffy ruffled clothes. A premium is put upon satisfactory cut and material as against the disguise of cheaper stuff plentifully garnished. Men appreciate excellent cabinet work, good thick rugs, and large, commodious sofas and chairs. They look for good lighting by day and night. The masculine sense of neatness is more naturally developed than the feminine. Men like a place for everything, and like everything in its place. Balance and symmetry of arrangement are indulged in to the point of formality. An orderly air to them completes their feeling of comfort.

As to colors, men like what they call real colors. Demitones and indescribable blends and faded tints are left to subtler natures. Give the men real brown and blue and accidents of real orange or real red. I can hardly imagine an intelligent bachelor's quarters without including in the mental picture some red bound books within easy reach, on book shelves, preferably open ones.

In other countries men go about their work in a more leisurely manner than they do here. More work is done at home where conveniences are at hand. Where it is possible for a man to work at home a room should be consecrated to his labor. At whatever time the rest of the family are allowed to encroach on his domain they should bear in mind that his desk, and his bookcase, and his favorite chair have a sign thereon (invisible, perhaps, but none the less highly to be respected), "Hands off!"

A tiny feather duster should be kept on the desk that will permit of tidying without displacing reference books and papers. When the heavy cleaning is done desk and table top should be covered with a dust cloth and papers left undisturbed.

In the room must be either a day bed or a long davenport, so that the man may stretch out at full length, for it is a well known fact among lawyers and literary people that the thinking apparatus works best when placed in a recumbent position. Try that out on yourself.

When I say that men like real colors, I do not mean that they always want a riot of it, but merely that they like it of a pronounced depth. They like a few distracting notes in the room. The most successful editor I know feels that he cannot work happily without a vase or bowl of fresh flowers on his table. Pictures they usually like in sets, framed in uniform frames. A set of Japanese prints nearly always appeals.

Women who work seem to acquire some of the mannish common sense about furnishing, and learn how to introduce beauty without admitting frippery. They bar out frilly curtains, sentimental embroidered sofa pillows, pink and white effects, and maudlin pictures.

In the accompanying illustration the floors are stained with raw sienna, a tone somewhat deeper and richer than oak, but not as dark as walnut. The good chenille rugs are of gun metal gray, the walls covered with stippled paper in light blue-gray with a tinge of mauve. The woodwork is painted violet with tiny moldings of black matching the black moldings that frame the pictures. The desk lamp has a shade of bright green glass. The big easy chair is covered with green mohair velvet matching the glass shade. It is piped with black silk "moss." This has the most "postery" effect, backed against the open bookcase, whch is not painted mauve and black like the rest of the woodwork in the room, but bright Chinese red. The footstool matches the chair.

The day bed on the other side of the room has a cover of green and gun metal striped rep, with two black, two green, and one paprika colored cushions. These are all piped with black, and handled with big black tassels.

Draw curtains at the windows are of mauve velveteen, lined with paprika rajah. The velvet side faces in and the rajah lining enlivens the dullness of the stucco façade, that is seen from the garden. A personal note is granted by grace of several framed photographs.

All of the furniture is of brown mahogany. An attractive accessory of this room, not shown in this sketch, is a nest of tables with a nest of scarlet ash trays on it. One little table and tray is readily furnished to the chair side of each guest.

Another piece of furniture is an interesting old shaving stand, quite tall with an electric light fitted to each side of the mirror frame, and a small drawer for the "safety" instruments. There is no chest of drawers, chiffonier, or other article suggestive of bedroom fitting. Drawers, shelves, trays, and hangers are built into an electric lighted closet, and shoe racks are adjusted to the inside of the closet door.

Beauty Answers

By Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

PADRE: TRY THESE ON YOUR waistline every day, morning and night, and then write and tell me if you are not several inches leaner: First, stand with your feet apart and palms together overhead. Now bend your body from side to side, keeping head high. Repeat five times. Second, stand with feet apart and arms stretched wide and on level with shoulders. Twist upper part of the body to right five times, and then to left five times. Repeat this with arms overhead, hands together. The upraised arms put a certain stretch on the waist muscles. Then try to touch the floor with finger tips. Do that five times. These are three fine exercises and almost guaranteed to do the work. Cut your food down one-half at each meal, too. That isn't nearly as hard as it sounds, as you will see on one day's trial.

MOTHER: STANDING CORRECTLY is such a little thing to do and such a big thing for a growing girl not to do. Have daughter form the habit and it will follow simply as a matter of course. Instead of throwing the shoulders back, tell her to imagine she is being hung by the top of her head. Everyone should stand so that the long diameter of the head, neck and trunk form a continuous vertical—not a zig-zag—line. Correct posture in sitting is just as important. Sit with the lower spine well pushed back in the chair. Sliding down in the chair and slouching interfere with the workings of the internal organs, and are anything but restful.

H. J.: THERE ARE A LOT OF things I cannot help, in spite of your overwhelming flattery. After one has reached 20 there is nothing to do but accept one's height as a fact. You will have to resort to high hairdressings and high heels. But here I am—always wishing I were a dainty, petite thing. No use doing anything but trying to make the best of how much there is of us, big or little.

AGATHA: MASSAGING IS A DIScouraging way of adding flesh to bones. It is slow, tedious, and more or less uncertain. Good food, including generous helpings of cream on cereals, in coffee, and on desserts; milk or cocoa or chocolate as the principal drink; lots of butter on everything, and olive oil are the things to add fat quickly. Get lots of rest and sleep and as much outdoor exercise as possible to create a wholesome appetite. If you want more detailed information on this subject of putting on weight, send along a s. a. e. I have a little booklet which will help.

MATRONLY: THAT'S WHERE the fat seems to settle first on the most of us humans. Undoubtedly because the waist muscles are least disturbed by muscular action. However, you can get down several inches and quite a number of pounds on a rigid diet and exercises that are aimed particularly at that part. Better let me send you the instructions in the illustrated form. Yes, have some, too, for the shoulder blade fat, which is deforming to a woman who loves a neat silhouette.

The Hair-Destroying Curling Iron P

The heated iron makes the hair dry and parched looking, burns off the ends, giving a most untidy appearance. You who have learned this from experience will be glad to hear of a very simple method which is open to none of the objections referred to and which gives better results than the curling iron. Just get a few ounces of plain liquid silmerine at your druggist's and apply a little with a clean tooth brush before doing up the hair, drawing the brush down one strand at a time from root to tip. In three hours your hair will be as beautifully wavy and curly as though Mother Nature did it, and it will be quite manageable, no matter what style of coiffure you adopt. The effect will be much prettier than if you used a waving iron, will last much longer, and the health of your hair will not suffer. Silmerine is not sticky or greasy, but is quite pleasant to use.

Big Reasons

Why The GENERAL Furnishes More Homes Than Any Other Dealer in Chicago

Our nine big stores are the real reasons why Chicago people prefer the GENERAL for furniture. They have learned the conveni ence of shopping in their own neighborhoods where our stores are located, and they have found that the GENERAL'S prices are exceptionally moderate at all times, and they can always bank on the quality of the merchandise. This reputation for reliability is worth considering when you contemplate the purchase of furniture; moreover, the GENERAL'S credit plan is, admittedly, the most liberal in all Chicago. A dollar down gives you any article in any of our stores, and you may arrange to pay off the balance in small weekly or monthly installments to suit your convenience.

As Snugly as a Bandage

The flexible Cantilever Shoe, with its skillfully designed instep, fits and supports the foot arch without stiffness or restraint. The fit is so close and true, and so gentle and free, that it has been likened to the effect of a doctor's bandage wound lightly but snugly round the instep.

If you are on your feet a large part of the day, either standing or walking, you can realize how delightfully comfortable and restful such a natural support to the arch is going to be when you wear Cantilever Shoes.

Should your arches be weak, or on the verge of breaking down, this support of the Cantilever Shoe will give you splendid relief while the free muscle action permitted by the flexible shank is gradually strengthening your arch muscles through exercise.

Assuming that your arches are normal, and that you are one of the lucky few to have feet that are in good condition, the Cantilever Shoe will protect your good fortune. No doubt you know that the small bones of the foot are held in position by muscles and tendons, and they will always stay in place if the strength and health of these ligaments is maintained by exercise and free circulation.

So comfortable and so healthful are Cantilever Shoes that good looks would seem to be precluded. But they are as stylish as any other walking oxfords and boots. Come and see how modish they are, and how very comfortable they feel. We are the sole agents in Chicago and invite your inspection. We know how delighted are the many women who try their first pair of Cantilever Shoes.

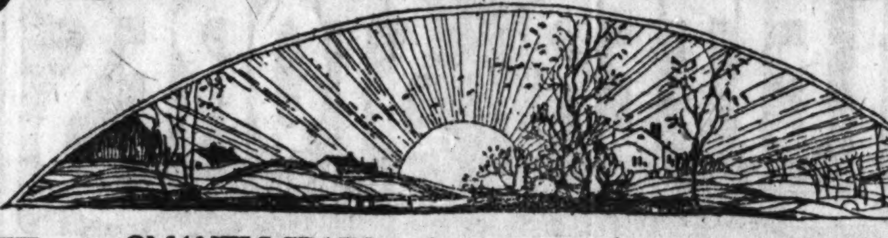
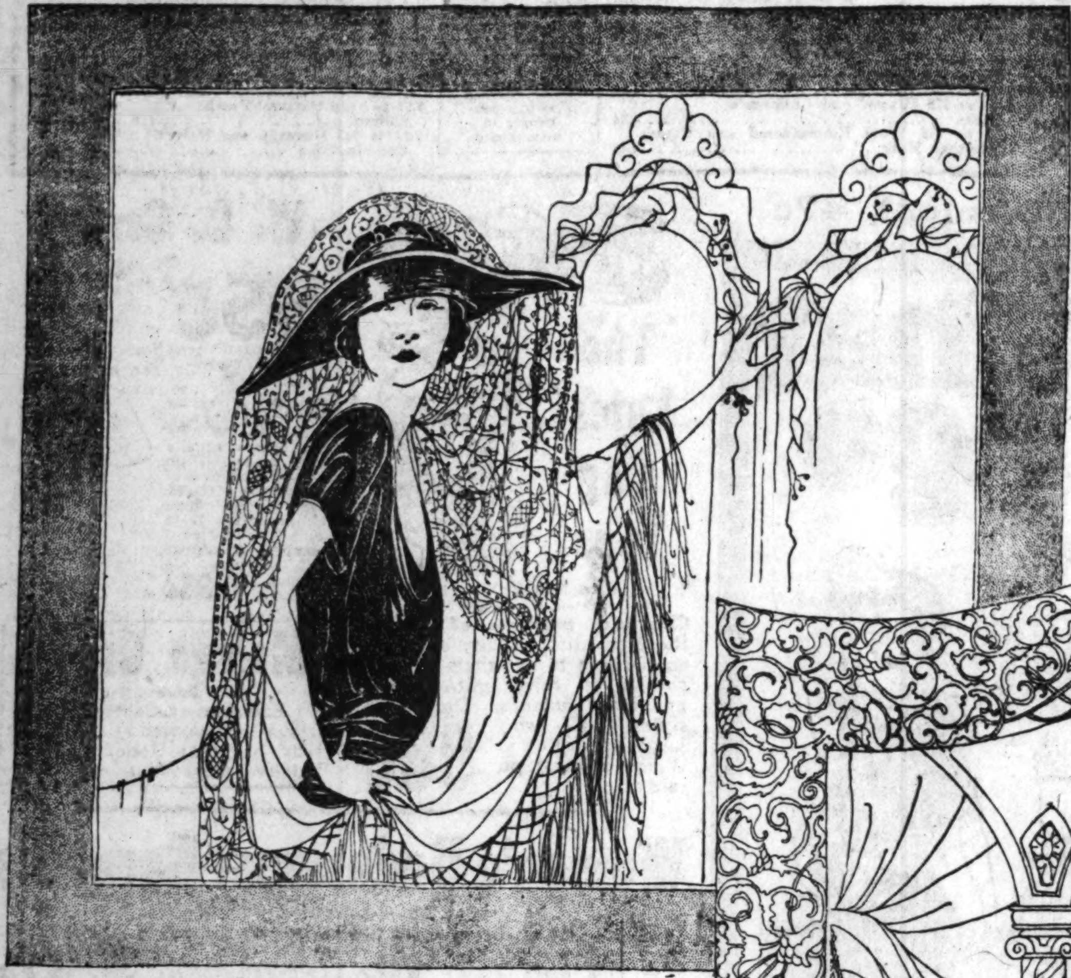
Mandel Brothers' Autumn Inaugural Reflects Parisian Fashion Genius

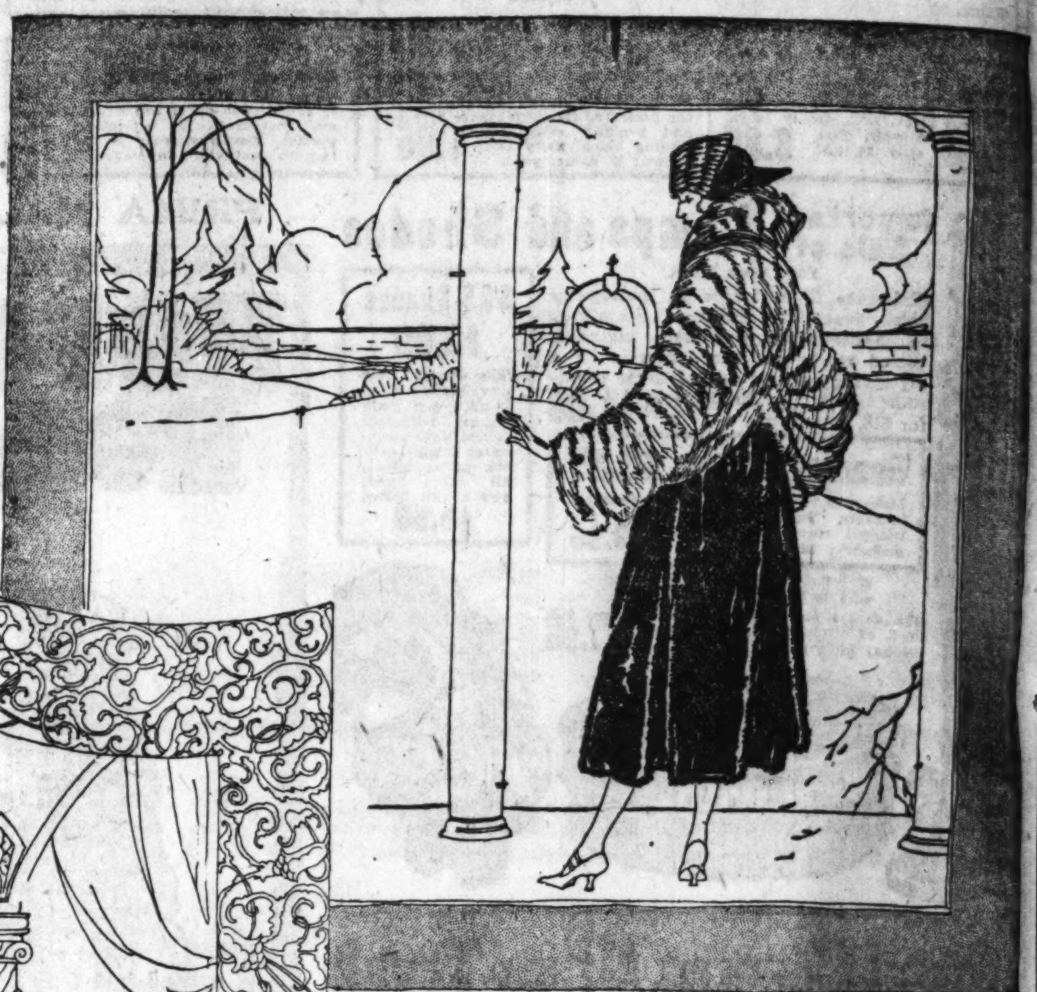


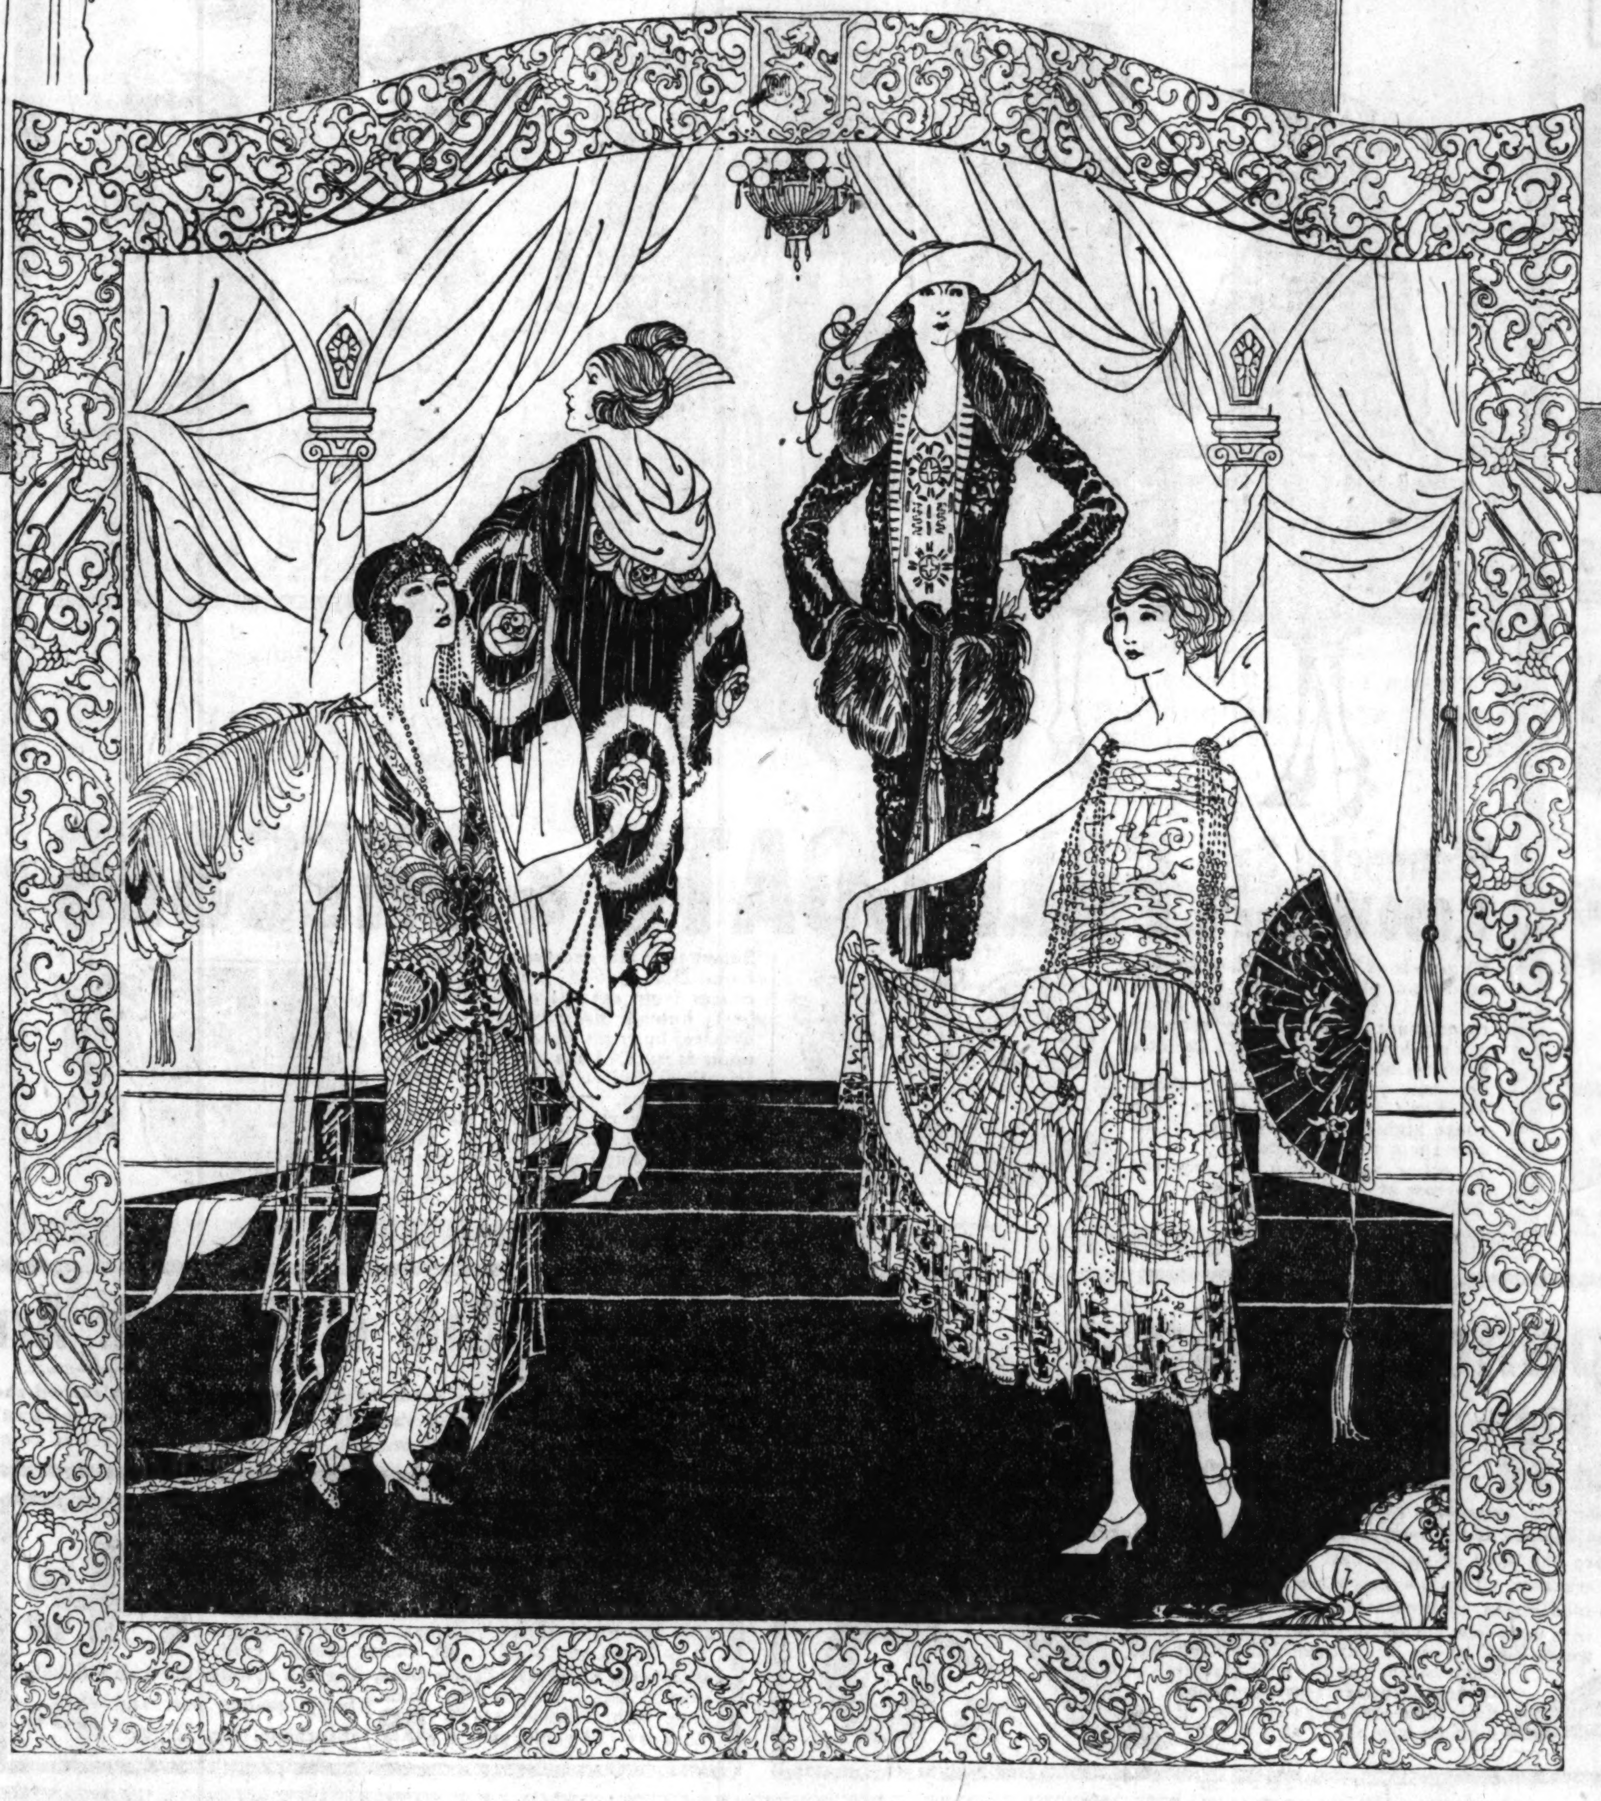


ROMANTIC SPAIN, with its grace and gayety, provides the inspiration for the new season's smartest gowns, tailleurs, wraps and chapeaux, such as here, in ample numbers, brilliantly represent foremost French fashion originators.

In a formal opening exhibit more comprehensive, more captivating, than any of its predecessors, Paris' inimitable genius interprets Spanish style motifs entrancingly, in costumes, wraps and hats "with a soul"—a personality—to add its charm to milady's at reception, dance or opera.

Our personal representatives, with unerring taste, selected these offerings from the smartest obtainable abroad—choosing always the aristocratic, never the outre—securing those free expressions of French sartorial art which were best attuned to American refinement of taste.





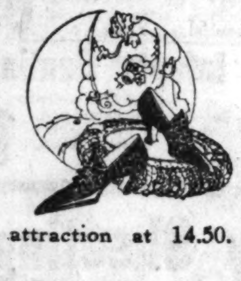
Late French Hats

—magic words in Fashion's realm, particularly since, like Saturn's rings, these latest chapeaux were thrown off by the stars of France's millinery firmament:

Lewis, Maria Guy, Suzanne Talbot,
Evelyn Varon, Hermance, Elaine.

Spanish influence is patent in black hats with graceful mantilla-like lace or sweeping willow ostrich. The style sketched is from Hermance. Original French hats at $20 to $75.

Correct Foot Dress



Low, buckled styles designed for street, afternoon and evening, are accorded fashionable preference. Fifth floor.

Especially the "Virginia"—the stunning 3-buckle pump sketched; bench made, with high arch and full French heel; in brown calfskin, patent leather or black kidskin; an unusual Opening Week attraction at 14.50.

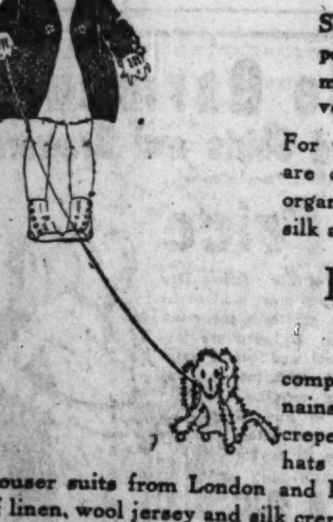
Silks to be Vogue

For daytime silks are "crepey" in weave; for evening they're aglint with tracery of gold and silver, and come direct from France. Second floor.

The new velvet brocades, in gorgeous tones and stunning patterns, are charmingly soft and drapey.

40-inch black Moon-Glo crepe brocade in broken stripes, blocks and squares, featured at 4.95.

For Tiny Folk



Paris' new "modes in miniature" have an "air" quaintly, childishly, "grown-up"; and America's originations for kiddies are equally dainty and debonair.

Sketched is a winsome imported coat with hat to match—in rich blue velvet and white eiderdown.

For wee girls, two to six, there are charming Parisian frocks of organdie, nainsook, net, artificial silk and wool jersey.

Babies' frocks from France comprise exquisite creations of nainsook, French batiste and crepe de chine. Tiny girls' Paris hats are charming. Baby boys' trouser suits from London and Paris, are jauntily fashioned of linen, wool jersey and silk crepe. Third floor.

Gowns-Wraps-Tailleurs

The subtly simple line, the inimitable chic, that epitomize the French flair for fashion, are to be found par excellence in the gowns, costumes, tailleurs, wraps and coats selected, with artistic discrimination, from

Madeleine et Madeleine, Agnes, Renee, Jenny, Jeanne Lanvin,
Maurice Mayer, Charlotte, Callot Soeurs, Tina Monteau

Exclusive costumes from these famed couturiers, and adaptations by clever American designers, display Grecian influence in draped, flaring lines—and Spanish inspiration in lace and fringed mantilla effects. They are exquisitely fashioned of lace, chiffon velvet, Elizabeth crepe, metallic brocades and sequins. Fourth floor.

The Madeleine et Madeleine evening gown illustrated at the left is of gold lace and green chiffon.

The Maurice Mayer model sketched at right is in purple chiffon and satin, veiled with black chantilly lace.

The new wraps in straightline and cape effects are of silk velours, deep-piled wool fabrics—marvella, orlando, bolivia, panvelaine, pollyanna—in rich new colortones, and embroidered or fur adorned.

The Maurice Mayer evening wrap sketched is of chiffon velvet in American beauty and black, adorned with mole, and velvet flowers.

Lavishly fur embellished are the newest tailormades in black, Sorrento blue and novel shades of brown.

The De May three-piece costume suit sketched is of embroidered duvetyn and caracul, adorned with black lynx, lined with cloth of gold.

Fashion's newest ideas in costume accessories—gloves, hosiery, jewelry, combs, fans, bags—add much to the interest of Autumn's Inaugural here.

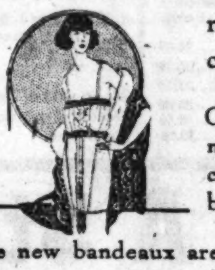
Furs' Regal Touch

The furs we feature are so soft, so fine, so opulent, that "regal" accurately defines them; and the 1921-22 fur fashions are of a novel and lofty distinction.

Hudson seal is still first choice, with fitch, caracul, South American broadtail and Persian lamb favored. Fifth floor.

The style sketched is distinguished by a coatee-effect of dark, fine liberty fitch; the skirt is of hudson seal.

Corsets' New Lines



You will observe that they are designed to impart the new, slim, graceful silhouette decreed for autumn.

Our corset collections comprise late models for every figure type, and the corsets are available in exquisite silk brocades and broches. Fifth floor.

The new bandeaux are as pleasingly modeled and fabricked.

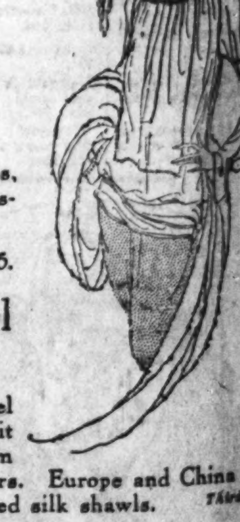
Exquisite Laces

will adorn this season's hats, blouses and frocks—and will be interestingly employed in the new, fashionable Spanish mantillas. First floor.

Importations of metal novelties, Spanish laces, colored novelties, handmade laces, are featured.

Sheer nets and chiffons are fascinatingly displayed. Black chantilly flouncing, 36-inch, 3.95; 18-inch, 1.95.

The Blouse Mode



Blouses from foremost Parisian couturiers—Renee, Martial Armand, Beer, and others equally famous—enhance Autumn Inaugural's brilliance, and offer fascinating choice.

The model sketched, from Renee, exploits the new, very low waist, in hip-girdled, bloused effect, and with long, elaborate sleeves.

Cashmere design and colortones, beaded or embroidered, lend distinction to many models.

Black silk lace blouses, 12.75 to $25.

The Spanish shawl in lace and silk is the most noteworthy of novel fashions. Intrinsically beautiful, it lends distinctive grace to madam and miss attired for formal affairs. Europe and China send richly embroidered, heavily fringed silk shawls. Third floor.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

THE DETACHABLE SLEEVE.

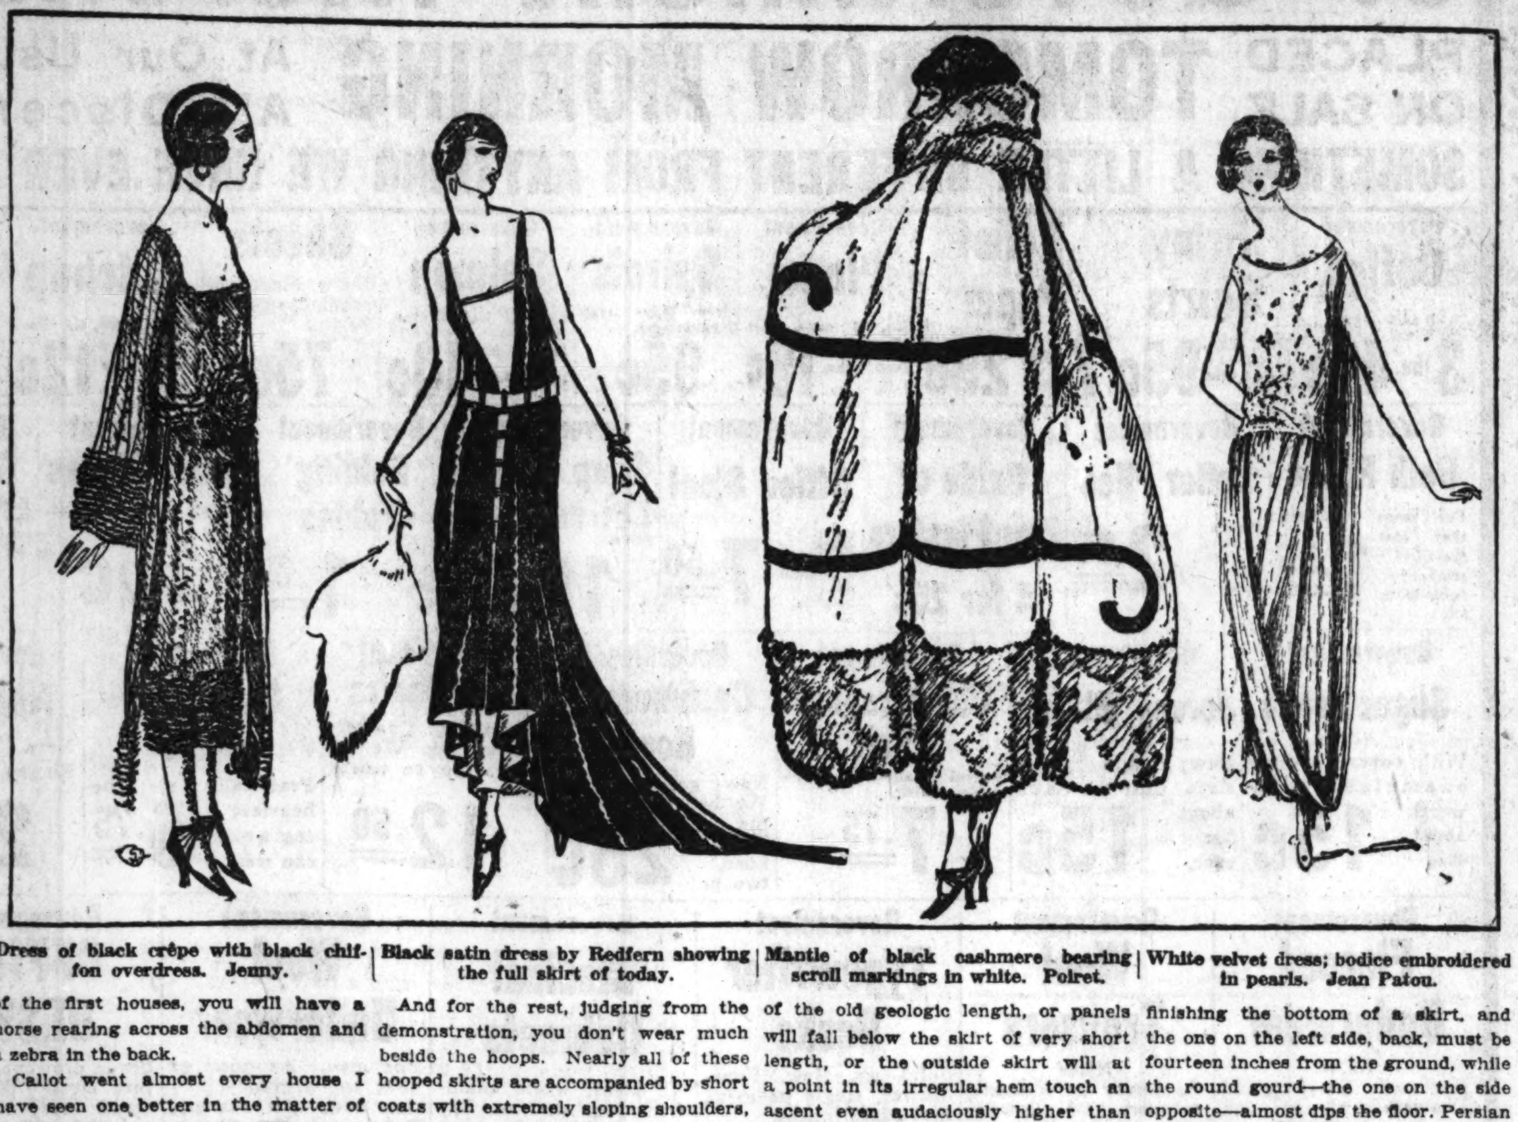
PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Of course you wish to know how Callot is making out and what she is featuring? I can answer the latter question in a word. Detachable sleeves. You can take them off as you do your slippers, and, as you cannot do with your slippers, you can omit them altogether for an occasion if you like.

These sleeves snap on with wristlet effects that circle the arms midway between elbow and shoulder, and they are literally long looking things like the wristlets in Indiana of old. Only they, I believe, were of knitted wool, and these are usually in the brocaded materials of the dresses, shirred on rubber to hold them in place.

From this anchorage lovely elaborate sleeves flow in much the lines described in previous letters. The bell shape is the inspiration of them all. Only in the case of Callot the bell is attached to the arms and not to an upper arm sleeve. Still you know, however successful and elaborate a sleeve, it is nowhere as dressy as no sleeve at all. And the beauty about these detachable ones is that they can be discarded altogether for an evening.

Let me see—what are some of the other points? There is a rage, you know, for landscapes and jungles and aviaries woven into materials. A border of little birds going into and out of things, and pecking at something, and singing on perches, goes round the bottom of a bob tailed coat, in other respects restrained.

This is not a Callot production, but one, I believe, by Molyneux. What I was going to say is that Callot goes the fabric makers one better by doing the designs into embroideries. You may have knights tilting at one another over all your dress. And just as likely as not, if your costume comes from one of the first houses, you will have a horse rearing across the abdomen and a zebra in the back.



Dress of black crêpe with black chiffon overdress. Jenny.

Black satin dress by Redfern showing the full skirt of today.

Mantle of black cashmere bearing scroll markings in white. Poiret.

White velvet dress; bodice embroidered in pearls. Jean Patou.

Callot went almost every house I have seen one better in the matter of the civil war hooped skirts. They will be lovely on the stage, and I suppose they are contemplated for real life, as the patrician girl who displayed them gave an exhibition with each model of how one sits down. You throw them up in the back in the direction of your head, and be thankful if they don't go over it.

And for the rest, judging from the demonstration, you don't wear much beside the hoops. Nearly all of these hooped skirts are accompanied by short coats with extremely sloping shoulders, and usually with collars that roll high in the back, descending in a toboggan slide to where the arms start.

However long the skirts are growing, there is usually some marking on them, like the deposit of a river when it is high, to show the dizziest altitude they ever reached. Either an extremely long skirt comes over an underslip of the old geologic length, or panels will fall below the skirt of very short length, or the outside skirt will at a point in its irregular hem touch an ascent even audaciously higher than the old line. One of the prettiest of Callot's, I think, does this.

You remember, of course, the typical, gourdlike figure of the conventional Persian pattern, with a rather slender handle of a tapering end and a rounded body. Callot uses this design in figures fully nine inches long and proportionately wide in embroidery for finishing the bottom of a skirt, and the one on the left side, back, must be fourteen inches from the ground, while the round gourd—the one on the side opposite—almost dips the floor. Persian patterns are extremely fashionable, and this one, indeed, is effective.

There are the long tapering trains flowing from skirts short in front—the sort that a man steps on, whereupon you want to kill him for about a minute, and he hates you forever after. There are a great many coat-capes, with armholes in them and full backs, and flowing. There were some of those little capes across the backs of street dresses and suits, which we saw in such numbers a year ago, and they are all detachable.

And some of the sleeves in their unusualness consist of strips of ribbon, fastened at the elbow and floating the lower arm length, but fastened to the hands with jeweled, mitlike harnesses that the fingers slip through. They would have been the fortune of any circus rider's costume.

The first dress is by Jenny, and it shows the long panels, which are here with apparently renewed popularity this fall.

The accompanying dress is of black crêpe foundation with a black chiffon overdress and big, wide, bell-like sleeves. The long panels are in reality sash ends of a rather narrower ceinture than usual in these days, and they are edged in rows of narrow, black ruchings. This is the only kind of garnishment on the dress, and it edges the sleeves, the square neck, the bottom of the skirt, as well as the cocarde at the waistline.

The second model is by Redfern, and shows some of the tendencies of the day. It has the always popular slender outline, which at the same time incorporates the full skirt of the day. It is draped in front and flows into the pointed train behind. The dress is of black satin, but the drapery splits over a white satin underskirt, and is belted with a girdle of black and white beads.

Poiret, as I was saying, wishes every woman to look like a hooped barrel, and here is one of the designs which he has evolved toward accomplishing his end. His mantels are all great, enveloping masses of gorgeous materials. The one here presented is done in black cashmere, with scroll-like markings in white, with moleskin band and collar, which has a scarf end that falls down the back.

The fourth showing is M. Jean Patou's idea of a costume for the foolish virgin. At least, this is the title which the dress has been given by him.

It is a beautifully graceful thing, I think, in white silk velvet, with a drapery that starts across the back of the square neck, falls straight down the back to a point below the hem, and loops up to the waistline on the right side in front. The bodice is encrusted in pearls.

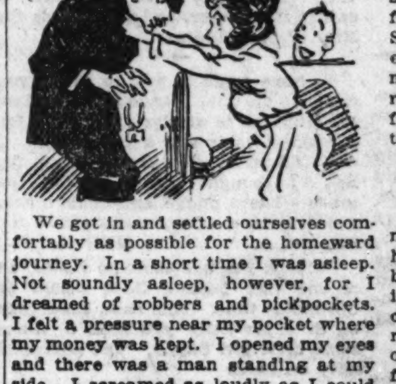
Not a Pickpocket.

We were a bunch of country girls spending the day in the city. Before starting we had been admonished to beware of holdup men. Well, we shopped and took in the sights until we were almost exhausted. Our train out for home left about midnight.



We got in and settled ourselves comfortably as possible for the homeward journey. In a short time I was asleep. Not soundly asleep, however, for I dreamed of robbers and pickpockets. I felt a pressure near my pocket where my money was kept. I opened my eyes and there was a man standing at my side. I screamed as loudly as I could and seized the man and gave him an awful shaking.

People near began to laugh, and I finally awoke enough to know it was the conductor, after my ticket. I didn't sleep any more on that trip, but I pretended to do so. E. K.

A Real Demonstration.

My sister and I were on our way home from church with my father and hired man. We did not have a car then, so we were in a milk wagon. My sister and I were sitting in the back seat, and I was showing her how a certain fat woman used to sit on a chair. I was in the midst of the act when the back of the seat broke and I went tumbling in the back of the wagon. When I got up and looked around, I saw a big car full of people right back of us. I tell you I was careful how I behaved in the back seat of the milk wagon after that. M. A.

Said Not a Word.

While I was spending the summer with friends on a farm it became a daily habit among us boys and girls for the first risers to arouse the lazier ones by the most violent means possible.

One morning I proceeded to the girls' room, and seeing a curl kinked head upon the pillow, I quickly hurled the pillow I had. The head was raised an instant, but there was not a word. I threw another pillow and then another, with about equal success, and was chagrined to think that I could not arouse the girls to heated remonstrance as usual.

After the third pillow the head was slowly raised and I looked into the face of an elderly aunt of the girls. She said not a word in her sleepy-eyed dignity; but thereafter I was more cautious not to let my hilarity ruin my welcome at the home of my friends, although, of course, they all took it as a good joke. H. J.

She Dashed in Vain.

It was late one afternoon when mother asked me to go to the bank for her. I reached there just three minutes before closing time, ran into the building, and breathlessly asked to have a check cashed. It was the most embarrassing moment of my life when I opened my purse and to my surprise found no check. I remembered having left it on the library table at home. E. N.

A Question of Balance.

I think the most embarrassing moment of my life was at the golf links a few days ago. I am just a beginner, and when driving off the first tee I became very nervous, as there are loads of people watching, and every one likes to make a good impression. I wanted to hit the ball on the first swing. I used so much force I lost my balance and there I was, sprawled on the ground in a very unladylike manner. Every one was roaring, but it was too much for me. I go elsewhere to play golf now. S. E.

Must Have Looked Good.

My neighbor often sends over bones for my Airedale, who has a tremendous appetite. One day she sent a fresh ham bone, and I was gnawing on it when she came to the door. U. J.

Carpets

A FRIEND IN NEED

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

I wonder if among your readers there is some one who is going away and would want to store a piano. I would give it the best of care and pay the moving charges. I have one girl twenty-one months old and expect another one next month. My husband works nights on the railroad and I find it very lonesome, as I'm a stranger here and know no one and have no relatives. We had thought of trying to get a piano, but all our extra expenses just now take all we can spare. And as so many people would rather store their pianos where they can be used once in a while, I'm writing you in hopes you will help me, for I'm a great music lover. I can furnish the best of references. MRS. R. T. C."

Any music lover can readily understand how much the use of a piano would mean to Mrs. C. It would indeed bring a great deal of joy in her life.

"I need your help badly. I have recently come from a tuberculosis sanitarium where I was taking the cure. I have been unable to work for over two and a half years. I need a suit of clothes, and I wonder if you can help me find one—size about 38. Anything done for me will be greatly appreciated. I will pay the postage or call. "F. W. S."

Now that the patient is recovering after a long illness, it ought to afford some one happiness to make him comfortable by providing him with a good warm suit.

"A woman eighty years of age is in need of a home and clothing. She has, until now, been able to help herself a little, but has reached a point where she can no longer do this; in consequence, the room which she has occupied is about to be taken from her. I have helped her—that is, in the way of food; but this is only temporary. A crisis is rapidly approaching and, as she is respectable, would it be possible for some one able and feeling so disposed to furnish a home where the necessaries of life can be supplied? Has not some one in this great city a spare room and a little extra food—sufficient to keep this dear old soul from positive homelessness and starvation? Surely, this would be a most kindly and charitable work, keeping some one from falling clear over the precipice of human want and despair. I know you have many calls for help, but this one seems to be peculiarly isolated and forlorn. "C. F. B."

To see a person of advanced age in want is especially pathetic—and I present the appeal which you make for your elderly friend with the warmest wishes for its success.

"I wonder if there is some one in your corner who has discarded winter coats and dresses. I have two girls, 10 and 13, who are in need of these. I can sew and make over larger clothes. My husband has been out of employment for seven months and I find it impossible to get them what they need. I always fix my children's clothes up and give them to a family where there is no mother, so perhaps some one will be kind to me. MRS. W. D."

May I ask others who have clothing their little girls have outgrown to gather it together, and send to me for Mrs. W. D.'s address?

"I have come to you to see if you can help me out. I have a girl 3 years old, and she is always asking me for a rocking chair and a doll buggy. I can't afford to buy those things for her. I thought maybe one of the readers has a buggy and chair not in use any more. They would please the baby so. MRS. G. O."

Perhaps you are one who wished he or she had been a Good Fellow at Christmas time. This case, then, may be th opportunity you seek to make some little girl happy. The address I have on hand.

"I would be grateful if some one could give me velvet scraps for a patch quilt I am making. I will gladly pay the postage. MRS. F. D."

Housekeepers, please get out your scrap bags and see if you haven't some velvet pieces to send Mrs. F. D. She will be grateful for any contribution.

"I have two useful articles that some one might be able to use. One is a good warm winter coat, size 36, and the other is a black portfolio for music. I should be glad to give these things away to any one who might need them if he or she calls for them. "J. K. P."

I shall be happy to supply the address of this kind correspondent.

"I am writing to you in regard to my needs, as I have no one else to appeal to. I am a T. B., and as winter is drawing near I need some heavy blankets or comforters to help me take the cure outside. I am unable to buy such, as I am married and have three children to support, so will be thankful for any help I may receive. V. P."

Now that the chill days are upon us this patient must be made comfortable. Who can furnish blankets so that he might take the outdoor cure?

"I wonder if one of your kind readers has a reed or brass bird cage which is no longer in use. I would be grateful for one, as I am unable to buy a new one. If you hear of some one who would be willing to give one would you kindly send it parcel post collect, as I am unable to call for it? M. A. H."

A little canary looking for a home. Who can supply the bird cage?

"I have a sofa slightly used which I will give to some person who would like to have it. C. B. M."

The donor's name will be given upon request.

Poslam
soon clears a bad complexion

Over night you can often see the benefit of Poslam and Poslam Soap to pimply, blotchy complexions. Their gentle, healing medication seems to be the very thing needed to stop these annoying blemishes. And with the skin once clear again, the regular use of Poslam Soap is usually enough to keep it charmingly healthy. Poslam Soap is splendid for the hair, too. It checks dandruff. (2)

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Robert was taking his first train ride with his father. He had inquired what the strings running the length of the cars, just above the seats, were for, to which his afther absent mindedly replied that he didn't know. Among the many possible uses which Robert suggested was that they were what they started and stopped the train with, and his father, more to finish the questioning than anything else, said that must be it.

A little later the father, after gaining Robert's promise to behave, left the car to have a smoke. Robert was quiet for a while and then he started climbing to reach those strings. He was standing on the arm of the seat, with one hand on the back and the other stretching for dear life towards the ropes, when the conductor entered the car. He rushed up and grabbed the lad and put him back in the seat.

Scarcely able to keep from laughing, he said, "Look here, young man, you're liable to get hurt climbing around that way."

"Yes," said Robert, "but, Mr. Tonductor, I wants the twain to top."

B. R. E.

John's mother, who is on a diet, was eating a piece of dry bread and drinking a glass of water when he entered the room. Looking at the meager repast, he exclaimed: "Gee, ma, your stumick will think you're in jail." H. J.

Johnny was invited to a party from 3 to 5. He looked at the price tag on the gift which he was to give to his hostess. It read 50 cents. "Gee whiz," he said. "Fifty cents—3 to 5 p. m. Twenty-five cents an hour." E. W.

Wesley had been teasing his dad for a bicycle; his father, thinking him too young, refused. Wesley came into the house one day all excited after he had been trying to ride his chum's bicycle, saying: "I can have one now, father. I know everything there is to know about a bicycle and I can do everything on one but steer myself."

F. E. P.

Tommy was the oldest child in the family, having a younger sister and brother.

One day his daddy came up to him and announced: "Tommy, you've got two more little sisters."

"Oh, daddy," Tommy exclaimed gravely, "you shouldn't have let them in 'cause now mamma'll like them and she'll want to keep them. O, dear, now I'll have two more kids 'pending on me an' I'll never get rich."

B. A.

The teacher of one of the first grades of our city schools was having the children take physical exercise by raising and lowering their arms, as she described it "just like a bird flaps its wings when flying."

The pupils were doing nicely except one girl, who was making no effort to move.

When questioned by the teacher as to why she was not exercising, Charles standing by her, exclaimed, "She's a little baby bird, teacher and hasn't learned to fly yet." R. H. S.

Mother had trained the children to put away their toys and things when they were through playing with them. She had observed lately that Tommy was making a practice of letting James do it all.

One day she asked: "Why do you make James do all the work?"

"Oh, well, mother," affably replied Tommy, "you might as well let some one else do your work for you, you'll get along just as well and weller."

F. J.

Sammy's grandfather was visiting him in the country, and on being told the nearest doctor lived ten miles away, remarked "What do you do when you get sick?"

To which Sammy replied "We don't need a doctor, 'cause mother wells us."

S. B.

Lester's sister had been married but a short time when she invited her father and mother and little brother over for Sunday dinner. Lester seemed to enjoy everything, and when the dessert was passed, he looked at his brother-in-law, and said, "We sure traded you a good cook." L. W.

A friend of mine with her little boy dropped in to see me one afternoon. I was called to the kitchen and the little boy followed. The pantry door was open, and on a shelf was a freshly baked cake. As we turned to go back into the other room he said: "If this was my pantry I would take a piece of cake."

R. N.

Little Helen, aged 6, was in her first year at school. Meeting the principal of the school in the street, Helen rushed up to her saying: "O, Miss Jones, I am so afraid I won't pass." Miss Jones replied that she thought if Helen was a good little girl her teacher would pass her, whereupon Helen replied: "O, I'm all right in goodness; it's reading." E. S. M.

One day a grandmother was trying to impress upon her grandson the importance of good manners, and told him how polite a little Italian child had been to her. His reply was: "O, grandma, I know all those manners, but I don't use them." E. L. R.

Bobby had attained the advanced age of 7, and was in second grade. I asked him to tell me about their Christmas party at school. In the midst of the description he smiled and exclaimed: "O, I must tell you about the cute little first graders." E. L.

MADE FOR REST — AND WELL MADE

DontSag Bed Springs

present a surprisingly restful "sleeping surface." They're very strong but light; easier to clean.

Flexible woven-wire bands on both edges give the made-up bed a trim, neat appearance.

Elastic coil springs equalize the weight on the cables and prevents sagging. Oval rails and rounded corners eliminate sharp edges which tear the bed clothes.

$7.00 NO 183

In justice to her attractive appearance and good health no woman can afford to overlook this Complete Correct Corset Service

NEMO CORSETS furnish their Hygienic Service entirely free. Regardless of any of their special features this priceless service far exceeds the intrinsic value of the corsets themselves. Nemo Corsets are made in the following groups:

Self-Reducing Corsets—For Stout Women	(22 models)	$5.00 to $9.00
Wonderlift Corsets—For All Women	(9 models)	6.50 to 15.00
Diafram-Reducing Corsets	(4 models)	9.00 to 13.50
KopService Corsets—For All Women	(11 models)	3.00 to 9.00
Maternity Corsets		6.00
SMART SET CORSETS	(13 models)	3.50 to 12.00

They appeal to those who wish to be correctly corseted yet want to feel as though they had none on. They are made in a variety of materials.

CIRCLETS—For All Figures . . . . (16 models) $1.50 to $5.00

They are Self-Adjusting and do for the upper part of the figure what the corset does below. They equalize the bust and shoulder flesh and make an unbroken line from shoulder to hip.

HANDKERCHIEF CORNERS.

SOME unusually pretty handkerchief corners were seen recently, and as many women will wish to begin on their Christmas sewing as early as this, these suggestions may not come amiss.

These handkerchiefs are still made of the gayly colored linens as well as white, and contrasting shades or colors are used for decorative work.

No. 1 was made of lavender linen, worked in black. The edges were rolled and finished with the tiny crossed stitch in black. Then in one corner three threads were drawn each way, like the illustration, and double hemstitched in black.

No. 2 was a white linen handkerchief with a tiny hemstitched hem as an edge finish. Then the four crossed lines were done in a rose thread, using the tiniest possible outline stitch, and the small squares were well padded and embroidered in the pink.

No. 3 was in a rather dark blue linen with a rolled crossed stitch edge worked in white. The crossed lines were in the outline stitch in white also. There were tiny buds embroidered in colors in the squares.

No. 4 was of pink linen with a hemstitched edge, and the lines were hemstitched like No. 1, and worked in just the right shade of green. A little rose was embroidered at each corner, with six additional ones as pictured. A darker pink was used for the roses, and a touch of green could also be added.

Another handkerchief was beautifully hemstitched and a ring embroidered in one corner, and in this ring was an initial. The ring was about the size of a penny. White linen would be pretty for this, and the ring and initial could be in white, black or some color.

Does anybody in your family snore? If so, did you ever try to prevent it, and how? Do you know any funny incident connected with this habit? Tell it in a letter to the Snoring Contest Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. For every letter printed $1 will be paid.

REAL LOVE STORIES

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago.

ROMANCE BY CORRESPONDENCE.

MY CHILDHOOD was spent in one of those green shuttered white houses so typically southern. It stood well back on a shaded avenue, and many a day as a small girl I sat on the big horseblock at the front gate, making mind pictures of the beautiful ladies and gallant gentlemen who were used to step into their fine carriages from the top of that worn stone. But that was long ago, before the lines of high powered cars had supplanted the high stepping horses of the colonial times.

My dreamland world stayed with me as I grew up, and young womanhood found me as innocent and unsophisticated as one of my own magnolia blossoms.

By this time wind song and bird call were translating themselves to me in words and I was writing them down. The verses began to find their way into the papers, and the busy whirl of life drew a little nearer to my quiet door.

Then one day a strange letter came with a foreign postmark and my name in forceful characters. I opened it, wondering. It was just a brief note, very self-contained and respectful, thanking me for the pleasure a little poem of mine had given the writer of whom I knew nothing but the name.

It was a nice name, plain and homey sounding like John Smith, only it wasn't John Smith. I wrote a little note back that night, and three weeks later an answer arrived with some snapshots enclosed, and an urgent plea that I should write to him. I looked at the pictures with much interest, and found a face as kind and homey as the name. My heart thrilled with the prospect of such a friendship.

I answered the letter and there began a correspondence that will always live among my most precious memories. The intangible thread of understanding, spun out of nothing by a velled destiny, grew in strength and beauty until it seemed that friendship could not be the end. Everything was sure except the reaction of real contact. We had still to prove that.

Then, all of a sudden, without any warning, the letters stopped. I did not know what had happened and my mind called up all sorts of black forebodings. I scored myself that I had never asked for his home address. He had written always from a business address in a large city, and although he had often spoken of his mother, he had never told me where his home was. I wrote several times to the only address I knew and then gave it up as hopeless.

About this time, also, my mother died, leaving me an orphan. I could not bear to stay there alone, so the old home was sold and I accepted a position in the north. There I tried to patch up the pieces of a torn life and to find my balance again in hard work. I succeeded beyond my wildest hopes, but in the midst of my success my health broke down and I was forced to take a long vacation.

It was with a discouraged heart that I boarded a train for the west. I felt as though I could never rise from this last unkind blow of fate. So I traveled in a blue sea of gloom.

Perhaps the sweet faced lady sitting across the aisle from me saw that I was in trouble. Anyway, she took pains to be kind, and soon we had reached quite a pleasant friendship, neither knowing the other's name, as people will on a train.

She was on her way to meet her son, who had been badly injured in a motor accident and was now returning from Japan, where he had been convalescing. I thought of my John Smith and the tears welled into my eyes. She told me much about her son and I could see what a comradeship was between them.

The time passed all too quickly and I felt a genuine regret when we neared our destination. In the hurry of leaving the train we had time for only a brief good-by, and a few minutes later I saw her being gathered into the arms of a tall, broad shouldered young man whose back was turned to me. Every one around me was welcoming some one, and I supposed I stood there looking as though I had not a friend in the world. Anyway my lady looked up and caught me. In less time than it takes to tell it she was at my side, all smiles and excitement, pulling me over to meet her son.

I went a little shyly, reluctant to break in upon so happy a reunion, and did not raise my eyes until a lean hand grasped mine and his mother exclaimed laughingly, "Why, I don't know your name!"

I said it automatically, and then looked up startled, for of a sudden the hand was holding mine tightly and I was gazing into a pair of blue eyes that could be those of none other than my John Smith. What explanations there were you can imagine, how the accident had laid him on his back in a hospital for months, and then when he had written me how the letter had been returned from the dead letter office. How he had hoped and written again and again, but had finally given up in despair as I had done. Needless to say, the day that had been so gloomy a moment before was now gloriously bright, and I was the happiest person alive.

So we met for the first time, myself and John Smith, who was a thousand times nicer than his pictures—John Smith, who, of course, is not John Smith at all, but whose name is mine now, so we won't say any more about it.

Where is the Ornamental Woman today?

She whose days were filled with fashion books, fittings and constant changes of attire?

"THAT WELL-DRESSED LOOK"

TO be considered ornamental—and nothing more—is regarded as an aspersion by the modern woman.

She is quite as attractive as her sister of a decade ago, but she has broadened her field of work and thought.

Her time is devoted to affairs of interest and achievement. It is far too precious to be given over to nothing but the study of fashion and its caprices.

And this change in woman and her work has automatically wrought a change in her attire.

She demands clothes better suited to her activity. Not styles which are so extreme as to be here today and gone tomorrow, but those which will give her "that well-dressed look" for the longest possible period.

This attitude has increased the demand for Wooltex Tailor-mades and Wooltex Knockabouts, for they are designed for the modern woman.

The styles are smart but never extreme. The fabrics—serges, tricotines, Marvella, homespuns, tweeds and the like—are combined with thoroughbred tailoring. They embody lasting good taste and service.

Ask the salesperson for your copy of the fall "Tailored Woman" fashion magazine.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair of which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Love and Finance.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man of twenty-one years of age and am dearly in love with a young lady of nineteen. I am earning a meager salary at the present time, but trust that in a few years I will be doing well.

"This girl I love is anxious to get married soon, and I am positive if I would attempt to enter matrimony now both concerned would be unhappy.

"Do you think it proper for me to tell the young lady to wait a few years or shall I try to absolve our friendship and courtship, which would break my ties with the opposite sex forever.

"I like to see this girl the happiest in the world and would do anything to make her so. I love her more than anything or any one in this wide world. What shall I do? TROUBLED."

That's a pretty difficult problem for an outsider to solve. If I knew what your salary actually is and what the saving qualities of the girl, I could better advise. For, after all is said and done, you cannot steer the matrimonial bark through a troubled sea of debts and bad home management. If she loved you genuinely, I think she would wait if you put the matter up frankly and squarely and in the meantime both get busy on a little savings account.

Too Frequent Meetings.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 18 and in love with a young man two years my senior. I have been going about with this chap for the last ten months, and he has told me he loves me, and does almost everything my little heart desires; but lately, since we have been going to and from business together each day, it seems that not a day passes that he doesn't start some sort of an argument, really over nothing, which you, no doubt, understand is annoying and worries me. Do you think he really cares for me, as he says, and is it true that true love never runs smooth? INQUISITIVE."

True love may run smoothly, in spite of the poets. The arguments are perhaps the natural outcome of seeing each other too often. Don't you think it would be better to avoid these too frequent meetings until you are both old enough to take things less seriously?

Words in Anger.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17 and for a few months have been going around with a fellow aged 20. I have learned to love him and know that my love is reciprocated.

"Some time ago I passed some foolish remarks about him to a friend of mine, which I said in a hot headed moment and which I really didn't mean. This friend of mine told him what I said, and he is much hurt about it.

"Now, Miss Blake, what would you advise me to do? Apologize to him for what I said or try to forget him? "I. M."

That's the tragedy of the word spoken in anger, isn't it, I. M.? Awfully hard trying to recall it. But, if a broken friendship is at stake, it is better to try to retract by an honest and sincere apology.

Far Too Young for Beaux.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 15 years of age and I am going out with a young man who is 21 years old. Now, I love this young man and I know he loves me, but, Miss Blake, I do not know whether it is right for me to go out with him, as he is six years my senior. Do you think he is too old for me? GENE."

Yes, Gene, I think he is too old for you. In fact, I think a 15 year old boy would be too old for you to go out alone with at your tender age. Does your mother permit it? I wouldn't, if I were she.

Doesn't Want to Talk.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a fellow a few months my senior. A few days ago he told me he doesn't want to talk to me. Now, Miss Blake, please advise me what to do, as I really love this fellow and would like to talk to him. PRISCILLA."

I question whether he is worth it, Priscilla. No man is a gentleman who would say such a thing without giving a reason for an answer. Try to forget him, and bestow the gift of your love to one who will know the value of it.

Adequate Salary for Marriage.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 20 years of age and am in love with a girl of 18 years. I know she loves me because she has told me so and I want to marry her, but I have not the courage to ask her because my salary is $50 a week. Will you please tell me if we both can live with that amount? WILL C."

For a 20 year old boy I think $50 a week a right good salary. Any number of men are married and supporting families on that amount.

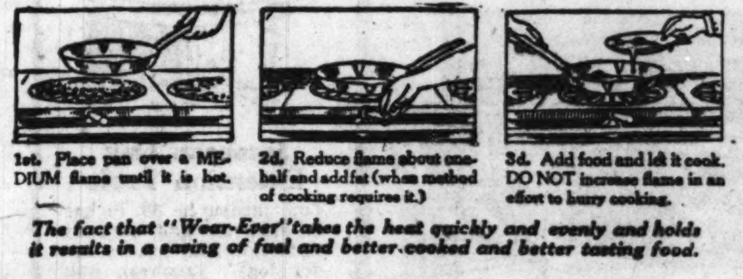
Use this "Wear-Ever" Fry Pan on your own stove—fry with it—broil with it—and see if you do not find it the most satisfactory fry pan you ever used.

And note particularly the thickness and density of its metal—characteristic of all "Wear-Ever" aluminum utensils. Remember that aluminum utensils are not all the same.

Do not confuse "Wear-Ever" utensils with cheap, thin, flimsy aluminum utensils that are expensive at any price. "Wear-Ever" utensils are the cheapest in the end because of the years of service they give.

How to Get Best Results When Using the "Wear-Ever" Aluminum Fry Pan



1st. Place pan over a MEDIUM flame until it is hot.
2d. Reduce flame about one-half and add fat (when method of cooking requires it.)
3d. Add food and let it cook. DO NOT increase flame in an effort to hurry cooking.

The fact that "Wear-Ever" takes the heat quickly and evenly and holds it results in a saving of fuel and better cooked and better tasting food.

You Can Get "Wear-Ever" Fry Pans At The Following Stores:

Tabloid Book Review

By Fanny Butcher.

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store were:

FICTION.

"Main Street" [Harcourt Brace & Co.], by Sinclair Lewis.
"Erik Dorn" [Putnam], by Ben Hecht.
"To Let" [Scribners], by John Galsworthy.
"Far to Seek" [Houghton Mifflin], by Maud Diver.
"Master of Men" [Lippincott], by Hall Caine.
"Scaramouche" [Houghton Mifflin], by Raphael Sabatini.

NONFICTION.

"Outline of History" [Macmillan], by H. G. Wells.
"Queen Victoria" [Harcourt Brace & Co.], by Lytton Strachey.
"Mirrors of Washington" [Putnam].

The six best circulators at the public library were:

"Main Street," by Sinclair Lewis.
"The Brimming Cup," by Dorothy Canfield.
"Alice Adams," by Booth Tarkington.
"Queen Victoria," by Lytton Strachey.
"Outline of History," by H. G. Wells.
"Mirrors of Washington."

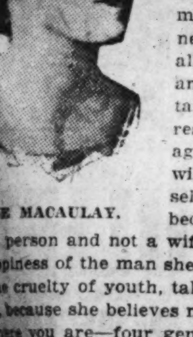
CHILDREN'S BOOKS.

The best selling children's books in a leading book store were:

"Bottle Imp," by Marian Anne Taggert.
"The Teenie Weenies Down the River," by William Donahey.
"Foxy Squirrel," by Clara Ingram Judson.
"Sunny Sam," by Frank Farrington.
The Burgess Animal Book.
"The Great Quest," by Charles Boardman Hawes.

"DANGEROUS AGES" is going to be much more popular than "Potterism," Rose Macaulay's earlier book. It is to "Potterism" as Omega is to Alpha, as the nuts to the soup. It is the logical and the last word in a group's struggle against potterism. It is the story of shackles unlocked, of individualities expressed, and yet it is emphatically a more real, more human book than "Potterism." It is, as a matter of fact, an extremely potent bit of propaganda for the proposition that a novel is a good novel in proportion to its story telling powers.

"Dangerous Ages" is a better story than "Potterism." It is not one whit less protagonistic. Its characters are even more "radical" in their passionate beliefs.



ROSE MACAULAY.

But they are human beings and not stuffed prigs, and they are confronted with human difficulties and not empirical ones.

It is a story of four generations of women:

The grandmother of the principal character, mentally keen and calm because she has kept her mind functioning as an individual through a life of motherhood and grandmotherhood; the mother, nerve wracked, unhappy, morbid because she lived all of her children's lives instead of living her own, and, with their complete maturity, has lost her mental job; Neville, the principal character, 43, vivid, restless because she fears that unless she takes up again her youthful work for a doctor's degree she will, now that her two children are grown, find herself the feckless old woman that her own mother has become, and finally Neville's daughter, so bent upon being a person and not a wife that she nearly wrecks her own happiness and the happiness of the man she loves (whom, by the way, she has heedlessly and with the cruelty of youth, taken from her aunt) because she won't be married to him, because she believes marriage is a damning state.

There you are—four generations of gropers, four ages, all of them dangerous.

"Dangerous Ages" isn't going to be a classic—but how few books ever will be! It is, however, a really good story, written with a dash of modernity, and containing much sound psychology.

John Did Not Write It.

It seems that my brilliant newspaper man friend and I were wrong about John Callan O'Laughlin being the author of "The Mirrors of Washington." Robert Gordon Anderson, the author-sales manager of G. P. Putnam's Sons, was here last week and I tried to wheedle out of him the name of the author—not that I'd have told if it has been a secret, but I just wanted to know. He was unwheedleable. All I could get from him was that the anonymity of the author is so well preserved in the Putnam archives that his royalty checks are coded so that no one of the bookkeeping force may know him, and that when any communication is held with him he is "Mirrors of Washington." He is democratic in his leanings, Mr. Anderson naively suggested, a fact self-evident. Incidentally 20,000 copies of "Thee Mirrors of Washington" were sold during the first four weeks—a phenomenal sale for a political book of nonfiction.

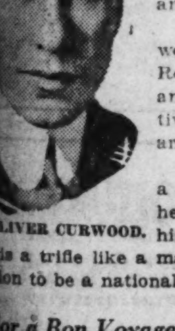
Turning 'Greenwich Village' Green."

"The Husband Test" is Mary Carolyn Davies' first novel. Miss Davies is a good poet. She has written some lovely verses, but as a novelist she is a first class shoe merchant. "The Husband Test" is the story of a girl suddenly turned Greenwich Village green who has two ardent suitors, one a poet who lets her pay his car fare and the other a lawyer who treats her the way he'd like to have a man treat his sister. To decide which one she wants to be married to permanently she proposes a trial marriage to each one of them. The poet has the first chance, and at the end of the month she is a financial and nervous wreck. The lawyer's month is calm, comfortable and conducive to permanency. What happens after that is as irrational and as silly as may be—though little less irrational and silly than the rest of the book. How a good poet could concoct such a ragout of goo I dunno.

Well, that's what we think of "The Husband Test." The Greenwich Village atmosphere is 100 per cent real—real names of people, real names of parties, real names of places to eat, as they are wont to call their sketchy feasts which are mostly the flow of reasoning.

Wonder Why I Bother to Review It.

The kind of person who likes a James Oliver Curwood story isn't going to be weak minded enough to mind a few words of disparagement which the Tabloid might say about it, so with a light heart I go about the task of whispering that I think "The Flaming Forest" is as obviously a machine made tale as ever it could be. I am a trifle old fashioned, perhaps, in a preference for the handicrafts of the art of writing, but I prefer a taint of amateurishness to the too well oiled long arm of coincidence and other dei ex machina.



JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD.

"The Flaming Forest" is the story of a northwest mounted policeman and his search for Black Roger Audemard. The hero gets all he is looking for and much to boot, including a pleasant and instructive convalescence from looking into death's face and a beautiful bride.

As I hinted before, I may be old fashioned, but a story which is founded on a pretense that the heroine is the wife of the villain (when she's really his sister), for the purpose of testing the hero's love for her, is a trifle like a manufactured article. But there be those who like their fiction to be a nationally advertised article.

Books for a Bon Voyage.

On the back cover of Frank Shay's collection of sailor chanteys—"Iron Men and Wooden Ships"—is printed William McFee's sea library—"Tom Cringle's Log," by Michael Scott; "Two Years Before the Mast," by R. H. Dana; "Midshipman Easy," by Capt. Marryat; "Captains Courageous," by Rudyard Kipling; "The Flying Cloud," by Morley Roberts; "Cruise of the Cachalot," by Frank T. Bullen; "Log of a Sea Waif," by Frank T. Bullen; "The Salving of a Derelict," by Maurice Drake; "The Grain Carriers," by Edward Noble; "Marooned," by Clark Russell; "Typhoon," by Joseph Conrad; "Toilers of the Sea," by Victor Hugo; "An Iceland Fisherman," by Pierre Loti; "The Sea Surgeon," by Gabriele D'Annunzio, and "The Sea Hawk," by Sabatini.

"Only deep sea sailors would be able to take this suggested library with them," says Mr. McFee, "because a sailor reads only at sea. When a landward breeze brings the odor of alien lands through the open scuttle, one closes the book and, if one is a normal and rational kind of chap and the quarantine regulations permit, goes ashore."

Have you read his "An Ocean Tramp" yet? You're missing a real pleasure if you haven't.

New Local Magazine Appears.

A new Chicago magazine, by name—and inclination—"Youth," will make its debut this month. It is subtitled "A Magazine of the Arts," and its editors and contributors feel confident that, with its help, Chicago will be what H. L. Mencken called it—the literary capital of America. That remains, as some one so aptly said once, to be seen. H. C. Auer, Jr., is the editor. He was formerly music critic for a Detroit paper. Edward G. Oldefest and Sam Putnam are associate editors, Henry Drews is the business manager, and Steen Hinrichsen the publisher. Contributors to the first number are Ben Hecht, Wallace Smith, Pierre Loving, Ezra Pound, Albert Goldstein, John McClure, Basil Thompson, Edith Chapman, Oscar Williams, Jun Fugita, Henry Bellaman, and Elsa Gidlow.

MISS ELIZABETH BROWN.
[Nickolas Muray Photo.]

Miss Brown, who is from Springfield, Ill., is paired with Miss Emily Taft in the casting of rôles at the Playhouse—both in "Suppressed Desires" and "The Emperor Jones." The two were inseparable at the University of Chicago, where both belonged to the Esoteric club, and have been inseparable since, sharing a home in New York and spending their summers together at Eagle's Nest, the summer home of Miss Taft's father, Lorado Taft, the sculptor, near Oregon, Ill. It is said of them that they have never appeared behind the footlights separately and never intend to.

Fashion Turns Its Thumb Down on Jazz Rhythm

By Edward Moore

JAZZ is dying, say the publishers thereof. The fashion for that particular form of rhythmic stimulus is changing. The saxophone is due to be hung up on the hooks along with the porcelain pipes and ornate steins of another era; the Senegambian buzz-fuzz will crawl into its canvas cover for a long silence.

Consequently, a certain degree of dismay obtains along tin-pan alley, and publishers are racking their brains trying to anticipate the next direction of that elusive whimsy, popular taste. It is a trying operation, this feeling out the fancy of the public; it is also a matter of gambling in large sums. What with supplying orchestra leaders all over the country, giving away free copies to singers of vaudeville and cafés, and paying salaries to the corps of agents as song boosters, the expense of placing a popular song runs well into the thousands. And if, after all this, the song fails to catch on, as it often does, there is nothing but a dept to be written off.

In a way, the demise of jazz rests on its own shoulders. During a considerable period of years devoted to hearing music of one kind and another, memory recalls no time where imitation was so rampant. One jazz number has sounded like another, and it is only with difficulty that one can remember the tune of any of them.

Where a number managed to stand out above its companions, it was often found to owe its eminence to the fact that another composer, perhaps one of the classics, had written it first. There was a musical show of prosperous career here last season, whose composer had evidently studied Chopin to good effect before he began to compose. Other popular numbers have had their inception in grand opera.

One publisher of popular music claims that an old formula will fill the want for the coming music—a lilt of tune and an easy dash of mushy sentiment. It will probably work in some communities, particularly New York, where they love what they call "movin' songs."

There is an interesting comparison just now in the popular taste of New York and Chicago. One of the Manhattanese song hits at present has a title that reads, "There's a Broken Heart for Every Light on Broadway." The best known song in Chicago today is "Ain't We Got Fun."

The name of Edward Jacobowski, once familiar in our theater programs and playbills, is restored to Chicago print as a consequence of "Erminie" in revival. That operetta is about all that survives of Jacobowski's; but he was by no means a one opera man, and was not so regarded by the musicians or the managers of his day. But, like most of his contemporaries among the men who composed operetta, he was a disappointed man: his grand opera never saw the footlights. For all of them, save Johann Strauss, practiced grand opera as if it were a secret vice.

Chicago does not need to be told of Offenbach's venture in that format; for he was powerful enough to have his "Tales of Hoffmann" staged in his lifetime. Auber, Lecocq, and other French contemporaries of Offenbach were less fortunate. Like their Berlin and Viennese rivals, these vivid, witty French composers regarded operetta as merely something wherewith they might keep fire under the pot.

And the composer of "Erminie" shared their mild contempt for that and others of his footlighted pieces, the while he toiled and moiled on the "real opera" which, he believed, was to prove Wagner an amateur and make Verdi—yes, even the Verdi of "Otello" and "Falstaff"—a joke and a byword.

Edgar Stillman Kelley's oratorio, or musical miracle play, as he prefers to call it, "Pilgrim's Progress," is listed for one of the performances at the Worcester, Mass., music festival early next month, thereby becoming part of the tercentenary celebration of the landing of the pilgrims at Plymouth.

Late Curtains and the Hapless Critic

By Sheppard Butler.

IT is, of course, axiomatic that you are not interested in the other fellow's troubles. Least of all, perhaps, will you be moved by the sorrows of those whose presumably gay business it is to go to the play, nightly or thereabouts, with the purpose of writing such pieces for the paper as the occasion may require. Nevertheless, it may be that you will shed a sympathetic tear this morning over a matter that may not have occurred to you.

Suppose that every time you read a book it were taken away from you just as you were starting the final chapter. Suppose that your golf were invariably interrupted, say at the sixteenth hole. Suppose that your car always broke down half a mile from your destination. In a word, suppose that life for you were inconclusive, never reaching its goal, luring your interest in this and that only to toss you overboard, in a manner of speaking, before you knew what it was all about. The metaphors are mixed, but you get the point. And you wouldn't like it, would you?

How, then, would it please you to have the enforced habit of leaving the theater in the middle of the last act, or perhaps before it has begun? That is the usual fate, hereabouts, of one who must be governed by the exigent presstime of the morning newspaper. I should have liked to hear what Grant Mitchell has to say to Miss Ann Andrews in the closing scene of "The Champion," but I couldn't. So far as I am concerned, those engaging lovers are still at outs, though I am told they fixed things up nicely. Mr. Bacon, I venture, has a blessing for all and sundry in the final episode of "Lightnin'," but it didn't fall on me. I was pounding a typewriter. And only by hearsay do I know how they straightened out the matter of the flyer's two wives in "The Broken Wing," or what Miss Reed told Alan Dinehart when, in "The Mirage," he urged her to go back with him to the little western town of Erie, Pa.

Some of you, constrained to catch after-theater trains for Highland Park or Hinsdale, may have found yourselves in a like predicament. And possibly you have wondered, as I do, why, as the seasons pass, we must wait longer and longer for shows to start. Out of any dozen Chicago performances you may attend nowadays, at least ten, you will find, do not begin until after 8:30. On one which I timed on a recent evening the curtain rose at 8:41; on another at 8:42. In neither case, as it happened, was it an opening night, and there was no special reason for delay. The late beginning clearly was intentional, and so was the late ending.

In New York several of the producing managers have launched a crusade for earlier curtains. They are setting a reasonable hour, and warning the public that, if they are not in their seats at the appointed time, they must remain standing until the first act is over. They are keeping their word, and, by all accounts, the public likes it. But the idea does not seem to have penetrated to this frontier.

To be sure, one shining exception to the general rule is to be recorded. When "The Gold Diggers" came to Powers' it was announced that the curtain would rise at 8:15 though the heavens fell. It did—and what happened? The playgoers came late and climbed over each other's feet. They overstayed the brief intermissions and made themselves a nuisance generally. It was a brisk performance, that first one, timed to the minute and carried through with refreshing celerity. But it received little coöperation from the audience. When a benefactor like Mr. Powers is so treated, what are you going to do?

"Afgar" Impends; Mr. Ditrichstein and His New Play.

Leo Ditrichstein will depart from the Studebaker at the end of this week, making way for Mlle. Alice Delysia in "Afgar," a picturesque drama sponsored by the prodigal Morris Gest, whose "Chu Chin Chow," "Aphrodite," and "Mecca" were surely the height of something in stagecraft. "Afgar" is oriental and opulent, but not mastodontic like the others, being described rather as an intimate extravaganza, if that means anything to you. Originally it was a French production, the work of Michael Carre and Andre Barde. Then it was Anglicized for a showing in London, whence Mr. Gest brought it to these shores. It will introduce to Chicago two personalities new to the middle west—the stately Mlle. Delysia and Lupino Lane, a player hailed elsewhere as a highly important addition to the personnel of the American theater.

LEO DITRICHSTEIN.
[From a sketch by Marcus.]

Getting back to Mr. Ditrichstein, he professes to be satisfied with "That Homely Henriquez," the new play with which he is experimenting at the Studebaker, and will take it to New York after touring about a bit in "Toto." If Chicago's approval has turned the trick for the Lopez comedy and established it in the actor's répertoire it seems rather a pity, for, although it is an amiable bit of fooling, it is not the sort of thing that will greatly illumine the player's reputation.

Ditrichstein, of course, acts it well; he acts anything well, for he is a fine actor—unsurpassed, in some respects, on the American stage. The "great lover" tradition is firmly fixed upon him and will remain with him, perhaps, to the end, though we may yet see him in something bigger than the comparatively inconsequential rôles he has been playing. One of his dreams is a stately production of "Ruy Blas," the poetic drama with which Victor Hugo, in 1838, reached the peak of the so-called French romantic movement. This would fulfill a fine ambition and provide Ditrichstein with a part worthy of his powers, for the play's central character is a noble blending of high comedy and deep tragedy. But, they have told him so far, it would cost too much. And they probably will keep on telling him so.

What Happened When Nat Goodwin Lost "Erminie."

In his autobiography—a volume mostly naïve, sometimes indiscreet, largely "professional" in its appeal, and interesting throughout to all who possess a fondness for the theatricals within their memory—the late N. C. Goodwin, who died less than three years ago, devoted a chapter to "Erminie." Goodwin told how he was one of three comedians eager to obtain the American rights to the operetta when, in 1885, it was staged in London, where for a year it disputed popularity with "The Mikado," produced in the same year. The two others were Francis Wilson and De Wolf Hopper, now "teamed" in the piece, and on view here in the respective rôles they coveted when neither was yet on the threshold of starhood. Goodwin, going to London for the purpose, returned with "Erminie" and two or three other English works; but his manager and backer was blind and deaf in the matter of the operetta, although Goodwin, as he says in his book, was on his knees in supplication. Goodwin was compelled to put on a rhymed burlesque in the old style, "Little Jack Sheppard," instead of his beloved "Erminie," which, in the course of a month or two, was obtained by the New York Casino, where Wilson was then principal cemedian.

[Fairchild Photo.]

The consequences were interesting to any theater-goer who reacts to the stage-history of what may be called our own times. Wilson made a run of more than 800 performances in "Erminie" and emerged a de facto star. Goodwin was unhappy in the rhymed couplets and Cockney puns of "Little Jack Sheppard," and, disgusted with the trend of things, forsook his backer, said good-by to the lyric stage, and turned "straight" actor.

Goodwin's backer, the man who couldn't discern anything worth while in "Erminie," used better judgment in his next venture with his bank roll. He took a young actress out of Cincinnati and "blew" her to a special matinée of "Ingomar" in New York City. The critics were not certain about her; but the late Robert G. Ingersoll was, and turned his pen to the task of what now would be called "putting her over." She was Julia Marlowe; and Goodwin once said to her: "Your Rosalind is the sole mitigation of my regret that I was not allowed to stage 'Erminie.' If Miles [the backer] had listened to me, it is a fair guess that he would have had no time to devote to you. For me, now all's square; you are great!"

Here and There in the Theaters.

Talk of a "vaudeville war" has been curiously lacking in connection with the venture in the varieties which the Messrs. Shubert will inaugurate at the Apollo tomorrow. Up to the middle of last week everything seemed tranquil, and it appeared that the invasion of the field by the Shuberts, if not welcomed by the erstwhile overlords of this form of entertainment, was at least being received with equanimity. Within the last day or two, however, there have been signs of perturbation in stageland, and, if you are interested, you may yet witness a lively battle between the old organizations and the new.

Building up a full-fledged vaudeville circuit in a few short months is a Herculean task, as any showman will tell you, and the progress of the new undertaking is being watched with keen interest. The Apollo is one of a chain of many theaters, widely scattered through the eastern half of the United States, which have been set aside for the performances planned, and an impressive array of "talent" has been lined up to entertain the prospective customers. All of which means that, however the so-called magnates may like it, the public will be benefited, since there will be more shows, and, presumably, better ones.

Here's Hope for Budding Genius; a Play Incubator!

The New York Times.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Eternally reminded of the fact that the writing of a play is but a jolly lark compared to the labors of placing it for production, another eager group is about to take steps to simplify the sales end by bringing promising scripts more graphically to the attention of the producing managers.

The average theatrical manager is traditionally unwilling to go to the labor of reading a play, but he will frequently travel from New York to Detroit and back to see a play acted. Accordingly the Packard agency—whose mission is to furnish engagements for players—Harry Bissing and George Scarborough, the playwright, are getting together to produce plays for Sunday night exhibition to the managers.

Drapes will replace scenery, and the players will provide the costumes as well as they can. Too, the actors will be asked to invest their time on the chance of obtaining an engagement when the play is accepted, and the playwright will be called upon to give up a small percentage of his royalty. Both actors and playwrights, if previous experience is any criterion, will be only too happy to oblige. A dress rehearsal of this kind, it is expected, would bring out any theatrical values that might be contained in a manuscript and would almost certainly result in regular production for those plays which appeared in the least promising.

Winthrop Ames has nearly made up his mind to produce A. A. Milne's comedy, "The Romantic Age." The piece was presented a year ago in London, although it fell short of popular success.

William Gillette, it is reported, will come to town early in the new year in a play of his own authorship.

The Selwyns, it is understood, have called off their production of "Daniel." Alfred Lunt, Martha Hedman, and Norman Trevor were to have headed the cast.

Miss Carroll McComas, after a considerable struggle, is about to break loose from "Miss Lulu Bett," which is due soon at the Playhouse in Chicago, and will have the leading rôle in "Other Lives" when that play is presented in New York in the near future.

It will probably be Richard G. Herndon, and not John D. Williams, who will superintend the return of Miss Mae Marsh to the stage in "Brittie."

It is reported the Palace theater will have Babe Ruth on its program not long after baseball season ends.

Both Mr. Ziegfeld's "Follies" at the Globe and Mr. White's "Scandals" at the Liberty have been suffering a bit during their final weeks. The high prices—$5 at the Globe and $4 at the Liberty—are chiefly blamed.

Richard Carle, after some slight differences with the management, is no longer one of the stars of "The Broadway Whirl," now in the hinterland.

The vaudeville event of the week will be the opening of the Winter Garden Monday afternoon as a home of Shubert vaudeville. At the same time there are signs that there may be something of a merry war, after all, for the announcement of the Palace theater for the week lists "Five Great Headliners."

The week's principal entertainers in the downtown vaudeville houses—there are entirely too many scattered around town to list them all—are these:

Winter Garden—Nora Bayes, Moran and Wiser, and divers girls from the late show on the Century roof; Hal Forde, Gitz Rice, Avon Comedy Four, Kajiyama, and others.

Palace—Sophie Tucker, Harry Fox, Carl Randall, Wellington Cross, Harry Watson Jr., and others.

Forty-fourth Street theater — Lew Fields and Lulu McConnell in revue (a tabloid version of the recent "Snapshots"), Yvette, Fred Allen, Ryan and Lee, and Vinie Daly.

"The Brother of His Country"

MY BROTHER THEODORE ROOSEVELT, by Corinne Roosevelt Robinson: Octavo, pp. xiv.+365; 17 illustrations; no index. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

I have a horror of people who bark but don't bite.

If I am ever to accomplish anything worth doing in politics, or ever have accomplished it, it is because I act up to what I preach, and it does not seem to me that I would have the right in a big crisis not to act up to what I preach.

It is a great historical expedition [the sailing of the troop transports to Cuba in '98] and I thrill to feel that I am part of it. If we fail, of course, we share the fate of all who do fail, and if we are allowed to succeed, for we certainly shall succeed if allowed, we have scored the first great triumph of what will be a world movement.

As far as the political effect of my actions—in the first place, I never can get on in politics, and, in the second, I would rather have led that charge [up San Juan hill] and earned my colonelcy than serve three terms in the United States senate. It makes me feel as though I could now leave something to my children which will serve as an apology for my having existed.

"Mr. Platt, I would rather accept your suggestion of an appointee than that of any one else if you will suggest as good and honorable a man as any one else. I want to work with you."

"On Thursday, Dec. 21st, may I have dinner at seven o'clock? If you [his sister Corinne] are going out, do remember that, seriously, I am quite as happy with bread and milk as with anything else."

[To his sisters on his first day in the White House as President.] "Do you realize that this is the birthday of our father, Sept. 22? I have realized it as I signed various papers all day long, and I feel that it is a good omen that I begin my duties in this house on this day. I feel as if my father's hand were on my shoulder, and as if there were a special blessing over the life I am to lead here. [At almost this moment a little boutonnière was passed with the coffee to each man at table—it was a White House custom then. The President's was a yellow saffronia rose. His face flushed as he spoke again.] Is it not strange? This is the rose we all connect with my father. I think there is a blessing connected with this."

A party is good only as a means to an end. . . . The dead hand of a party sometimes paralyzes its living members. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

(From "My Brother Theodore Roosevelt.")

By Eye Witness

FOR more than half a century the author of this highly stimulating and entertaining book knew Theodore Roosevelt—knew him in the nursery, on the playground, in the quiet study, in the fret and fever of campaigns, in the noisy pageantry of his resplendent and vociferous political life, in the White House, in war and peace, and in the days of the long departure from scenes in which he had ever been a masterful, a dominant and domineering, and a pictorial figure.

MRS. CORINNE ROOSEVELT ROBINSON.
[Copyright: Moffett.]

The twenty-sixth President of the United States was three years older than his sister Corinne. He died at 60. The sister is living and active—a true Roosevelt, a confident, bustling, humane, ardent being, at home on the platform, a ready writer, ever busy in good causes, no contemptible poetess, and in all things a manager who makes herself felt, usually with benefit to the causes and persons concerned.

She thinks she must have been about four years old and Theodore about seven when her first memory of her brother took definite form. He was a good brother to her and she was, and remains, an adoring sister. Some two or three and fifty years she loved and watched and idolized him, and, in a degree almost unprecedented in either domestic or political annals, she shared his confidence. Him, in truth, she called "the great sharer," because, she says, he "shared all that he had—his worldly goods, his strong mentality, his wide sympathy, his joyous fun, and his tender comprehension—with all those with whom he came in contact."

It was Mrs. Robinson, too, who after Theodore's death originated an exact and beautiful phrase, which seems likely to live, when in a memorial address she spoke of him as "the brother of his country."

Game from the Cradle.

The Theodore Roosevelt she first remembers was an asthmatic child, a "fragile, patient sufferer, struggling with the effort to breathe," but never, even at the tender age when little hands grope instinctively toward other and stronger hands, unloading his sufferings on other persons. That was intensely characteristic of the adult Theodore. He was game. Neither in his state papers nor in the private letters thus far given to the world does one find a moan.

So in the nursery he was game—"struggling with the effort to breathe, but always ready to give the turbulent 'little ones' the drink of water, book, or plaything which they vociferously demanded, or equally ready to weave for us long stories of animal life."

From a psychological viewpoint an important note of this record is the note of exuberance. Mrs. Robinson may not think so, may not like to think so, but constantly, often oppressively, it is there. Exuberance in movement, in thought, in language, in all kinds of contacts! It was the quality by which Theodore Roosevelt at times nearly wore out the American people and by which he both emphasized and belittled his influence. In the home of his childhood, in college, in the field of the hunt and of war, and on the platform he keyed everything high. He never spared himself. It is no mysterious thing that he broke and ended at 60. In this book he is always "bounding upstairs," and "laughing immoderately," and finding an ecstasy of fun in things that to others must have seemed rather mildly amusing—though they were apt to guffaw with him, as people will. This exuberance communicated itself to the public attitude toward him, and all he did became prodigious. This was not good for him.

Symptomatic as Victoria's Italics.

Inherent, tireless, and early manifested was the outstanding quality of the man. Letters he wrote from Harvard to the sister begin, "My own darling sweet little treasure of a Pussie." Always she is "Sweet Pussie," "Pet Pussie," "Wee Pussie," "Wee, funny Kitty Coo." As he grew older she became "Dearest Corinne."

This has a distinct value not related to the sisterly adulation on which Mrs. Robinson pitches her note, and her book is a curious document in exuberance by an exuberant. The torrent of endearments is as symptomatic as imperious Victoria's infantile italics, which she employed to the last and which deserve a monograph.

What saved Theodore Roosevelt from futile bounce, both as boy and man, was that his endearments did not blow up in namby-pamby. The defect of the quality they represented made him at times vehemently intolerant, but the virtue of it made him productive and spared him from any morbid sensitiveness to rebuffs. If the sister he loved was "Sweet Pussie," the devious man he disliked and had detected was as emphatically Ananias and a malefactor. In short, as with almost everything else in his equipment, he made his inherent and tireless exuberance work both ways, and the general result was wholesome and widely inspiriting.

Through a multitude of the pranks and passions, through the fun and vehemence, the wordiness and the pithiness, the storminess, and the genuine, patient helpfulness of the amazing man Mrs. Robinson follows him, etching him with a diffuse but not otherwise inexpert touch.

Once he rated her, "with flashing eyes" and using the word "disgraceful," for her candidly acknowledged ignorance of American history. But forthwith he, a busy, ambitious young man, arranged to give her two hours a week of instruction in her home. He did it, using note books and blackboard, and lecturing her as if she were "a matriculating class at Harvard college."

Alone with Josephus and the Jews.

Another time she catches him in an hour when even he had to relax. It was an hour that for him was big with the fate of Cato and of Rome—just before the nomination for vice president, which he earnestly did not want. She tiptoed up behind him in his hotel room. He sat alone. He was reading Josephus! The Platt-Odell conspiracy to ditch him was raging outside.

Again, after a day of ceremonial gallivanting at the St. Louis fair—he was a world figure then—he summons her at midnight to hear him dictate the review of volumes 2 and 3 of Rhodes' "United States" which the historian had asked him to write. He having finished that, the weary woman starts for bed in the private car. No, she shall not leave. She must hear him do his criticism of a presentation of the Irish question by Peter Dunne which Peter had asked him to review. He says, "I am fond of Peter and want to do it." So she sits again, and suddenly finds herself no longer weary.

She goes with him into the White House as frequent guest; sees him happy and zealous; makes notes of his good talk; watches him showing off, though she does not think it was that, in the episode of her Porto Rican petition to the ruler; catches him in a hundred side lights and half lights and full glares; and always her book is warm and pulsing, as a book by a Roosevelt about a Roosevelt must needs be.

And on the sad January day in 1919 she sees the tribute airplanes hovering over chieftain's hill (Sagamore means chieftain), and in the evening of that day, as she stands in the silent room by the silent man, these lines come to her, for to her the brother and chieftain, dead, yet speaketh:

At Sagamore the Chief lies low—
Above the hill, in circled row,
The whirring airplanes dip and fly,
A guard of honor from the sky—
Eagles to guard the Eagle. Woe
Is on the world. The people go
With listless footstep, blind and slow;
For one is dead—who shall not die—
At Sagamore.

O Land he loved! At last you know
The son who served you well below,
The prophet voice, the visioned eye.
Hold him in ardent memory,
For one is gone—who shall not go—
From Sagamore!

DELYSIA—HOT FROM PARIS

To the theater goers of Chicago:

Something unusual, charming, delectable, sensational, is coming to Chicago on Sunday night, October 2.

On that night, at the Shubert Studebaker Theater, Chicago theater goers will have their first chance to see Mlle. Alice Delysia, internationally famous star and artiste, the popular musical comedienne of Paris, London and New York, appearing in her sensational success which has already been received with acclaim in these three great cities—"Afgar," a musical comedy, from the Folies Bergeres in Paris, the London Pavilion in London, and the Central Theater in New York.

Of Delysia it can only be said that never before has there been anyone quite like her. She is the strange, remarkable, unfathomable mixture of certain fascinating feminine charms which hitherto seem to have defied all the alchemists of the world. She is lovely; she is beautiful; she sings like a bird; she has a wonderful sense of humor; and she can act. Furthermore, she is fresh from Paris, essentially Parisian in her attraction and in her art; yet never does she forget that she is playing to an audience of ladies and gentlemen.

"Afgar" is a musical comedy with the scenes laid in a Moorish harem; the lines are smart, the comedy is up to the minute, the harem girls are beautiful, and the Paul Poiret costumes worn by the chorus are the latest and most sensational creations of the celebrated Paul Poiret of Paris. And the cast includes Lipino Lane, most famous of all European comedians.

If you want to see the latest and smartest sensation of Paris, London and New York, see Delysia. She will be the sensation of Chicago also.

Mail orders will now be received for this extraordinary and unusual attraction. The public sale of seats will open at the box office of the Studebaker next Thursday morning.

(Signed) F. RAY COMSTOCK and MORRIS GEST,
Producers of "AFGAR."

Wild Irish Rose Flouts Dairyman! Cousin Wins Her

"ROOM AND BOARD."

Produced by Realart. Directed by Alan Crosland. Presented at the outlying theaters.

THE CAST.

Lady Noreen	Constance Binney
Terence O'Brien	Tom Carrigan
Ephraim Roach	Malcolm Bradley
Desmond Roach	Arthur Housman
Robert Osborne	Jed Prouty
Mary	Blanche Craig
Ryan	Ben Hendricks Jr.
Leila	Ellen Cassidy
The Earl of Kildoran	Arthur Barry

By Mae Tinée.

A CONSTANCE BINNEY picture is usually enough to make dad kick off his slippers, mother hustle with the dishes, and the family young yelp demands to be "taken along." Her pictures are unfailingly clean and the girl herself has, besides beauty, a delightful human quality that appeals to everybody.

"Room and Board" is not as good a film as "Thirty-nine East" or "Such a Little Queen." It hasn't the background. It demands but little finesse on the part of any of the players. But, said she in the same breath, the story has a certain amount of interest and suspense, continuously buoyed up by the unfailing buoyancy of the little star.

The scenes are laid in Ireland, where in a crumbling old castle live the Lady Noreen and her father, the Earl of Kildoran.

The estate might almost be described as a defunct one. The roofs of the castle leak; the plumbing is one of those sweet, sad memories of other days. According to Lady Noreen, "nobody's had a hot bath in the house for six years."

The furniture, such as is left of it, is in a sad state and the leaky stables contain only one fine horse, a mule, and a Shetland pony, when once they housed a splendid assortment of hunters. A bankrupt earl, you see, was the Earl of Kildoran. Rather than marry the grandson of a dairyman who would have lifted the mortgage off their heads, the Lady Noreen stays blithely bankrupt with him.

The Earl of Kildoran goes the way of all flesh and poor Lady Noreen is left alone, entirely surrounded—apparently—by unscrupulous lawyers, the infuriated grandson of the dairyman, and others who would do her wrong. Nobody to love her, has the Lady Noreen—apparently—but a pair of faithful retainers who for twenty years have been right on the job and are still there placing pans under the leaks and, with the Lady Noreen, putting up a brave front when necessary.

Wise darlings, you! You didn't think for a moment they'd go and let anything really happen to the beautiful Irish maiden, did you? Certainly not! You knew help in the form of a prince on horseback, in disguise, in old clothes, or some other old way would come to the rescue.

Tom Carrigan, the Pershing of the picture, may or may not be your idea of the man who should make and keep Miss Binney happy. He was not mine, though he is reasonably good looking and not really objectionably stagey.

Arthur Housman, as the disappointed grandson of the dairyman, does too much clowning. Others in the cast really don't matter.

The picture is fairly well put together from a technical standpoint. The fact remains, however, that it is Miss Binney who prevents it from being rather commonplace.

George Fitzmaurice has started work in London on a Paramount production of the Broadway comedy "Three Live Ghosts." Norman Kerry and Anna Q. Nilsson will appear in the rôles of Billy Foster and Ivis. Cyril Chadwick, who created the part of Spoofy, will do the same characterization for the screen.

MY FAVORITE
On Stage and Screen

Who is your favorite actor or actress on screen or stage, and why? Take your pen in hand, name your favorite, and tell why in 100 words or less, writing on one side of the paper only. The Tribune will pay $1 for each letter published. No manuscripts returned. Address "Actors," The Tribune, Chicago.

Makes Others Happy.

Dropping a bright career here, she lost herself in the dark war days in service to soldiers overseas. No trip was too arduous; no performance too long for their pleasure.

She speaks French fluently, plays well, sings smoothly, and her dancing, mimicry, and art are world known.

Always prompt to aid charity, her great desire is to make others happy. She, therefore, constantly seeks for the highest in her art, and this she interprets with perfect artistry.

The world welcomes Elsie Janis as a missionary of keen, clean fun, for he or she who makes others happy is universally welcome. W. K.

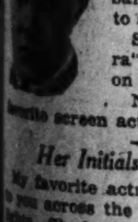
Well Named Ray.



Charles Ray, the actor, can always be relied upon to entertain and uplift, too.

Charles Ray, the man, is always a gentleman, a devoted husband, and is charitable to all.

So well named Ray—ra"y"diating happiness on and off the stage. No wonder he is my favorite screen actor. C. C.

Her Initials Are M. A.

My favorite actress always appears to you across the footlights. She has a voice with rich contralto tones in it; golden brown hair which she wears in a soft pompadour; hands which are dainty and feet so small that they fit perfectly into Cinderella's glass slipper.

She is versatile. She can crow like a rooster; she can be a puckish as Peter Pan, as hoydenish as the Little Minister's gypsy, or as demurely sweet as Cinderella.

Her initials are M. A. But you have already guessed—Maude Adams, because you love her too. Why? I wonder if it isn't just because you can't help it? She has charmed the heart straight out of every one of us with her beautiful naturalness. H. A.

Ask Me! Ask Me! Ask Me!

GRACE: You're a nice child, and I thank you. Mr. Taylor's picture, while it did not appear in the series that we have been printing every Sunday, was in the paper at the time of his death. You surely didn't miss seeing it?

FRIEND: I'm rather inclined to agree with you. If you saw the review you know the picture aroused yearnings for a mother with "comeback."

THE LOST CHORD: Forget you? How could we? I'll always be interested to hear how your new "cinema club" gets along. I don't see why that name isn't all right. But I'll try to think of another for you. The addresses you wish are: Pearl White, in care of Fox, Fort Lee, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven, 1844 North Vine street, Hollywood, Cal.; June Elvidge, Bayside, Long Island, N. Y.; Kathlyn Williams, 264 South Kingsley drive, Los Angeles; Dorothy Phillips, 1510 Laurel avenue, Hollywood; Dorothy and Lillian Gish, in care of Griffith studio, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Wallace Reid, Lasky, Hollywood, and Thomas Meighan, Lasky, Hollywood.

JOHN E. J.: No doubt about it—Johnny Walker as the black sheep in "Over the Hill" did some splendid acting. We'll see what we can do about the picture you want. To be the "standard of your motion picture morals" is sure some peak to have attained. Long may you boost for us!

ALICE H: Thank you. The caption on the picture given me was wrong, then. I will repeat here your correction: "It is Rudolph Schildkraut, Joseph's father, who is the star in "The Wandering Jew." Joseph Schildkraut is in the picture, playing the minor part of King David."

Here and There in the Theaters

Competition never hurts any business, so far as the patrons are concerned.

Miss Florence Reed and "The Mirage" will, like Mr. Ditrichstein, depart hence at the end of this week, and to the Great Northern will come "Honeydew," an opus which represents the first work of Efrem Zimbalist, the Russian violinist, as a composer of musical comedy. The piece has words by Joseph W. Herbert, and they say it's good. "Honeydew" was to have reached the Great Northern on Oct. 31, but, for some reason which is nobody's business, they have hastened its coming as they did in the case of the approaching "Afgar," for which, too, we were to have waited another month. "Honeydew" will enlist the services of a large cast, including Ethelind Terry, Dorothy Follis, John Goldsworthy, John Park, John Dunsmore, Madalen Grey, and Marie Hall.

The personality of the actor will appear, and should appear, in all the characters he represents. When it was falsely rumored that Joseph Jefferson's place as Rip Van Winkle was being taken by one of his sons the purchasers of tickets requested the return of their money; they wished to see the great actor as Rip—not a substitute. It will always be the same. When you go to the theater to see David Warfield play Peter Grimm or Lenore Ulric as Kiki, you wish to see Mr. Warfield or Miss Ulric and not understudies. —David Belasco in The Saturday Evening Post.

A profound observation, to be considered, of course, with no thought of Mr. Belasco's "The Gold Diggers," now present in Chicago without Miss Ina Claire.

The Provincetown Players are in the market for plays from the pens of Americans, old or young, known or unknown. From their quarters at the Playhouse they send forth the assurance that any writer who has a manuscript in his pocket may send it forthwith to Miss Dorothy Miller, at the theater, with every assurance that it will receive careful and conscientious consideration. Miss Miller, who plays in "The Emperor Jones," is also the organization's official head reader and is prepared to take what comes.

Winchell Smith's "The Wheel," which followed "Lightnin'" at the Gaiety theater in New York, has not been as successful as its record-breaking predecessor, and will give place, on Oct. 10, to Miss Helen Hayes in her new play by Booth Tarkington, "The Wren." Miss Hayes is getting under way in Boston after some tryout performances in the serious minded town of Springfield, Mass. H. T. Baker, who writes on drama for the Boston Transcript, went to Springfield for the formal premiere, and found his journey not an idle one. "This," he said to Mr. Tyler, the producer, "is a better comedy even than 'Clarence.'" George Kaufman, co-author of the glittering "Dulcy," also was there, and he dared to differ from Mr. Parker thus: "'Clarence' was not as good as this."

"The Technique of Pageantry," by Linwood Taft, newly published by A. S. Barnes & Co., should prove a manual of great value to those who find themselves concerned with this phase of dramatic presentation. It is a thoroughgoing treatise on every phase of the subject, from music to makeup, by one who knows whereof he writes. Mr. Taft is chairman of the department of pageants and festivals for the Drama League of America and director of the American Pageant association.

"Benson's Marigold Review," a new entertainment, will take possession of the Marigold garden next week.

When Miss Hilda Spong takes the Caillavet and de Flers comedy, "The Fan," into New York on Oct. 3, it will mark the first direct defiance of the Actors' Equity association in the theatrical capital. The cast will not contain a single Equity player. Incidentally, George M. Cohan, the Equity's arch enemy, will reveal "The O'Brien Girl" in New York on the same night with a cast of both Equity and non-Equity actors.

Simultaneously with Otis Skinner's appearance in the dramatic version of "Blood and Sand," [he launched the play in New York last week] a lyric drama based upon another of Vicente Blasco Ibanez's novels, "In the Shadow of the Cathedral," is being made ready for acting in Paris. It will be revealed at the Comedie Francaise about the middle of October.

The practice of naming theaters for actors persists in New York. The Shuberts' newest playhouse there, which was to have been called the Imperial, now bears the legend, "Jolson's Fifty-ninth Street theater." The initial attraction will be "Bombo," with Al in it.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Fashion World Gives Ear to Spanish Edict

By Mme. X.

MME, O my! The trees are shedding their useless leaves and the birds are flying south. The sun rises later and later every morning and sets earlier and earlier every evening. That which seemed so impossible last April, the arrival of winter, is close at hand.

It was once the fashion for women to buy and wear autumn frocks and bonnets, garments of the warm hues of falling leaves and reddening vines, hats trimmed with grapes, bright berries, and so forth. But nowadays there are only two seasons in the dressmaking world, winter and summer. And this winter's modes, if arrivals from Paris are to be trusted, are to be of a varied description.

Each Paris dressmaker has a special and easily recognizable type. The Spanish ideas of beauty in dress and art are at present much in vogue in Paris. No longer need the straight haired female imperil her locks by weekly marcellings. The latest mode is, à l'Espagnole, the hair drawn straight back from the forehead and bound in flat folds about the head, still covering the ears and with the mass of the locks concentrated at the back of the head rather low down. It is a fashion that severely tests the average woman's looks.

Making the Best of It.

As those of our fellow citizens who have been spending the summer abroad return, many widely differing accounts of conditions over there clamor for attention. Some tourists have seen only the outside of Europe, which continues to present a gay and cheerful air. To please and allure us and our American dollars the people on the continent and in England strive to assume an air of prosperity and luxury which does not exist.

Other travelers, more discerning, see below the surface and tell a different tale. Miss Rose Nichols, the well known designer of beautiful gardens, who is visiting in Lake Forest, gives a harrowing picture of Vienna, where she spent some days last summer. Not the least touching part of the picture is the gallant way in which many of the aristocracy take their débacle. They still smile in that old way which made Vienna the gayest capital in Europe.

And yet visitors sitting over their meals at a restaurant are often approached by men or women of evident good birth and breeding and asked, in cultivated accents, if they will allow the suppliant to take the crust left on the finished plate.

The Austrian kronen, which used to be worth about 25 cents, now fluctuates in value between 1,000 and 1,500 to the dollar. The hotels are obliged by law to keep their old schedules of prices for rooms. Miss Nichols and her party were charged 10 kronen apiece a day for their rooms, which meant 10 cents. When they moved upstairs they paid only half, that is, 5 cents a room.

Yet the theaters are open, and in the restaurants the bands still play the lively Viennese airs to a laughing, talking world. The Viennese apparently are incurably light hearted, and this attitude cannot but arouse our admiration. They are like the French nobility who mounted the guillotine steps with smiles.

Mrs. Harold McCormick Returning.

The news that Mrs. Harold McCormick has sailed for home on the George Washington, is of great interest to Chicagoans. She has always taken a prominent place in society here, not only because of the importance of the McCormick family in Chicago and of the world wide fame of her father, John D. Rockefeller, but because she herself has such a distinct and unusual personality that even without the backing of great wealth and social position she would be a conspicuous figure wherever she found herself.

She is a woman of remarkable mentality. She has spent the last eight years since leaving Chicago chiefly at Zurich in Switzerland where she has been the center of a group of scholars, scientists, and philosophers of world wide note. She has led during these years of absence the life of high thinking and plain living recommended by our school of Concord philosophers. Whereas here she was renowned for her beautiful jewels and French gowns, there she wore no jewels and dressed in the plainest of homespun.

She has spent most of her time studying the philosophy of the modern school of thinkers known as the psychoanalysts. She belongs especially among the followers of the famous Dr. Jung, who makes his home in Zurich and who has gathered about him a band of students of his teachings. She plans to continue her study and work here.

Looking Just Straight Ahead.

It will be interesting to see what impress so strong and vital a personality has upon our rather worldly and certainly none too serious a community. Most people in Chicago society live entirely the life of the active nonthinker. We look out, not in; forward, not back; not very much up, rather just straight ahead, and are not at all introspective, contemplative, or analytical. In short, we are a young, crude, unintellectual community chiefly absorbed in the problem of getting ahead in the most material sense of the term. The highest manifestation of brain work among a certain group of society folk is how to play a no trump hand when an adversary has all the aces.

One of the tests of the Jung school of philosophy, which is employed to show how much power one has over that delicate machinery, the mind, is to see how long one can control the thoughts. Try it yourself and see how many minutes you can direct and command any line of thinking. Minutes, do I say? Seconds would be nearer the mark. Such thinking means an entire detachment from surroundings.

Mrs. McCormick will be in Chicago early in October. Her son and daughter, Fowler and Miss Muriel McCormick, have been occupying the family place at Lake Forest this summer, living very quietly. The latter has been devoting herself to cultivating her singing voice, and has gone in town three or four times a week for lessons with Mme. Arimondi, wife of the well known basso of the Chicago Opera company. Miss McCormick was a constant attendant on the opera at Ravinia this summer, not even Louis Eckstein, himself, being more devoted to the remarkable program presented there those ten or twelve weeks.

Gay Prenuptial Days.

There never were more festivities connected with any recent wedding than those that clustered about the marriage of Miss Mary Withers and Clive Runnells, which was solemnized yesterday at Lake Forest. All their friends vied with each other to give them proof of interest in and pleasure at their marriage.

One of the gayest of these ante-nuptial affairs was the dinner given to them last Monday by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy at their charming place in Deerpath avenue. The women guests were asked to come in bridal attire. Five of them wore wedding gowns. The others added wreathes of orange blossoms or other festive head dresses to their usual costumes. There was a wedding procession of the five brides, most formidable, one would think, for the young bride-to-be to look upon.

The occasion was made into "a kitchen shower," and this produced some of the most amusing features of the evening. One inventive guest brought a bridal bouquet constructed from a funnel and having every imaginable small kitchen implement hanging by narrow white satin ribbons from the main structure. Another brought an enormous collection of tin and aluminum pots and pans on a long stick which made a most tremendous clatter whenever and wherever he moved. The Runnells' kitchen will be stocked with utensils for all time to come.

Has a Fancy for Live Stock.

The young couple are going to live in the house the bridegroom has been occupying this summer, the Dorr Bradley place in Green Bay road, until the snow flies. Mr. Runnells has a fancy for all kinds of live stock and other animals, and birds. He has on his country place horses, dogs, cats, cows, a goat, chickens, ducks, guinea fowl, and parrots, in short, everything that a well stocked country home should have.

Mr. Runnells' family gathered here from many parts of the country for his wedding. His father, John Sumner Runnells, came from his summer place at Chocorua, N. H. His three sisters, Mrs. Robert I Jenks, Mrs. Albert Atlee Jackson, and Mrs. William James, came with their husbands from New York, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts.

Other notabilities to spend this weekend at Lake Forest were Robert Allerton with his English visitors, Glyn Philpots and Mr. Forbes, who were the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer.

This is the last country week-end for many Chicago hostesses. The Palmers are already partly established in their new abode on the Lake Shore drive, the old family residence on the corner of Banks street and the drive. Mr. and Mrs. John Borden are moving to town this week, although they plan to camp out in their Lake Geneva house for next Sunday.

Undismayed by Remoteness.

Mrs. James Keeley is likewise transferring her family to town this week. It is possible that Mr. and Mrs. Austin Niblack will spend the winter in the abode Mrs. Keeley is vacating. This is the former stable where Maj. Frederick McLaughlin once domiciled himself and, at a still earlier period, his polo ponies and hunters.

Both the Niblacks like the open air life possible in the country. They are enthusiastic riders and golfers. They are not dismayed, apparently, by the remoteness of the place they propose to occupy. It is off Green Bay road, at the end of a leafy lane and on the edge of Skokie. Only the wide, windswept stretches of the latter are visible from the windows.

It takes courage and many resources to live in such a good imitation of solitude. As a rule, we Americans are a gregarious lot, and like to be within sight and sound of our neighbors. In this we differ from our cousins, the English, and, still more, from the South African Boers, who "trekked" thousand of miles so as to reach a country where they should not see the smoke of their neighbors' chimneys. They have to look at a good many British chimneys smoking today on the high veldt.

"The Hovel" Is Completed.

It is long since any house in Lake Forest has been watched in its evolution with so much interest as that of the Samuel T. Chases in Oakwood avenue. They bought a simple white cottage early in the summer, and have been, with Howard Shaw's aid, transforming it into an abode sufficiently comfortable and commodious to accommodate the four members of the Chase family. They early named it "The Hovel," though it is the chic-est thing in the line of a hovel that you ever saw. Now that it is completed they are giving what Mrs. Chase calls on the invitations a "house [s]warming" next Friday evening.

If all their friends come, as they threaten to do, they will have to do what friends of the writer's did years ago. These latter were young and inexperienced. They decided to give a party in their small apartment. They received so many acceptances that becoming alarmed at the possibilities of overcrowding, they not only removed all their furniture but took down all their pictures from the walls to make room for their guests.

Every one who has time and sufficient cultivation to care and know anything about one of the greatest men our upward struggling race has ever produced—Dante—should go to see the exhibit at the Newberry library which lovers of Dante and literature have gathered there. Among other things included in it is an interesting collection of pictures depicting the costumes worn by men and women of the time of Dante.

They were "wise guys" in those days, as they indicated their walks of life by their dress. The lawyers, doctors, lawmakers, judges, plebians, soldiers, knights, nobles, apothecaries, and mayors all wore distinctive attire. Rather voluminous and cumbersome most of it was, with many skirted garments for the men. Even the horses were weighed down by brocades and embroideries, as well as by heavy armor. A knight in full armor on a steed in full armor must have been about as useful in battle as the statue of Gen. Logan in Grant park.

Some early editions of Dante's "Divina Commedia," two printed in 1477 and one in 1484, are to be seen there. Dante lived and wrote a half a century before printing was introduced into Europe, though the Chinese had been using movable type for some centuries. So his first books were hand written on vellum.

Italians Are Interested.

He died on Sept. 14, 1321; therefore it is the 600th anniversary of that event that we are celebrating this year. Fame came to him and his works only after his death. The world that we know was at one of its darkest moments when he was alive. One hundred and seventy-one years later Columbus discovered us. Then came light. Dante might not have liked us. Lots of people don't. But he might not have taken such a gloomy view of life had he known us.

Horace Oakley, who is a passionate admirer of Italy and all its works, has been active in assisting the librarians in getting this collection together. The Italians in Chicago have visited the exhibit with enthusiasm. It is worthy of note that none of our foreign population takes such an interest in the picture galleries at the Art institute as do the Italians. They come in droves on high days and holidays.

Collecting Fire Relics.

A date of even more interest to us Chicagoans than this Italian one is that of the fiftieth anniversary of the Chicago fire, one of the city's chief milestones. On Oct. 9, 1871, old Chicago, or a large part of it, went up in smoke, and made way for the great metropolis of today. To be sure, the city has been torn down again and again since then. Our motto is, "Build thee more stately mansions, O my city!" We invented the skyscraper, the steel, tile, and cement construction. And to make room for each

The wedding of Miss Alva Thoits Taylor, daughter of the late Bert Leston Taylor and Mrs. Taylor, and Paul William Gallico, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paola Gallico of New York, took place on Monday, Sept. 5, in St. Andrew's chapel of St. James' church. The bride is a graduate of Radcliffe and the bridegroom is a graduate of Columbia university. Mr. and Mrs. Gallico will live in New York.

MISS JANE WIGGINS.

[Photo by Lewis-Smith.]

The engagement is announced of Miss Jane Wiggins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Davis Wiggins of 4927 Lake Park avenue, to Wallace Loverin Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Grant Clark of 4448 Drexel boulevard. The wedding will take place in the spring.

MRS. JUSTIN WILLIAM GRIESS.

[Photo Copyrighted by Pierce.]

Mrs. Richard Warren Sears of Boston, formerly of Chicago, announces the marriage of her daughter, Serena, to Justin William Griess, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Griess of Cincinnati, on Wednesday, Sept. 21, at high noon in Trinity church, Boston. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Richard W. Sears, and the maid of honor was her sister, Miss Sylvia Sears. One of the bridesmaids was Miss Helene Meckstroth of Chicago, the bride's cousin. Wesley Sears, a brother of the bride, was an usher.

News...of... CHICAGO SOCIETY

new type of building we have ruthlessly destroyed whatever stood in its way.

The Chicago Historical society, that tireless guardian of the city's past, is gathering an exhibit of fire relics and contemporaneous pictures, furniture, clothes, and other human paraphernalia to recall those times to those few who remember that period, and to enlighten the youth of the day as to how their immediate forebears lived. It will be well worth a visit from young and old. The society is housed in the home built for it thirty years or so ago on the corner of Dearborn avenue and Ontario street. There are many other things of great value and interest to the visitor. It is a sort of "Musée Carnavalet," as the similar and much more renowned municipal museum of Paris is called.

It is to be hoped that the day is not far distant when the Historical society will be more suitably housed in a more accessible position. General interest in it will be much quickened by more attractive setting and surroundings.

WOMEN'S CLUB PAGE

MRS. JEREMIAH J. DELANEY.
[Photo by Lauritzen.]

The Catholic Woman's league will have its opening social afternoon next Saturday in Recital hall, Fine Arts building. This marks the beginning of the twenty-ninth year of the league's existence, with a growth in membership from twenty-five to 950. Numerous clubs which shelter business girls, babies, and young women have been and are aided by the league. Mrs. Jeremiah J. Delaney is president for 1921-'22.

MRS. JOSEPH M. CUDAHY.

Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy will be one of the central figures in the pageant to be presented at the national convention of the American Red Cross at Columbus, O., Oct. 4-8. Mrs. Cudahy is chairman of the advisory committee on volunteer service of the central division, with headquarters in Chicago. Dr. W. A. Evans of The Tribune will speak on "The Red Cross and the Nation's Health" on Oct. 6.

First Meeting of Catholic Women's League on Saturday.

By Kate Webber.

THE twenty-ninth year of the Catholic Woman's league will have its opening meeting next Saturday afternoon, when a reception will be held in recital hall, Fine Arts building. Mgr. D. J. Riordan will be a guest and the Rev. Claude J. Pernin, S. J., will give a reading of Tennyson's "Enoch Arden."

Keeping pace with the growth in membership from approximately twenty-five in 1893, when Mrs. Alice T. Toomey was president, to the present roster of 950, the league's ideals of practical philanthropy have developed into city-wide projects, each of which is under the personal supervision of a member.

The beneficiaries of the club's work are St. Elizabeth's day nursery, 906 North Franklin street; St. Anne's day nursery, 710 South Loomis street; St. Mary's settlement and day nursery, 656 West 44th street; St. Elizabeth's Business Women's club, 1103 North Dearborn street, and the protectorate of the Catholic Woman's league, 126 North Des Plaines street.

Of these, the most notable are the last two named. The protectorate was established in 1911 for the safeguarding of women and children, where cases of nonemployment, sickness, and strangers in the city are cared for and given aid. The Business Women's club houses fifty girls who otherwise would have to live in the unattractive surroundings common to the girl on a moderate salary who is alone in the city.

In addition to the regular Saturday afternoon programs, the league will sponsor classes in the study of the works of Dante, Browning, and Tennyson; also a class in current events, to be led by Mrs. Edward Hines.

Officers for the current year are Mrs. J. J. Delaney, president; Mrs. Nicholas R. Finn, Mrs. Frank J. Cullen, and Mrs. Michael T. Creighton, vice presidents; Mrs. Oliver T. Cody, recording secretary; Mrs. Roland J. Dunn, corresponding secretary; Mrs. James V. Kerr, financial secretary, and Mrs. John S. Kelleher, treasurer.

CLUB NOTES

IMPERIOUS VICTORIA, QUEEN AND WOMAN

BY LYTTON STRACHEY

THE YOUNG QUEEN VICTORIA.

THESE excuses would have impressed Lord John more favorably if he had not himself had to suffer from a similar neglect. As often as not Palmertson failed to communicate even to him the most important dispatches. The prince saw that if he could only drive in to the utmost the wedge between the two statesmen, then the suppression or the removal of Lord Palmerston would be almost certain to follow. He set about the business with all the pertinacity of his nature. Both he and the queen put every kind of pressure upon the prime minister. They wrote, they harangued, they relapsed into awful silence.

The prince decided that something drastic must be done. Five months before, the prescient Baron Stockmar had drawn up, in case of emergency, a memorandum, which had been carefully docketed, and placed in a pigeon hole ready to hand. The emergency had now arisen, and the memorandum must be used. The queen copied out the words of Stockmar, and sent them to the prime minister, requesting him to show her letter to Palmerston.

"She thinks it right," she wrote, "in order to prevent any mistake for the future, shortly to explain what it is she expects from her foreign secretary. She requires: (1) That he will distinctly state what he proposes in a given case, in order that the queen may know as distinctly to what she has given her royal sanction; (2) Having once given her sanction to a measure, that it be not arbitrarily altered or modified by the minister; such an act she must consider as failing in sincerity toward the crown, and justly to be visited by the exercise of her constitutional right of dismissing that minister."

Temporary Victory Won

Lord John Russell did as he was bid, and forwarded the queen's letter to Lord Palmerston. This transaction, which was of grave constitutional significance, was entirely unknown to the outside world.

Palmerston understood at last that he was struggling with a formidable adversary, whose skill and strength unless they were mollified, might do irreparable injury to his career. He therefore wrote to Lord John, briefly acquiescing in the queen's requirements.

Albert at once summoned him to the palace, and was astonished to observe, as he noted in a memorandum, that when Palmerston entered the room "he was very much agitated, shook, and had tears in his eyes, so as quite to move me, who never under any circumstances had known him otherwise than with a bland smile on his face." The old statesman was profuse in protestations and excuses; the young one was coldly polite.

The culmination of the long series of conflicts, threats, and exacerbations came before the year 1851 was out. On Dec. 2 Louis Napoleon's coup d'état took place in Paris, and on the followind day Palmerston, without consulting anybody, expressed in a conversation with the French ambassador his approval of Napoleon's act.

Lord Palmerston Dismissed

Two days later he was instructed by the prime minister, in accordance with a letter from the queen, that it was the policy of the English government to maintain an attitude of strict neutrality toward the affairs of France. Nevertheless, in an official dispatch to the British ambassador in Paris, he repeated the approval of the coup d'état which he had already given verbally to the French ambassador in London.

This dispatch was submitted neither to the queen nor to the prime minister. Lord John Russell's patience, as he himself said, "was drained to the last drop." He dismissed Lord Palmerston.

Victoria was in ecstasies, and Albert knew that the triumph was his even more than Lord John's. Henceforward it seemed that the prince would have his way in foreign affairs. After years of struggle and mortification success greeted him on every hand. In his family he was an adored master, and now in the secret seats of power he had gained a new supremacy. He had wrestled with the terrible Lord Palmerston, the embodiment of all that was most hostile to him in the spirit of England, and his redoubtable opponent had been overthrown. Was England herself at his feet?

The prince's triumph was short lived. A few weeks later, owing to Palmerston's influence, the government was defeated in the house, and Lord John resigned. Then, after a short interval, a coalition between the Whigs and the followers of Peel came into power, under the premiership of Lord Aberdeen.

Suspicion of Prince's Acts

Once more Palmerston was in the cabinet. It was true that he did not return to the foreign office; that was something to the good; in the home department it might be hoped that his activities would be less dangerous and disagreeable.

Suddenly the nation found itself under the awful shadow of imminent war (with Russia). For several months, amid the shifting mysteries of diplomacy and the perplexed agitations of politics, the issue grew more doubtful and more dark, while the national temper was strained to the breaking point.

At the very crisis of the long and ominous negotiations, it was announced that Lord Palmerston had resigned. Then the pent up fury of the people burst forth. In their rage, anxiety, and nervous exhaustion, they looked around desperately for some hidden and horrible explanation of what had occurred. They suspected plots, they smelt treachery in the air.

It was everywhere asserted and believed that the queen's husband was a traitor to the country, that he was a tool of the Russian court, that in obedience to Russian influences he had forced Palmerston out of the government, and that he was directing the foreign policy of England in the interests of England's enemies.

For many weeks these accusations filled the whole of the press; repeated at public meetings, elaborated in private talk, they flew over the country, growing every moment more extreme and more improbable. While respectable newspapers thundered out their grave invectives, half penny broadsides, hawked through the streets of London, reëchoed in doggerel vulgarity the same sentiments and the same suspicions.

Charges Hurled Against Albert

At last the wildest rumors began to spread.

In January, 1854, it was whispered that the prince had been seized, that he had been found guilty of high treason, that he was to be committed to the Tower. The queen herself, some declared, had been arrested, and large crowds actually collected around the Tower to watch the incarceration of the royal miscreants.

These fantastic hallucinations, the result of the fevered atmosphere of approaching war, were devoid of any basis in actual fact.

Nevertheless, though the gravest of the charges leveled against the prince were certainly without foundation, there were underlying elements in the situation which explained, if they did not justify, the popular state of mind. The queen's husband was a foreigner, who had been brought up in a foreign court, was impregnated with foreign ideas, and was closely related to a multitude of foreign princes.

The prince's German proclivities were perpetually lamented by English ministers; Lord Palmerston, Lord Clarendon, Lord Aberdeen, all told the same tale; and it was constantly necessary, in grave questions of national policy, to combat the prepossessions of a court in which German views and German sentiments held a disproportionate place.

But this was not all. A constitutional question of the most profound importance was raised by the position of the prince in England. His presence gave a new prominence to an old problem—the precise definition of the functions and the powers of the crown. Those functions and powers had become, in effect, his; and what sort of use was he making of them?

Albert considered that it was his duty, he told the Duke of Wellington in 1850, to "sink his own individual existence in that of his wife . . .—assume no separate responsibility before the public, but make his position entirely a part of hers—fill up every gap which, as a woman, she would naturally leave in the exercise of her regal functions—continually and anxiously watch every part of the public business, in order to be able to advise and assist her at any moment in any of the multifarious and difficult questions or duties brought before her, sometimes international, sometimes political, or social, or personal. He is, besides, the husband of the queen, the tutor of the royal children, the private secretary of the sovereign, and her permanent minister."

Stockmar's pupil had assuredly gone far and learned well. Stockmar's pupil!—precisely; the public, painfully aware of Albert's predominance, had grown, too, uneasily conscious that Victoria's master had a master of his own. Deep in the darkness the baron loomed. Another foreigner!

A foreign baron controlled a foreign prince, and the foreign prince controlled the crown of England. And the crown itself was creeping forward ominiously; and when, from under its shadow, the baron and the prince had frowned, a great minister, beloved of the people, had fallen. Where was all this to end?

Within a few weeks Palmerston withdrew his resignation, and the public frenzy subsided as quickly as it had arisen. When parliament met, the leaders of both the parties in both the houses made speeches in favor of the prince, asserting his unimpeachable loyalty to the country and vindicating his right to advise the sovereign in all matters of state.

Immediately afterwards the country finally plunged into the Crimean war. In the struggle that followed Albert's patriotism was put beyond a doubt, and the animosities of the past were forgotten.

The Annual October Sale of Silks

Just as our Silk Store dominates the "Yard Goods Floor of All Chicago," just so does it dominate in the Silk World of America, and just so does the Annual October Sale dominate the Silk Store—for in its premier display in its great new Second Floor home it has made every effort to surpass its many achievements of the past—and has succeeded in so full a measure that you will be enchanted.

The silks of the new season have vivid, dramatic touches of color—just as Paris demands—in the midst of black, which seems so prevalent—the brilliant, beautiful shades arrest the attention and hold it—the dashing colors with fire and vivacity side by side with the softer shades, rich and mellow as old paintings—so that truly the Silk Store is a vision of charming color effects.

Not America alone, but the Silk Centers of the world have all poured their choicest productions into this great Silk Store—a display every woman will crave. The random notes that follow as to modes and values, gathered after a brief tour of the silk stockrooms in preparation for the October Sale, leave impressions of vivid newness—of endless varieties, of impressive values that are difficult to describe in so limited a space. Silks are here to fill every need from the very latest novelty in weave and color to the ever staple black taffeta. Values occupy the same prominent place as ever in the past—the values that have made this Silk Store famous, rule with ever increasing power, bringing Canton crepes, now at the very pinnacle of their popularity, at the same savings as the staple sorts—and so we feel that the October Sale is an event that you will find unusually interesting and profitable from every standpoint.

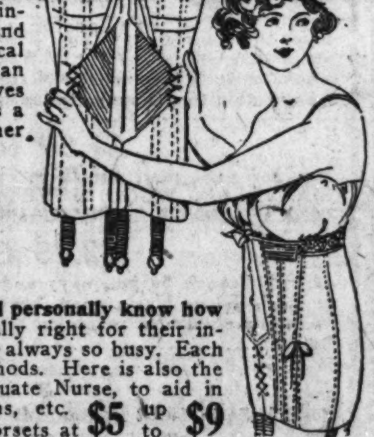
To the Woman Who Knows a Good Corset

Third Floor—Dearborn Street



To the woman who knows a good corset and its manifold advantages Poiret's recent query whether a woman should wear corsets seems futile—we believe that most women should wear corsets, because there are so few women who even approximate physical perfection of health; an intelligently selected corset can do more to aid, and many Nemo models even to cure, certain physical defects than any other one thing. There is an irresistible attractiveness about a woman who gives the impression of both style and health—she has a magnetism that communicates itself through her personality.

The woman who wears a Nemo Corset is not shapeless, nor is she the least bit uncomfortable; as Poiret says: "She realizes that her body and its needs are as individual as her mind, and requires the same individual cultivation and attention. She studies the kind of corset she wears and knows she must be fitted."

It is not to be expected that all women can study and personally know how to select and choose the corset that is scientifically right for their individual needs, and that is why our corsetieres are always so busy. Each one is trained in all the latest hygienic fitting methods. Here is also the Medicanical Health Station in charge of a Graduate Nurse, to aid in advising and fitting you after illness, operations, etc. (No charge for fitting service.) We feature Nemo corsets at $5 up to $9

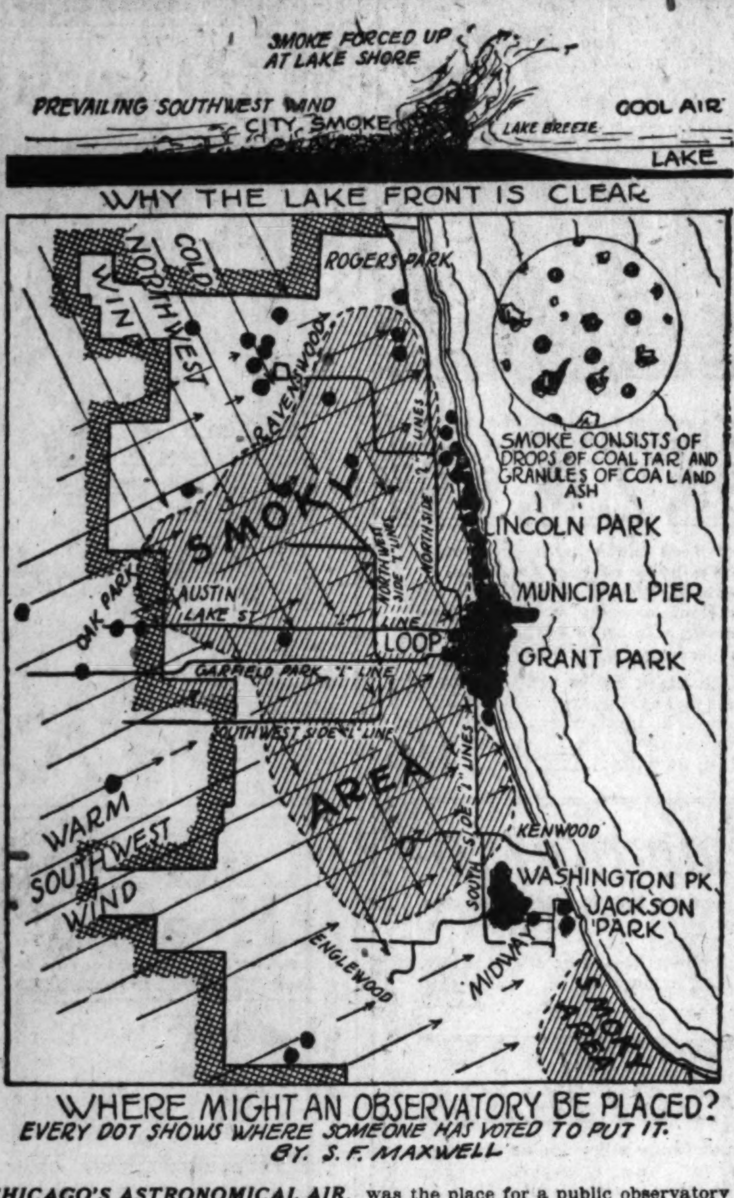
ASTRONOMY



WHERE MIGHT AN OBSERVATORY BE PLACED?
EVERY DOT SHOWS WHERE SOMEONE HAS VOTED TO PUT IT.
BY. S. F. MAXWELL

CHICAGO'S ASTRONOMICAL AIR.

MANY of you wrote in last week telling what you thought about a proposed public observatory. Most of you said it would be fine if it could be done. It would be hard to be a lover of the stars and not want the facilities to see them. But there was a great deal of divergence of opinion about where it might be placed.

In the majority of replies I received the loop or Grant park was indicated as the most favored spot. Lincoln park or the north shore came second, Washington park and the Midway came third; Ravenswood and the northwest was fourth choice; Oak Park fifth, with a smattering in other parts of the city.

Some questioned whether Chicago was the place for a public observatory at all; that the smoke was so dense and the street lights so bright that no adequate spot for it might be found anywhere. To put up telescopes under a canopy of haze, where the full beauty of the stars could never be seen, it was argued, was worse than useless.

There is much truth to this statement. It is unfortunately true that the greater part of Chicago is enveloped by smoke. The percentages of smoke emitted by various sources are as follows: Factory furnaces, 5 per cent; metallurgical and manufacturing works, 18 per cent; locomotives, 10 per cent; high pressure steam plants, 44 per cent; flats, 20 per cent; dwellings, 3 per cent.

Factories send up comparatively little smoke. Their boilers are usually equipped to burn their coal, for coal up the chimney is money out of pocket. It is apartment houses, flats, and to some extent residences that pollute the air worst, due to ignorant or indifferent firing. A little observation on a winter day will disclose that there is more smoke over the flat districts than over the purely factory districts. The above map of Chicago shows the smoky area—the places where telescopes would operate at a disadvantage.

We have two principal clear weather winds that blow over Chicago. The prevailing warm-day winds are from the southwest. They would deluge the loop and lake shore with smoke, and make Grant park what the east side is in most large cities were it not for the large body of Lake Michigan near by. A sheet of cool air always lies over the lake, the source of our lake breezes. Being heavy, it hugs the water, and when the smoke laden winds strike it they are deflected upward as they might be by a high wall, and their vapors are dissipated into the upper atmosphere. For this reason the air along the lake shore is generally clear, but except where the lake air itself blows landward, there is a pall of smoke at no great distance to the west.

An observatory placed in the loop, Grant park and, to a lesser extent, Lincoln park, would have to count on its western views being bad, but the sky would otherwise be good.

The clear, cold winds that sweep over Chicago bear from the north and northwest. They parallel the lake front and materially clear the western horizon by agitating the smoke clouds. For the same reason they drive the smoke back from the northwest side of the city and bring the clearest skies in those parts.

The region of Washington park and the Midway deserves to be mentioned. Aside from lying near elevated transportation, which is always a good thing, its atmospheric conditions are unique in Chicago. This is the only region in Chicago where the prevailing southwest winds bring little smoke. The cold northwest winds diffuse the smoke before it reaches here, and this place is therefore an island of good air between the smokes of Chicago and those of Gary. The street lights here, however, are worse than in either Grant or Lincoln parks.

An observatory should be placed where there is good air and where there is good transportation. The map shows the location of both. What do you think abut it?

Rose & Shaffner:

"How's everything at home?"

"O, she's all right."

"My wife can't tell a thing without exaggerating."

"Did she ever tell you her age?"

"I attended Miss Thompson's wedding last night."

"What are her initials?"

"Eh?"

"How was the silver marked?"

"Knickerbocker hotel."

"My wife left me without any reason."

"Well, in that case she left you as she found you."

"What is a monologue?"

"A monologue is a conversation between husband and wife."

"I thought that was a dialogue."

"No; a dialogue is where two persons are speaking."

"In the art gallery today I saw a picture of an onion."

"Was it natural?"

"So natural it brought tears to my eyes."

Allied Arts Exhibit Opens Institute Season

By Eleanor Jewett.

WITH the opening of the twentieth annual exhibition of applied arts last Thursday afternoon in the galleries of the Art institute, a new season in the art world was auspiciously begun. The numerous handicrafts are represented by work from artists scattered the length and breadth of the land. Potteries, glass, batik, linens, bookbinding, and their companion arts are illustrated in profusion. The timing of the present exhibit for fall instead of spring has already born fruit, inasmuch as the best pieces by the numerous workers have not yet been disposed of but are all shown here and no second bests have to be endured.

An artist who has not exhibited in Chicago for many years is the sculptor, Julia Bracken Wendt. Her work is shown now at the Art institute, where its exhibit rounds out delightfully the handicraft exhibition and the group of Wendt paintings. This, as well as the pictures by Mr. Wendt, will remain on view until the close of the applied arts exhibit.

From 1850 to 1920 means a stretch of a good many years, but this lapse in time is covered successfully in the exhibit of Swiss art, including work by such men as Hodler and Boecklin, which also had its opening last Thursday at the institute.

Few know the paintings of William A. Wendt without falling deeply in love with them. An exhibition of recent canvases from his brush are now on view at the institute. If they compare at all closely with more familiar paintings by him, the exhibit promises a treat which none should miss.

A group of forty canvases depicting the beauties of the forest preserve will be placed on view in the halls of the Hamilton club beginning Oct. 17. The exhibit will close Oct. 31. The canvases should measure 24x28 or larger. Forty paintings have been set as the limit to be accepted, so artists having pictures of the preserves will do well to select their choicest in the event that they contemplate exhibiting their work. Of those received, only the forty best will be shown. Enoch Vognild is chairman of the art committee.

A number of interesting prizes are offered for the winter exhibition of the National Academy of Design, 210 West 58th street, New York, to be held from Nov. 19 to Dec. 18. Among the prizes to be awarded are the Altman $1,000 and $500 prizes for figure paintings, the Carnegie $500 prize for the most meritorious painting, the Shaw Memorial prize of $300 for the best work by a woman, the Proctor $200 prize and the Isidor medal for figure painting, the J. Francis Murphy $150 memorial prize for landscape, and the Elizabeth N. Watrous gold medal and the Helen Foster Barnett prize for sculpture.

An interesting feature of the applied arts exhibit at the Art institute is the group of designs for the backs of playing cards from the fertile brush of Frederic M. Grant. Mr. Grant, not content with painting pictures of unusual beauty, believes also in the value of creating practical objects with an eye to esthetic effect. This belief he has declared concretely in the present institute exhibition.

Nicholas Roerich, the Russian painter who exhibited last spring at the Art institute and who this year is to create dramatic settings for two of our new operas, may hold classes this winter if enough students make it known that they would welcome his instruction. Those who are interested may learn more of the matter by speaking to Miss Helen Dupee, 153 East Erie street—Superior 6724.

Another artist who, like Charles W. Dahlgreen, is at present painting out of town is Dorothy Visju Anderson. She is at work in the romantic landscape of the Blue Ridge mountains, more gorgeous than ever now under the magic of autumnal coloring.

From Joseph P. Birren at Provincetown, Mass., comes an interesting note regarding the artistic possibilities of the Atlantic coast. Ipswich, which was, in years past, the haunt of Prof. Dale and his students, among whom Twachtman was one, is no longer an artist refuge. It is too grown up, too lacking in rugged charm, and too hidden by its abundant foliage growth. Rockport has all that Ipswich lacks. Gloucester, too, is unspoiled by civilizing richness—and Provincetown will always probably be the painter's delight, for its protecting barriers of sea (on three sides there is water) will keep its simplicity in and the complexity of the modern world out.

Marginal Notes on Books and Authors

F. M. COLBY, editor of the Dodd-Mead "New International Year Book," the well written, well arranged volume of which for 1920 has just appeared, has written a book called "The Margin of Hesitation." Mr. Colby's contributions to this journal during the world war were admired. "The Margin of Hesitation" will be published soon.

William Dean Howells' daughter Mildred has the "Life and Letters" of her father well under way. She has been steadily at work for months on this important task, which involves the examination and editing of an immense amount of material. The book will be nothing short of a chronicle of our country's literary annals during a period of nearly seventy years.

"The Quimby Manuscripts" are on the way from the Crowell press, probably with endless explanation, excoriation, expurgation, and excommunication in their wake. The publisher announces the book as "the most important contribution to the subject of mental healing ever published." It gives the history of the discoveries and practice of Dr. Quimby from 1840 onward to the mid-sixties, and includes what are described as "the confidential letters of Mrs. Eddy to Dr. Quimby" during a period of two years. They are now first published. The announcement also says: "The volume contains the writings which Mrs. Eddy borrowed during her stay in Portland as Quimby's patient. The editor is a son of Mr. Julius A. Dresser, who was the most active of Quimby's followers at the time Mrs. Eddy was under treatment and who loaned Mrs. Eddy the copybooks which made her acquainted with the Quimby manuscripts."

Hurling another text book at the Medill School of Journalism, we commend as copious and helpful the "Handbook for Newspaper Workers," by Grant Milnar Hyde, associate professor of journalism in the University of Wisconsin. The Appletons publish it.

Still another Roosevelt book impends. It will bear the capital title, "Roosevelt, the Happy Warrior." It is by T. R.'s Harvard classmate, Bradley Gilman, who knew the warrior forty years and loved him.

Like Thackeray, A. S. M. Hutchinson, author of "If Winter Comes," which Miss Butcher so liked, was born in India. He is still in his early forties. His father was a lieutenant general. The son studied medicine, but deserted Guy's for Fleet street.

Art and Archaeology, newly incorporated with a subscribed capital of $25,000, issues this month a "Chicago double number." Eggers, soon to leave us, sad to say; the trusty Wacker, Jens Jensen, D. H. Perkins, Lorado Taft, Ralph Clarkson, Clarence Hough, Stanley Field, and Miss Lena McCauley are among the fellow townsmen who contribute to this double number.

Rt. Hon. Arthur James Balfour's "Defence of Philosophic Doubt" comes in stately form from the press of Doran. Mr. Bryan will not like it. Nevertheless, it is one of those books that leave no man the same. It destroys or it fortifies.

"Notable for lyric loveliness," says Miss Harriet Monroe in printing this, by Miss Louveine Aber of Chicago, in October Poetry:

DEATH.

I am waiting for the white winds to come,
White with the long-whispering dust
That has withered under hoofs and feet,
White with the mountains that blow their sleep
Into the sea.
I am waiting for the white winds to come,
Lifting their hands as white women clad for the moon;
And soon, ah soon,
Lifting my heart to be ashes and wind.

Mr. Bynner Has But One Life to Live —Hence This Letter

Rye, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Will you kindly let me correct in THE TRIBUNE a curious error being widely printed concerning a book of 300 poems which I am translating under the title "A Chinese Anthology"? Some typist or typesetter in transcribing the original name of the book has mistaken a quotation mark for an eleven; so that I find myself announced, in your paper and others, as engaged on a translation of "11,300 Pearls of the T'ang Dynasty."

Having been at work already over three years on the 300—observing, a good part of the time, a nine hour day—I cannot look upon the larger figure without a sinking of the heart. A hundred years are more than I have at my disposal.

And will you let me correct also the statement that "A Chinese Anthology" is to be published in 1921? It can hardly be ready before the autumn of 1922. I have still ahead of me several months of hard work on it. After that it will have to be sent for final supervision to my collaborator, Kiang Kang-hu, who is now in Russia investigating conditions there for the Chinese reading public, somewhat as Bertrand Russell and H. G. Wells investigated for the English reading public, but staying there much longer than the English publicists.

He writes me from Moscow to send "proofs but no politics." Very truly,

WITTER BYNNER.

Supplementing the new, good book by Dean Clark ("Tommy Arkle") called "When You Write a Letter"—concerning which it is the intention to say something appreciative in a near issue—the reporter for "Sunday Books" would like to say what a pleasure it is to receive so fittingly worded a letter from a notable author. He has a correction to make, but he is neither acrimonious nor patronizing. He is suave, quaint, and amusing. He turns a request into an entertaining one and leaves one smiling and informed. How far civility goes in this world!

SURELY THE GREAT NOVEL OF THE YEAR

IF WINTER COMES

By

A. S. M. HUTCHINSON

Author of "The Happy Warrior," etc.

E. F. Edgett, in the Boston Transcript:

No review, no amount of comment or praise, can reveal the warm humanity of this story. It is more serious in manner and plot than "Once Aboard the Lugger," "The Happy Warrior" and "The Clean Heart," with an intense and deep note that is undoubtedly the outcome of its author's mental and physical experiences during the war. Rarely if ever has any such man as Mark Sabre appeared in a novel before, although now that we see him in Mr. Hutchinson's pages he is the perfect incarnation of one aspect of a very lovable masculine mankind. If ever the mirror were held up to nature, it is held up by Mr. Hutchinson in "If Winter Comes"; if ever man were re-created in a literary image that man is his Mark Sabre.

John Clair Minot, in the Boston Herald:

And this is a novel of distinction. Have no doubt about that, those of you unhappily unfamiliar with Hutchinson's earlier work. There is a sense of power in the way the whole thing sweeps along, through the development of character and the unfolding of plot to the tremendously intense climax that you rarely find in contemporary fiction.

William Lyon Phelps, in the New York Times:

"If Winter Comes" is not only a thrilling tale, it is an important work of art. It has a real and skillfully constructed plot; the hero is unforgettable, and even the minor characters are impressively human; it abounds in humor and wit, the laughter of fun and the laughter of the mind; it is based on the spiritual truth revealed to the world some nineteen hundred years ago. I do not know when I have had more continuous enjoyment in reading a new book.

"If Winter Comes" is one of the best books of our times. Its author is a creative artist, and a spiritual force.

Heywood Broun, in the New York Tribune:

"If Winter Comes" deserves the attention of all readers who love fine prose combined with deep and warm feeling for character. Mark Sabre is one of the most fully revealed persons we have encountered in any novel for a year. . . . With the exception of Tarkington's "Alice Adams" we have not read any book this year of such sustained feeling. We think that "If Winter Comes" is the best novel in English which has come from the war.

Fanny Butcher, in the Chicago Tribune:

"If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson, is a real novel. It is as real as a golden dripping sun spattering a lake with wave nuggets. It is as real as a rising moon slowly changing the outline of a mountain into a sea of silver. And it is as romantic and as artistic. . . . An amazingly fine contribution to modern novel writing. All in all, "If Winter Comes" is so fine that it blurs one's vocabulary. One can only say: "Here are rich gifts."

D. Kenneth Laub, in the Detroit News:

"If Winter Comes" is not only a great story—it is a great piece of literary craftsmanship. If there is a more notable novel than "If Winter Comes" to be found among recent novels, or, for that matter, recent novels written in English, it has effectively escaped detection by this reviewer. "If Winter Comes" has a stronger personal appeal than any other novel he has read in years. A fine novel this; one the author must be proud to have written; the publishers proud to have published and that any lover of a good story and good literature should be proud to have on his bookshelves.

It has the surge of full life in it—the throes of souls, the deep loves of men, the clash of rivalry, the pain of sacrifice. It is the story of David Littledale, of Littledale, Connecticut, a man awake to the problems of the day—his philosophy of life, his passionate love affair, his keenly critical attitude toward American institutions, and his bitter disillusionment with respect to his generation. Walt Mason calls it "one of the real achievements in recent fiction." Wallace Irwin says it is "a thoughtful book, full of questions both answerable and unanswerable."

OWEN JOHNSON'S

Great American Novel

THE WASTED GENERATION

This novel raises its author from the ranks of those novelists who reflect life and thought into the company of those few writers who mold them. It is an enthralling story of contemporary America. More than that, it is a convincing exposition of the failure of modern education to instil in our young men the ideals and the love of service which are inseparable from true Americanism. "The Wasted Generation" is a book for all thinking Americans who are alive to the dangers threatening the new America.

—she almost gave way to sudden, blind terror!

SHELTERED, pampered, protected from the rougher side of life, the blood of a long line of fighting ancestors showed in this one moment of tense peril.

A heart-gripping episode in Ethel M. Dell's newest long novel, "The Obstacle Race." The story of a girl's supreme struggle to escape from the maddening whirl of a pleasure-mad society.

Better than "The Hundredth Chance," better than "The Lamp in the Desert," better than "The Top of the World." Best of the long line of novels by one of the world's most popular writers of fiction. Not published in serial form.

ETHEL M. DELL'S NEW NOVEL The Obstacle Race

Rex Beach and Fred Stone make sporting history together!

You can imagine the fun these two men, American humorists of literature and the stage respectively, were bound to have on a hunting trip together. Rex Beach lets you in on it all in his straightaway tale of the trip. Don't fail to read his "confessions of an agitated sportsman."

OH, SHOOT!

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Winds of Chance," "The Iron Trail," etc.

You'll enjoy Oh, Shoot! if you hardly know a gun from a bear. On the other hand, you'll find it full of thrilling experiences that would delight the ablest hunter.

Among the Indian tribes Rex Beach visited were the Yaquis, "a playful people" who "dearly love to hold up Southern Pacific trains"; and the savage Seri, who speeded their guest under military escort, immediately upon his arrival.

Here is your chance in Oh, Shoot! to meet the famous novelist at play. 63 illustrations. At all Bookstores. $3.00.

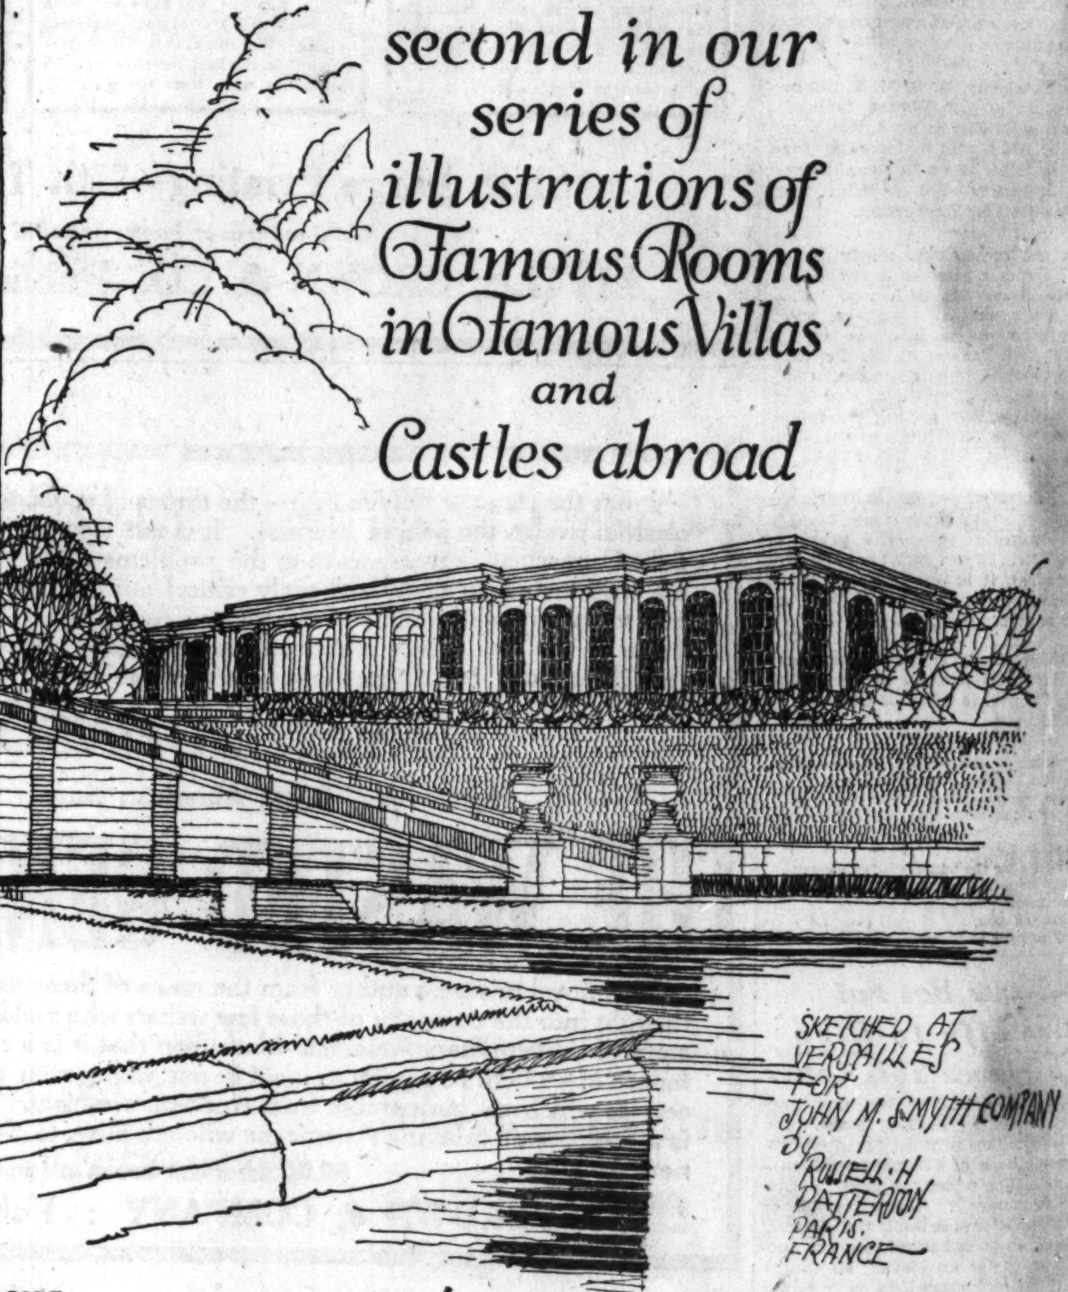
The Trianon Palace

The Grand Trianon, famous for its sculptures in marble, jasper and porphory, contains twenty-one of the most gorgeously decorated rooms and halls on the continent. It is noted as the scene of many of the more intimate events in the life of Louis XIVth and for its Galerie des Glaces and Italian peristyle, the work of Mansart and De Cotte.

This is the second in our series of illustrations of Famous Rooms in Famous Villas and Castles abroad



SKETCHED AT VERSAILLES FOR JOHN M. SMYTH COMPANY By RUSSELL H PATTERSON PARIS. FRANCE

The "Galerie des Glaces" or Hall of Mirrors, is famous for the splendor of its mural decorations which consist of seventeen large windows and three hundred and six beveled Venetian mirrors in rich copper frames, the whole surmounted by carved festoons of flowers and cupids, and set in marble arcades that extend from the uncarpeted and highly polished floor almost to the lofty ceiling.

The original Louis XIVth furnishings were replaced during the reign of Napoleon by the present empire furnishings noted chiefly for the massive mahogany table with solid top nine feet in diameter supported by great winged figures representing the body of a lion with a woman's head.

The fireplace, also in empire, and large clock and candelabra are of black marble inlaid with gold. The highly carved and gilded chairs and fire screen are upholstered in red silk embroidered in the conventional designs and color schemes of that period; while arranged about the walls are several small tables bearing precious Japanese vases and ornaments.

The character of the mural decorations, remarkable even in that age of luxury and magnificence, reflects vividly the extravagant grandeur of the reign of Louis XIVth.

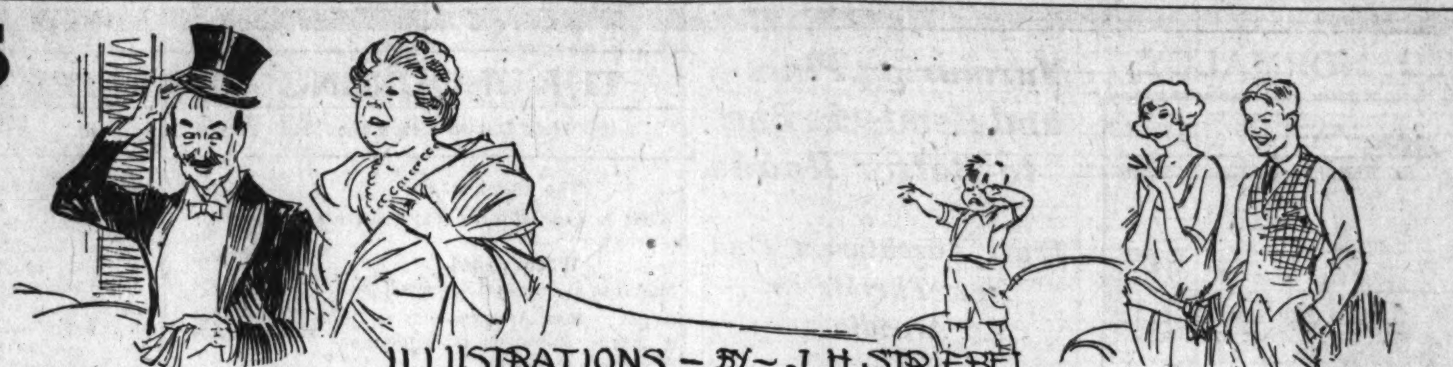
The POTTERS

By J. P. McEvoy



ILLUSTRATIONS – BY – J. H. STRIEBEL

PROLOGUE.

All around the room in various stages of decrepitude sprawl the Potters . . . you can tell by the lackluster eyes and the general slackness of the limbs that they have just returned from a vacation . . . only one with the soundest constitution should undertake a trip for his health . . . sounds of brooding from Ma . . . that mysterious postal from Mrs. Rankin is corroding her . . . muttered exclamations from Pa, who is scribbling pages of figures under the almost-copper lamp . . . the usual undefined noises from the Baby, sometimes near at hand, sometimes underfoot . . . weary commentations on the sporting news from Bill . . . querulous inquiries to the world at large from Mamie, who would like to know by what secret process manufacturers time silk stockings so that they always start a run the very evening you have a heavy date.

Scene I.—The Postmortem.

MA (brooding aloud):
What that surprise is all about
I simply cannot figure out.

MAMIE (with the blitheness which is optimism when you're young and self-delusion when you're old):
Some silly little thing, no doubt.
Why try to dope the darn thing out?

PA (gloomily):
Not so good . . . not so good.

MA: What are you moaning about over there?
You'd think you were all bowed down with care.

PA (even more gloomily):
Not so good . . . not so good . . . not so good . . .

BILL: He's figuring up the expenses, Ma . . .
What's the use? It's all spent, Pa.

MA (apologetically):
I know we spent more than we really should,
But we had more fun than we thought we would.

PA (showing paper):
But, lookit, the cost of it . . . not so good.

MA (changing subject, brightly):
Wait'll we tell the Rankins of the places that we've seen,
The mountains and the glaciers . . . they'll turn a lovely green.

MAMIE: And I'll tell Gladys, you can bet,
About my cowboy guide Bizett.

BILL (with raised eyebrows):
Your cowboy guide Bizett? . . . Well, well . . .
Whaddye think of our little Nell?

MAMIE: Who kissed you in, I'd like to know.

BILL: I kissed myself.

MAMIE: O, is that so?

(A crushing retort to which there is no comeback.)

MA (gloatingly):
And when they know 'twas the money we got
From them for the leases, they'll be hot.

BILL: It'll burn 'em to think we'd go
And have that fun with all their dough.

MAMIE: Burn 'em up . . . well, I'll say so.

"Since when have the Rankins got so swell . . ."

MA: I bet they never thought we could.

PA (mournfully, as he adds the column up again, hoping he was wrong the other nine times):
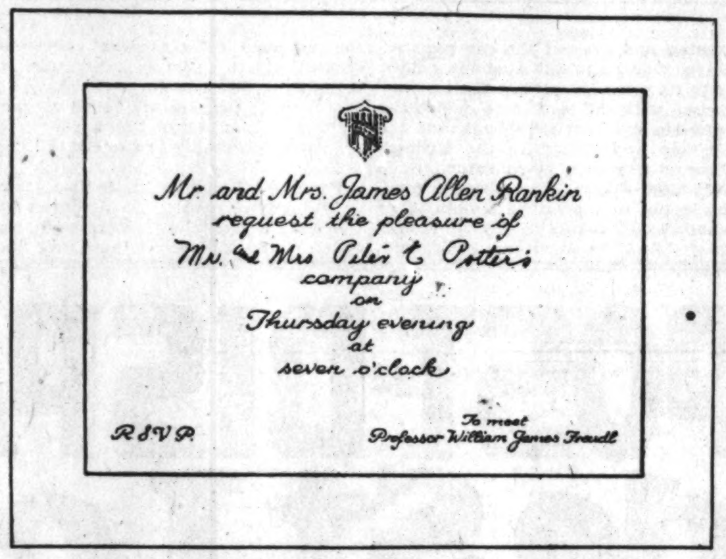
Not so good . . . no . . . not so good.

(But Ma valiantly ignores the voice of conscience as personified in Pa, and together with Mamie plans how they will have the Rankins over some night this week . . . about eight o'clock, so they won't have to bother about getting up a meal . . . and they'll tell them all about it and show them their tan, and snapshots, and everything . . . in the old days the victors dragged the vanquished in the dust of their chariots; today they make them look at vacation snapshots.)

Scene II.—What to Do . . . What to Do.

TIME—The following evening.
SCENE—The Potter Living Room.

A knock on the door is heard. Mamie, who expects a letter from the Guide, and Bill, who expects one from the Flapper, both rush to answer it. The postman hands Mamie, who gets there first, a plain white, rather bulky letter. It says "class" all over it. But it's addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Peter E. Potter. Mamie tries to decipher the contents by holding it up to the hall light, but is baffled. She brings it in to Pa. Pa turns it over two or three times trying to figure out who sent it, and then opens it . . . hold your breath:



Mr. and Mrs. James Allen Rankin

Mr. & Mrs. Peter E. Potter's company on Thursday evening at seven o'clock

R.S.V.P.

To meet
Professor William James Fraudl

PA: Well, whaddye think of this?

MA: What is it? (Comes around and reads over Pa's shoulder . . .) Well, of all things. (Reads invitation aloud.) Formal, if you please. Do you know what that means, Pa?

PA (with a dawning realization of what it means):
Migod! I'm not going.

MA: You're not going? Why, the Rankins would think . . . they'd think . . . why, I don't just know what they'd think . . .

BILL: They'd think you didn't have a dress suit.

(As a matter of fact, Pa hasn't got one, although he's lied about it often enough.)

MAMIE: Lend him yours, Bill.

MA (sadly):
A formal dinner and reception, and I haven't a thing to wear.

PA (brightly):
Well, that's a good excuse to get out of going.

MA (looking at Pa witheringly):
I suppose you want me to call Mrs. Rankin up and tell her I can't attend her dinner because I haven't a decent dress. Is that what you want me to do?

PA (helplessly):
Well, what do you think you're going to do?

MA (decisively):
I've got to get an evening gown, of course. The one I've got was out of date before the war . . . and I couldn't get into it any more, anyway . . . and you've got to get an evening suit some way or another . . . (Suddenly, as if struck with a bright idea): Why don't you rent one?

PA: Why don't you rent an evening gown?

MA: Why, that's ridiculous.

PA: Not any more ridiculous than me renting an evening suit.

MA (off on another tack):
A formal dinner! Since when have the Rankins got so swell all of a sudden?

MAMIE: Looks like they're going to throw a real party this time. Well, if you two go, doll up a little, whatever you do. And don't smell of camphor.

PA (disgustedly):
I guess I'll have to rent a suit. Doggone the luck, anyhow! Who started this fool formal stuff?

MAMIE (rubbing finger over invitation):
Engraved, too . . . putting on dog, I'll say . . .

Scene III.

It is the evening of the big party. Pa and Ma are being backed into their harness with great difficulty . . . Mamie has been handed a problem in higher mathematics, making a thirty-six inch belt meet around a forty inch waist . . . Bill is a valet, and never was there such a valet . . . never . . . .

MAMIE (to Ma):
Draw in . . . a little more . . . that's the way . . . a little more . . . darn it, there goes a snap . . .

MA: Let William try it; he's got stronger fingers.

BILL (to Ma):
William's got his own troubles. (To Pa) Haven't you got another stud? Y'can't go with two studs.

PA (anxiously):
How does it fit in the back?

BILL (soothingly):
Fine . . . fine. Did you take out the labels?

PA: D'ye think anybody will . . . will (hesitates . . .)

BILL: Why, no, nobody'll ever suspect it . . . it fits you as if it was your own . . . (happens to glance at Pa's shoes) Jumping Joseph!

PA (alarmed):
Wattsamatter, wattsamatter?

BILL (pointing):
Your shoes . . . look!

(Ma and Mamie come over to look . . . amazement . . . horror . . . tableau.)

PA (terrified, but he doesn't know why):
What are you all staring at?

CHO.: Your shoes . . . look! You can't go like that . . .

BILL: Why, you've got to have dress shoes . . . you can't go in oxfords.

PA: Why, they're black, aren't they?

(Bill brings out his own. Luckily Pa can just get them on . . . later he'll think he's waltzing on two hollow teeth . . .)

MAMIE (to Pa, who has just succeeded in tying his tie while Bill is out):
Take it off . . . take it off.

PA: Whatsthamatter with this? . . . gwan over and help your mother.

MAMIE: Lookit it . . . lookit it . . . black, black . . . you've got to have a white one . . . here, let me fix it.

MA (who has been deserted at a critical moment):
Come right over here, Mamie, and hold this.

"There, Ma, how does that look?"

(Mamie goes right over and holds this . . . Bill comes to Pa's rescue and ties his white tie . . . meanwhile Ma has slipped her gown on overhead and a hook catches in her hair . . . there goes a three dollar hairdress . . . some of us girls step into them, but not when we begin to plump up like Ma.)

PA (all dressed and rarin' to go, puts on the tall five gallon kelly):
There, Ma, how does that look?

MA: Say, you look swell in black; you ought to wear clothes like that all the time.

PA (earnestly):
If I ever get out of them you'll never get me in again without ether . . .

(Ma starts to put on her new pumps . . . of course she doesn't get out of the old house slippers until the last minute . . . they were to move the buttons over on the pumps, and they did—on one of them. Tragedy! There is no time to take it off and sew it, so Ma slits the buttonhole and then prays it will hold . . . let us all join her in prayer.)

MA: Where's my pearls? Where's my pearls?

BILL (in a rather detached tone):
I think the Baby had 'em . . . there he goes with 'em now.

MA (wildly):
Catch 'im . . . catch 'im.

(The Baby enters into the spirit of the occasion, but is finally cornered in the pantry and yields up Ma's string of practically near pearls only after a long argument conducted with diplomacy by Bill . . . for if the string broke . . . ooooooooo!)

PA (who has looked at himself in every mirror in the house):
Aren't you ready yet? C'mon, let's go.

MA (giving her hair that last pat):
Just a minute.

(They go to the door, followed by the good wishes of Bill and Mamie . . . the Baby takes one look at Pa and begins to scream . . . Mamie takes him away. Just as Ma reaches the door the strategic button on the wrist of her right glove breaks off . . .)

(And that's that—but the party is to come.)

Survey Shows Egg Production Centers in Corn Belt States; Breeders Optimistic About Pure Bred Hog Business

By Frank Ridgway.

CACKLING hens and crowing roosters have been considered of little importance by the average corn belt farmer until recent years. The farmer has done most of his thinking and spent most of his time with his problems of growing hogs and cattle and grain, while the chickens had to scratch for themselves.

Hens, hens, hens—blacks, whites, yellows, browns, striped and spotted hens—were all about him on the farm, but, so far as most middle west farmers were concerned, hens were only made to scratch up the garden in the spring and get into the feed boxes and eat valuable corn and wheat and oats. When the price of eggs began to climb a few years ago Biddy was invited for the first time in her life to eat freely of the farmer's valuable grains.

More and more hens were kept for layers, and flocks in every corner of the central western states began to grow, until today it is common to find from 200 to 300 hens on stock and grain farms. Farmers have paid more attention to their flocks during the last ten years than they ever have before. They are making a study of their poultry problems the same as they analyze their problems in feeding and caring for their live stock.

Taking Illinois as an Example.

In an effort to aid farmers in their study of the poultry business the Illinois Agricultural association is making a nation-wide survey to obtain facts about the poultry industry, paying particular attention to the problems in Illinois and other middle west states. Contrary to the general belief, the survey shows that the corn belt is the greatest egg producing section in the United States.

Approximately one-third of the eggs of the whole country are produced in the five principal corn belt states, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Ohio, and Indiana, ranking in the order named. Of the 1,656,267,200 dozens of eggs produced in the United States 529,137,201 come from these five states.

Poultry raising is highly intensified on the Pacific coast, where many people think most of the eggs are produced. The hens of the five states named produced more than twice as many eggs in 1919 as were produced in the three Pacific coast states and the seven eastern states combined. Washington, Oregon, and California produced only about 100,000,000 dozens, while the seven eastern states—New York, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut—produced slightly less than this amount.

F. M. Murphy, who is in charge of the survey, says that while there is a difference in the total production of each one of the corn belt states, each one produces about the same number of eggs per square mile, taking the state as a whole.

To show the rank that poultry and eggs hold along with other products of the farm he has taken Illinois as an example. Illinois is in the center of the corn belt, producing annually about 105,000,000 dozens of eggs, which is about the average for this area. In this state the value of eggs produced, excluding home use, is $40,880,005, and the value of chickens $27,502,080. The total value of eggs, excluding home use, and of chickens raised is $67,690,085 in Illinois. This total is approximately equal to the total value of dairy products, which is $71,998,338, excluding milk and cream used in the home; or sheep, including lambs under one year, ewes, rams, and wethers, with an annual total of $71,946,064. The egg and chicken production is more than twice that of vegetables in this state.

Eastern States Show Decrease.

The significance of this comparison becomes more important when it is considered that the area of Illinois around Chicago is one of the most important dairy and vegetable growing sections of the country. Besides, these figures do not include the chickens and eggs that are produced on areas of three acres or less. The poultry production on the small poultry farms and small

WHEN prices of pure bred hogs shot up in skyrocket fashion a few years ago, hundreds of speculators were soon found in hogdom. But today they are reported missing. They disappeared a few months ago when prices of pure breds fell with a terrific crash. Leading breeders made big money while prices were high and they lost many thousands of dollars when the prices fell, but with the speculator out of the way they believe they will be able to build on a firm and safer foundation.

In spite of heavy losses at the beginning of the lower price period, constructive breeders are optimistic about the future of the pure bred hog business. They have struck off their losses as other industries have done, and are now working on a new basis. They realize that high prices were detrimental to the business of growing pure breds. High prices automatically eliminated their best customer, the farmer.

Farmers who grew hogs for the pork barrel, sending their hogs direct from the feed lot to the slaughtering pen, were not able to buy pure bred hogs during the high price period. But today, with the pendulum of pure bred prices swinging only a few degrees above the prices of good grades, the average farmer is able to own pure breds.

How to Save Freight Charges.

The big breeder is realizing that the farmer is his best customer, whether he sells directly or indirectly to the man who grows his hogs for the market. The breeders are trying to get their neighbors to appreciate the value of pure breds in producing pork. Prices have come down within reach of the pork producer, and within the last two or three months many farmers have been replacing their grade herds with pure breds.

This has not only been due to the fact that pure bred hog prices have dropped to a lower level and much more rapidly than has the price of market hogs in the last few months, but because the relative prices of hogs and grain make it possible for the farmer to make more profit with hogs than almost anything else he can grow on his farm. Naturally the feeder wants the best "machinery" he can get to transform his grain into meat.

Deflated prices of market hogs have not caused the farmer to lose confidence in hogs. Corn belters are finding the hog the best way to market their grain this fall. They are able to more than double the price they would get for their corn by feeding it to hogs.

W. J. Carmichael, secretary of the National Swine Growers' association, has figured out that the farmer not only gets more for his corn when he feeds it to hogs but when the corn is converted into pork he can ship it much cheaper. Putting it into practical terms, he said that, roughly, one bushel of corn will produce ten pounds of pork, and the freight on the ten pounds of pork is much less than it would be on one bushel of corn. According to the market price of hogs, the ten pounds of pork would sell for about 70 cents while the farmer only gets about 35 cents a bushel for his corn on the farm.

Iowa, Illinois, and Indiana Lead.

There is a vast field for the pure bred hog. A glance at the 1920 census figures shows that out of the 59,364,107 hogs in the United States only 2,049,841 are pure breds. At that the percentage of pure bred hogs is higher than the percentage of pure bred cattle, sheep, or horses.

The biggest pure bred hog producing section in the country is within a few hundred miles of Chicago. Iowa, with 289,042; Illinois, with 215,965; and Indiana, with 159,696 pure bred hogs, are the three leading states. These states are now referred to as the three big I's in the pure bred hog world.

Pure bred herds will no doubt increase in the middle west during the next few years. The pure bred business in the hands of the farmer is where it belongs and will likely stay there.

C. G. McCahan of Silver Brook farm, and one of Indiana's most constructive breeders, says that wherever hog sales are being held breeders are cultivating the farmers' market. "They got away from the farmer who feeds for the pork barrel during these high prices but they are coming back and

Enormous Motor Traffic Demands Better Direction in Illinois

By J. L. Jenkins.

TEN million cars make up the rolling stock on the new transportation lines whose perfection will cost the people of the United States some $3,000,000,000. With these arteries of trade—the national, state, and county highways—only partially built, traffic figures show that more passengers and nearly as much freight is carried by motor power as the tonnage moved by railroad lines, despite the fact that the enormous movement goes forward without the aid of dispatchers, block signals, safety appliances, or any like necessities employed by the smallest rail system.

The demand for traffic direction, emphasized by the record breaking use of highways this season, is making a new problem for engineers in every part of the country. In Illinois a huge appropriation was passed months ago with a new law requiring the proper maintenance and marking of all state roads. Plans for the work have been completed for weeks, but highway officials declare they lack the authority from Gov. Small to go ahead with the installation. It is thought that the delay, in line with this year's entire road policy, will continue through the fall months.

Maryland Out Ahead.

Novel and interesting schemes for the marking of main trunk lines so that "all who ride may read" their way from point to point have been worked out in a number of states. Wisconsin, through its numbered road system, leads the middle west. Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana employ excellent numbering systems, and California and the Rocky mountain states offer well blazed trails. But the most elaborate designating scheme so far achieved by highway officials is under way now in Maryland.

Maryland pavements having been built, the people are turning their undivided attention to protection of the pavements from damage by thoughtless operators of heavy vehicles and protection of the traveling public from reckless drivers and other road dangers. Permanent scales have been installed on some of the main highways, to be used daily by the well organized state police force who patrol the highways to stop overloaded trucks and vehicles improperly tired. They have succeeded in eliminating the overloaded truck menace from the state roads.

Maps at Roadside.

The Maryland highway department is now installing a system of direction and distance signs at each intersection. The signs are faced with metal and set on wooden posts into concrete bases. They show the name of the highway in white letters on a black background, the distance to and from important points, and all principal connections. In addition, ten by ten foot maps are being erected at the limits of each town. They show the main routes through the town in white and the secondary routes in gray; the names of streets and well established landmarks are all marked so that the traveler can choose his itinerary according to the points of interest. They are oriented to read in the direction of travel, so that if the signboard were laid on the ground the routes follow the proper directions. On each map is a red star with the words "You are now at this point."

At the top of mountain grades similar signboards are being erected to tell the motorist the number of miles down the mountain, warn him of curves, and give him concise instructions about how to drive in order to avoid accident. At all entrances to the state signs carrying the salient points of the Maryland vehicle laws are going to inform the visitor about speed limits and traffic rules. The entire signboard system is under contract for repair and renewal each year.

Rich River Zone Opened to World Through New Road

Mississippi Delta District Climbs from Mud Handicap

THE largest road building project in one county and undertaken by one improvement district in the United States is the Helena-Ferguson paved road, extending sixty-one miles from Helena to a mile and a half below Ferguson, which is the southern border of Phillips county, Arkansas. This immense project gives direct access to some of the richest delta land in the whole Mississippi valley. Plantations, which are small empires in themselves, are firmly linked by thi sroad with almost every important town in Phillips county, of which Helena is the county seat.

A conservative estimate of the value of the land along the right of way of this concrete roadway would be more than $25,000,000. The Lambrook plantation alone contains some 20.000 acres and it is equipped with hundreds of comfortable houses, an ice manufacturing plant, electric light plant, water pumping plant, post office, telephones, and a private railroad which connects with the main line railroad. A lateral from the Helena-Ferguson road about eight miles in length, extends from the town of Elaine to Lambrook, and directly from the junction of this lateral at Elaine extends a four mile paved road to the river landing at Modoc.

Already fleets of trucks have been ordered so as to collect and distribute freight from the river terminal at Helena, which is soon to be built at a cost of half a million dollars, and from Modoc to points all along the system of paved roads in Phillips and adjoining counties. The Helena-Ferguson road, combined with the Oldtown-Helena and Marvell-West Helena paved roads, all now under construstion, will, when completed, give Phillips county about 115 miles of paved roads. Although only $60,000 of federal aid has so far been granted, the Helena-Ferguson road, those in charge feel that their request for $250,000 additional will be allowed, because the communities served by this road are important and the highest and most substantial type of road is being constructed.

Helena, at the apex of these many converging hard surfaced highways, is at the head of deep water navigation on the Mississippi river. These roadways, combined with adequate river terminals, soon to be built at Helena, government barge lines, the five railroad lines and the fleets of automobile trucks, are expected to lessen the freight rates, not only in Helena, but to many intertior points.

ONE RETURN TO NORMALCY

A few short months ago the idea of Eddie Rickenbacker riding a glass topped desk would have brought a smile to his thousands of admirers who watched from afar his smashing progress as America's ace of the air. Today he is leading world war veterans in the march to normalcy as vice president and sales director of the new Rickenbacker Motor company.

"No more thrillers, thanks," is his peace time program. "Let's observe the speed limit and keep our feet on the ground."

Voice of the Motorist

JUST SO.

Auto Editor, Chicago Tribune: Dear Sir: I read your articles on Iowa roads with a chuckle now and then, because you have told some non-disputable truths; also have made the mud much deeper than it really was after the recent rainfall.

Individually a man has little chance with a state legislature wrapped up into politics so tightly that it would require a cant hook to take off the coverings. Where politics have gotten a hold of road legislation the real merits of the issue have suffered, and this is distinctly true in the state of Iowa.

Personally and with those I could gather about me, we tried to get the last legislature to get Iowa in a position where a state bond issue for roads might be possible. Until we can do this the construction of hard roads will be very limited. During my past fifteen years' experience in highway promotion work am more convinced than ever that no highway can be better than each local community wishes to make it. I care not whether it is the Lincoln highway or any highway with a sentimental name. It takes money and a progressive public sentiment to build highways. The county bond issue plan in Iowa is not a success and never will be.

The present plan in Iowa only permits piecemeal construction of permanent highways, and local county politics enter into every project proposed for building better roads, including hard roads. Many counties in Iowa have voted down a county bond issue for permanent roads, including Story county, which is the county where the state highway department is located and traversed by the Lincoln highway.

Iowa must first amend its constitution, and thereafter two years will have to elapse before the people can vote on the question of a state bond issue for highways. It is so far behind with permanent road construction that it will be twenty years before the state will really have hard roads connecting the county seat towns, to any marked extent.

Iowans seem only converted to hard roads after they have visited California and other localities where hard roads are demonstrating their real worth.

Murmuring Pines and Hemlocks Bow to Better Roads

Trail Adventurers Find New Thrills in Arcadia

ROADS are being rapidly improved throughout New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Cape Breton island, and motorists can now reach St. Andrews, St. John, Moncton, Amherst, Truro, Halifax, Yarmouth, and Sydney from the middle of May until November, using roads that have at least 60 per cent of the surface improved, it is announced by the Automobile Club of America.

The English custom of driving to the left is followed in the maritime provinces, and knowledge of this in the past has kept away many motorists from the states. However, the difficulty should not be exaggerated. Everyone drives to the left, which makes it easy for a stranger to conform to the custom.

Some of the most beautiful valleys in the world are located in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and there is a diversity of scenery somewhat like the more picturesque sections of New England. Not so many years ago, these roads were so poor that it was difficult to reach even the more prominent cities. Now all the main points through the provinces are conveniently accessible by automobile.

On reaching Calais, Me., which is on the United States side of the St. Croix river, a bridge is crossed to St. Stephens, New Brunswick, the first Canadian city. Motorists must stop at the American customs office before crossing and present the car registration certificate to the customs officer. He in turn will fill out a permit to correspond with the certificate, which the motorists must carry throughout the dominion and return to the customs officer at any port when returning to the United States. The above formalities apply to the entire Dominion of Canada at all points of entry. Motorists will find the American and Canadian customs officers most courteous and willing to assist in every way in preventing delay or inconveniences to the tourist; tourists are made to feel welcome on crossing the border and the same hospitality is show in all the provinces of the dominion.

From St. Stephens there is an excellent gravel road to St. Andrews by the Sea, a charming resort with excellent hotel accommodations and fine facilities for golf. From St. Andrews to St. George the road is improved and, for much of the distance, with the exception of one or two sections that are rough but passable, is better than it has been in previous years. Motorists going to Sydney and Cape Breton island will find a large proportion of improved road.

There is a delightful motoring area throughout the summer months all the way from Truro to Sydney via New Glasgow to Port Mulgrave, where the ferry is taken to Port Hawkesbury. The balance of the trip to Sydney and the trunk lines through Cape Breton island have been so much improved that motoring is feasible throughout the island and very few sections of unimproved road will be found.

The route from Windsor to Yarmouth forms one of the most interesting automobile drives in all the maritime provinces. Most of the road, though somewhat narrow, is in good condition and it passes through picturesque villages and fertile farm lands all in a fine state of cultivation. Then on through the Annapolis valley and the heart of the Evangeline country, made famous by Longfellow's immortal poem, to Digby, a charming village situated on a bluff overlooking Annapolis basin. Connections are made at Digby for St. Johns, N. B., by steamer which runs the year around, leaving St. Johns at 7 a. m. and arriving at Digby at 10 a. m.; returning, leaves Digby at 2:15 p. m. and arrives at St. Johns between 5 and 6 p. m. Touring cars are carried, at the rate of $15 for a small car, $18 for a medium car, and $21 for a large car. Cars with stationary tops exceeding six and one-quarter feet in height are not carried.

From Digby to Yarmouth the route runs along a ridge overlooking St. Marys bay and passes through a number of quaint fishing villages, including Weymouth, which is situated on the Sissiboo river. Here are living some descendants of the original French Arcadians.

The Question.

What is your favorite day's drive, and why?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue and Roosevelt road.

The Answers.

C. F. Lee, Cleveland, O., salesman—I drove here from Ohio, and I found it more pleasant about Niles, Mich., than anywhere else along the line. Good roads, beautiful scenery, and picturesque villages make up its appeal. The fruit farms in that territory help make it different from the general run of country.

George Dreyer, 1431 West 72d place, auto accessory salesman—For a short drive, the trip to Palos Park is the best. There are wonderful hills and some of the finest woodlands in Illinois along the way. It is a short drive, but well worth while. Paved roads lead out that way and right now are in fair to good condition.

Sam Bell, 4652 Langley avenue, salesman—I like the drive to the sand dunes around the end of the lake best. It is ideal in the early morning, and, although the main roads are rough, there are many optional roads where the traffic is light and the views different.

William Skinner, 3106 Schubert avenue, chauffeur—I like the Monday morning drive to Madison, Wis., best of all. It's great to get out on Cook county's concrete roads to the north and be able to "step on her" without fear of tangling up in the Sunday traffic jam. Some of the prettiest country in the middle west lies between Chicago and Madison.

Harry Friedman, 1436 South Sawyer avenue, store owner—The drive to Milwaukee, over Sheridan road and the new Wisconsin concrete road recently built, is by far the finest trip out of Chicago. A good road all the way, pleasant country to ride through, and a good town as a destination all add to the pleasures of the trip.

where in the city. After registering, the visitor is given a big envelope, in which he finds maps of the city and routes to nearby points of interest, information concerning the state and city generally, a copy of the vehicle laws, and other valuable touring data. The service is free and is spreading the city's fame wherever trail people wander.

Visitors are impressed with the lack of proper highway markings in Illinois, and particularly in the Chicago territory, which forms a hub for all but extreme southern transcontinental tours. Highway organizations and municipalities have done their best to signboard the Illinois roads, but at best the direction system is varied and confusing. Plans are under way by the board of forest preserve commissioners to post the Cook county preserve roads, but until the long delayed state numbering system is put into effect the city's arteries will remain a jumble of contradictory directions.

Warm Secret.

An interesting suggestion for use in connection with soldering iron or steel is to make a swab from flexible electric light cord, which is used in swabbing on to the work a solution made by dissolving a bit of zinc in muriatic acid and then diluting with a little water.

That we are not able to make immediate shipment of all of the 1921-22 model four-cylinder $2150 R&V Knight Touring Cars that are being ordered at our special advertising price of $1500, seems to be surprising to dealers and customers all over the country.

When we announced this sensational price we made a statement of our reasons for doing it and in that statement we believe we were entirely honest.

These cars that are being sold at the special advertising price of $1500 are identically the same as those made before this price was announced, and they are identically the same as the R&V Knight Four that will sell at a higher price after November 15, 1921.

We did not have finished cars on hand that we wanted to sell. Had that been the case, we would not have been afraid to say so.

In our advertisement, we plainly stated that our 1921 schedule had been completed and that the entire production it called for had been bought and paid for. We are now working on materials scheduled originally for the first quarter of 1922, and only by anticipating material deliveries are we able to build any cars of this type.

As a matter of fact the sales already made have been nearly great enough to consume the production schedule for the first quarter of 1922, and we are now ordering additional new materials which cannot reach us before the end of another 30 days.

There are still several weeks in which to take advantage of our remarkable advertising offer. Every buyer during this period will receive a regular standard job in every particular, newly made from brand new materials and absolutely fresh paint jobs.

These are not cars which have deteriorated by standing around either in our factory or in dealers' warehouses. They are not cars which we could not sell before this special offer was made.

If a reasonably early delivery of one of these four-cylinder Touring Cars is desired, it behooves the purchaser to get his order in promptly. Our special advertising price prevails only to November 15, 1921.

We are devoting all of our facilities to the four-cylinder model that we dare to for buyers must not forget that we have in America's exclusive Knight Six a specialty which we are constantly building and selling without at the moment expending on it much direct sales effort.

This car is produced in five different body types. Its only competitors are Knight Sixes of foreign manufacture, costing $10,000 or more.

MOTORDOM

Your Speedometer—It Requires Care Once in a While

Delicate Adjustments Are the Rule in This Device

BY HIGH SPEED.

AMONG the subsidiary mechanical units of the modern motor car, which only gives trouble on occasion, must be included the speedometer. In spite of the delicate nature of this instrument it is not often that the motorist has occasion to attempt repairs of it. However, when such an occasion does arise, some knowledge of the device is essential.

At the present time there are in service four definite types of speedometers: magnetic, centrifugal, hydraulic, and that driven by air current. The magnetic type of speedometer is probably the most popular type, as far as the number of makes of cars on which it finds a place.

A typical construction in this class employs but one moving part—a circular magnet. Over this magnete, but not touching it, is an inverted metallic cup, on the rim of which is a row of figures, indicating the miles per hour. The magnet is revolved by means of a flexible shaft, its field acting on the dial cup. As the speed of the magnet increases so does the magnetic pull, and the dial cup is drawn around to indicate the increasing speed.

The dial is mounted on a steel shaft with a jeweled bearing at the top. A hairspring is fitted to resist the pull of the magnet and this also serves to return the cup to zero when the car stops. In general a temperature compensator is fitted in this type to prevent the hairspring being affected by climatic changes.

Within the last year or so the air current type of speedometer has been achieving considerable popularity. This type of instrument employs a stream of air to turn the dial, which indicates the mileage.

A typical construction in this class has a flexible shaft driving an air circulator consisting of two elongated aluminum gears placed in the head of the instrument and opening into an air chamber. This latter has two openings, one an entrance for the air, the other an exit. A dial fitted with a vane is pivoted in the chamber. A current of air is forced into the chamber by the revolutions of the gears, and this stream striking the vane revolves the dial to show appropriate figures. A hairspring is used to return the dial to zero when the car stops.

The centrifugally operated speedometer is actuated on the same principle found in the flyball governor. Weights are mounted on the moving shaft by means of levers or cranks, so that the movement of the weights by centrifugal force is communicated through the shaft to the dial. When the car speed increases these weights tend to fly out, and being connected with the dial through the shaft, pull the former around to the right and display the correct figures for the miles per hour.

The hydraulic type of speedometer has not gained any considerable following as yet, though its many excellent qualities may eventually win it recognition.

All speedometers have certain characteristics in common; the variations in type generally refer to the means employed of actuating the mileage dial. All these instruments have a connection in the shape of a rotating shaft that is flexible and is housed in a flexible housing running to some running part of the mechanism, usually the front wheel. On the end of this shaft is a gear which meshes with a gear on the moving part employed. This shaft is driven from the car's mechanism and in turn it drives the mechanism of the speedometer through some sort of joint. It has in the past been the practically universal custom to connect the speedometer with a front wheel, but recently the idea of utilizing the propeller shaft has come into marked favor. Now some makers are beginning to connect the speedometer with the transmission unit, and claims of maximum quiet, perfect lubrication and protection are made for this location.

When something goes wrong with the internal economy of the speedometer itself the car owner can do nothing but take it to the service station. He would stand just as much chance of repairing his watch as this instrument. However, there are other derangements that he can repair. For instance, the coupling at the bottom of the speedometer head sometimes shakes loose, so that while the shaft still revolves the dial does not register anything. To fix this the end of the shaft should be loosened from the head, pushed firmly in place, and tightened again. Again, the flexible shaft may bind in the housing, due to abrupt bends, and then the speedometer will fail to register. When trouble occurs look first at the shaft and see that it has as few bends in it as possible, and these long and sweeping.

Another thing to watch is in making a change from one size tire to another on the wheel that drives the speedometer. This will make the readings inaccurate. Even a change to oversize will cause inaccuracy. For instance, on one make of instrument the makers announce that if a change is made from 34x4 inch tires to 35x4½ the sixty-eight tooth gear used in the former will have to be changed to a seventy tooth gear.

It sometimes happens, where the driving gears are of fiber, that a noise is caused by loosening of the parts. By using a little strong laundry soap the gears may be swollen again so that they mesh better. It is a good thing to give the moving parts a little oil from time to time, but where the gears run exposed this will not be effective.

In some cases after the speedometer has been in service for some time the dial begins to fluctuate, a condition induced by vibration. In some instances this becomes a chronic condition, but again it may simply be due to looseness in the fastenings and connections, which the service station will fix in a jiffy. If the speedometer suddenly fails to register mileage and speed the first place to examine is the driving shaft. Disconnect the flexible shaft at the head and, with the front wheel being revolved, see if the shaft revolves without jerking. If the shaft runs smoothly the trouble lies in the instrument itself. It happens sometimes that a link in the shaft is broken, so that when the part is disconnected in this way the broken ends will catch at intervals. While the shaft is disconnected turn it in the head and see if it makes the dial indicate.

'Ware This Weed.

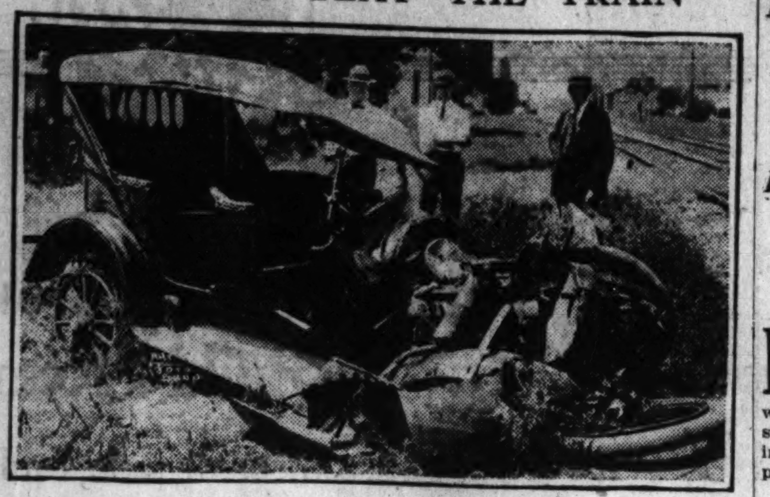
Nature's adaptability in fitting plants to new methods of spreading their seeds is apparently illustrated by a noxious weed which has recently become troublesome in California and spread to Arizona, and which is known as the puncture vine. Its activities in Arizona, where it is commonly called Devil's Bur, were revealed to the department of agriculture during a nationwide weed survey now in progress.

This vine produces spiny seeds which attach themselves to automobile and bicycle tires, which carry them long distances. It is not only an opportunist, but an ingrate, because it is causing widespread trouble to motorists and cyclists by puncturing their tires. The possibilities for damage from this plant are illustrated by the experience of a California man who was reported to have had seventy punctures in one tire, all due to the puncture vine. The weed is considered so serious in California that the California state department of agriculture has published a number of special articles on the subject. The plant is being spread with rapidity in sections of Arizona, where it never was previously known.

GROCERS USE 'EM.

Grocers throughout the United States have invested over $3,500,000 in motor trucks.

TRIED TO BEAT THE TRAIN



Central Illinois, with its network of railroad tracks and transcontinental highways, was the scene this season of a large percentage of the state's 1,000 grade crossing fatalities. The growing menace is now the subject of a general movement toward elimination of all grade crossings and of a safety campaign to teach drivers that it does not pay to try and beat the train. The picture shows a recent wreck in which two people paid the penalty.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

COACHMAKERS are occupying all the spotlight just now on the automotive stage. They have come in with the closed car season and will hold the center of attention throughout what is expected to be the most interesting fall and winter the industry has yet experienced.

All along the row in Chicago the newest creations of the coachmakers' art and fancy are to be seen now, all dressed up for the fall procession. They show a range and variety in design never before attempted and refinements in style and luxury worked out in a year of steady improvements demanded by the public's new "automania." The closed car's the thing and it comes in as high as ten and fifteen different types from some manufacturers. The display is one of the most brilliant ever seen in Chicago.

New models of the better known cars are also on exhibition in most of the salesrooms. Two newcomers of the week are the Cadillac "Type 61" and the latest Hudson model. Both are featured by improvements in body lines and numerous refinements in appearance. Few important mechanical changes are noted in the new models.

* *

Kirkland B. Alexander, vice president of C. H. Wills & Co., has been named sales manager for the Wills-Sainte Claire car, according to announcement made last week in Marysville, Mich.

* *

Old timers in the Chicago motor field are looking forward to the introduction here of the Coats steamer, the first steam car produced in the $1,000 class, which is under production now at the Indianapolis factory. George C. Rowland, president of the corporation behind the interesting industrial venture, declares that it is entirely possible the new car may revolutionize the industry. Its simplicity of design and operation and its general safeguards are the chief features in the new car.

Forest Board Joins in Plans for Roads Fete

Hundreds of Elms to Represent Towns of County

PREPARATIONS for Cook county's huge "Good Roads Day" celebration on Sunday, Oct. 9, went forward with a rush last week, when the board of forest preserve commissioners announced plans in connection with the transportation program.

Acting for President Daniel Ryan, R. E. Kennicott, chief forester, who is given credit for much of the success won by the preserves, made a survey of the natural amphitheater at the intersection of the Des Plaines river road and the Touhy avenue road, where the celebration is to be held, selected 102 matched elm trees to be transplanted along the new road, each representing one of the Cook county towns, and ordered the marking of points of historic interest throughout the district.

"The forest preserves are the chief beneficiary of this splendid paved road system," remarked Mr. Kennicott, "and we intend to coöperate in every way in this public exploitation of highways. This year the forest preserves have been visited by more people than two of our largest national parks, according to rigistration figures. More than 1,000 tourists from all parts of the country received permission to stay over night. Others remained for a week or more. All of them expressed real appreciation of the unspoiled wooded acres whose beauties are unequaled by any like park system in the country."

The highway field where the ceremony will be held is happily chosen. It is located in the center of the river hunting grounds which for centuries was the favorite haunt of Indian tribes, and is bounded on the east by the historic Talcott ford, one of the few remaining ruins of Indian earthworks, and an Indian cemetery. The ford served as a trail center before the first white settler reached the Chicago country. Later it was used by pioneers as the only available river crossing in the overland march to the west.

Fifty thousand invitations to the highway fête have been printed for distribution among motorists, and scores of good roads leaders from all parts of the country will attend the joint exercises.

Battery Filler.

Many car owners have suffered the annoyance of trying to pour distilled water into their storage batteries and having much of it slop over. Here is a little device that makes this operation accurate and easy. Drill a hole in the cork that fits an appropriately sized bottle. In this hole thrust a quill or glass tube. Next drill a small hole in the neck of the bottle, just about where it swells out into the body. The flow of water can be regulated by covering and uncovering this hole, which admits air to the bottle.

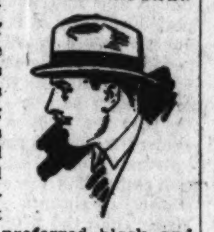
THE WELL DRESSED MAN - - - - By Alfred Stephen Bryan

Autumn Sounds a More Formal Note

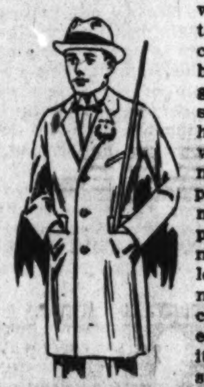
TREADING upon the heels of the late and unlamented unpleasantness abroad came a general lapse into easy going informality in men's dress. The old time divisions between the townsman and the sportsman were almost expunged. Fashion slumped into a sort of formless softness—soft shirts, soft collars, soft suits, soft times.

The avenue took on the air of the seaside promenade and the man bound to his desk looked as though he were bound for the links. As fashion moves in a cyclic swing, it was inevitable that a reaction should come against this clothes carelessness. Already men are dressing with greater formality, and we are differentiating between town and country usage. Starched collars, starched cuffs, plaited shirt bosoms, lined jackets, and so on for autumn are forerunners of a period of more dignity and decorum for those occasions which prescribe it. The English are keen upon such things, and they have set themselves granitelike against the debasement of the fine art of dress into a mere competition in comfort.

Soft Hat Colors.

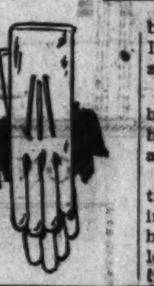


Spanning the gulf between the straw hat and the derby is the soft hat, of which there are no end of shapes and shades this season, including many odd ones, as putty color and bamboo, stone and seal. The smallish hat like that portrayed is the preferred block and usually the ribbon comes in a contrasting color—a dark band against a lighter background. The Englishman, from whom the snug hat is derived, creases it lengthwise through the center. The American likes to stress the I and My of his personality by hollowing or indenting the crown according to his whim.



Time was, and not so long ago, when we chose autumn top coats of plain colors, as black, blue, brown, and gray. These are still proper, but heather and other varitinted intermixtures are now preferred by many men because their play of colors matches any lounge suit underneath. The top coat pictured is extreme only in its extremely smart looks. It is the single breasted, three button, button through affair, slightly flexed to the figure. The skirts are full but without flare or ripple, and the garment is kept close over the hips. As a town coat this is an admirable type, because it is warm, yet light, and not readily rumpled. The accompanying collar is the wing and the bow knot tie is long, narrow, and worn under, not over, the tabs.

The Loose Fitting Walking Glove.



The correct walking glove is roomy and full cut, so that it may be slipped on and off in three blinks of an eyelid. Tight fitting gloves are both uncomfortable and unfashionable. Illustrated is the street glove of tan cape skin, a long familiar leather which is by way of being revived for day wear. It is secured with a button, not with a snap fastener.

Chamois gloves, which have never been out of fashion among fashionables, will be seen on every hand by and by.

A new motor or golf cap fastens with tiny snap buttons in front, thus making it adjustable to almost any size head and to any degree of tightness or looseness.

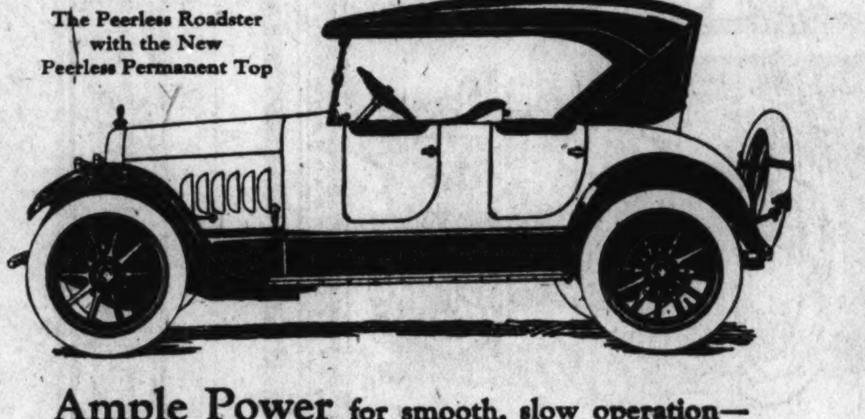
PEERLESS



The Peerless Roadster with the New Peerless Permanent Top

Ample Power for smooth, slow operation—for quick pick-up—for speed on level or hill—these are the recognized characteristics of the Peerless—the attainment of a sustained ambition.

In ordinary driving the thrifty "loafing" range gives that soft, smooth, easy performance that delights the leisurely mood. But the "sporting" range is instantly available to pick up the load and lift it out of a traffic jam—to breeze over any hill—to attain any speed you would dare on the level.

And even without considering these distinctive performance advantages, this car stands as the dominant motor car value among the better class cars today on a straight comparison of what you get for what you pay.

Chicago's Favorite Light Six Reduced to $1495!

At these low prices, and with the many important improvements in the new models, the Elgin Six brings you the truly exceptional value which motorists are demanding today.

The Elgin Six is sold, not on vague generalities, but on actual facts of superiority. Consider these features:

Valve-in-head motor, famous for power, economy and endurance (seventeen to twenty-two miles to the gallon of gasoline);
Columbia axles;
Borg & Beck clutch;
Westinghouse starting motor and generator;
Cord tires on all models;
Stromberg carburetor.

Compare these universally known quality features with those found in any other car anywhere near the same price class. Remember that you have no freight to pay—these low prices are f. o. b. Chicago.

Then you will realize why practically five million dollars' worth of Elgin Sixes have been bought by Chicago motorists in the last two years.

Come in today and inspect these beautiful models. Compare them with any other cars for style and beauty, easy riding, economy, performance and endurance, and you will agree that at these low prices the Elgin Six is the biggest automobile value you can secure today.

ESSEX

Its Price Now $1375

You Save $420

The Essex has always been an outstanding value by every standard of price and quality comparison.

Since its reduction of price this advantage is even more evident. Especially interesting now is a price to price measurement of the Essex against cars you have regarded as comparable to it in quality.

Will you today find any car that even approaches Essex in quality and ability, within hundreds of dollars of its cost? And doesn't its low cost with such quality appeal to judicious buyers, whether they are considering a car slightly less in cost, or have been seeking Essex quality in some much costlier car?

AVIATION

Wartime Story of German Air Force Is Bared

New Adventure Book Yields Lessons for America

By Morrow Krum.

IN "The German Air Force of the Great War" [Hodder & Stoughton] Maj. Georg Paul Neumann has brought together a score of the more or less confidential reports of German airmen and blended them into a tale of romance, adventure and achievement that will keep your bedside lamp burning far into the night. The volume is a record, a history of the German air force as a unit of power and the application of that power, but what history of flying, with its breath taking accomplishments and its superlative fitness of the fabrics of men and materials, can be anything but romantic and healthy reading?

Maj. Neumann had some difficulty in securing an English translation of this book. Two years ago when Parke Brown was in Berlin the officer called many times on the correspondent, seeking to have the volume brought to America. At that time the book was receiving much favorable comment in Germany. J. E. Gurdon took up the translation and has preserved the aviation atmosphere in the technical chapters and the "good writing" of the others.

The book deals with everything from observation balloons to the airplane raids on Paris, from the first bombing of London by the big dirigibles to the trench strafing by the sturdy little scouts, from the parachute jumps of observers to the mosaic photographs of the capital of France. There is not too much detail nor too much boasting.

The German heavier-than-air pilots flew into the war as "fair weather soldiers" with frail slow moving ships. They carried no arms on those first trips over the lines, no cameras, no radio, no signals, and the men knew but little of flying. At the peak of the German air force accomplishment, just before the entire machine crumbled, they had all types of ships, cameras, guns, signals, and wireless. Their heavily armored weight carriers, their tiny scout ships, their "trench strafing" planes, their observation aerial cruisers were better than most of the allied aircraft, the book asserts.

The Germans used 47,637 ships during the struggle.

The same perfecting of equipment is true of the lighter-than-air ships.

"At the outbreak of the war Germany stood supreme in the matter of airship design," says Maj. Neumann. It is further contended that they held that position at the close of the conflict before the terms of peace snuffed out their activities. The major asserts that whatever progress England has made in dirigibles is due to German science, that the British have done nothing more than copy and perfect.

"In spite of this they did not succeed in building a serviceable airship until after the armistice, when they made the first trans-Atlantic flight," the book declares. "'All the same, Germany has no cause to be jealous. Without any boasting she can claim that this success is not due to English engineering, but entirely to German inventive genius and design. A German airship, with no assistance, made a flight during the war which was considerably more remarkable and considerably more difficult than that which the English accomplished. . . . It was the L-59, which started from Bulgaria to South Africa with supplies for our troops in East Africa. . . . The L-59 covered 4,500 miles in a flight lasting ninety-six hours and could have continued without difficulty. Arriving over Egypt, the wireless messages incorrectly informed the officers aboard that our troops had been transferred or captured, so the big ship returned."

Maj. Neumann asserts that not one German airship was ever lost to the enemy or crashed because of faulty construction.

The concentration of the war into the small areas did more to advance flying than any other one thing, it is asserted. The airplanes had to be unusually high powered; they had to fly high, climb fast, do their work with great speed, and be absolutely trustworthy all because of the small theater of the war.

The stories of the air raids, the combats fought by the scout pilots, the work of the balloon observers all are brimming with thrills.

Take, for illustration, the first air raid on London:

". . . Over England at last! Our hands are drawn to the bomb release lever like iron to a magnet: but the time has not yet come. London is our objective and there still remain two good hours of flight. . . . Below us everything is as still as death, and the country is perfectly darkened. Not a gun is fired, not a searchlight directed at us. . . . A light below—then another. . . . We know that the eyes below must also be watching, but the silence remains unbroken. Did they really hope that we should not find their London?

"The commander cries: 'Let go!' The first bomb has fallen on London! Will it ever hit? Ah, the roar of the explosion. . . . The searchlights come on, reaching after us like gigantic spiders' legs. In a moment the bright body of the ship lies in the beams. 'Hard aport!' is the command, and we are out of the rays. The countless beams fill the sky. A bomb drops every thirty seconds. We count the explosions. . . . This mad frolic continues an hour. . . . When London lies far behind the searchlights are still stabbing the darkness looking for the bird that has flown. Silence—everything below seems stricken with death. How we ever survived the rain of shells around us is more than any one can understand. But we did."

"Tough stuff," you will say regarding this bombing of London, but you will admit that it is heroic and deeply interesting.

"Send by Air."

PRICE HOLLINGWORTH

Price Hollingworth, proprietor of the Lincoln Tavern aviation field, Dempster street and Lincoln avenue, has carried more than 650 passengers on "see" flights this summer. The oldest passenger was Edward Scharenberg, 83 years of age, and the youngest Miss Jane Smith, 3 years of age. Hollingworth claims to have more flying time than any other pilot in America except Eddie Stinson. He has over 3,000 hours' time recorded in his pilot books. "I have never cracked a ship," he adds when making the above statement.

Pieces of Frame of ZR-2 Can Be Bent with Ease

A FULL report of the deplorable disaster of the ZR-2 will not be forthcoming for several weeks. Pending such a report by the British authorities, our own navy department, very properly, will refrain from conjecturing on the causes of the accident, so that the only sources, but perhaps one, of information available are the interviews and statements of the survivors and witnesses as reported in the newspapers.

It has been said in many quarters that in the course of early trials the ZR-2 developed structural weaknesses in her frames amidships and that an attempt had been made to correct this defect and repair the buckled frame. There are other reported causes, but the majority of articles published say that the first trouble occurred when the turn test was made and the ship buckled.

There are in Col. R. R. McCormick's office in THE TRIBUNE plant several sections of the duralumin framework taken from the ruins of the ZR-2 by a CHICAGO TRIBUNE foreign correspondent. While there is no actual way of telling which part of the ship these pieces came from, they in themselves seem to tell a story.

These pieces can be bent by a soft pressure of a man's hands. They offer as little resistance to an ordinary stress as do thin strips of tin. The pieces are built in the form of a U.

Pieces of duralumin built in America of the same size and weight offer a much greater strength than these English made trusses.

In them the experts may find the real story of the disaster.

ZR-2 Disaster Will Not Stop American Plans

Capitalists Going Ahead with Airship Project

PREPARATIONS for the establishment of an airship transportation service between New York and San Francisco, to be in daily operation by 1923, will go ahead, notwithstanding the destruction of the ZR-2.

This is the statement made today at the offices of the Manufacturers Aircraft association, in New York, by Fred S. Hardesty and Edward Schildhauer, engineers representing a group of capitalists in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, and other large cities.

An investigation into the feasibility of airship transportation was begun in 1919 by Mr. Hardesty and Mr. Schildhauer and had been practically completed in many of its important phases shortly before the ZR-2 accident. While the identity of the bankers and business men interested in the plan can not be divulged, it can be stated with authority that the work will go ahead. The project is one of great magnitude, involving an initial capital of $50,000,000, and embracing the construction in this country of gigantic airships 30 per cent larger than the ZR-2.

These airships will have a passenger capacity of 200 or more, in addition to the crew and 50,000 pounds of freight. They will make the New York-Chicago run in ten hours and the coast to coast flight in less than thirty-six. Subject to further scientific inquiry, which is growing out of the destruction of the ZR-2, construction of these ships will be of German duralumin, although fabrication will be carried out in this country. The sustaining power will be hydrogen, if helium is unobtainable at that time, but the investigating engineers are certain of the safety of hydrogen when properly contained, this conviction being based on the actual record of operation in Germany and elsewhere.

"The destruction of the ZR-2 will not materially delay the development of airship transportation, either in this country or abroad," stated Mr. Schildhauer. "The investigations which Mr. Crowell and I made in England, France, and Germany, have proved to our satisfaction, and to the satisfaction of the capitalists whom we represent, that airship travel is not only practicable, but that as world transportation advances, it is inevitable."

Air Guide

There has been issued by the United States air mail service an attractive pamphlet consisting of seventy pages printed by the government printing office, giving distances, landmarks, compass course, emergency and regular landing fields, with service and communication facilities at principal points en route. These flying directons, according to an order issued by the second assistant postmaster general, were prepared with the coöperation of pilots and supervisory officials of the air mail service and with the assistance of the postmasters located within five miles of the line of flight. All employés of the air mail service will be required to familiarize themselves with the information relating to the section of the route with which they are concerned

("What I would like most in a husband would be a sense of humor."—Neysa McMein.)

Neysa's wedded to her art,
Doesn't care to marry;
In a monologist's part
Is content to tarry.
But if she should ever mate
(Journalistic rumor Says) she would prefer a skate
With a sense of humor.

Neysa gets for every sketch
Fifteen hundred dollars,
While her paintings often fetch
More. She sometimes collars
Sums that to a poet seem
Wagonloads of money.
All that for herself I deem
The reverse of funny.

Fellow artists, Neysa sweet,
You and I. A happy
Combination I entreat,
Sensible and snappy.
Please be mine.... The dough I take
In is quite atomic,
But I'll spend the cash you make—
Wouldn't that be comic?

" 'Good God, Doria!'

"'Hush, don't speak. I can't bear it' She pressed her hands to her face. 'You see I—I loved life so much. Ronny wouldn't let me . . . he said no woman should face a thing like that . . . it was so easy, just the three of us all alone in the woods. I—I shot him, Martin. Oh, he was a beast—a beast!' . . .

"'Ronny had gone off by himself to fish or something, and the guides were busy making their camp down by the river. Andrew and I were alone in that horrible cabin and he tried to . . . there was a revolver—Ronny's—lying on a table. I saw red. I don't remember a thing until Ronny came in and found me with the revolver in my hand, and Andrew lying dead on the floor. I had killed him.' "

All the Winter Gaieties

—All the Comforts of Home—at Moderate Cost

Fall and winter are particularly enjoyable at the Chicago Beach Hotel. You can choose among so many things to do: Indoors there are dancing, cards, music, golf and billiards. Outdoors, ice-skating on the Hotel's private rink, motoring or hiking through the parks. Or if you wish, just lounging on the verandas or in the sun rooms.

And with all these recreations at your command, you have a restful, homelike atmosphere. Although you are only 12 minutes' ride from the business district, you can live in this delightful secluded location on the shore of Lake Michigan overlooking a pretty park and perfectly free from the city's rush and noise.

Cozy rooms, single or en suite, elegantly furnished—wholesome cookery served in attractive dining rooms and cafes—courteous attention—all this, with every feature to be found at the most exclusive resorts, at a wide range of rates specially reduced for the winter season.

Write for booklet. See why living at this modern "homey" family hotel is actually less than housekeeping.

Parents Like Tree Memorial for Hero Sons

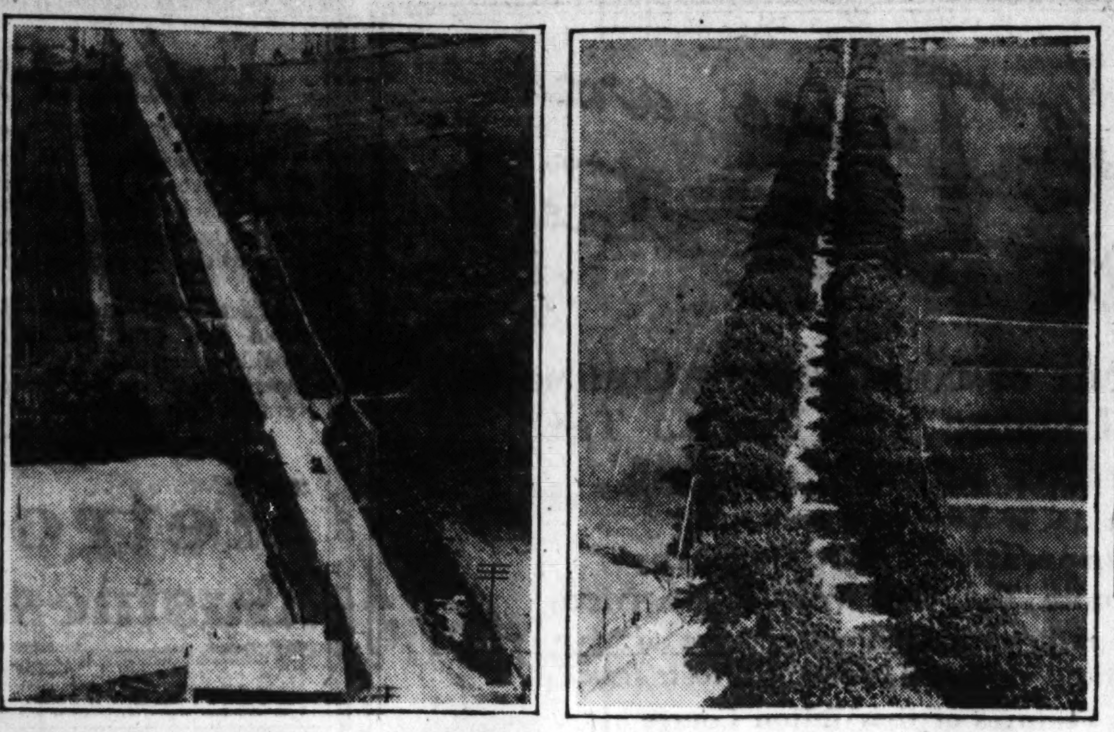
By Leola Allard.

In answer to hundreds of inquiries: It is necessary, in order to have one of the Memory Trees marked on the Country's Roads of Remembrance, to send the American Legion $1 and the name of the soldier for whom the tree is to be planted. Send the name of the soldier's unit, the date of his discharge, if he died in action, the date of death, the time, and place. The 10,000 trees donated by the county board will be given free of charge to the families of soldiers who served in the late war.

The soldier need not be a member of any ex-service men's organization. The American Legion and Boy Scouts will plant the trees, and the Legion will place the bronze markers upon the Memory Roads. Later when markers are placed you can learn from the Legion upon which plate your soldier's name is written and where it can be seen.

There will be 240 names to a bronze marker, the plates placed in cement or stone every quarter mile upon these Memory Roads.

WHICH SHALL IT BE?



These pictures tell better than words what the planting of Memory trees will do for the highways of America. At the left is one auto road into Baltimore. The other road at the right pictures what all our highways will be when they are lined with trees in honor of the Americans who fought in the great war. The photos were taken from an airplane for the Baltimore Sun, which is aiding The Tribune's campaign for Memory roads.

[Photos Copyright: Baltimore Evening Sun.]

THE dollars coming to the American Legion for Memory trees are, most of them, accompanied by letters of appreciation. "The courage of trees," says one mother, "makes me happy that it's that kind of a monument my son is to have. I have stood in the presence of them, giants with impressive strength and silence, and have felt that after the storms that they have weathered without complaint I should take off my hat in their presence. I've never felt that way about stones. Have you?"

A. H. Halladay, who asks for space on the great roads for the names of his two brave sons, sends a card which reads: "From Bunker Hill to the Argonne. James Halladay, Revolutionary soldier, fought at Bunker Hill. William W. Halladay was a civil war veteran. Harry C. Halladay saw six years' service in Uncle Sam's navy, and Egbert Halladay was an A. E. F. truck driver of an ammunition train at Argonne." Two of the memory trees should feel they have an extra dignity when they are placed upon the great roads for two of this patrioitc family.

Road of Remembrance on Film.

The Union of Moving Picture Theater Operators, through its manager, Thomas E. Malloy, has given a substantial contribution to the roads, by seeing to it that pictures accompanying this article are shown in Chicago's moving picture theaters. "A thing like this should have the help of every patriot," was Mr. Malloy's idea, "and I am going to see to it, personally, that the pictures are placed in the hands of the operators, so that the public can see what a road of remembrance looks like."

The managers who granted Mr. Malloy's request were from the following theaters—to date: The Paulina, the Peerless, the Crystal, the Atlantic, the United States Music hall, the Lincoln Hippodrome, the Biltmore, the Barabee, the Virginia, the Gem, the New Home, the Waverly, the Victoria, the Castle, and the Owl.

If, in sending your $1, you find that you could easily spend another one, remember there are wounded boys without families for whom trees must and will be supplied. Wouldn't want to dedicate one to them, would you? Tell the adjutant that, at Legion headquarters. He will attend to it.

Kiwanis Clubs at Work.

From Kenton, O., comes the news that the Kiwanis clubs, leading the Memorial tree committee, will see to it, through Mr. F. E. Toynton, that the tree pictures, furnished by THE TRIBUNE, will be shown in three Ohio cities—Kenton, Marion, and Lima—where tree planting is progressing famously. Ivan A. Johnson of the News-Republican of Kenton is working hard in support of the movement.

Saginaw, Mich., has a grove of 2,000 young walnut trees grown from walnuts from Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington, and under the watchful eye of State Senator Harvey A. Penny, C. A. Reed of the United States department of agriculture, and William S. Linton, president of the Northern Walnut Growers' association, they are being made ready for roadside tree planting, to honor both the soldiers of the late war and the father of his country, in whose home town the trees were born.

Do not misunderstand about these memory trees. They are not alone for those men who did not come home. They are for every soldier who took the oath of service.

South Bend proudly writes THE TRIBUNE on stationery that is engraved "St. Joseph County Memorial Tree Forestry Association, Incorporated, South Bend, Ind." The association has made all preliminary plans, and is ready to launch a big publicity campaign to tell South Bend and surrounding cities how to get its soldier names on the Indiana memory roads. Mrs. Joseph E. Neff has had charge of the work and established a headquarters in her home.

FARM AND GARDEN

Egg Production Center of U. S. Is in Corn Belt

flocks in towns and cities is greater to the unit of area than on the larger farms of the middle west, and these flocks are not included in the estimates. The survey also reveals the fact that egg production has decreased in the seven eastern states from more than [illegible] per cent in New York to as high as 46 per cent in Rhode Island during the last ten years. During the same period of time the opposite condition has been found in the middle west. Every one of the corn belt states shows an increase in egg production in the last decade, increasing more than 2 per cent in Ohio and as much as 11 per cent in Iowa, where more than 120,000,000 dozens of eggs are produced in twelve months.

Corn Belt Takes Lead.

The fact that the eastern states have decreased on the average of 29.5 per cent in the production of eggs in the last ten years, while the corn belt has increased 5.8 per cent, has had much to do with the marketing of eggs. Eastern poultrymen are not able to produce enough eggs for their home markets and are having to draw upon the middle west and Pacific coast states for eggs to be used in the large cities along the Atlantic coast.

New York state, producing more than 62,000,000 dozens of eggs annually, is only able to supply approximately 10 per cent of the eggs consumed in New York City, according to the New York state department of agriculture. And New York produces twice as many eggs as the other six eastern states together, which means that eastern states are not able to supply more than a small per cent of the eggs needed to meet the demand of the cities along the Atlantic coast. With a scarcity of eggs in the east and an abundant supply of them in the middle west and Pacific coast states, a condition of supply and demand exists which makes prices higher on the eastern markets than they are in Chicago. Every year since 1913 without an exception New York has paid higher wholesale prices for fresh eggs than Chicago.

Pure Bred Hog Business Gains

accepting the price," he said. "Any farmer can buy pure breds at a small price above that which he would have to pay for grades.

"Constructive breeders are forgetting the big prices they paid for their herds during the high price period. After the expense of a public auction has been paid there are few of them who have sold hogs this fall that have realized net pork prices. Some have canceled their public sales and are making private sales to their neighbors and old customers. Many are keeping their good individuals and marketing their poorest ones, but there are too many good pure bred hogs going to the market that should be used in our breeding herds over the country," Mr. McCahan said.

Improving the Foundation Stock.

He is convinced by his own experience that pure breds make more rapid and cheaper gains than grades. Mr. McCahan said he would like to see experiment stations throughout the corn belt and elsewhere put hogs on feeding tests to furnish some authentic information showing the difference in the gains made by pure breds and grades that are fed under exactly the same condition. "I think the difference in favor of the pure bred would be so marked that it would be a great object lesson to the men who raise hogs. I believe that within a few years farmers would dispose of their grades and use only pure breds in the production of pork," remarked Mr. McCahan.

Experience Is Typical.

His experience this summer is typical of many practical tests he has carried out on his farm near Muncie, Ind. He culled his crop of 200 spring pure bred pigs and fed 160 of them for the market, keeping the remaining forty for breeding purposes. The pigs were farrowed in February and March, and he was able to put them on the market in good condition by Aug. 1. If these pigs had been grades, he said, he would have been forced to keep them in the feed lot six weeks longer.

Ordinarily he would have kept seventy-five to eighty pigs out of a crop of pigs like the one he had this year. Practically all breeders of pure breds are culling closer this year than usual. They are keeping the best, which gives the farmer a chance to get a much better class of foundation stock than was available last year. Breeders could not afford to cull close when prices were high.

1½-TON INDIANA TRUCK NOW—$1745

A Reduction of $705

IT is because of these two most important features—a low price and unusual quality—that we say the 1½-ton INDIANA Truck is the biggest truck value in the world's market today.

Now that the 1½-ton INDIANA has been reduced $705, it is priced 34% lower than the average price of all 1½-ton trucks manufactured in this country. But beyond the question of price is the known quality and ability of the INDIANA.

No change has been made in specifications—nothing cheapened or slighted. The 1½-ton INDIANA is today the same quality product which has made it long recognized as a leader in performance. A comparison will reveal to you the remarkable value we are offering in the 1½-ton INDIANA at $1745.

Substantial Price Cuts on All Models

Substantial price reductions have been made on other INDIANA chasses, ranging from $115 to $450. There is an INDIANA Truck for every trucking need—at a price which makes it an outstanding value. Investigate the NEW LOW PRICES.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Church Federation Announces Plans for Evangelism

By Rev. Gardner MacWhorter.

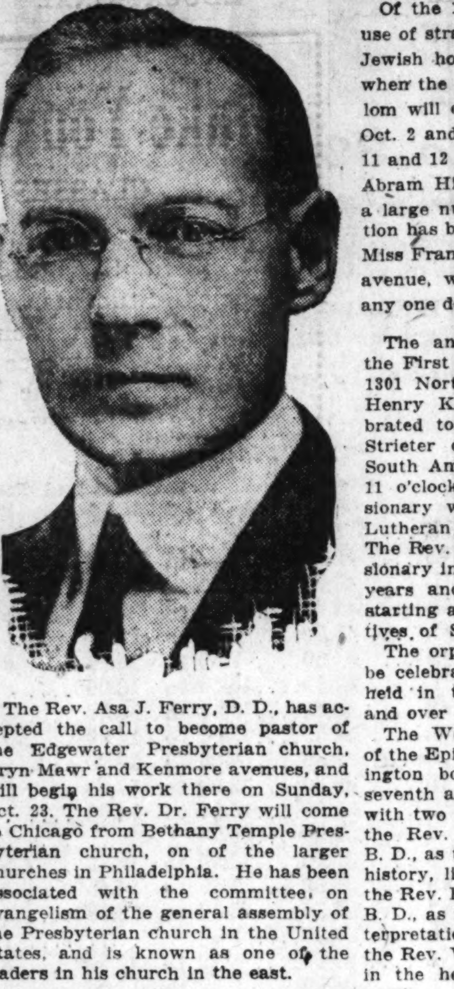
A UNITED evangelistic movement, during the fall and winter, sponsored by the Chicago Church federation will be formally launched on next Sunday. Dr. Charles L. Goodell, executive secretary of the commission on evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Dr. H. F. Stilwell, Baptist; Dr. J. M. Bader, Disciples; Dr. J. M. Summerville, Methodist Episcopal, and Bishop S. P. Spreng will occupy pulpits here Sunday morning and evening in the leading churches.

A union ministers' meeting will be held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning, Oct. 3. Bishop Thomas Nicholson will welcome the visiting secretaries and give the keynote message of the campaign. A net increase of 30,000 new church members is the goal set for Easter 1922.

Denominational luncheons addressed by the visiting national secretaries will take place in the Morrison hotel on Monday, following the union ministers' meeting. The meetings of Oct. 2 and 3 will be followed by a fitting observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the Chicago fire.

The Rev. Charles K. Carpenter, chairman of the commission on evangelism of the church federation, is chairman of the committee of 100 in charge of the evangelistic movement, and Walter R. Mee, executive secretary of the church federation, is secretary of the committee.

Officers of the three sectional committees are as follows: North side—The Rev. Henry Hepburn, chairman; R. Clarence Brown, secretary. South side—The Rev. George R. Stair, chairman; Arthur Nims, secretary. West sire—The Rev. J. S. Ladd Thomas, chairman; the Rev. Robert Clements, secretary. Lewis E. Durham, secretary.



The Rev. Asa J. Ferry, D. D., has accepted the call to become pastor of the Edgewater Presbyterian church, Bryn Mawr and Kenmore avenues, and will begin his work there on Sunday, Oct. 23. The Rev. Dr. Ferry will come to Chicago from Bethany Temple Presbyterian church, on of the larger churches in Philadelphia. He has been associated with the committee on evangelism of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States, and is known as one of the leaders in his church in the east.

Pilgrim Lutheran church congregation will lay the corner stone of its new school building at Cullom and North Winchester avenues this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Rev. O. C. A. Boecler will deliver the address and the corner stone will be laid by the pastor, the Rev. H. C. Steinhoff.

Of the 1,500 seats set aside for the use of strangers in the city during the Jewish holy days at Medinah temple, when the congregation of Temple Sholom will celebrate Rosh Hashonah on Oct. 2 and 3 and Yom Kippur on Oct. 11 and 12 under the direction of Rabbi Abram Hirschberg, there still remain a large number for which no application has been made, and the secretary, Miss Frances Rice, at 3760 Pine Grove avenue, will allot them this week to any one desiring them.

The annual missionary festival of the First St. Paul's Lutheran church, 1301 North La Salle street, the Rev. Henry Kowert, pastor, will be celebrated today. The Rev. Theophilus Strieter of Lagoa Vermelha, Brazil, South America, will preach at 10 and 11 o'clock this morning on the missionary work of the Missouri Synod Lutheran church in South America. The Rev. Mr. Strieter has been a missionary in South America for over ten years and has been instrumental in starting a new mission among the natives of South America.

The orphan festival at Addison will be celebrated today. Services will be held in the morning and afternoon and over 15,000 people are expected.

The Western Theological seminary of the Episcopal church, at 2720 Washington boulevard, opened its thirty-seventh academic year on Wednesday with two new members on its faculty, the Rev. Percy V. Norwood, M. A., B. D., as the professor of ecclesiastical history, liturgics, and canon law, and the Rev. Rev. Robert B. Kimber B. A., B. D., as instructor in reading and interpretation and assistant to the dean, the Rev. William C. De Witt, S. T. D., in the homiletics or sermon department.

Delegations from 300 churches in Cook county will attend the "anti-war" rally of the Chicago Christian Endeavor union, to be held in the Third Presbyterian church, Ashland boulevard and Ogden avenue, on Friday evening.

Slants of Life

by J. P. McEvoy

THE BABY'S POINT OF VIEW.

When grown-ups meet a baby
  How "childishly" they act,
They coo and grin and chuck his chin—
  As if devoid in fact
Of simple social graces
  And common human tact.

When baby meets a baby—
  How mannerly his mien!
He does not tweak the other's beak
  Or pat him on the bean,
But greets him most sedately,
  Complacent and serene.

I wonder what a baby
  Must think of such as we
Who pinch his nose and pull his toes,
  And make so rudely free
On such a short acquaintance
  With his anatomy?

He must be shocked and baffled,
  And quite disgusted, too,
With the silly affectations
  Of the adult point of view—
And hate the curt, uncouth and pert
  Ill mannered things we do.

ARE YOU A FORCEFUL PERSUASIVE TALKER

Can You Convince People?

Have you ever been asked to speak at a Business Conference, Lodge, Political Meeting, Conversational or Public Speechmaking Affair—when your knees shook—words failed you, tongue-tied with stage fright—that heart-thumping nervousness—and you could not express your thoughts intelligently and convincingly?

It is an indisputable fact that without a comprehensive knowledge of Convincing Speech-Power-Fluency, one cannot present a proposition—sell the most goods—win out in arguments—convince people—sway the minds of jury men—or hope to fill a position in the highest branches of Commercial, Social or Professional life.

Speech-Power-Fluency Wins

It will develop Self-Confidence, Poise, Forceful, Expressive English, Voice-Power, Memory, Effective Gesture-Expression, Persuasive Speechmaking. It will give you a Magnetic, Convincing Style of Speech that wins people to you.

Whether you are a Merchant, Salesman, Lawyer, Physician, Banker, Private Secretary, Business Manager, Sales Director, or Society Clubwoman—or in business of any kind—you will need Forceful, Expressive Speech-Power-Fluency to advance you in any relation of life.

A Practical Course in Speechmaking

You can be taught to speak Fluently, Persuasively, Intelligently, with Confidence, Poise. Practical for Business, Professional, Expert Salesmanship, Banquet Affairs, Conversational, Aggressive Sales Talks, or Public Speechmaking. The lessons are brimful of practical knowledge, suggestions, and valuable, helpful ideas.

This accomplishment will advance you rapidly for position, prestige, influence and greater success.

The Private Lessons and Classes are personally instructed by Prof. Ivan Fernan, Ph.D., and Dr. Rostell, Ph.D., of Oxford, England, the two expert teachers in this country of Persuasive, Convincing, Expressive Speech-Power-Fluency.

Federal Taxes are with us to stay!

Announcement of New Walton Course in Federal Income and Profits Tax Procedure and Accounting

Combined, by Special Arrangement, with

The Corporation Trust Company Federal Income Tax, and War Tax Services

A Course and Service which gives authoritative and up-to-the-minute knowledge on Federal Income and Profits Taxation

Special Features of the Walton Course

The Written Lectures in loose-leaf form, are constantly revised as new regulations, rulings, and court decisions make this necessary, and subscribers receive all revisions made during the year, and also additional lectures on any new laws enacted.

The Federal Income Tax and War Tax Services of the Corporation Trust Company, which are included in the Course, place at your finger ends not only the law itself but every official Treasury Decision and regulation, informal rulings and precedents, and all Supreme Court as well as other court decisions.

The Lectures (always up-to-date) bring together and discuss at one place all of the decisions, regulations, rulings, etc., interpreting or administering the various provisions of the law.

The practical illustrations in the Lectures show the application of the more difficult provisions of the law. Forms and Schedules are given which afford formulae for working out the most abstruse statements of the law, reducing their application to a mere mechanical procedure.

Practical work is given in the preparation of income tax returns, on government facsimile forms, for individuals, partnerships, corporations, fiduciaries, and affiliated corporations, as well as the filing of claims for refunds and abatement.

The Value of an Income Tax Course depends upon four important factors:

It must be complete It must be authoritative
It must be practical It must be up-to-the-minute

All of these essentials are contained in the Walton Income Tax Course combined with the Corporation Trust Company Federal Income and War Tax Services.

The wide-flung opportunities open to the tax specialist will not be overlooked by the thoughtful. And nowhere else can this effective combination of Course and Service be secured.

Special arrangement is made with those who are already subscribers to The Corporation Trust Company Services

Practical Experience —Exceptional Facilities —Results that Count

Remember that the one main object of specialized training is to equip you with the greatest speed to make more money. In accomplishing this, three things are all-important—experience, facilities, results.

In point of practical experience, LaSalle Extension University enrolls each year, in its home-study courses alone, over 60,000 members—a record far exceeding that of any other business-training institution. Its experience is crystallized in the LaSalle Problem Method, the swiftest method of advancement known to educational science.

In point of facilities, LaSalle offers training, outlined, organized and supervised by 450 of the most conspicuously successful business men and business educators, in their respective fields, in America. They have perfected the specialized courses listed in the coupon below. Leaders in the fields of Higher Accounting and Traffic have made possible, to a limited number of earnest and ambitious men, LaSalle's convenient

Downtown Evening Classes in Higher Accountancy
Traffic Management
C. P. A. Coaching

Find out about these men and the training they afford!

In point of results, the record of LaSalle is indicated by such facts as these—(1) that as many as 1089 LaSalle-trained men reported, during three months' time, salary-increases totaling $889,713, an average increase per man of 56%; and (2) that in the last C. P. A. examinations in Illinois for which official records are available, and in open competition with graduates of other schools, more than 45% of those successful were LaSalle-trained men.

You are choosing a school? Then, for the sake of your own future, get the facts regarding LaSalle's experience—resources—facilities—results.

GREGG SCHOOL WINS

State Typewriting Championship

In the Illinois School Typewriting Contest held at the Coliseum September 19, Miss Rita Mann won the silver trophy for Gregg School.

In the State Private School Contest two students of Gregg School, Miss Rita Mann and Miss Dorothy Davis, won first and second places respectively.

Practically all typewriting contests held in Chicago during the past twenty years have been won by Gregg students. They are trained by the Rational Method of Typewriting originated in Gregg School. Most of the world's famous typewriting experts received their first instruction from this method.

Gregg School offers you expert training in all its different departments. Prepare to win in the business world by enrolling for either a day or evening course in Gregg School. You can start any week as your progress is individual.

The Greatest Tire Value In the World!

We say this fearlessly about Hydro-Toron tires.

We guarantee them fearlessly for 10,000 miles against stone-bruise, rim-cut and blow-out.

We offer them to you with the confidence that proved service creates. Results obtained by thousands of users make us safe and positive in all these claims.

The reasons for this extraordinary value are:

Internal Hydraulic Expansion process of building tires to prevent hidden defects that later show in stone-bruise, rim-cut and blow-out;

The Toron (no-rot) chemical process of treating fabric to give it greater tensile strength, greater holding power, increased affinity for rubber, and resistance against the action of water and weather;

Oversize—as big as cord tires;

The 10,000-mile guarantee against stone-bruise, rim-cut and blow-out.

Where can you match these certain values in tire construction and usage?

For all of this you pay no penalty in the form of extra price. You pay just about the same for Hydro-Torons, with all their good measure of service and satisfaction, that you would pay for an ordinary, average standard fabric tire. When you buy your next tire say "Hydro-Toron" to any dealer in this splendid list of reliable sellers of tires.

HERE'S AN OPPORTUNITY TO EARN REAL MONEY.

A million dollar manufacturing company, marketing a nationally advertised line, sold to retail merchants, in small towns as well as large cities, has a few guaranteed territories where the way is paved for salesmen to get quick action, but the men we accept must have sales ability. If you are a salesman with an earning capacity of less than $500 per month, pass on to the other advertisements. But if you have sales ability, we will make a place for you. Our proposition sells now in the face of depressed business conditions. Last month was the greatest August business in the history of our organization. It won't take you 10 minutes to see the merits of our product. If you can talk with conviction, are willing to work, and think you can qualify, see our Mr. Hough, who will explain this entire proposition to you Monday and Tuesday between 9 and 12 a. m. and 1 and 4:30 p. m., Hotel Brevoort. Call Monday if possible. Out of town applicants write.

SALESMEN.

In looking through these columns for a money making opportunity, remember this: the greatest real estate boom ever seen is about to hit Chicago. Thousands of homes will be built in the next few years. Fortunes will be made by men entering this business now. But—be sure to locate with a firm that is well established; that has a reputation back of it. We are the largest and most successful organization in Chicago. We have the reputation of having the highest paid salesmen in Chicago, because we give our men real co-operation. We have our own advertising manager to get you live leads. We did more newspaper advertising last year than any other four real estate firms combined. Our properties are always better located. For instance, we are now selling property inside Chicago on the 8c car line, with sewer, water, and sidewalks in, as low as $275. Can you beat it? Come in and let us show you several men who earned over $20,000 with us last year. Suite 15, 2d floor, 156 W. Washington-st.

SALESMAN—THIS AD IS PUBLISHED BY a responsible manufacturer who wants to get in touch with a serious minded man who feels that he possesses selling ability above the average. We prefer a man over 35 who can show a successful record in his last place. The more you know about selling the dealer the better. You must travel steadily, but the income is there and increases as repeat business develops. We make a high class article; are well established, but right now spreading out. We want a high class man and can show you high class earnings, and you will not waste your time telling us something about yourself if you are seriously seeking a real job. Commission basis, with liberal advances. Give your age, nationality, and experience, please. Address P L 566, Tribune.

SALESMEN — TO REPRESENT LARGE manufacturer with prospect of promotion to Manager of Branch after capabilities proven. Applicants must have good records, possess salesmanship and furnish bond. In replying state business history for past ten years, salary expected, age, whether married or single and send photograph, state telephone number. State whether object to taking up residence in any part of the country or abroad. Applications not considered unless above data is given and all considered confidential. Address J E 36, Tribune.

SALESMEN—MY HOUSE HAS PROMOTED me. I need a man who can be quickly trained to take my place. He must be a red-blooded American, energetic, ambitious, and willing to pay the price for success in hard work. The man who qualifies steps into $10,000 a year. Give phone. Address P L 428, Tribune.

EXCEPTIONAL OFFERINGS IN KENILWORTH.

Every prospective purchaser of Kenilworth building sites is astonished at the small number remaining for sale in that attractive North Shore suburb. So many sites have been bought for future use by people not yet ready to build that a casual inspection gives a very wrong impression as to the number of sites that are really available.
There are only 5 building sites for sale on Sheridan-rd. in Kenilworth; only 4 on Raleigh-rd.; none on Leicester-rd.; 3 on Warwick-rd.; 2 on Essex-rd.; one on Oxford-av.; and none on Cumnor-rd. Prices naturally have advanced this year, but are still below the price of similarly located property in other villages adjacent. If you intend to locate in Kenilworth, it would be wisdom to get your homesite there immediately. Every available site in the village is listed with McGUIRE & ORR.

Several Kenilworth exclusive house listings. Excellent buys.
A fine home for rent, furnished, for the winter. Coal in.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Florida.

COME TO FLORIDA WITH ME.

A Hesperides Orange Grove is a substantial asset, a source of life income, and a safe form of insurance for your dear ones. Make me prove it. Come along with me to Florida and see the most wonderful orange and grape fruit groves in America. [First trip is next Saturday, Oct. 1.] All expenses, including railroad tickets both ways, meals, auto trip, and 3 days at Hesperides Club house, not to exceed $75.00. Don't take my word for it—see for yourself.

Location—300 feet above the sea [immune from damaging freezes], on a railroad and Florida auto highway in a community of northern people. Schools and churches close by.

Climate—Ideal the year 'round. It's always June at Hesperides, Fla.

Possibilities—Really beyond estimation—but conservatively speaking, $5,000 yearly.

I am not a professional Land Man. My business is manufacturing and I am a success, but I have owned groves in Polk county for years and have an organization to develop as fine a paying grove for you. Bank and character references cheerfully exchanged. Write or phone for beautifully illustrated literature and convincing proofs.

Responsible Real Estate Men with high grade clients should also be interested.

FOR SALE—FLORIDA ACRES, IN WHOLE sections or parcels. Beautifully situated on large lake, below frost line; two and three crops a year, $200 to $2,000 per acre yearly profit. Fine hard road through property; near high class market; no trees to be cut or swamps to be drained; and so rich it is bought and used as fertilizer. Price right and terms easy; get some friends interested and buy a whole or half section together. Why worry about high cost of living, high rents, cold winters, big coal bills, etc.? Own a Florida farm, be independent and face old age with a smile. Write today for photographs and details. W. H. FOSMER, La Grange, Ill.

OPEN AIR SALE
REBUILT CARS,
Sunday, Sept. 25,

HELD IN OUR
Lot on 22nd Street Between Michigan Ave. and Indiana Ave. Entrance at Alley, South Side of Street.

50 CARS

When Bird-Sykes say "Rebuilt Paige" they do not mean merely "shined up," "tightened up," and "tuned up." Rebuilt in the Bird-Sykes shop means taking apart motor, transmission, and rear axle—measuring or testing parts to determine wear—replacing worn parts with new—rebuilding—adjusting—tuning up—repairing body—refinishing top and upholstery. That is why a Bird-Sykes Rebuilt Paige satisfies the eye as a new car, and its performance is the same as new.

On each Rebuilt Paige car standing on our sales floor is a history card—it tells you who owned it—and all that has been done to it in order that we may make good our term "Rebuilt," instead of just repaired.

Chandlers

CHANDLER COUPE, built in 1919. This car has been exceptionally well cared for. Without question this is the best car of this model we have ever offered. Interior is heavy gray whipcord. Body revarnished over original factory finish. Present appearance of a new car. Is equipped with oversize Goodyear cords. This car is in best possible condition and is ready for immediate use. Specially priced at $1,460.

CHANDLER CHUMMY ROADSTER, built in 1919. This car has been refinished beautiful blue with cream wheels. Appearance exactly resembles the new roadster we are delivering today. Will seat your passengers very comfortably. Mechanically as good as we can make it. An ideal car for a small family. This is one of our most popular models. This is an extremely good value at $950.

CHANDLER TOURING, 1920 SERIES. This is a late model car and is an exact duplicate of our present model. The original finish is excellent. Is equipped with a new set of tires. Run enough to be properly broken in. Condition does not show slightest signs of abuse. This is a very good value at our low price of $1,150.

CHANDLER COUPE, PRESENT SERIES. This is our first opportunity to offer as late and good a car as this. It has received the best of care and is in excellent condition. Is revarnished over original factory finish. All bright parts renickeled. Interor is rich tan velour. Does not show slightest signs of wear. Mechanically as good as we can make it. Four pass. Fisher body. Built at factory late in 1920. Exact duplicate of car we are delivering new today at $2,935. Priced extremely low at $1,850.

CHANDLER SEDAN, 1919 SERIES. This is a four door Fisher body. Individual seats in front. Carries five or seven passengers. Upholstered in gray whipcord. Body is refinished in standard factory colors. All bright parts newly nickeled. Mechanically car is thoroughly overhauled. It runs as smoothly as when new. This is our first offering of this model at our low price of $1,560.

OTHER MAKES.

OLDSMOBILE COUPE, 1920, 6 CYL. This is one of the most beautiful light weight closed cars on the street. Seats four passengers. Upholstered in dark green velour. Body is finished in blue with white stripe. Nickel radiator shell. Original factory finish. 5 Goodyear cord tires. Tire cover to match body. Rear view mirror and seat covers. Motor equipped with light iron pistons. Runs smooth and quiet. You will admire this car on sight. This is an exceptional opportunity to buy an excellent car at a low price, $1,000.

WILLYS-KNIGHT TOURING, late 1917 model. Every adjustment necessary to put car in A1 condition has been made. New finish of dark maroon. Bright parts renickeled. Cord tires. Top and leather upholstering like new. Silent motor. Car presents exceptionally good appearance. Price very low. Special price, $450.

CADILLAC'S
4 BARGAINS

PACKARD TOURING CAR. This is a late series Packard in wonderful condition throughout. There is not a mar or blemish on the paint and the mechanical condition is exceptionally fine. This car is equipped with a set of good cord tires, 2 extras, clock, seat covers, etc. The general appearance of this automobile would suggest very little use. Mileage is very low. This car must be seen to be appreciated. We believe that this cannot be duplicated at our exceptionally low price of $2,300.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, SUBURBAN. This is the latest and current series and the same car as we have been delivering new for the past year or more, costing $5,700. This has been carefully used and has not had a great deal of mileage. Customer has availed himself of our service department. This particular car is without question way above the average—in fact, the motor, transmission and rear axle are practically as tight as the day the car was delivered new. The velour upholstery, as well as the paint, shows practically no wear. Has an excellent set of cord tires, one extra and bumper. We are asked by our customer to offer this at a low price in order to move it quickly. For this reason your immediate action will be necessary. Of course, this is a guaranteed car by us. Special for this sale, $4,250.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, PHAETON. This is the sport model and the current series. Is painted a standard Cadillac blue. Paint, upholstering, and top are in exceptionally fine condition. Car has not been run a great deal and had careful attention from the original purchaser. Equipped with spare tires, bumper, clock, full equipment of tools, etc. Mechanically, will guarantee it. This car has been marked down to move it quickly. If you are looking for one of these popular models, do not fail to make an examination of this car. The price is so low it will probably be sold to the first person who makes an examination. Special for this sale, $2,750.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, TOURING CAR. This is our standard and latest series 7 passenger touring car, which costs new today over $4,000. It has been carefully used by one of our factory men and had a thorough inspection made of it at the factory. Has just been refinished. It has the appearance of a new automobile and carries our guarantee. Has an excellent set of cord tires, one extra, bumper, etc. We believe this to be by far the best 7 passenger Cadillac touring car ever offered. Special for this sale, $3,000.

"OH, BOY!"

IF you only knew how much we want to dispose of our stock of used cars you would at least come in and look them over.

And nothing would make us so happy as to sell you a good used car. And nothing could make YOU so happy as to own and drive one of our rebuilt Oakland Cars.

WELL, we are at 2426 Michigan-av. every day, including evenings and Sundays, with a stock of Roadsters and Touring cars from $150 up to $900, Coupes and Sedans from $300 to $1,200.

There seems to be no way of using our language in an advertisement to convince you of the value of these cars or our sincerity in the matter. A visit from you or a phone call for a salesman will be the first necessary move.

Cadillacs and Low Costs

The price tag has nothing to do with automobile cost. The car that lasts longest is out of the repair shop most and has the highest resale value, is the cheapest car. Figured from every angle, no other car costs so little as a Cadillac, and nowhere can you buy Cadillacs to so great advantage as right here—we sell Cadillacs only and handle none that we cannot guarantee to you. The price on every car on our floor is rock bottom.

PAIGE 6-66 DEMONSTRATOR

LAKEWOOD MODEL, 7 passenger touring car that is practically a new automobile. Naturally has had the very best of care. Has always been kept up to the highest point of efficiency. In fact, it is more efficient at this time than a brand new car. The Paige Lakewood has a nationwide reputation for its immediate acceleration [pickup] and its abundance of power. Unlike most powerful cars, it is extremely economical because of our most modern construction. Its riding qualities are unsurpassed because of its unusually long semi-elliptic spring and Marshall springs in the luxurious deep upholstery. The Paige Lakewood is one of the easiest handling cars on the market today. This car in particular is fully equipped with a spring bumper, extra tire and cover, spotlight, lock, full factory equipment of tools, etc. This car is guaranteed by us. Price $2,400.

BUSINESS SERVICE.

FOR MANUFACTURERS ONLY

I want the selling agency, on a commission basis, of a high class line, beginning Jan. 1, 1922. I will consider any territory that includes any or all of the states of New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio. Will work the South. On one factory's line in a small territory my commissions for 1920 exceeded $37,000. On the same line and in the same territory THIS YEAR'S commissions—which now equal last year's—should exceed $50,000. I prefer a line that pays liberal commissions and is backed by sufficient capital to take care of ANY VOLUME OF BUSINESS. Financially responsible. High grade references given and expected.

AUCTION SALE!

OF

500 ANTIQUE AND MODERN

ORIENTAL RUGS

We have received a cablegram from our Mr. Sourian, now visiting Constantinople, giving us instructions to sell out at auction our entire stock of oriental rugs, to REALIZE CASH for the big shipments on the way.

This collection consists of 500 choice oriental rugs, all sizes and descriptions. Silk rugs, Royal Kashans, Saruks, Kirmanshahs, Bokharas, Araks, Chinese, etc., etc., including our 150 very rare antique rugs now out of market, all to be sold regardless of cost or value.

This is a good opportunity to buy selective Oriental rugs at your own prices, as they must be sold out to the highest bidder for cash.

Sale commences on Thursday evening, Sept. 29, at 7:30 p. m., and the following Friday and Saturday at same hour at our salesroom, 1303 E. 47th-st. Exhibition until the day of sale.

RARE OPPORTUNTIY FOR SOME ONE.

My 6 room apartment, on the North Side, is probably one of the most interestingly, beautifully and artistically furnished ones in Chicago. When you see it you'll agree.

For various good reasons I am today in a position where I must sacrifice these entire furnishings from silverware and linen to piano—everything is for sale, together with my leasehold.

Most of the furniture was purchased from the Scholle Furniture company. You know what that means in point of quality.

Most of my things are less than six months old.

The reason I am keying this advertisement is because I want to avoid interviewing persons who are merely curious. If you are sincerely interested in considering any of these furnishings, let me have your reply in a letter and we can arrange for your inspection of the apartment.

If you are really interested, address K 386, Tribune.

FOR SALE—OAK DINING TABLE, ALMOST new, 60 ins. diameter, 10 ft. extension. Also 6 heavy chairs, leather seat and back, overstuffed sofa, antique walnut dresser, rocker, upholstered chairs, bronze clock and candelabra, electric fixtures, lamp shades, and heavy velvet portieres. Everything good as new. Bargain. Edgewater 3574.

HIGH GRADE 3 PC. LVG. RM. SUITE, $75; mahogany library table, $65; brass bed complete, $40; Wil. rugs, $18; books, kitch. ware, etc.; wonderful bargain. Call all day Sunday or evenings. 6648 N. Ashland-av. Rogers Park 6262.

REAL ESTATE NEWS.

NORTH SHORE TO HAVE MINIATURE HONEYMOONVILLE

Nottingham Village to Be Bit of Old England.

BY AL CHASE.

Until old Mr. Stork intervenes, the population of the north shore's newest, tiniest and most exclusive community, the coöperative honeymoon hamlet, known as Nottingham Village, to be laid out on the lake shore in Hubbard Woods, will number approximately thirty persons—fifteen newly wed couples, to be exact.

This unusual little group of honeymoon homes will have about it much of the atmosphere of old England, its name being taken from that part of Britain-Nottingham, where Robin Hood held forth in Sherwood forest. Modern Robin Hoods, however, will be kept at bay by a high, old English, ivy covered wall, with iron studded oak doors, guarded by gatemen. This means the villagers may sleep soundly with unfastened doors and windows and have no fear of burglars.

Like a High Class Club.

Nottingham Village will be run like a high class club. There will be a board of governors and a president. In case a family desires to move, the house will be sold only to parties meeting the unanimous approval of the villagers. If there is any profit in the sale, a certain per cent will go into the community fund, which will be maintained by subscription.

A capable woman, living in a tiny executive cottage, will have charge of the coöperative servants who will wash dishes, make beds, and do other household duties throughout the village. It's supposed, of course, the brides will all do their own cooking, though this will be done by a village cook if wanted. A community furnace carer and lawn cutter will do away with the usual worries of the head of the house.

Originated by Julian Armstrong.

Architect Arthur Heun is drawing plans for Nottingham village for Julian Armstrong, managing owner of the Armstrong Bureau of Related Industries, originator of the idea of supplying fifteen honeymoon couples with fifteen as worryless, charming, and secluded homes as imagination and money can produce.

The dainty brick or stone, timbered, thatched roof, English type cottages, all entirely different, but artistically harmonious, will have winding flagstone walks leading to a main gate. On the lake front, at the top of an eighty foot bluff, will be a miniature old English inn, to be called Sherwood Forest tavern, which will be a gathering place for dancing, dining, and general neighborliness.

Heavily Wooded Site.

The site is a heavily wooded one, fronting 300 feet west on Sheridan road and 650 north on Wentworth avenue. It is just north of the residence of Frederick Scott of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., and south of the estate of James Simpson, vice president of Marshall Field & Co.

"This is not a housing project or a homebuilding scheme in any sense of the word," explained Mr. Armstrong, who, by the way, originated the unique "Port of Missing Men" floating clubhouse for the Buccaneers club in Wilmette harbor. "There will be no real estate brokers and no commissions. It'll be a hand picked club membership and practically all have already been selected.

Houses May Cost $15,000.

"At present we estimate the houses can be built and sold for around $15,000. They'll be about 35x35, with the grounds varying in size. That there is a real demand for such a coöperative plan is shown by the interest taken in the project. It'll not be coöperative in ownership, of course, merely in government and management. Mr. Heun is designing one of the most attractive groupings I've ever seen."

Mr. Armstrong recently spent $20,000 in construction work on the 180 foot beach, erecting new breakwaters, etc. Last year he planted several hundred fruit trees and had the entire property gone over by a nationally known tree doctor. There is space for community tennis courts and other playground facilities. Nottingham village, of course, will be under the municipal direction of Winnetka, although a small fraction of it is across the boundary line in Glencoe.

Plans Large Residence on Winnetka Lake Shore

What is said to be the last piece of vacant on high ground in Winnetka has been sold by John W. Gary, formerly of Lyon & Gary, to Arthur H. Woodward for a reported $40,000, through Francis M. Case & Co. The property fronts 200 feet on Sheridan road, just north of North avenue, and extends back 600 feet to the lake, with riparian rights. Mr. Woodward intends to build a large residence.

Roger Faherty Buys Former Residence of Swiss Consul

Roger Faherty, attorney, son of Michael Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, has bought the twelve room residence at 629 Deming place, lot 50x200, from John J. Powers, brother of Harry Powers, theater owner, for $15,000, through Crowe Brothers. It formerly was the home of A. Holinger, Swiss consul to Chicago.

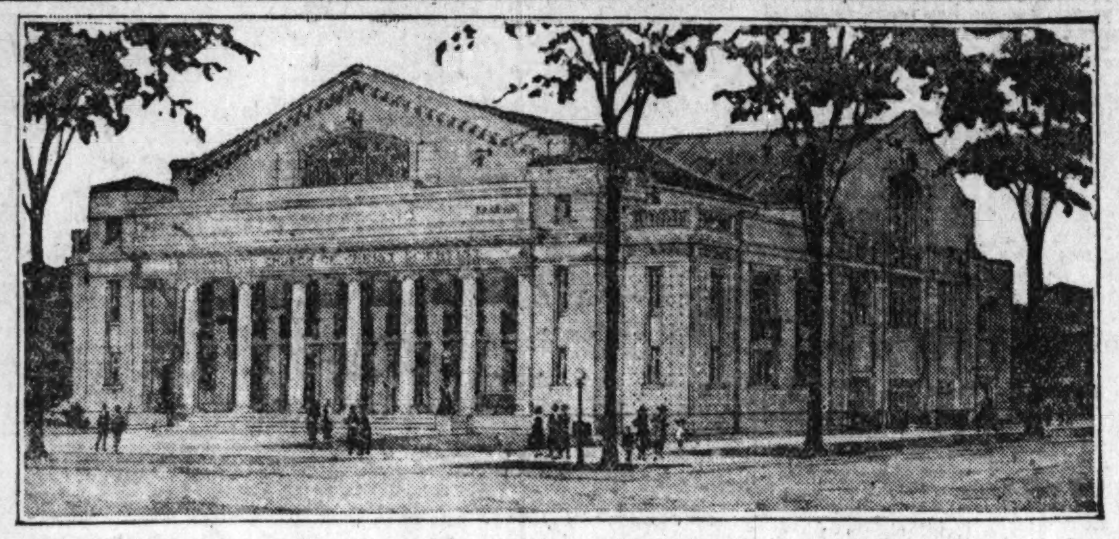
New Christian Science Temple for Ravenswood



CONTRACTS have been awarded for the new edifice of the Fourteenth Church of Christ, Scientist, to be erected at the southwest corner of Sunnyside avenue and North Paulina street, in Ravenswood. It will be fireproof throughout, with exterior of gray face brick, terra cotta and cut stone trim, and with granite portico. The lower story will have a large foyer at the entrance, a Sunday school room seating 900, Sunday school secretary's room, toilets, and check rooms. The second story will have a large foyer and an auditorium and balcony seating 1,200; also rooms for readers, organist, and board of directors. According to the architects, N. Max Dunning and Clarence A. Jensen associated, the total investment will be approximately $250,000. It will be ready next spring if possible.

Board Notes

J. SOULE WARTERFIELD.

Chicago Real Estate, the monthly publication edited by Harry Culberton of The Economist, for the Chicago Real Estate board, is to become strictly a board publication, it having been turned over to J. Soule Warterfield, one of the most active of the group which came over some months ago to the Chicago board from the Cook County Real Estate board. Mr. Warterfield edited the live little paper for the board preliminary to the recent national realty convention—a publication which probably did more than anything else to help raise the big cash fund necessary to finance the convention.

Mr. Warterfield is manager of the Harry Moir properties, including the Morrison hotel and the Hartford building.

Mr. Warterfield is chairman of the semi-centennial committee of the board. The other members are E. Sumner Walker, Winfield Schendorf, A. E. Curtis, and B. L. Coolidge. Not being able to discover a text book on the preliminary steps in taking out citizenship papers, Mr. Warterfield has compiled such a pamphlet, and 5,000 are being distributed. The Chicago Real Estate board is to take an active part in getting several thousand lined up for American citizenship during the semi-centennial. Two hundred applications were received in the first forty-eight hours after the committee was formed and literature sent out.

Sixty-nine new members were announced at the first fall meeting of the Chicago Real Estate board.

The Chicago and Cook county real estate boards are endeavoring to arrive at a uniform schedule of commission rates.

New Subdivisions

The Lake Shore Realty company has acquired the property known as King fields, on Ridge road, Wilmette, near Kenilworth avenue, opposite the North Shore Golf club and south of the Indian Hill Country club. It is being subdivided into 100x177 lots, with improvements, and it is claimed will be restricted to high class homes. A. H. Kraus was broker.

Ten acres at the southeast corner of North and Oak Park avenues have been sold by V. T. Lynch and William J. Clark to Thomas E. Sullivan, according to John S. Clark. It is reported that Mr. Sullivan is to subdivide at once and that Gelder & Sneary have been appointed selling agents.

H. A. Brown & Co., managers of Waukegan and North Chicago properties for E. A. Cummings & Co., announce the opening of their north shore home addition in North Chicago, between 10th and 14th streets, covering eighteen city blocks. Business lots are 25x125 and residence lots 33x150. There are four blocks of business frontage on Sheridan road.

Round the Realty Offices

A. L. Kirk, who has been associated with James A. Bidderman in the Otis building, and Clyde A. Kirk, with H. E. Henderson & Co., 6542 Sheridan road, have opened a real estate and brokerage office at the southwest corner of Wilson and Kenmore avenue under the firm name of Kirk & Kirk.

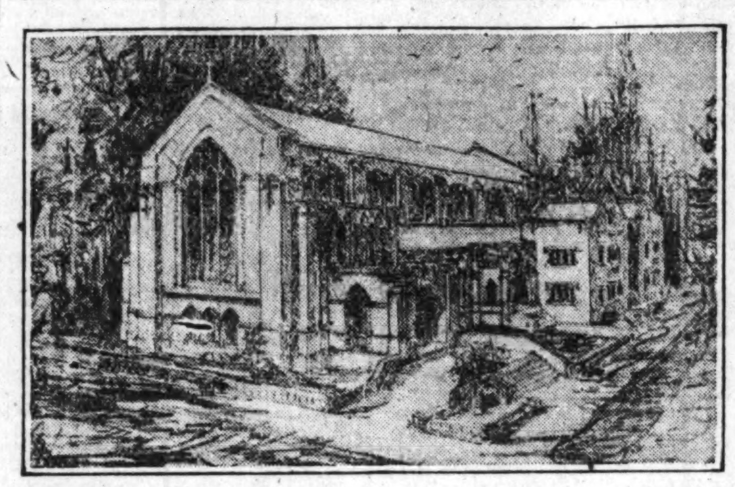
Titus, Haffa & Co. have closed their branch renting office at 947 North Wells street, merging it with the main office at 657 West North avenue. The firm expects to open a branch office in the Wilson avenue district in the near future. Harry Kastens and Harry Delano are in charge of the realty and renting department.

Carroll L. Bragg has taken over the Riverside office of Bragg Brothers and will conduct a real estate business under the name of the Carroll L. Bragg orагnization. His brother, Chester H. Bragg, will continue to operate in Berwyn and La Grange as Chester H. Bragg, suburban homes. The change is the result of the increasing activities in western suburbs, the brothers saying they can serve their clients better by giving the offices individual attention. Heretofore the three offices have been operated under the name of Bragg Brothers.

BEGIN ROGERS PARK APARTMENTS.

Work has started on a six apartment and garage building at 1344-46 Greenleaf avenue from plans by Architect Davis D. Meredith. It will cost the owner, Mrs. Nellie L. Engle, $60,000. The flats will have five and six rooms and three baths.

Albany Park to Have New Episcopal Church



GROUND was rcently broken for the new Episcopal Church of the Holy Apostles at the northwest corner of Drake and Leland avenues, in the Albany Park district, which will cost $80,000. Architect Clarence Hatzfeld has designed a structure in the modern Tudor Gothic to be of texture brick, stone trimmings, and with large stained glass windows. A rectory to be occupied by the pastor, the Rev. J. H. Dennis, will be connected with the church. It also will contain a large committee hall, Sunday school, and other necessary apartments. It will be ready next spring.

WHAT LAWRENCE AVENUE IS DOING TO GET BUSINESS

This is a combination "beg-your-pardon" and news story. Recently this department had a story about how Lawrence avenue between Sheridan and Broadway was dazzling the Wilson avenue district habitues with its new mazdas. The improvement was made under the direction of C. C. Kennedy of Lawrence & Kennedy. This name was incorrectly given last week. Mr. Kennedy now tells some of the improvements planned in the way of remodeling and altering old improvements.

"The northeast corner of Lawrence and Kenmore, owned by Victor G. Williams, will be remodeled into stores this coming May," he said. "The northwest corner of Kenmore and Lawrence, owned by John S. Holmes, will be remodeled into shops on the Lawrence avenue side. The southwest corner of Kenmore and Lawrence, owned by Walter G. Young, will be made into stores as soon as possible. Andrew McAnsh, owner of the southwest corner of Winthrop and Lawrence, has plans for remodeling his building at once if he can come to some agreement with his tenants, putting shops on the street floor and offices on the second. Mr. McAnsh has enough bona fide offers to completely fill his building.

"P. M. Curto, Arthur Scott, and G. W. Moore of Curto & Co., have started to remodel their six flat building at 1054-56 Lawrence avenue. The shops will be ready within a month. Stores are in great demand on this street and as fast as these buildings are remodeled they'll be rented."

Loop School Buys Kenwood Residence; Plans Building

The Chicago Normal School of Physical Education, located in the loop for the last eighteen years at 430 South Wabash avenue, has bought from Newton B. Lauren the 124x300 property at 5026-36 Greenwood avenue, improved with an eighteen room residence, which will be used exclusively as a dormitory.

The rear portion of the lot is to be at once improved with a new school building to contain a gymnasium, classrooms, and offices, plans for which have been drawn by Architects Zimmerman, Saxe & Zimmerman. While the purchase price is withheld, the total investment, including new improvements, will approximate $125,000, according to the broker in the deal, Warren A. Cahn.

Harvester Official Buys Residence in Hinsdale

Another International Harvester official has bought himself a Hinsdale residence. J. F. Jones, sales manager of that concern, purchased the eight room house of William D. McDonald at 138 South Elm street, through the A. C. Cross agency. The property is 105x300. The sale price is not disclosed, although it is understood to be around $30,000. The McDonald family will move to Chicago Oct. 1, when Mr. Jones will take possession.

Plan $200,000 Addition to Broadway's Motor Row

Upper Broadway's motor row is to have a $200,000 addition. Hurles Kelly and J. Whitton McLin are having plans drawn by Architect Paul Gerhardt for a service and sales building to front 80 feet on Broadway at Nos. 5725-31, with a depth of 230 feet. It will be two stories, of granite and terra cotta, with a balcony extending entirely around the salesroom.

$45,000 PAID FOR CHANCELLOR L. JENKS RESIDENCE

Chancellor L. Jenks, large owner of loop real estate, has sold his residence at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Haven street, Evanston, to N. Gill Ap Madoc, wife of W. Tudor Ap Madoc, Chicago attorney, for a reported $45,000. The property is opposite the Patten gymnasium and fronts 112 feet on Sheridan and 180 on Haven. Herbert C. Jenks, Evanston broker for McGuire & Orr, made the sale. Mr. Jenks intends next May to resume occupancy of his Ridge avenue residence. Mr. Ap Madoc will take possession of the Jenks house on Oct. 10.

OAK PARK BEATS CHICAGO TO IT ON ZONING LAW

While Chicago is still in the throes of getting started on a twelve months' study of the city in order to zone it properly, it's biggest suburb, Oak Park, has just finished a year's work on a zoning ordinance and the village trustees have unanimously made it a law. The new ordinance divides the town into four classifications, as follows: A. Homes; B. Apartments; C. Commercial and hotels; D. Industrial. This means Oak Park will remain a city of homes and whatever apartments are built will be placed where they won't harm residence districts.

Lawrence Avenue to Have New $100,000 Building

Herman Shapiro and George Caulos have leased the 25x65 store at 4803 Broadway from the Walgreen company for ten years from May 1, 1922, at a total rental of $42,600. Mr. Shapiro also has rented individually the 35x50 first floor store in the three story building which the Walgreen company intends to build just east of its corner property on Lawrence avenue at a cost of $100,000. No architect has yet been selected. Mr. Shapiro will pay $40,600 for a ten year term on this lease. He plans to operate an "L" shaped restaurant, with entrances on both Lawrence and Broadway. Madden Brothers negotiated both leases.

Western Union Leases New West Adams St. Building

The Western Union Telegraph company has leased the three story building and adjoining one story structure at 1029-35 West Adams street from Henrietta S. Wurts and Delia F. Dahm for twenty years at a total rental of $240,000, to be used as a service station. The property involves an investment of $150,000. The lot is 81x189. Paul C. Loeber & Co. represented all parties.

Blue Island to Have a New $125,000 Masonic Temple

Work will start at once on Blue Island's new $125,000 Masonic temple, to be built on the east side of Western avenue two blocks south of Burr Oak avenue on a 77x171 site. Architects Robert M. Hyde and Arthur V. Brown have designed a four story building to contain a 600 seat auditorium on the first floor, two stores, seven offices, two lodge halls, and in the basement a banquet room to accommodate 500. It will be completed Jan. 1.

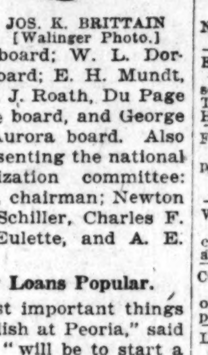
BUILDING FOURTEEN BUNGALOWS.

Edwin J. Wagner & Co. have fourteen brick bungalows of five and six rooms under construction in Belmont Park on Nelson street, between North Lamont and North La Vergne avenues.

PLAN TO HAVE RECORD CROWD AT CONVENTION

Realtors in Chicago and Vicinity Active.

"Chicago and suburban realtors realize what downstate realty men have done for them in helping enact constructive legislation such as the new brokers' license commission law the zoning act, and various rent bills, and are going to show their appreciation by making the coming annual convention of the real estate boards of Illinois at Peoria on Oct. 13, 14, and 15 the biggest thing of its kind ever held."—Joseph K. Brittain, president of the Real Estate Association of the State of Illinois.



JOS. K. BRITTAIN [Walinger Photo.]

All but the final details of the fifth annual convention have been arranged. At a luncheon at the Chicago Real Estate board on Thursday representatives of outlying boards pledged their support to the Brittain idea of making the Peoria convention the most important ever held, both in point of attendance and in constructive work accomplished.

At this luncheon were: Judge C. E. Northrup of the North Shore board; W. L. Dormand, Evanston board; E. H. Mundt, Oak Park board; O. J. Roath, Du Page County Real Estate board, and George Alschuler of the Aurora board. Also the following representing the national and state organization committee: Louis B. Beardslee, chairman; Newton W. Farr, Isadore Schiller, Charles F. Durland, George Eulette, and A. E. Curtis.

To Make Realty Loans Popular.

"One of the most important things we hope to accomplish at Peoria," said President Brittain, "will be to start a state-wide movement to make realty loans popular. We want to centralize local capital in mortgages in the home town and not let it get scattered about in wildcat projects or all put into commercial paper. That, of course, is merely one; we have several vitally important things to act on. I believe we've got the most interesting program we've ever had at a state convention. I figure there'll be 600 present and about 125 should be from Chicago. There were 300 delegates at Rockford last year."

The Peoria convention headquarters will be in the gold room of the new Jefferson hotel. Here is the three day program:

THURSDAY, Oct. 13, 8 p. m.—Reception by Peoria realty board to visiting delegates. Smoker and dance, Jefferson hotel.

FRIDAY, Oct. 14, 8:30 a. m.—Registration at secretary's headquarters.

9:30 a. m.—Convention called to order, Jefferson hotel, by President Joseph K. Brittain.

Invocation.

Address of welcome by Victor Michel, mayor of Peoria.

Welcome by John W. McDowell, president Peoria realty board.

Response and annual address by President Brittain.

Annual report of Secretary-Treasurer William E. Coffman, Galesburg, Ill.

Roll call and short responses.

12 noon—Ladies' luncheon.

1:15 p. m.—Singing popular songs.

1:30 p. m.—"Illinois State Taxation," George C. Gale of Galesburg, chairman of revenue committee of constitutional convention.

2:15 p. m.—Conferences of the entire convention. "Our Real Estate License Law," led by William C. Johnson of Danville, Ill.

2:30 p. m.—Theater party for ladies, Madison theater.

3 p. m.—"Real Estate Corporations in Illinois," led by Hiram E. Todd, Peoria, Ill., member constitutional convention.

3:30 p. m.—"Appraisals; How We Can Make Better Appraisals and Get Better Compensation for Making Them," led by Callistus S. Ennis of Chicago.

4:30 p. m.—"Town Planning and Zoning; How Are Cities Benefited and How Can These Benefits Be Obtained?" led by Ivan O. Ackley, Chicago.

5:15 p. m.—"The Desirability of Real Estate Loans," led by Hiram S. Cody of Chicago.

5:45 p. m.—"Some Agricultural Problems," led by Guy L. Noble of Agricultural Advertising Service, Chicago.

6:30 p. m.—Dinner at the Jefferson hotel, given by the Peoria realty board to delegates and guests. Speeches by Henry M. Pindell and Percival G. Rennick, followed by five minute talk cup contest, in charge of Danville board.

SATURDAY, Oct. 15, 9:15 a. m.—Singing popular songs.

9:30 a. m.—Reports of committees.

10:30 a. m.—Bill Bone.

11:30 a. m.—Report of committee on credentials. Report of committee on resolutions. Nominating committee. Election of officers. Selection of convention city. Official photograph of convention will be taken [ladies included].

2 p. m.—Ride over city.

There are now twenty-five realty boards in Illinois affiliated with the state organization. At the time of last year's convention there were only sixteen.

WILL TRY AND TALK SILVER CUP BACK TO CHICAGO BOARD

ARTHUR E. CURTIS [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The big, human interest, fun event of the annual state convention of real estate boards is the five minute talk contest for the silver cup presented by the Danville board. Yesterday it was announced that the realtor who will try and talk the cup back into Chicago will be Arthur E. Curtis of the loan department of the Chicago Trust company. Last year Hiram Cody, one of the mangers of the real estate department of the same bank, made a try to get the cup back at the Rockford convention, but Oak Park won the prize. Each town is entitled to one speaker, who for five minutes tries to tell why his town is the best on earth. A stop watch and gavel prevent any long winded oratory.
